GENTLE VOICE A GREAT CHARM.

One of the Most Powerful Attractions in a Woman.

Very few women realize what an effect a sweet voice has on a man. A woman may be very pretty to look upon, may be faultlessly and bewitchingly attired and attractive in every way, and yet directly she opens her mouth and speaks the spell is broken, the charm is gone. And this need never be.

Very few voices are so naturally bad that they will not succumb to training, and the voice can be trained to be just as sweet and gentle as one pleases to make it.

A woman should speak in a low voice. She should not allow her voice to raise itself to a high pitch.

A shrill-voiced woman is terrible. She should not shout her orders to the servants down the stairs, nor call to any one who may be in another part of the house. This shouting and raising of the voice spoils the tone and quality of the voice and tends to make it harsh. A pretty voice is a powerful attraction in a woman and she who would add to her charms a wondrous fascination should cultivate a voice "ever soft, gentle and low."

MOTHER INSTINCT WAS STRONG.

Old Lady Ready to Aid Any One She Thought Needed It.

A woman who looked as if she had a commuter's ticket in her handbag kept a long line of customers waiting in a New York bank one morning recently. She was writing something and was in no hurry. She was not one of the fashionable "no hips" creatures, but was of such generous proportions that she could not be circumnavigated. There was nothing to do but wait and wonder what her business was. The cashier himself was in doubt, but waited politely to see.

"There, young man," she announced triumphantly to the cashier after putting her pencil in her mouth for the fiftieth time, "there is a prescription that has been in our family for 50 years. It will knock that cold of yours endwise. Hustle right out and get it filled and be sure and soak your feet in hot mustard water to-night. Don't let your cold run on."

The smiles that went round were kindly ones, it seemed so good to meet a universal "mother" ready to coddle any human being that she thought needed her ministrations.

Take Celestial Bridegroom.

At Los Angeles, Cal., the other day a rich Chinese merchant was married to a colored woman, and almost the entire colored population turned out to witness the marriage. The ceremony was performed in one of the colored churches by Rev. C. H. Anderson, for which he received a fee of $50. The Chinaman, whose name is Keen Scheck, was attired in American clothing of the latest fashion, and his bride, Miss Anna Laura James, was dressed in a manner that would have been envied by many a white belle. The bridal gown was of the finest white satin trimmed with real lace, and on her head was a hat covered with white ostrich plumes and satin plumes to match. After the ceremony the people retired at once to their own home, a $7,000 mansion on a popular street, which had been previously deeded as a wedding present to the bride.

Boy Originated Safety Pin.

"The originator of the safety-pin," said an historian of inventions, "was a little boy, an English blacksmith's son.

"The little boy—Harrison by name—had to look after his baby brother. The baby often cried, and its tears were usually to be traced to pin punctures. The boy nurse tried a long time to bend pins into such a form that they could be used with safety to his brother's flesh.

"In this he failed; but his father, the blacksmith, perceived the utility of the idea the lad had been at work on, took it up on his own account, and eventually turned out the safety-pin that is in use to-day all over the world."

Ignorance of South America.

One of our contemporaries referred yesterday to "little Paraguay." That republic is four-fifths as large as Germany.

Many persons have erroneous notions as to geographical sizes and lengths in South America. They have not the slightest idea that Brazil is nearly as large as the whole of Europe, that the distance between the north and south ends of Chile is as great as that between the North Cape of Europe and Gibraltar, and that steamers ply almost straight north and south on the Parana and its Paraguay affluent for a distance about equal to that between New York and Omaha.—New York Sun.

Model of Economy.

A certain farmer, who is noted for his closeness in money matters, has a 12-year-old son, who is as industrious as his father is penurious.

Recently the father and son made a compact whereby the latter would receive ten cents for every cord of wood he sawed and piled in the woodshed. Immediately the boy became very busy at the woodpile and his earnings have been piling up at a rapid rate, his mother keeping her son's hard-earned savings for him.

"What are you going to do with all your money?" the thrifty youth was recently asked.

"Goin' to buy a new saw-with it," was the reply.

The New Mayor

Based on G. H. Broadhurst's Successful Play

The Man of The Hour

By ALBERT PAYSON TERHUNE.

Copyright, 1907, by George H. Broadhurst.

"That's just it. You did it for run and for a friend. Why not do something in earnest and for yourself? The world is fairly bristling with opportunities for such a man as you. Grasp those opportunities. Won't you?"

"Yes! And when I do—is there any hope that you will?"

"I have given Mr. Gibbs no promise. I told him to wait."

"Then my chance is as good as his. From now on I am going to drop the role of rich man's son and be something on my own account. If you have faith in me—if you believe in me—if there is a ghost of a chance that you can some day love me"—

"I have faith in you, Alwyn," she answered softly, letting her hand lie passive in his grasp. Then, withdrawing it with a pretty gesture of petulance, she added:

"Only I wish it didn't always require a blow to rouse you to action. Did you ever happen to notice that trait in yourself?"

"Why, no. I don't quite understand."

"Then here's an instance that will show you what I mean: In your senior year at Yale when you were playing halfback on the varsity eleven I saw my first football game. It was against Princeton. You were the only man on either team I knew, so I watched you from first to last. Little as I understood football, I could see you were playing a clever, hard, conscientious game. But it wasn't a fighting game—not the sort of game that carries everything before it. Then, in the second half, in one of the scrimmages I saw a Princeton man strike you. Oh, it was a dastardly, cowardly blow! Hestruck you when your head was turned away. You saw who it was, and you made no appeal to the referee, but in the next scrimmage you broke that man's collar bone and stunned him. He was carried senseless from the field, and you kept on. You had begun to play a fighting game, and it carried you through the Princeton line for the only touchdown of the day. You won the game for Yale. You were the college hero—the man of the hour. But it took a blow to rouse you. Now do you understand?"

"You were the college hero—the man of the hour."

"Yes, I think I do. Perhaps you're right. I certainly remember the blow well enough. Do you happen to know who it was that struck me that day on the football field?"

"No. I knew none of the players except you. Who"—

"It was Gibbs."

"No!"

"I'm not likely to have forgotten. Ask him yourself. He will remember it, I fancy. It was a week before he left the infirmary."

"But I can't realize that Mr. Gibbs would do such a thing! It was so cowardly, so"—

"Oh, don't hold it against him. He was excited and"—

"Tell Mr. Phelan I'll see him in the library," called Wainwright from hall.

"More politics!" exclaimed Dallas. "Come, shall we go out to the tennis court?"

They passed through the open French window as Wainwright and Gibbs entered the library from the opposite door.

"The alderman's a little behind time," said Wainwright. "He's a character in his way. You'll be interested in meeting him, Gibbs."

"Mr. Phelan," announced the butler.

"I know my own name, son," remarked a voice behind him. "You needn't go hollerin' it at me like I was bein' ratified at an east side meeting. Mornin', Mr. Wainwright. Maybe it was you he was hollerin' at."

"You're a little late, alderman," said the financier.

"I always am. Let the other feller do the waitin'. That's my motto, and many a good hour's time I've saved by it. Who's your friend?"

"Mr. Gibbs of Gibbs & Norton. Mr. Gibbs, this is Alderman Phelan."

"Of the Eighth," amended Phelan. "Only man to carry his ward last election runnin' independent. Pleased to meet you. Yes, sir, I ran independent, and I win, as Wainwright here can tell you. Horrigan's out against me this year, and he's got carried away by some fool idea that he can down me next campaign."

"Can he?" asked Gibbs politely, bored.

"Can he?" roared Phelan, his close clipped hair a-bristle. "Can he? Can chesty Dick Horrigan down Alderman Jimmy Phelan? Well! Nothin' to it, son. When I'm through with Dick Horrigan he'll have worried himself so thin they'll have to wear glasses to shave him. I'll bury him so deep this fall that they'll never find him till they start diggin' a subway to China."

"You seem pretty confident," observed Gibbs.

Alderman Phelan.

"Confident? Why not? Why not, I ask you? Why wouldn't I be confident? Is there a voter in the ward—black, white, yellow or greenhorn—that I can't call by his first name and ask after all his children by name? Is there a voter in the ward I haven't staked to coal or outings or ball or booze? Is there? If so, name him to me. Put a name to him. They're my friends twelve months of every year, not just at election time. Horrigan, indeed! Say, if he starts runnin' any man in my ward he'll have to sight him by a tree to see if he's makin' any progress or not. Horrigan, hey?"

"Come, come, alderman," interposed Wainwright. "Why don't you and Horrigan smoke the pipe of peace? Why"—

"The only pipe me an' Dick Horrigan will ever come together over will be a yard of lead pipe, an' my fist will be at one end of that an' his thick head at th' other."

"But," remonstrated Wainwright, "he is a strong man. Is it safe to fight him?"

"Why isn't it? He's got to come into the Eighth to lick me, and he'll be about as strong there as a barkeep's influence with the Prohibition party. Besides, I like a fight. I'm the original 'Stop, look and listen' signal at Trouble station. I"—

"As a personal favor to me, alderman," wheedled Mr. Wainwright in his most persuasive manner, "won't you make a friend of Horrigan?"

"I'd gladly oblige you by makin' a fine, fashionable, rollickin' funeral of him, but friends—friends"—

"But if I asked him here to meet you wouldn't you try to be cordial to him?"

"I sure would—as cordial as a bankrupt to a rent collector. He'd be as pretty near as welcome as a broken leg."

"I'm sorry you look at it that way, alderman, because I've asked him today."

"To come here? Quit your joshin'!"

"But he doesn't know he'll meet you."

"An' he'll never find it out, for I'm on my way. I'd sooner meet a p'rade from th' contagion hospital."

"Of course, if you're really afraid of him"—

"Afraid of him!" snorted Phelan, coming to a full stop at the door and then returning to the middle of the room. "Afraid of Dick Horrigan! Show me the man I'm afraid to meet and I'll meet him with pleasure just to show you it's a lie. As for"—

"Mr. Horrigan!" came the butler's announcement from the threshold.

The man who followed the announcement was one who carried in his bearing the chief reasons for his success. Tall, stout, square of jaw, square of brow, hard of mouth, he seemed to dominate his very surroundings and to exhale a rough forcefulness that carried all before it. His physiognomy was essentially that of the born fighter as well as leader—the man that neither gives nor asks quarter. From the days when as a ferry ticket seller he had laid the foundations of his later fortunes by "knocking down fares," up through his varied career as policeman, contractor, politician and boss, he had fought his way ever to the front by that same force, backed by a bulldog pluck, a genius for organization and a mentality wholly devoid of scruple and conscience.

It could not be said of Richard Horrigan that his morals were bad. He simply had no morals at all. By contact with men of higher culture than his own he had lost his early incorrectness and vulgarity of speech. His domineering roughness of manner he had no wish to lose. It was by far too valuable an asset.

"Good morning, Mr. Wainwright," began Horrigan, with a breezy familiarity, as he strode into the library, quite unabashed at finding himself in the presence of the dreaded finance king. "I'm a bit ahead of time, but"—

He stopped short, with a grunt of rage. His eyes had fallen on Phelan. Bristling like a plucky terrier at the onset of a mastiff, the alderman stood his ground, giving the boss glare for glare.

And so for a moment the enemies faced each other.

CHAPTER III.

HORRIGAN was first to break the tense silence.

"What's this here for?" he growled, indicating Phelan with a contemptuous jerk of the head and addressing no one in particular.

"Ask your friend Wainwright," grunted Phelan, with equal roughness.

"I—you see," began Wainwright conciliatingly, "I didn't like to see two such first rate chaps at odds with each other, so I wanted to bring you together here to"—

"Oh, you did, did you?" sneered Horrigan. "And what did Phelan say to that little plan?"

"I said," snapped Phelan before his host could reply—"I said I'd see you in —— first!"

"Same here, twice over!" said Horrigan.

"But," interposed Wainwright coaxingly, "is there no way"—

"No," retorted Horrigan, his deep voice rumbling far down in his throat. "There isn't. Look here, Phelan! I'm out for your scalp, and I'm going to get it!"

"Come on, look for it!" crowed Phelan, fairly hopping up and down in rage and excitement. "Come a-runnin'! An' while you're huntin' my scalp don't overlook one bet. I'm after yours!"

"Mine, you little shrimp! Why"—

"Yes, yours, Horrigan, you cur. You're pretty chesty an' strong standin' on the top of the organization, but you're no bloomin' statue of Liberty. You can be torn down, and here's the man who's goin' to do the tearin'. Me—Alderman Jimmy Phelan of the Eighth!"

"Let it go at that for now. You'll wake up in the fall, when the election"—

"Let it go at that for keeps. I"—

"Mr. Wainwright," broke off Horrigan, 'if this was the business you wanted to talk over with me here"—

"It isn't," assured the thoroughly uncomfortable financier.

"Oh! Then we can get down to real business perhaps when this fellow's gone."

"That lets me out," observed Phelan cheerfully as he picked up his hat. "G'by, Mr. Wainwright. G'by, Mr. Gibbs. Horrigan, I'll"—

"But you'll stay to lunch, alderman, won't you?" urged Horrigan, with an effort at cordiality that deceived no one.

"No, thanks," replied Phelan. "When the curtain's down and the orchestra's gone home I don't need no usher to poke me in the ribs to tell me the show's out. As for stayin' to break bread with Dick Horrigan, I'd sooner have a jolly little grub fest with Wiley's poison squad. Goodby, all. Horrigan, as for you, some day I'll cross two sticks of dynamite under you and you'll scatter so wide that the inquest over your p'litical remains will have to be held in fourteen counties."

"I am so sorry, Mr. Horrigan, that this should have happened in my house," said Wainwright as the irate alderman stalked out, leaving the boss staring after him in dumb fury. "I meant it for the best and"—

"Mr. Wainwright," interrupted Horrigan, venting his pent-up wrath on his dismayed host, "this old world of ours is white with bones of failures, of fools, of deadbeats. In other words, of folks who 'meant it for the best.' Now let's get down to business."

"First let me introduce Mr. Gibbs. He"—

"Glad to meet him, but he'll excuse me when I say I never talk business when there's a third party around. No offense, Mr. Gibbs. Just walk out and take a look at the view, like a good boy, won't you? Thanks."

Gibbs, at a warning look of appeal from Wainwright, checked the angry retort that sprang to his lips, turned on his heel and walked out. Horrigan, who had observed the glance exchanged between the two men, grudgingly attempted to soften the effect of his brusqueness.

"I didn't mean to snub your friend," said he, "but Phelan riled me, and I took it out on the next man I spoke to. What on earth set you to having Phelan here to meet me for, anyway?"

"Just as I said. I wanted to win him over to us. We will need every strong man we can get this fall. We"—

"You know a lot about finance, Mr. Wainwright. But you're a rank outsider in politics or you'd never have made such a break. I can't compromise with Phelan even if I wanted to. He's stood out against me, and I've got to smash him. If he could defy me and get away with it, other leaders would think they could do it, too, and in less than no time the organization would be split up into a dozen factions, and I'd be down and out. Understand? I've got to look out for discipline if I'm to hold the place I've won. When a man in the organization starts a fight against me, I must down him. There's no turning back. That's why I'm boss. Every man in the crowd knows he's got to obey me or fight me and that if it's fight it's a battle to the death. And he's the man who does the dying, not I. Now, you understand? So we can get to business. What"—

But business seemed this morning fated to many interruptions. The latest came in the form of Judge Newman, who, bustling into the room with all his customary pompous dignity, suddenly stopped in his tracks and wilted at sight of the boss.

"Good morning, Mr. Horrigan," said the judge ingratiatingly, wriggling under the boss' glower. "I hope I'm not here too early and that Mr. Wainwright has interceded for"—

"For your renomination?" queried Horrigan, speaking as though to a disgraced servant. "If that's what you're here for you might have spared yourself the trouble. What I told you before still goes."

"But, Mr. Horrigan, consider how long I've been on the bench, and"—

"And it's time you got your nose out of the feed bag and gave some one else a chance. You are"—

"I'm growing old, Mr. Horrigan!" pleaded the thoroughly cowed judge. "How can I go back to law practice and compete with younger men? Besides, Mrs. Newman declares"—

"I can't help that," returned Horrigan, quite unmoved. "You've had your share. We've got to look out for our own active workers—for the men we can count on to do the right thing."

"But, Mr. Horrigan," protested the judge, "I always try to do what is right."

"I said 'the right thing,'" corrected the boss. "See the difference?"

"Excuse me, judge," intervened Wainwright. "If you'll leave this matter in my hands, I will try to convince Mr. Horrigan of your fitness. Just leave it all to me."

"Oh, thank you so much, Charles!" cried the relieved judge. "I'm sure I can count on you. Mrs. Newman will be so grateful. Well, I won't detain you any longer. Goodby."

"Goodby, judge," answered Wainwright tolerantly.

"Goodby, Mr. Horrigan," went on Judge Newman, with effusion.

A grunt from Horrigan, who had turned his broad back on the visitor, was the only reply, and the judge departed to bear the message of hope to Mrs. Newman.

"Have you any special objections to Newman?" asked Wainwright.

"No," said Horrigan, "except I think perhaps there's men who can do better by us. You know how much it means sometimes to have the right judge handle your case."

"I think at a pinch we can manage Newman, and"—

"Oh, if it is a favor to you, all right. But it doesn't do those judiciary fellows any harm to keep them guessing awhile. It tames 'em and teaches 'em to mind—sort of keeps them in their places, you know. And now won't you tell that butler of yours not to let us be disturbed?"

Boss Horrigan.

Wainwright complied, and the two settled down to their deferred talk.

"How about the election this fall?" began the financier.

"We're already growing; but, just between you and me, it's going to be a hot fight. The people at large seem to be a little sore on the organization. A few deals lately have been a little raw, and some of the papers are kicking. Good Lord! If it wasn't for the newspapers what a cinch a boss would have in running a city! It 'd be like taking pennies from a baby's bank. But"—

"Then you think there is some doubt about the election?"

"I wouldn't go so far as that. It'll be a tussle, but with plenty of cash and the right man for mayor—mark me, I say 'and the right man'—we ought to win."

"The woods are full of 'right men,'" replied Wainwright. "The money is the chief thing to consider. That is why I asked you here today. This is the point I'm getting at: As soon as election is safely over the Borough Street railway will apply for a franchise for a car line from Blank avenue to Dash street along the river front."

"I see!" nodded Horrigan. "And, as you own the City Surface line and as that is the Borough Street railway's worst rival, you want the Borough's franchise bill killed when it comes before the board of aldermen."

"You're wrong. To paraphrase your own words, you know a lot about politics. I want the Borough Street railway's franchise granted, and I want the franchise to be perpetual."

"But I don't see what your driving at. If you intend to merge the Borough Street railway with your own City Surface line its charter will become void."

"I don't mean to merge them. I own both roads, and I run them separately."

"The —— you do!"

"That's a little surprise, eh? I haven't made any parade of it. I just went quietly to work, through Gibbs, and bought up a majority of the Borough stock. Now don't you see how the granting of the franchise and the news that I control the road will work when they are made known?"

"Sure! It'll send that stock sky high. You'll scoop in a million or two."

"A million or two!" echoed Wainwright scornfully. "Nearer"—

"Hold on!" interrupted Horrigan. "What's that noise?"

He had jumped to his feet with an alacrity that was surprising in so large a man and was listening intently.

"That clicking?" asked Wainwright. "Oh, that's only the private wire in my office."

"Private wire? Any operator?"

"Of course. Why?"

"Suppose he should happen to be listening to us?"

"Who? Thompson? Absurd!"

"I don't know. I'd rather"—

"Nonsense. It's Thompson, my private secretary, a man who's been with me nine years. I trust him as"—

"But I don't. I don't trust anybody. Send him into some other room."

"I can't. In his absence some important message might come, and if he wasn't there on the very moment to transmit it to me I might lose thousands. He's all right if ever a man was. I trust him implicitly."

"Oh, all right, then. Go on with what you were saying."

CITY HIGH WINS AGAIN

TAKE AN UPHILL GAME, 5-4.

Heavy Wind Kept Fielders Guessing and Made It Hard for Pitchers in Saturday's Game.

Dutcher's two-bagger, scoring Dey and Murphy, won for the Plainfield High School in the eighth inning of Saturday's game on Crescent Oval, when the local boys beat the Morris High School nine 5-4 in a well-played uphill game It was anything but a good baseball day, for the wind swept across the field like a young hurricane, raising clouds of dust and doing strange stunts with fly balls that kept the fielders guessing. The pitchers, too, developed lots of speed pitching with the wind, but the day was too cold for them to have much control.

Doane and Riffert tallied for the locals on Murphey's single in the first session. Three hits in the fifth gave the New Yorkers a chance to tie the score, and though Doane's hit in the seventh brought in Dodwell for P. H. S., Morris landed two swipes where there were no fielders in the other half of the inning and scored two more tallies, regaining the lead.

But it remained for Dutcher, the "Singer Building" of Dunellen, to persuade the eagle of victory to remain in this city. This was done in the eigth, which proved the last stick session for the locals, and the single that did the business scored Murphey with the winning run.

Yule was efficient on the slab for Morris, fanning seven and giving three passes, while Murphey struck out six, and gave a single base on balls. The New Yorkers hit safely seven times, while the local boys got four singles and a two bagger. A feature was a double play by Morris in the sixth, when Nixon and Lord retired Dutcher and Murphey. He is fifth in average with 188.2.

The team lead in the tourney at Campbell's is held by the Somersets, who won four games and lost none. The Prospects are second with two games won and none lost and the others are ranged as follows: Putnams, won one, lost none; Centrals, won two, lost two; Arlingtons, won one, lost one; Madisons, won 1, lost two; Watchungs, won none, lost two; Belvideres, won none, lost four.

HIGH WIND RESPONSIBLE FOR MANY LONG HITS.

A baseball team composed principally of members of Grace M. E. church defeated a scrub nine including several North Plainfield High School players on the Westervelt avenue grounds Saturday afternoon by a score of 26-19 The high wind made long hits common, and neither pitcher was efficient. A feature of the game was Woodland's batting, for the church nine, who knocked out two home runs. Miller, captain of the church team, was on the slab for his nine, and Byron McClintock and Smith pitched for the scrubs. The score by innings:

Grace M. E. ....3 0 6 0 3 4 0 2 8—26
Scrubs .....1 0 3 6 1 4 1 2 1—19

Morris H. S. Nine Entertained.

William Jennings Bryan, who was expected at Trenton today, in a letter written to Governor Fort and received by the latter on Saturday, states that he will not visit Trenton while the Legislature is in session, but will be in that city April 21, at which time he expects to address the Trenton Chamber of Commerce.

The Governor said Saturday that he would turn the letter over to the president of the commerce board.

MR. DAVIS'S TALK ON GEORGE JUNIOR REPUBLIC

"Life at the George Junior Republic," was the subject of an interesting talk given before the Men's Club of the Seventh-Day Baptist church, last night, by Theodore G. Davis, of this city, the field secretary for the institution. The Republic is located at Freeville, N. J., and Mr. Davis gave an excellent idea of the work carried on there.

At present there are about 87 boys and 68 girls being cared for at the Republic. They are of a class considered incorrigible and are sent there for not more than three years as a rule, between the ages of fourteen and eighteen years. Occasionally they are kept until they are twenty-one years old, when they are held responsible to the State.

The boys and girls are taught all sorts of trade, and the boys even make the furniture with which to furnish their homes. One thing, the speaker said, that helps to make the boys and girls better men and women is that they have their own government, conduct their own courts and in every particular carry out in minuate detail the form of government established. In this way they are taught to be responsible and are given care and oversight over themselves. Mr. Davis said that the boys and girls enjoy this feature of life at the Republic and in nearly every case a complete reformation takes place in their lives, making them useful men and women and when they are discharged they are fully capable of making their own living in the world. Following the talk by Mr. Davis there was an informal discussion on the subject by the members of the club.

Belleville Ready to Join Newark.

The passage of the bill to annex Belleville township to Newark caused much rejoicing among the annexationists, who declare they will win out at the election next November when the people vote upon it. The antis wanted a bill passed to make the township a town, under the Voorhees act, but the annexationists had the bill buried, and the only question at issue is "annexation of no annexation." The promoters of the annexation scheme have already begun to organize for a hard fight.

He believes that his brother's death was accidental..

New Jersey Has a New City.

A new city was added to New Jersey when Governor Fort signed a bill incorporating South Amboy, near New Brunswick. South Amboy changed from borough to city government to control its own licenses, which have heretofore been handled by the Middlesex County Court. Judge Booraem last year refused a large number of licenses, and has held up seven more this year. The South Amboyans say they want to pick their own saloons.

SMALL BOY OBEYED ORDERS.

But Perhaps His Methods of Play Were Too Strenuous.

He is a very small boy, but he has a very much smaller sister, a wee baby, who arrived only a few weeks ago. The small boy was delighted. Never had he seen anything so little or so interesting.

Could the baby see, could she hear, could she eat, did she have teeth, and why didn't she talk and walk? Those were a few of the questions he asked. Answers not being altogether satisfactory, he began a personal investigation. He opened the baby's eyes when she was asleep to see where her eyes had gone to, anyway; he opened her mouth in search of teeth, and it was here that the family came to the rescue, and the small boy was told that he could never visit his baby sister without clasping his hands closely behind him.

"He loves the baby so that he stands by the half hour just looking at her," said the proud mother of both youngsters to a visitor. "And he is so honorable that he never thinks of taking his hands from behind his back. Just come and see him now." But as the two entered the nursery mamma gave a wild scream as she rushed for her baby.

There was the small boy, his hands clasped tightly behind his back, to be sure, but the baby not having responded to his challenge to play, he had taken her silence for consent, and was bumping heads with her.

HARD LIFE OF BACHELOR SEAL.

Has Nothing Like So Good a Time as Human Counterpart.

"This skin," said the furrier, "came from a young seal bachelor, a youth ignorant of love and of life."

"How do you know?" the lady asked.

"By its fineness, its perfection," he replied. "The pile, you will note, is like closecut velvet. Only bachelor sealskins have such a pile.

"The bachelor seal," he went on, "has a rather sad life. The big bull seals in the seal islands have each a household of 15 or 20 wives, but the young bachelors must herd by themselves. Let one of them attempt to marry, and straightway a bull slays him. Not till he is big enough to fight and conquer a bull—not till he is 14 or 15 years old—can he know the delight of settling down in a home of his own.

"He is not like the human bachelor, the favorite of the chorus girls, the reveler in all sorts of club luxuries; but he leads a hard, ascetic, celibate life, only in the end, as like as not, to make a lady a very fine coat. All the very fine coats, I repeat, are made from the unhappy bachelor seals."

Why Snow is White.

The reason that snow is white is that all the elementary colors are blended together in the radiance that is thrown off from the surface of the crystals, which may be examined in such a way as to detect these colors before they are mingled together to give the eye the impression of whiteness.

The whiteness of the snow is also in some degree referable to the quantity of air which is left among the frozen particles. Considerably more than a thousand distinct forms of snow crystals have been enumerated. These minute crystals and prisms reflect all the compound rays of which white light consists.—Chicago Tribune.

Sartorial Wisdom.

A Manhattan magazine announces upon the authority of the leading writer on men's fashions that "double-breasted trousers" will be the vogue next spring. The same authority is quoted as declaring that "it is now considered good form to line the buttonholes with silk straight to the edge." This oracle has a competitor who also periodically ventilates the ludicrous combined with the incongruous. In an article treating of the approved period of mourning, the rival of the "double-breasted trousers" dictator, prescribed weeds as follows: "Husband for widow—nine months."

Failed to Work.

"Yes," said the sad-eyed passenger, "I married the widow of a man who was hanged, and I thought, under the circumstances, I would be able to avoid odious comparisons in connection with the late lamented. But I was mistaken."

"She praised him just the same, eh?" rejoined the hardware drummer.

"Well, not exactly," answered the s. e. p., "but we hadn't been married a week until she declared that hanging was too good for me."

Irksome for Both Parties.

A long friendship and a short engagement is, perhaps, the best combination. A prolonged engagement is the most trying relationship between the sexes possible to conceive. For the woman it means the drawbacks of matrimony without the charm of restful finality, or any of matrimony's solid worldly advantages. On the man's side it means the irksomeness of the marriage yoke without any of its satisfactions and comforts.—The Grand Magazine.

Best He Could Do.

"Sir," said the irate parent as he unexpectedly entered the parlor, "what do you mean by kissing my daughter?"

"Excuse me," replied the poor but otherwise honest young man, "but I desired to show my appreciation of your daughter's loveliness, and kisses are the only things I can afford to give her at the present stage of the game."

Cost Him $50 to See Sick Child.

Summit, April 13.—Police Justice Hicks Saturday imposed a fine of $50 on Louis Martin because the latter visited a room in which his grandson, Joseph Martin, five years old, was confined with scarlet fever, after Martin had been informed by Dr. W. H. Baker that the child was suffering from the disease and the house had been quarantined. Health Officer Rowe also testified that he had ordered Martin not to visit the sick child, but that Martin had disregarded the order and had been found in the house. Martin denied that he had visited the house after he had been ordered not to.

He was in the railroad's employ but three months.

COURT'S APRIL TERM ON Both Justice Parker and Judge Schenck Sitting at Somerset's Session.

GRAND JURORS ARE DRAWN.

The List of Causes An Unusually Long One, Some of Which Are of Local Interest.

The April term of the Somerset County Courts opened in Somerville this morning with a large attendance of members of the bar and others. Justice Parker, who was recently assigned to that district, presided, with Judge Schenck also on the bench.

Announcement was made that Judge Benjamin A. Vail will hold the Circuit Court, commencing Monday, April 27. Justice Parker also announced that the opening day of the Somerset circuit has been changed from the second Tuesday in September to the following Tuesday, September 15.

The list of causes this term is an unusually long one and many of the cases are ready for trial. It is said there are a great many complaints to be investigated by the grand jury. This means that the term will be long-drawn out.

The following grand jurors had been summoned: Frank B. Allen, David Binst, George Stryker, Jacob Nevius, Elmer Richards, Samuel N. Coleman, Marshal H. Johnson, William H. Dunham, William D. Van Derbeek, Wilfred C. Horton, Minna V. Saums, Robert B. Beatty, Peter L. Huff, William Beardslee, Ferdinand M. Badin, Adam Hummer, Wesley W. Durling, Albert T. Lewis, Thomas S. Armstrong, William F. Williams, Joseph A. Blatz, Francis Badin, John V. E. Vanderhoef, John D. Flammer.

A petition was presented to the court by some of the Freeholders of the Township of Bernards requesting the court to call the attention of the jurors to certain existing conditions in the township, relative to the tax rate and to roads. The Justice turned the petition over to the grand jury.

At the request of Justice Parker, the jurors were sworn by their full oath, after Foreman Allen had been sworn. After the grand jurors had been sworn and Justice Parker had given his charge, Foreman Allen asked that the court grant him a private consultation before the jurors deliberated upon any matters. The court refused his request at the time, but stated that the request would be granted after the court had disposed of the regular business.

The following are the cases on the list that are of interest to Plainfielders:

Circuit.

"Joe" Lacked Good Clothes.

Joseph Wood, a ten-year-old Italian boy, of Netherwood avenue, was arraigned before Judge Runyon this morning on a truancy charge preferred by the truant officer. He stated that he was anxious to attend school but he didn't always have good clothes and his father preferred to have him remain at home when he wasn't dressed like the other children. "Joe" has a snappy pair of black eyes that captivated Judge Runyon and in suspending sentence the magistrate beamed on the little fellow and told him he would see that he had the necessary school clothes from now on.

HOSPITAL ACCEPTS HEGEMAN MEMORIAL

The Board of Governors of Muhlenberg Hospital, at its April meeting, last night, accepted the offer of W. J. R. Hegeman and B. A. Hegeman to build a power-house and laundry in the rear of the hospital in memory of Mrs. Catherine E. Hegeman, and authorized them to proceed with the work in accordance with the plans and on the location approved by the building and grounds committee. A. L. C. Marsh is the architect for the building and it is expected that work will be started at once.

The medical board reported the number of patients for March as follows:

Remaining at date of last report, 31; admitted, 50; discharged cured, 33; improved, 6; not improved, 2; died, 4; remaining, 36; total number treated, 81; hospital days, 1,224; operations, 47.

In the Bethesda Contagious Disease Building, one case, the first to be received there, was treated. In the dispensary there were 48 patients, 121 visits of patients and seven operations. This was about the largest month's business ever recorded at the hospital, the average being 39½.

LOCAL MAN HEADS CAST OF HIMMELEIN COMPANY

If attractive offerings and popular prices are of any avail, large business should prevail at the New Plainfield theatre all this week, where Himmelein's Imperial Stock Company is appearing in a repertoire of standard productions at a popular price scale of admission. The week's engagement opened last night with a presentation of the famous A. H. Woods melodrama "Confessions of a Wife," and the performance and production reflected great credit on the company.

Miss Jessie Henderson, a young woman with a charming personality, appeared as "Alice Rutherford," and her sympathetic delivery and efforts to please were responded to by an appreciative and attentive audience. William Edwin Vail, formerly a resident of Plainfield, and well known here, is leading man with the company, and was well received. He has many local friends who will be glad to know of his success in the theatrical field.

Excellent specialties between the acts and at other appropriate times proved most enjoyable, and were repeated encored. Moore, the magician and handcuff expert, introduced a mysterious casket trick which compelled even the wise ones to sit up and take notice. He will be seen at all performances in a change of program consisting of magic, handcuff work, cabinet work, etc., and on Friday night will escape from a regulation straight jacket in full view of the audience. Tonight the company will appear in the well known melodramatic success, "A House of Mystery," and the prices will continue to be the same. Matinees will be given every day at ten and twenty cents, excepting on Friday, the underline for tomorrow afternoon being the same as last night, "Confessions of a Wife." Thursday night will be amateur night, and prizes will be awarded as usual to the successful contestants.

Holy Cross Has Big Schedule.

Saturday afternoons have been set aside for the club's games and the schedule includes games with the North Plainfield High School, Bound Brook High School, Hudson River Military Academy, East Orange High School, Alton A. C., of Rahway, and the Freehold Military Academy.

Play Upsala College Tomorrow.

The Plainfield High School baseball team will journey to Kenilworth tomorrow to play the Upsala College nine. A good sized bunch of rooters, including a delegation of the girls from the school, will take the 1:30 trolley from the North avenue stand to go to the game. The teams were to have met in this city last Wednesday, but the game was cancelled on account of rain.

First Game of Highland A. C.

The baseball nine of the Highland A. C. will play its opening game Saturday afternoon on Hope Common. The oposing team will be the Jr. O. U. A. M. nine.

You can't enjoy breakfast unless you have good coffee. Have it made from Neuman Brothers' Mocha and Java or Old Government Java and there will be no complaint.

HETFIELD AT WORK ON SUMMIT MURDER CASE

Assistant Prosecutor Walter L. Hetfield, Jr., was detained at Summit until a late hour last night, investigating the circumstances of the Italian murder which occurred at that place Sunday night. Several arrests were made, and one man is under suspicion of having had something to do with the crime.

The murder was the climax to a day of drunken revelry which marked the christening festivities in an Italian boarding-house conducted by Rocco Debianno, in East Summit, when Giuseppi Scarandino, a laborer, twenty-four years old, was shot to death.

Within an hour after the murder Police-Sergeant John R. Murphy and Police Sheridan took Thomas Grocco, a young baker, from his bed at his home, 27 Orchard street, East Summit, and late yesterday Chief of Police Brown preferred a formal charge of murder against him. According to the police, the murdered man owed Grocco $5 for bread, and the latter went to the christening to try and collect the money. This is supposed to have led to the quarrel in which friends of both men took part.

The Italians now in custody, several of whom were badly intoxicated when arrested, refuse to talk about the murder. Scarandino was found lying face downward on Park avenue. There was very little life in the body when the police arrived, but the wounded man expired a few minutes later. A note was found on the dead man addressed to a fellow-countryman, in which he said that he soon would leave Summit. He was unmarried and lived with Peter Pelvici, at 16 Sayre street, Summit.

CONFERENCE TONIGHT ON TROLLEY SERVICE

The question of improving the local trolley service and making proposed changes to be suggested by the Public Service Corporation, will be considered at a meeting of the Councilmanic public affairs committee tonight. Initiative in the matter was taken by Mayor Fisk, who has been anxious that certain changes be made in the schedule of the trolley cars. He practically made demands that something be done. Col. Hines promised to submit a proposition which he believed would bring about a better condition of affairs. This proposition will be discussed tonight.

During an investigation recently made, the Public Service Corporation and representatives of the city have agreed that a change in the turnout on Fourth street is a necessity if better service is to be obtained. It has been suggested that this turnout be moved from its present location near Hope chapel to a point in the vicinity of Liberty street. This, it is believed, would prevent the cars on that line from holding up those on the other local lines. It is understood that the company will not ask the Common Council for the privilege of changing the turnout, but should the city direct the company to make the move, it would agree to the proposition.

It is practically a certainty that a seven-minute schedule will be given on the main line through the city, but there is one serious obstacle in the way of Plainfield obtaining new cars, that is the single-end type, because the lines here are not equipped with the necessary "Y's" whereby this style of vehicle can be turned about. If these cars should be placed on the local lines they could only be operated one way. The nearest point at which this style of car can be reversed is at Dunellen and that is too far away from the city, it is said, to be of practical value in operating the local lines.

It is now believed by some to be a mistake that the company was not given the privilege of installing several "Y's" in this city, when it made application for them some time ago. The company now uses this as an argument as to why it is unable to provide modern style cars for the local lines. There is to be an improvement, however. Mayor Fisk's aim is to obtain the best cars and to have them operated in such a way as to afford the best possible service within the city limits. They believe that the main line service will take care of itself and cars will continue as at present every fifteen minutes.

Trolley People Act.

Through the efforts of Mayor Samuel Townsend, of North Plainfield, the Public Service officials have been persuaded to install a catch basin between the trolley rails on Somerset street between the bridge and Pearl street. This will insure perfect drainage of the roadway, which, under the present conditions is always muddy at that point.

Charles Cole, of Califon, is among the patients at Muhlenberg Hospital.

ADVISES AGAINST A SUIT

CITY'S INTERESTS SAFEGUARDED

In Case Municipality Should Be Held Litable It Could Recover Over Contractors.

As counsel for the Royal Insurance Company, State Senator Everett Colby has advised his client that it has no case against the city of Plainfield to recover for alleged carelessness and neglect in properly handling the fire at the home of Richard B. Letcher in Belvidere avenue some few weeks ago. While the city did not fear the outcome of any actions against it as a result of the official investigation it had taken every precaution to safeguard its interests by ascertaining its alleged liability.

The Councilmanic committee in its report held the Plainfield Water Co. responsible, exonerating the fire department. Frank Bergen, as counsel for the water company, later filed a communication with the city fathers taking the position that the water company was in nowise responsible for the inability of the firemen to extinguish the flames, but that John E. Keely, as city contractor for street sprinkling, was the one to blame. He declared that the hydrants had not been properly closed after the street sprinkling season had ended.

It was said today that in any event in case of a suit, the city of Plainfield would be the defendant and that should a verdict be returned against the municipality it would have to look to the water company or the street sprinkling contractor to recover its loss. The Letcher building was worth $20,000 and it took the fire department six hours to extinguish the flames. The loss was almost total.

BAPTIST MEN PRESENT A MUSICAL PROGRAM

Under the auspices of the Men's Club of the First Baptist church, an enjoyable musicale was given at the church last night. The artists were Miss Anna Lucretia Case, soprano; George H. Smith, tenor; George C. M. Smith, violin; Fred Van Eps, banjo, and the accompanists were Clifford A. Braider, Mrs. Fred Van Eps and Miss Jessie Utter. William Holmes was expected to take part in the program, but he was engaged to take a solo part in "The Crucifixion," at Grace church, and was unable to reach the church in time, although the audience waited until after 9:30 o'clock for him.

All the artists were well received and every one responded to encores. Mr. Van Eps and Miss Case being especially generous in this respect. The numbers were well selected and the rendition all to be desired. The program follows:

Banjo solos, "The Sleighing Party" and "Laughing Eyes," Fred Van Eps; tenor solos, "Youth," and "Sweetheart," George H. Smith; violin solos, "Serenata," "Obertass," "Cavatina," and a composition of his own, George C. M. Smith; soprano solos; "Aria from Romeo et Juliette," "Primacera," and "Songs My Mother Taught Me," Miss Case. These numbers, together with several encores combined to furnished an evening of real enjoyment. The affair was arranged by the music committee, of which George H. Smith is the chairman, and under the direction of the entertainment committee, of which H. C. Krebs is the chairman.

Miss Daisy Babbitt a Bride.

Miss Daisy Babbitt, daughter of James Babbitt, and George Hatchett, of this city, were married yesterday at the home of the bride's father in Fairchild's alley. The ceremony was performed by Justice Hezekiah Hand and was witnessed by a gathering of friends. William Branch and Charles Lewis were the attending witnesses.

"Mayor" Harrigan to Build.

Joseph Harrigan, the "Mayor of Netherwood," has plans out for the erection of a handsome residence and a large grain elevator on the property he recently purchased at 929 South avenue. The buildings and improvements will call for an expenditure of $10,000.

Opened the Thirty-ninth Series.

The annual meeting of the Union Building and Loan Association was held last night, when a new series, the thirty-ninth, was opened. There were 300 shares of the new series subscribed for and several loans granted to members.

Mrs. Williams, of New York, formerly of Dunellen avenue, has been visiting friends in town.

TO TRAMP TO FRISCO FOR A $1,000 REWARD

Victor Allo, Louis, Peter and John Marsouin and Louis Cousin, all residents of Cranford, left that place at 11 o'clock this morning for the purpose of walking to San Francisco, California. According to the rules governing the trip, the five men must work their way through and while they are not permitted to beg, they are privileged to accept whatever may be offered them. If the feat is accomplished, strictly according to the rules, the men are to receive $1,000 to be divided among them. Otherwise they get nothing. The only companion of the men is a Shepherd dog, named "Dinah."

The party arrived at the Hotel Waldorf about 1:30, where lunch was served them by Henry Windham. When the men started on the trip they were entirely without funds, but at Garwood a $2 bill and a box of sandwiches were handed to them. While in Plainfield they received substantial aid on their journey.

In conversation with a reporter for The Daily Press, Mr. Allo said that every member of the party is a gardener and expect to make good use of his knowledge in this respect. If only one of the five reaches California he will receive the $1,000. "It is a case of do or die," said Mr. Allo, "and everyone in the party is willing to sacrifice his life if necessary to accomplish the feat." While stopping at the Hotel Waldorf the men were the object of much curiosity and when their mission became known they were given assistance by several bystanders.

CITY COUNCIL HOLDS AN ADJOURNED SESSION

At the adjourned meeting of the Common Council, last night, the major portion of the business comprised the consideration of communications and petitions.

The City National Bank asked that a police call box be installed at Front street and Park avenue and stated that the directors would pay $100 a year if it was connected with the bank on an auxiliary wire. The cost of installing a box approximates $200. The police committee held a meeting immediately after Council adjourned and voted to grant the request.

Residents of Union street petitioned for macadam on that thoroughfare from Arlington to Stelle avenues. It was referred to the street committee for action. Residents of Kensington avenue asked for a light to be located on that street between East Seventh street and Putnam avenue. C. Kendall Mason made application for the return to him of a dog tax, stating that he did not own the canine for which he was assessed. Another communication from Corporation Counsel Marsh stated that he approved the form of application in the petition to vacate a supposed street in the rear of L. E. Hart's property on West Front street and that the Council should act upon it.

B. Frank Coriell applied to the Council in a communication for measures to compel the Public Service Corporation to install gas mains on West Third street from Clinton to Monroe avenues and also to string electric light wires for house service. He stated that twelve houses have recently been erected in the territory named and that the owners are willing to take the gas and electric service. The matter was referred to the Public Affairs Committee.

A petition from George P. Mellick for two lights on Central street between Woodland avenue and East Seventh street was granted. On motion of Frank DeW. Randolph, the bids and specifications for the proposed new police station were reconsidered in order to include a clause providing for a time limit in construction and a fine for each day over the date specified. Another motion by Mr. Randolph called for the approval of the Council in the sale to Henry Haurand of the brick stable in the rear of the old police headquarters on East Front street and a quantity of fixtures in the building for $250. It was explained that this amount was more than the city would receive by tearing down the stable and selling the material. The necessary approval was given.

BICYCLISTS WARNED TO KEEP OFF THE WALKS

Following the arraignment of John Chrystie, of Netherwood, in the city court this morning, for riding his bicycle on the sidewalk, Judge Runyon and Chief Kiely declared that violations of this sort have been all too prevalent recently and that immediate steps would be taken to end the practice. The chief was especially vehement in his remarks and announced that every officer in the department would be instructed today to keep a close watch for violations and arrest anyone using the sidewalk for a bicycle path, no matter what the circumstances. He stated that complaints have been coming to him repeatedly and that drastic measures are necessary.

Chrystie was arrested after he had ridden on the South avenue sidewalk and bowled over a woman pedestrian. He attempted to explain his action by saying that the road was in very poor condition and he simply wanted to get around it. The magistrate refused to accept the excuse and fined him $5.

"You deserve no leniency," he remarked, "as you fully know that sidewalk riding is prohibited and you aggravated the offense by injuring a person who had the right of way. I propose to deal harshly with all similar cases coming before me."

OPPOSED NEW MACADAM

Councilman Mygatt Votes Against an Ordinance and Explains His Action.

EXPENDITURES RUNNING HIGH.

Declares Bonded Indebtedness of the City Is Rapidly Increasing and That Extreme Care Should Be Exercised.

An ordinance to macadamize a number of streets in various parts of the city, introduced at last night's Common Council meeting by Councilman Gloak, met with pronounced opposition from Councilman Mygatt. Before a vote on the proposition had been called for, Mr. Mygatt stated that he was heartily in favor of improving local thoroughfares but he believed that the property owners seeking it should be called upon to do the financing and not the city. He declared that the bonded indebtedness of Plainfield is rapidly reaching the high water mark and that the new macadam work is helping it along.

According to Mr. Gloak's ordinance the cost of the work he has outlined would be $17,000 and this would be met by the issuance of seventeen coupon bonds of $1,000 each, bearing interest at 5 per cent, and payable in three years. Referring particularly to this section, Mr. Mygatt said:

"There are now outstanding $15,000 worth of macadam bonds and we expect to pay off $2,000 of this during the year. With a new issue of seventeen coupon bonds that would mean $30,000 against us, the city doing all the figuring on getting the money and paying the interest. But that isn't all. Petitions for more macadam are being received constantly and it simply means that we are going to increase out indebtedness from this source in geometrical progression. We are facing a bonded debt of $600,000 through brick paving, new school, new police station, new East End fire house—a great deal more than we should—and this plan simply adds more.

"My idea is to let the people residing on these streets do the financing themselves on the plan we formerly had in force. When petitions were presented two-thirds of the cost had to be provided but now we get all the money, pay for the work as soon as it is completed and meet the interest as long as the bonds are outstanding. I'm against the resolution for these reasons."

Councilman Buxton responded in favor of the ordinance, stating that it was in the line of a public improvement that should have been made long ago. Mr. Suydam said he agreed with Mr. Mygatt in his opposition to the bond increase but he believed that there were streets named in the list that were badly in need of macadam and the property owners on them had been bearingtheir share of other work and were certainly entitled to consideration. Mr. Montgomery spoke in a similar vein.

"Well, now that we're on the subject," resumed Mr. Mygatt, "here comes a petition from Union street; what about that? More bonds. Then there are other streets coming, North avenue and West Third street probably; more bonds, more bonds. So it goes, but as I said before, what are we going to do about Union street?"

Councilman Gloak replied that Union street would be cared for as the street committee took care of all such petitions; discussion pro and con and decided one way or the other.

When the resolution was put to the councilmen, all voted in favor of it with the exception of Mr. Mygatt. It was placed on second and third reading and will be given a public hearing on May 4. The streets named in the ordinance are as follows:

North avenue, from the northeasterly curb line of Berckman street to the southwesterly curb line of Terrill road; Leland avenue, from the present macadam on East Front street to the present macadam on South avenue; Netherwood avenue, from the present macadam on East Front street to the northwesterly curb of East Second street; Monroe avenue, from West Seventh street to West Eighth street; West Eighth street, from the present macadam on Monroe avenue to the city line; West Third street, from Monroe avenue to Clinton avenue; Clinton avenue, from West Third street to the city line.

"Fete of the Rainbows."

"The Fete of the Rainbows," will be given at the parish house of St. Stephen's church on the afternoons and evenings of May 5, 6 and 7, by the various organizations of the parish.

Regular rehearsals are being held under the direction of Mrs. Katherine L. Mansell, of New York city, for the "Colored 400" minstrels to be given next week by the Euterpean Orchestra, of which Mrs. Charles S. Day is the leader. The local women will be made up in approved minstrel style, with all the burnt cork and red paint make-up that goes with the black-face semi-circle. Many of the latest songs will be sung and there is to be a series of local quips on Dunellenites. Two performances will be given, the first on Tuesday night at Friendship Hall, for the benefit of Lakeside Council, D. of L., and the second at Jr. O. U. A. M. Hall for the benefit of the orchestra. A reception will follow the latter presentation. Those who are to take part include the Misses Iva Dayton, Ethel I. Garretson, Bertha L. Clawson and Mrs. E. L. Field.

Voters of both parties are beginning to make conjectures as to why there is no borough recorder appointed. Former Recorder D. S. Campbell was appointed several weeks ago, but resigned, believing his appointment to be illegal, because all the councilmen did not vote on it. At that time, there was one councilman absent, and the vote being a tie, Mayor Swackhamer cast the deciding ballot. Since that ballot, two Council meetings have been held, at each of which there has been one member absent. Some Dunellenites suspect a deal, for it is reported that the member absent in each case has spent the evening at home.

Peter C. Staats is serving as a member of the petit jury at New Brunswick, and A. N. Randolph and F. Percy Vail, of New Market, have been drawn to serve on the grand jury.

Mrs. Thomas T. Maguire is sojourning at Southern Pines, North Carolina.

FALLING SHELF WARNS TRIO IN BURNING HOME.

Roselle Park, April 14. A falling shelf probably saved Mrs. Robert Kane and her two children from burning to death Saturday night when their home in Locust street was partly destroyed by fire.

Mr. Kane was away Saturday night and Mrs. Kane hung some clothes over the kitchen stove to dry, and went to bed with her children. About midnight she was awakened by a loud crash, and smelling smoke groped her way to the door leading to the kitchen. She was met by a cloud of smoke and flames. Retreating to her bedroom she awoke the children and made her way out of the front of the house to the street. Running to the home of a neighbor's she gave the alarm, and the fire department was notified. It was several hours before the fire was finally put out.

An investigation yesterday morning showed that a large shelf, which was the resting place for irons, and which was attached to the wall in the rear of the kitchen stove, had been burned from its position and lay with its contents scattered over the floor. The falling of this shelf awakened Mrs. Kane.

PREDICTS MILLENNIUM FOR THE YEAR 1914.

Baltimore, April 14.—Charles W. Anderson, a prominent merchant of this city, seriously believing that the millenium will be reached in October, 1914, or the year following, has canceled two life insurance policies, issued by New York companies, that would mature about that time.

Mr. Anderson says that the existing order of earthly things will change, and that two-thirds of the people of the earth—the wicked two-thirds—will go down to the eternal deep, while the other third, people who have believed in God, will remain in eternal peace on earth.

He supports his belief with a line of Scriptural argument. He cites the recent financial panic, outbreaks of anarchy and other disturbing features and signs as bearing out his claim.

1,300 IN STATE PRISON.

Trenton, April 14.—That crime is on the increase in New Jersey is evidenced by the fact that since last year the population of the State prison has steadily grown until Saturday afternoon exactly 1,300 convicts were confined within its walls, the highest number in the history of the institution, and sixty-eight more than the corresponding date of last year.

Of the 1,300 inmates about thirty are Federal prisoners, while the remainder were sent from all parts of New Jersey. Although the new wing was constructed to relieve the crowded condition of the institution, the population of the prison has increased to such an extent that there are but thirty vacant cells. In the woman's wing fifty-three women are crowded into twenty-eight cells.

Wind Cause of a Fire.

Cranford, April 14.—The high wind on Saturday afternoon broke an electric light wire, carrying a primary current, which fell on a secondary wire leading into the houses of Curtis Culin and John W. Heines, on Holly street. This melted the wiring in the fixtures, which emitted a shower of sparks, burning holes in rugs and draperies. An alarm of fire was turned in and the firemen cut the wires, averting further damage.

Boys, Big and Little, Like Our Clothes Best.

We've built up a fine trade with boys and young men, and are constantly adding to the number of those who buy all their clothing here. There's good reason for this.

The boys have learned that our clothes are cut and fashioned for boys, that they have that juvenile air that gives snap and life to the wearer, in striking contrast to the clothing so generally sold to those who haven't learned the secret of dressing boys rightly at small expense.

This is a good week to come in with the boys—whilst they are out of school. Let them help you pick their spring suit.

Suits for Little Fellows—Say from 2½ to 7—we show nobby suits in royal blue, navy, red, brown and mixtures; strictly wool goods; cannot be duplicated anywhere near our price; some of the suits with two pairs of knickerbockers. Prices begining at $1.98

Then they go to $2.98, $3.98 and on up to $14.

Smart Styles for Big Boys—7 to 17 year chaps—we offer New Norfolk Suits; Double-Breasted Suits; Russian Blouse Suits; Sailor and new Reefers, natty little suits, with knickerbocker trousers or straight ones if you like, in the new browns, grays, tans and plain blue; the very best suits in town at their price $5

Other Boys' Suits for less; some for more.

Swell Models for Young Men—the High School, Academy or College Boys, or budding professional and business men—"Exactly Right" suits in nobby styles, made of dependable cloth in the most fashionable shades—distinctive models, $12 and $15

Cheaper suits if you wish them and some higher than $15.

This is one of the biggest lots of high grade washable fabrics we have ever offered you at a special price, and the beauty of it is they are the newest weaves and the most perfect printings, and in practically every shade you could wish for. Better still, the variety of designs is close to one hundred, giving you the widest possible choice. Every piece is as dainty as can be—sheer and cobwebby, most as light as air, making the most desirable sorts of summer dresses, waists and kimonos. We would like you to compare these goods with those you see elsewhere so that you will better appreciate the fact that these are really 50c and 75c goods selling at ..... .19

BASEBALL.

Fred VanAuken, who is the leading pitcher at Annapolis this season, is doing fine work. Saturday he shut out Bucknell by a score of 1 to 0.

The Hobokens, under the management of Phil. Daab, will be seen on the diamond this season, as usual. On Sunday, they were defeated by a small margin by the Jersey City Eastern League team.

Walter Nelson, of New Market, left yesterday for Bridgeport, Conn., to join the Connecticut State League team in that town, where he will be one of the backstops this season. Nelson is in fine condition and will undoubtedly make good.

"Phil." Smith has not yet landed a berth for the season, but he does not expect much difficulty in getting plenty of Saturday games.

McGraw expects McGinnity to join the New York Nationals in about a week.

It would not be surprising to see Fred Tenney play better ball than he has done for several seasons, and it goes without saying that that would be pretty fine ball.

The late Mike Griffin had an ungainly way of going after a fly ball, but there never was a better judge of one.

The defeat of the New York Americans by Jersey City isn't any reason for worry. The defeats and victories from today on are what count.

Manager Joe Kelley and his Boston Nationals are in New York awaiting the opening of the pennant season today. Kel said he would not start the season as a player. "Kind of soft on the bench, isn't it?" he was asked. "That depends on the bench they give you," was the reply. "Some of 'em are hard.' Speaking of several defeats which big league teams have suffered at the hands of minor leaguers since coming north, Kelley said the big leaguers would not take the chances in the cool weather that they would otherwise.

GOLF.

Golfing referees in the South suffer trials unknown to Northern tournaments. Now, when a ball lights in a tree hereabouts the player cheerfully concedes that he must climb up to play the shot or else give up the hole. It will not do to dislodge the ball by flinging a club at it, counting one for the literal stroke, for the rule insists on the play from where it lies. Yet at a Southern tournament a golfer who got his ball into a tree made a most wrathful protest because this rule was enforced. He wanted the referee to make a special decision to save his chances for the hole. The line of argument the player put up is not covered by the rules, for it hinged on the fact that the ball was in a thorn tree and he had on thin trousers.

Another story the returning travelers have brought from the South concerns the goings on of some women who followed the recent match between the professionals Martin O'Loughlin and Gil Nicholls. The latter has a Boston green and has toured the resort courses for many winters, but O'Loughlin, who is the chubby faced and curly haired boy professional of the Plainfield Country Club, had not been South before this season. Despite his youth and small stature O'Loughlin is one of the foremost homebred golfers. During the match the women mentioned often violated the etiquette that governs onlookers in expressing sympathy for O'Loughlin. At a critical point, when Nicholls essayed a short put, they jumped up and down with fingers crossed and shrieked, "Hope he misses! Hope he misses!"

After Nicholls played the shot he looked toward the women and remarked: "This is not a dancing floor." When O'Loughlin won, the feminine enthusiasts made a great time over him, and the congratulations of a young matron are said to have been extended to the blushing boy even in osculatory form. What could the referee do with the swirl of skirts against him?

What he should have done is plain enough, but those who expound the referee's short-comings do not happen to have been stopping at the resort. There is no balm in such a Gilead to the man who affronts the social rulers of the place. Possibly the United States Golf Association might make an addition to the code of eitquette stating exactly what women onlookers must not do, no matter how their sympathies go. In the early days of resort golfing the prophecy had currency that the hospitality of the men amateurs would spoil the professionals. It was a prophecy unfulfilled. Probably the resort professionals will escape as freely from the warmth of feminine partisanship, but meantime the tactful referees must see nothing or wear blinkers.

Again our good friend Martine offers himself up as a sacrifice to overzealous friends. He'll come as near being a delegate-at-large to the National convention of his party as he has other coveted honors.

There are other people beside Councilman Mygatt who believe that the city authorities are piling up bonded debts at too hasty a pace. In fact Mr. Mygatt struck a popular chord when he uttered his warning to the other ten councilmen last night.

Paying a tribute to the splendid record of Assemblyman Pierce during the first term in the Legislature, the Newark Evening News, last night, very truthfully said:

"Mr. Pierce was as a rule found on the right side of every question. He has commended himself as a careful, intelligent, independent legislator, a great improvement on his predecessor and his colleagues from Union county, and it is hoped he may be returned."

We feel perfectly safe in assuring the News that Mr. Pierce will be returned and by a majority that will not only be flattering to him but a credit to his admiring constituents in Union county.

P.H.S. TRACK TEAM IN THREE BIG MEETS

Manager Stanley Robins, of the Plainfield High School track team, announces that the school athletes will compete in three out-of-town track meets next month. These will be the Rutgers College interscholastic meet at New Brunswick, the Pingry School meet at Elizabeth, May 9, and a dual meet with Adelphi Academy, to be held at Brooklyn, May 29.

The school track squad numbers about twenty-five athletes, who are holding regular practise under the supervision of Charles R. Bostwick, of the school faculty, who is acting as coach. In the sprints, the school will be presented by Murphey, Sampter, Miller, Snyder and Ricketts. Beeken, Parsons and Vail will compete in the runs; Dey, Beeken and John Dutcher in the hurdles; Riffert and Caldwell in the pole vault; Murphey, Hammond, Dey, Miller, and Woodhull in the jumps. The school team will enter no weight events in the meets, except the shot put, in which Hammond and Morris are possible point winners.

The important meet of the schedule will be the dual meet with Adelphia Academy. The metropolitan school has a strong track team and the local boys will have to work hard to make a representative showing. The Pingry meet will be held early in the month, at which time the strongest of the metropolitan schools will compete in the events. The Rutgers College interscholastic meet is an annual affair, and the local athletes ought to win a high place this year.

IMPRESSIVE RENDITION OF LENTEN ORATORIO

Stainer's lenten oratorio, "The Crucifixion," a meditation on the sacred passion of the Holy Redeemer, was most impressively rendered before an unusually large gathering of local music lovers at Grace church last night. Solo parts in the rendition were ably taken by William J. Tallamy, tenor; William Holmes, barytone, and Frederick Pope,, bass. There are no women solo parts in the oratorio. William E. MacClymont, the church organist, gave an especially good interpretation of the instrumental score. Augmented by choir singers from other local churches, the chorus choir of Grace church was most successful in the rendition of the numerous chorus parts, which form a prominent part of the oratorio.

The oratorio opens with the impressive "Processional to Calvary," following which came the lively chorus, "Fling Wide the Gates.' The tenor solo, "King Ever Glorious," by Mr. Tallamy, immediately preceded the barytone recitative, "As Moses Lifted Up the Serpent in the Wilderness," by Mr. Holmes. Many considered this the best solo work of the rendition. Perhaps equally successful was the chorus, "The Appeal of the Crucified," in which the rendition was particularly effective. This was followed by the men's chorus, "It Is Finished." The march to Calvary was most feelingly rendered at the organ by Mr. MacClymont.

The oratorio was rendered in connection with an evensong service at which Rev. E. Vicars Stevenson, rector of the church, officiated.

FORT DETERMINED FOR EXCISE INVESTIGATION

Governor Fort stated yesterday that he would appoint a commission to investigate the whole excise question in this State, and do it on the certification of Secretary Howard N. Tyler of the Senate that the Wakelee concurrent resolution creating this commission passed both houses. The Governor acknowledges that he does not have the original resolution.

Against this is the word of Clerk James Parker of the House that his books do not show that the Wakelee resolution passed the House and the word of Speaker Jess of Camden that the concurrent resolution did not pass the House.

The Governor says that he had $10,000 for emergencies put to his credit in the Appropriation act and that he intended it for the use of the commission.

Senator Hinchcliffe, of Paterson, who is a brewer and president of the New Jersey State Brewers' Association, is in Trenton, and he says that he has the affidavits of more than thirty-one Assemblymen that the excise legislation was not passed in the House.

"The Governor will not go ahead with this commission," said the Senator. "He will obey the law, just as all of us. It will be found that the concurrent resolution did not pass the House, and there is an end of the matter."

To this the Governor says that if it is shown that the Wakelee resolution did not pass the House, then he will act under the State Constitution, as the Chief Executive. He believes that there have been violations of the Bishops' law, something which he pledged the people, when he ran for office, should not occur.

This means that there is a clean-cut fight on between the Governor and the liquor interest of the State.

MONTCLAIR DEMANDS BETTER TRAIN SERVICE.

The Montclair Civic Association and the Commuters' Committee have united, and will work together to obtain better service from the Lackawanna and Erie Railroad companies for Montclair. A. F. Mack, of the Commuters' Committee, has been appointed chairman of the Civic Association's committee on railroads and transportation.

The double tracking of the Lackawanna Railroad from Bloomfield to Montclair, the removal of the grade crossing at Bloomfield avenue and a new bridge between here and Glen Ridge are some of the improvements to be asked for. Relief at the Montclair terminal of the Lackawanna Railroad and a change of schedule will also be demanded.

WIFE DEFENDS HERSELF FROM HUBBY WITH SHOE.

With her husband's shoe as a weapon, Mrs. Dennis Cullen, of Belleville, attacked her husband yesterday morning and pummelled him so unmercifully that he had to be sent to St. Michael's Hospital, Newark, for treatment. Cullen had threatened to kill his wife, and when attacked the woman seized the shoe to defend herself. Dr. Joseph C. Winans temporarily treated the man and advised him to go to the hospital.

When Justice Connell learned of the assault from Cullen he refused to issue a warrant. "It served him right," said the Court, "and the woman should receive a medal."

P.H.S. TRIMS WESTFIELD

Mt. Ararat High School Boys Defeated, Six to Three in Loose Game.

LOCAL TEAM USED 13 PLAYERS.

Captain Murphey's Good Stick Work a Feature—Westfielders' Errors Were Costly.

The undefeated Plainfield High School baseball team added another victory to the season's record at Crescent Oval, yesterday afternoon, by trimming the Westfield High School nine, 6-3. Captain Murphey used the entire squad of local school players in the course of the game, giving all an opportunity to work out in their various positions.

The scoring started in the first session, when Codding, the Westfield pitcher, gave Riffert and Rubenstein bases on balls and they scored on Murphey's two-bagger. Getting his base on a wide throw, Smith came home with the first run for the visitors on Otto's hit in the second. The Ararat school-boys scored again in the sixth and ninth, while Plainfield tallied in the fifth, sixth and eighth. Foster was the last pitcher used for P. H. S. and showed poor control, filling the bases in the ninth, when his place was taken by Murphey.

Errors were expensive for the visitors, for the local nine scored several times on their misplays, of which five were registered. The Plainfielders got eight hits, one of them a two-bagger. This was by Murphey, who hit safely three out of four times at bat. Snyder proved a hard proposition on the slab for the visitors, and kept the hits scattered. The official summaries:

JARVIS WINS LEAGUE FOR SEVENTH DAY FIVE

After six minutes of overtime play at the end of the second half in the game between the Seventh-Day Baptist basketball team and the First Presbyterian five, Jarvis, of the Seventh-Day team, threw the winning basket, bringing the championship of the Sunday School Athletic League to his team. The final score was 26-24, and the teams were tied when the whistle blew at the end of the second half. As winners of the league, the Seventh-Days will receive a silver championship cup, and the members of the competing team for the church in last night's game will receive individual championship medals.

Closely contested throughout, the game was witnessed by a big gallery of basketball enthusiasts. At the end of the first half, the score was 12-10 in favor of the Presbyterians. The game was won by a rally on the part of the Seventh-Days, for at one time in the second half, their opponents had a lead of ten points. The game was necessary to decide the championship, because at the end of the regularly scheduled games for the season, the two fives were tied for first place. The official summaries:

While pedaling toward Williamstown in the gale Saturday, John G. Bowen, leader of the Evangelistic Mission at Clayton, was blown from his bicycle and badly hurt about the face and head.

Upsetting a pot of coffee in the kitchen of her home, 238 South Third street, Camden, yesterday afternoon, Reby Mowrey, two years old, was badly scalded about the neck, face and hands. She was cared for at the Homeopathic Hospital.

During the high wind Saturday the plaster fell from the ceilings of both dining-room and parlor in the fine residence of Harry Stillie, at Clayton, causing consternation in the household and damaging furniture and chinaware.

The Young Republican Club of Ocean City is organizing for incorporation. The incorporators, Jerome S. Rush, Walter Foster, George M. Breckley, Charles Sithens and Emerson L. Smith, have filed a certificate with County Clerk Way.

Alexander Gray, of Philadelphia, was buried at Vineland yesterday. He was eighty-seven years old. He leaves ten children and a widow. His son, James C. Gray, is one of the most prominent lawyers of Pittsburg, and another son, John Gordon Gray, is president of a firm of Philadelphia opticians.

The Maurice River Cove oyster season practically closed last week, and there is little shipping at any of the large centres. The oystermen at both Bivalve and Maurice river have almost all tied up and are busy preparing for the planting season, which opens on May 15. The season has been only normal.

Burglars were discovered at the home of Abram Frye, in Glassboro, last night. Dr. C. D. Perdick called up the telephone exchange girl, who in turn notified Watchman Benninger at the bank. Benninger fired several shots in the air, which brought Policeman Martin to the scene, but the burglars heard the shots, too, and got away.

John Wohlmantizer, who moved on the Joseph Taggart farm on the outskirts of Woodbury, got a cheap lot of fertilizer in the past few days. The occupant of the Gibbs farm, adjoining, put several hundred dollars' worth of fertilizer on his land. The high winds of Saturday blew all of this to the Taggart farm; where the soil is more moist and where it stuck, better distributed than machinery could do it.

Thomas Nelson, of Columbia avenue, Millville, who is believed by the police to be the peeper who has been frightening women and girls in the dark streets at night, was caught Saturday night by Thomas McKee, after, it is alleged, he had insulted McKee's wife. Although a small man, McKee administered a sound beating to Nelson before he marched him to the city hall and turned him over to the police. Several men had been lying in wait for the man.

A fierce forest fire raged at Germania, a farming village three miles from Egg Harbor City, yesterday afternoon, doing much damage, and for a time threatening the homes of farmers. The high winds fanned the flame, and it was with great difficulty that the population of the district got the sweeping blaze under control. A fire was also raging on the outskirts of the town. Threatening several buildings in the district, a fire alarm was sent in and the local fire department, after several hours' fighting, controlled the blaze.

Although he fell forty-eight feet from the top of a telephone pole at Burlington Saturday, Leon Lippincott, a lineman, was able to go back to his work after a physician had assured him that he was not seriously hurt. Lippincott was helping wire a house on East Pearl street and received a shock from a crossed wire. Bystanders turned their eyes away, expecting to see him mangled. Instead he bounced like a human rubber ball when he struck the brick pavement, but the shock rendered him unconscious. Fellow-employes put him aboard a trolley car and rushed him to Spark's pharmacy, where a physician found that, aside from the shock, the lineman had no more serious hurt than a bruised hand.

This Speed-Mad Age.

The police were trying to run down the man who started the run on a bank by saying the cashier had run off with the cash. The newspapers were running down the police, and the people were running down the newspapers, while the autos were busy running down the people. And I guess that's going some!—Judge.

LOCAL AMUSEMENTS

The announcement that Thomas Jefferson in his elaborate production of "Rip Van Winkle" is to be the attraction at the New Plainfield theatre next Monday night is the signal for one of the big theatrical gatherings of the season. Thomas Jefferson's performance of the happy-go-lucky "Rip" has long been looked upon as one of the fine pieces of character acting of the American stage and he always has the support of a carefully selected company. The production this season is said to be even more elaborate than any ever given of the play heretofore.

"The Man of the Hour," which William A. Brady and Joseph Grismer will offer to the theatre-goers at the New Plainfield theatre on Tuesday, April 28, marks a new era in the history of the stage. It follows none of the old methods of speech or action. It enjoys the unique distinction of never having received adverse criticism. The unanimous praise of the New York Press burst upon it like a flood, and its success with the public was said to be equally spontaneous and emphatic. In fact it has become the talk of the town. With no "booming" of any kind, it has become one of the four established Broadway successes, and bids fair to outlive even these rivals. It is said to appeal to everyone regardless of age, sex or condition. It has been called "The Dawn of Civic Conscience," "A Sermon on Public Honesty," yet it is said to be no "dry sermon." Its interest is human and sympathetic. Its humor creates peals and roars of laughter and is said to have a love story of touching tenderness. It is aptly termed "The Play of the Day."

AMUSEMENTS.

"Paid in Full" is now a perennial success for it is drawing close to its third month at the Astor theatre, and Wagenhals and Kemper have arranged to continue this vehicle by Eugene Walter at the Astor for the balance of the spring and through one entire summer. The success of "Paid in Full" was instantaneous and it has proven lasting. Nothing equalling its triumph has been seen on the Metropolitan stage this season and it is destined to be remembered as the one phenomenal success of a season strewn with the wreckage of scores of productions. The secret of the success of "Paid in Full" is to be found in its easy naturalness. It tells in a simple direct way the story of a human life and there are no frills or furbelows placed on it in order that the author may take rank as a master of English as well as a forceful playwright. He has peopled his play with the men and women we meet in every day life, the vocabulary he has given them is the same we use and hear used every day in the week. His play is a triumph for America throughout and it is the one attraction in New York that the playgoer cannot well afford to miss. Throughout the entire engagement of "Paid in Full" at the Astor the popular Wednesday matinees will be continued and the Saturday matinees will remain at the regular scale.

IN ART CIRCLES.

New York is marveling over a boy artist whose picture is shown in the National Academy of Design exhibition. George Davidson is the name of the 19-year-old prodigy. He works on crayon enlargements by day, and studies "real art" by night. He is a native of Poland, was brought to America ten years ago, has studied in the evening classes of the National Academy of Design. His painting is entitled "Evening Shadows."

Humphry Ward, husband of the novelist, discovered a Rembrandt and sold it for more than twenty-five times what he paid for it. The picture which Mr. Ward purchased had been painted over a portrait by Rembrandt. This was discovered by Professor Alois Hauser, to whom the painting was sent to be restored. There is said to be absolutely no doubt as to the authenticity of the Rembrandt. It is signed by the artist, and Professor Max Friedlaender, a noted critic, and other experts declare it is genuine. Mr. Ward bought the picture, that of a handsome young man, at an auction sale in London. He sent it to Professor Hauser, who is reputed to be the first restorer of pictures in Germany.

The Hon. Reginald Walsh has been gazetted British consul-general at New York.

"I want the Borough Street railway franchise made perpetual. Catch my drift?"

"Sure. But the papers and the property holders will make a big kick."

Alwyn Bennett.

"Let them. They'll soon get hoarse and have to rest their throats. As long as we get the votes what do we care if"—

"Yes, yes!" agreed the boss impatiently. "That's all right, but what I want to know is, How does all this concern me?"

Horrigan threw himself back in his chair, uptilted cigar in one corner of his mouth, thumbs in waistcoat armholes and eyed his host quizzically. Wainwright did not even pretend not to understand. Still, instead of giving a direct answer he went on with seeming irrelevance:

"I am a public spirited citizen. I believe civic welfare would suffer by any change in municipal administration, so to keep the present party in power I am willing to donate to it $200,000 toward election expenses."

"That sounds pretty good as far as it goes, but maybe you didn't hear something I asked you a minute ago. What I want to know is, How does all this concern me?"

"I'm coming to that. As I said, I am a public spirited citizen. I'm also a good friend—such a good friend that I'm always glad to put my friends on to anything in the market that looks particularly promising. Suppose I carry for your account at the market price (that's 63 just now) 15,000 shares of Borough Street railway stock?"

"Well?"

"If that franchise is granted, Borough stock will go up at least 25 points within two days. That would clear up for you a profit of—let's see—about $375,000."

Horrigan had pulled a pencil from his pocket and was figuring on the back of an envelope.

"Yes," he said at last; "that's right, $375,000. That would be my profit, while yours would run into the millions. That's not warm enough friendship for me."

"Surely, that is a generous"—

"Generous, maybe, but I'd like something munificent—say 25,000 shares at 63. Then at the 25 point jump I'd make—I'd make"—consulting his figures on the envelope—"something over $600,000. That sounds better to me. Hey?"

"But Mr. Horrigan"—

"You've got my terms. Take 'em or leave 'em."

"Oh, very well," conceded Wainwright, with lame graciousness. "Anything to oblige an old friend."

"Good! So we get $200,000 for election expenses, and my personal account receives 25,000 shares at 63."

"Quite so. And now"—

"And now comes the question of the right man for mayor. We"—

Again Horrigan paused, rising to his feet stealthily, like some ponderous cat, his head bent slightly, as though catching a faint or distant sound.

"What's the matter?" asked Wainwright, looking up.

"Nothing," returned Horrigan. But he did not resume his seat. Instead as he talked he began to pace the room in apparent aimlessness, yet every turn chanced to bring him nearer and nearer to the door of the adjoining office.

"You see," he said, "we must have the right man. If we don't, we haven't a shadow of a show to win. We must be careful to choose the best man possible. In fact, Mr. Wainwright—in fact"—

Thompson stepped quietly over the threshold.

His wanderings had brought him to the office door. With the last word he suddenly jerked it open.

Thompson stepped quietly over the threshold into the library, walked over to his employer, handed him a dispatch and went out again under the battery of Horrigan's glare, closing the office door after him.

"That fellow was listening to every word we said!" shouted the boss as the door shut behind Thompson.

"How foolish you are!" protested Wainwright. "He was bringing me this message. I've tried and tempted and tested Thompson in a hundred ways, and he's always rung true. I trust him utterly."

"Well, I don't trust a man living," retorted Horrigan, reluctantly convinced. "I don't sign receipts or keep accounts or write letters or have witnesses when I talk. I always make it a question of veracity between me and the other man if there's an investigation. My word's as good as any one's, and they can't prove anything against me in case of a showdown. I advise you to try the same plan. It's a good one. And in the meantime if I were you I'd keep an eye on that secretary. He'll bear watching."

"Never mind about Thompson. He's all right. Let's get back to the election. Who have you in mind for mayor?"

"Well," considered Horrigan, "he's got to be some one who isn't mixed up in politics or corporations. Some one the public isn't on to. A man with no queer past."

"I advise you to consult the calendar of saints and pick out your candidate there," sneered Wainwright, who could not clearly follow his guest's reasoning.

"No. I think I can find him on earth," laughed Horrigan. "He's got to be young, clever, educated, with a good name, a good family and social standing and plenty of cash. The cash is important, so the public will understand he isn't a graft hunter. They've got to be made to think he's in the game for purity of politics and high principles and love of civic duty and all that sort of thing. At the same time he's got to be some one we can handle to suit ourselves. That's the man who'll catch 'em coming and going. We've got to find him. Any suggestions?"

"Well, how about Gibbs?"

"Won't do. Broker and money juggler. The public wouldn't stand for him."

"Young Sawyer"—

"Sawyer was born foolish, and he's been getting steadily sillier every year since, and his face shows it."

"Ten Broeck, then."

"Ten Broeck is too fond of turning a cigarette into the connecting link between fire and a fool. And, besides, he wears a monocle. What'd happen if he was to flash that monocle in a Fourth ward meeting? There'd be a massacre."

"Well, who, then? Have you any one in mind?"

"Yes," assented Horrigan, "I have. Do you happen to know a young fellow who spends his summers near here—a chap named Bennett—Alwyn Bennett?"

"Certainly; I know him well. But"—

"Well, how does he strike you?"

"I'd never have thought of him in such a connection."

"Why wouldn't you? He pretty near fulfills all our qualifications. Besides, his father used to be a big man in the organization. Got some fat contracts from it in his time too."

"But young Bennett has never"—

"He's well off, well educated, clever, and all that. I ran across him last fall when he came over to help Lorimer in his fight in the Fourteenth. He made some rattling good speeches, and the boys all took a liking to him. A swell, but not a snob; good mixer, good fellow, popular, clear headed, no past—yes, he's our man. More I think it over the surer I am."

"I shouldn't wonder if you're right. How would you like to talk it over with him now?"

"Now?"

"Yes. He's still around the place somewhere, I think."

Wainwright rang a bell, and the butler appeared.

"Find Mr. Bennett," said the financier, "and ask him if he will step here for a moment."

"Yes," went on Horrigan reflectively, rubbing his huge plump hands together, "he's the man for us—that is," he added, with less assurance, "if we can handle him."

"I think we can," answered Wainwright, a fragment of his conversation with Gibbs flashing across his memory. "You see, I have fairly good reasons for believing he's in love with my niece, Miss Dallas Wainwright."

"So? That's"—

"And, as I control her fortune and her brother's until Perry is twenty-five"—

"Oh, it's a cinch!" chuckled Horrigan. "He"—

"Mr. Bennett is playing tennis," reported the butler, coming to the door. "He will be here at once."

"Now," resumed Horrigan, "the only thing that remains is to find out if he'll consent, and then"—

"You wanted me, Mr. Wainwright?" asked Bennett, stepping through the long window from the veranda. "Oh, good morning, Mr. Horrigan," he added on seeing the second occupant of the room.

The young man was coatless and collarless, his silk shirt being turned in at the neck. In one hand he swung a tennis racket. With the other he mopped his flushed face, for the day was hot and the game had been swift.

"Yes," answered Wainwright. "I'm sorry to interrupt your tennis set, but we want to see you on a rather important matter. We've been talking about you."

"Thanks!" said Bennett, with a puzzled smile from one to the other of the two older men. "What about?"

"Want to be mayor?" queried Horrigan abruptly.

"What's the answer?" countered the perplexed youth.

"It isn't a joke," intervened Wainwright. "Mr. Horrigan is in earnest."

"In earnest? I hope the heat hasn't gone to his head."

"You don't understand," put in Horrigan. "I control the party's nominations. The nomination for mayor is yours if you'll like it."

"Not—not really?" gasped Alwyn aghast.

"Yes, really. We"—

"But, with a whole organization full of good material, why do you come to me?"

"Because you're the man we want."

"As an answer that's excellent, but as an explanation it's mystifying."

"I'll tell you. We're looking forward to a risky fight and"—

"And since you see no chance of winning you pick me out as the victim instead of some organization man? Good idea as far as you're concerned, but I beg to decline, without thanks."

"No, no!" corrected Wainwright. "Mr. Horrigan thinks that you have a strong chance of winning."

"That's right," corroborated the boss. "It'll be a hard fight, but with the right man we'll win, and we believe you're the right man. Even if you lose, you'll show the world what you're made of. Folks admire a fighter. They haven't much use for an idler."

The coarsely spoken words brought back with a rush Dallas Wainwright's plea and his own yearning to do something to make her proud of him—to win her by great deeds—to prove his love worth her acceptance. Was this the chance—the chance he had so eagerly longed for? It seemed providential. His face alight with the joy of battle and the hope of his heart's reward, Bennett turned upon the waiting boss.

"I accept."

"Good!" yelled Horrigan, slapping him resoundingly on the back. "Good boy! Now, we'll"—

His careless boyhood seemed to have fallen away from him.

"But remember one thing, Mr. Horrigan," interrupted Bennett, and his careless boyhood seemed to have fallen away from him like a discarded garment, leaving the manhood and rugged strength stripped of all the follies and idleness that had hitherto masked it, "remember one thing, if I win this fight—if I am elected mayor—I shall never once swerve from my solemn oath of office. I"—

Wainwright, uneasy at the candidate's unwonted words and manner, started to speak, but Horrigan deftly interfered.

"Of course you'll keep your oath of office," he bellowed jovially. "Of course you will. That's understood."

Then in an undertone to Wainwright as Alwyn moved away the boss whispered:

"Don't butt in! Leave him to me! That silly reform talk don't mean anything. It's the way all youngsters in politics blow off steam. Leave him to me!"

ARMRIGHTS WIN FIRST GAMES IN BOWLING MATCH.

The first three games of the home-and-home bowling series to be rolled between the Plainfield Armrights and the New Brunswick Elk team took place on Campbell's alleys last night. The visitors captured the first try by a margin of nineteen but Plainfield took the other two. Good scores prevailed on both sides but the New Brunswickers had difficulty in finding the "groove" and were handicapped.

Five more games are to be rolled at New Brunswick next Monday night. Last night's scores:

FORT DISPOSES OF BILLS

He Has Already Passed on 268 Measures Enacted by this Year's Legislature.

150 STILL TO BE ACTED ON.

Numerous Irregularities That Marked Closing Hours of Session Coming to Light.

There is going to be something doing tonight, when the time limit that Governor Fort has fixed for signing bills passed at the legislative session just closed nears expiration. The irregularities that marked the closing hours of the session are coming to light rather more numerously than is usually the case, and there are a number of measures of importance that passed both branches of the Legislature, but have not been turned over to the executive office.

It has been established beyond a peradventure that Senator Avis' bill, Senate 298, to prevent boroughs from issuing ten year 6 per cent. waterworks certificates, which the Governor signed yesterday morning, never passed the House, but was, through error, sent directly to the executive from the Senate chamber.

Governor Fort recalled the bill after sending it to the Secretary of State for record as a law and cancelled his signature because of the defective record. Speaker Jess' name was not signed, and there was no certification by House officials that it had been passed by that body.

Senate joint resolution No. 12 was a law for a little while, but it isn't any more. The resolution aimed to continue the commission appointed by Governor Stokes to investigate the whole subject of municipal government. It is shown by the records that the bill was approved yesterday. The executive office books show that the record of approval and the title of the bill were erased after being placed therein. This afternoon it was announced by the Governor that he had vetoed the resolution because he could see no reason for further continuance of the commission.

In explanation of the checkered career of S. J. R. No. 12, it is said that the measure was filed before it reached the Governor's hands, having been mixed up with some approved bills through error.

One of the bills that had not reached Governor Fort late last night is Assemblyman Martin's measure providing for recount of votes cast at any primary election on order of the court—in fact, extending to primaries the recount provisions covering general elections.

Yesterday was nominally Governor's Day and the State House has been crowded with politicians and officials hunting up bill records or pleading with the Governor to sign pet measures, the prospects are good for a general assault of anxious folk on the State House today and Thursday.

As the Governor figures it, he has until midnight Thursday to dispose of the remainder of the 150 bills that should have been in his hands at final adjournment.

Of the measures passed by the Legislature, 268 bills and joint resolutions had been filed by the Governor with the Secretary of State up to the time of his leaving the State House last night. That includes the Senate joint resolution recalled and the Avis bill which has been held up for investigation. The excise commission resolution was concurrent and does not require executive action.

The House and Senate passed 136 bills the last day of the session. On Tuesday and yesterday the Governor disposed of eighty-four of these, and eighty of them are now laws. With those on his desk Friday and those passed Friday afternoon and night and Saturday morning, about fifty still remain to be considered.

Comedy Stunts on the Piano.

Harry Anton Smith, novelty piano player, will be at the Y. M. C. A. tomorrow night in a musical program of unusual instrumental performance. A series of imitations will be rendered, including a full military band, a vocal duet, a harp, a music box, and a blacksmith. Smith will also give an exhibition of playing two selections at the same time, and will render the intermezzo from "Cavalliera Rusticana" on the piano with his nose.

Surprised Fred Endress.

In honor of his birthday anniversary, a large number of friends gave a surprise party to Fred Endress at his home on West Front street, last night. The affair was planned by Mrs. Endress and was greatly enjoyed by everyone present. The evening was spent in a social manner, during which there was a program of vocal and instrumental music. Later refreshments were served. Mr. Endress was the recipient of hearty congratulations and many happy returns of the day.

MEN'S CLUB REVIEWS THE PAST YEAR'S WORK

The Men's Club of the Crescent Avenue church held the annual meeting and election of officers at the home of Rev. Dr. J. S. Zelie on Park avenue, last night. The major portion of the time was devoted to a review of the past year's work which has covered an extensive field. Among the matters that have occupied the attention of the members are the following:

The publication of the church bulletin, "The Messenger," the organization and conduct of the men's Bible class which meets after church Sunday mornings; the carrying on of men's meetings at which prominent speakers have appeared; the management of monthly missionary meetings, members of the club giving a stereopticon lecture on a mission country each time; the making of a card catalogue of the church membership and the care of ushering at morning and evening church services. The club has now an active membership of sixty and during the coming twelve months it is hoped to accomplish much new work.

The election of officers resulted as follows: President, Lindsey Best; vice-president, Edward J. Cochran; secretary and treasurer, Arthur Lovell; executive committee, James E. Kimball, Henry L. De Forest, Frederick Genung and P. S. Ceigler. At the conclusion of business the members enjoyed a social hour.

P.H.S. GIRLS TO GIVE COMEDY IN VACATION

Pupils of the Plainfield High School will present the farce comedy "My Aunt from California" at the school auditorium Saturday evening, April 25, in connection with a concert by the school musical clubs. The cast of the play is composed of seven girls and regular rehearsals are being held under the direction of S. B. Howe, Jr., of the faculty as dramatic coach.

The report of the committee was the sole business of the meeting which adjourned after a twenty minute session. Mr. Joy will announce the re-appointments to the various borough school teachers today and give them opportunity to accept or reject before May 1. The announcements of faculty changes will be made in June.

SCOTT POST LEAVES THE COWARD BUILDING

Winfield Scott Post, No. 73, G. A. R., which has occupied the top floor in the Coward building on East Front street for a great many years, has decided to remove its property, place it in storage and have the members meet in Reform Hall, until permanent quarters can be found. The decision is the result of action on the part of the new owner of the building, Henry Haurand, in making extensive repairs throughout the building, without notifying the veterans.

Owing to the changes it has been impossible for the Post, Women's Relief Corps or Sons of Veterans to hold their regular meetings during the past two or three weeks and they feel quite indignant that Mr. Haurand should not have consulted them before beginning operations.

Last night the Post planned to have an entertainment, at which Col. John F. Wilson and S. S. Swackhamer were to have made addresses, but when the veterans arrived and saw the condition of the room, it was decided to postpone the affair. The place was not in a fit condition for meeting purposes, it being filled with dirt and dust, while the entrance to the upper floor was blocked, making entrance and exit rather hazardous. A large sign with the word "Danger" was displayed in front of the doorway. Last week the Women's Relief Corps was obliged to postpone an entertainment, after all arrangements were made, because of the condition of the building. In planning the entertainment expenses were incurred, which were an entire loss to the organization. Thus far Mr. Haurand has made no explanation for his action and the organizations do not feel compelled to remain and suffer the inconvenience to which they are being subjected.

CHATTEL MORTGAGEE HAS THE PRIOR CLAIM

Without leaving their seats the jury in the case of Morris Kunzman against Louis Pollack, tried before Judge Newcorn in the district court, yesterday, promptly returned a verdict for the plaintiff, under instructions of the court. Two levies were made on property owned by Pollack, a grocer, of West Third street; one for the New Jersey Produce Company to satisfy a claim of $100, and another for Abram M. Furtig, for a like amount. Knowledge of this came to Kunzman, who holds a chattel mortgage on the property for $1,400, and he claimed that his claim took precedence over the actions on the part of the New Jersey Produce Company and Mr. Furtig. Kunzman was represented by Walter L. Hetfield, Jr., and Judge Newcorn agreed with him in his contention. The jury then returned a verdict for the plaintiff.

Charles J. McNabb represented the New Jersey Produce Company and also Furtig. The jury was composed of F. F. Metcalf, Sylvester Sharkey, Gilbert H. VanNest, William M. Ragin, Thomas Kromer and Robert Whittaker.

FIRST BAPTISTS HOLD THEIR ANNUAL MEETING

The annual parish meeting of the First Baptist church for the election of two trustees to succeed L. V. F. Randolph and Oliver B. Leonard and to receive the report of the treasurer, J. Herbert Case, was held last night. Alexander Gilbert was chairman of the meeting.

The report of the treasurer showed a balance at last report of $1,181.86 and the receipts for the year to be $7,239.19, making a total of $8,421.05. The expenditures for the year were $8,305.89 and $1,200 was appropriated for extensive improvements made in the Sunday-school room. The present cash balance is $115.16, with several hundred dollars due from pew rents and other sources. The estimated expenses for the coming year for fixed items is $7,300.

In the election of trustees, L. V. F. Randolph and Oliver B. Leonard were chosen to serve a full term of three years.

CLASSIS DISSOLVES BOND

MAKE HIM PASTOR-EMERITUS.

Resolutions of Local Congregation's Consistory Are Presented By Elder Robert Clark, Jr.

The spring meeting of the Classis of Newark, Reformed church, was held today at Newark. The resignation of Rev. Dr. Cornelius Schenck as pastor of Trinity Reformed church, this city, was presented and the dissolution asked for was granted by the Classis. Elders Robert Clark, Jr., and F. E. Smith, a committee from the Consistory of Trinity Reformed church, were instructed at a recent meeting of that body to draft suitable resolutions bearing on the resignation. Trinity Reformed church, of this city, was represented at the Classis meeting by Elders Robert Clark, Jr., and Horace J. Martin, Sr.

Mr. Clark presented the following resolution, which was read before the Classis by Stated Clerk Rev. Henry Merle Mellen, and adopted:

"Be it resolved; that it is with sincere regret that we join with our pastor, the Rev. Cornelius Schenck, Ph. D., in asking this Classis for a dissolution of the active pastoral relation now existing between him and Trinity Reformed church, of Plainfield, and in so doing we desire to give expression to our appreciation of the work done by him as our pastor; his lovable character; the many good and noble qualities he has always exhibited and by which he has earned our esteem and love—his untiring energy; continued zeal and concrerated devotedness to the cause of the Master.

"And furthermore; Be it resolved, That we take this opportunity of officially placing on record our continued love and esteem for our pastor as a man, as a citizen and as a minister of God and thank Almighty God for his long and successful ministry and that though laid aside from the active duties of the ministry we still pray he may be permitted to be with us for many years to come.

"And furthermore; be it resolved, That for the love and esteem in which we hold our pastor, and in recognition of his long and faithful ministry we, the Consistory of Trinity Reformed Church, of Plainfield, respectfully petition this Classis that our pastor be relieved from the active pastorate and that this Classis make him a pastor emeritus, we the Consistory, pledging ourselves to contribute to his support."

Dr. Schenck was made pastor-emeritus by an unanimous vote. Trinity Reformed was warmly congratulated by members of the Classis over the way it had chosen to show its appreciation of his work.

Patrick Moran.

Patrick Moran, for many years a resident of the West End, died last night at his home on West Fourth street, following an illness from a complication of troubles. He was seventy-one years old and was a veteran of the Civil War, having served with a company recruited in Rahway. He was an expert gardner and was employed for a long time by Mrs. Rowland Cox, of West Seventh street. Surviving him are his wife, one daughter, Mrs. Thomas Comerford, and a son, John Moran. The funeral will be held in St. Mary's church Friday morning at 10 o'clock and burial will be in St. Mary's cemetery.

Planning a "Kinder-Symphony."

Plans are being perfected for a "Kinder-Symphony" to be given at the home of Mrs. H. G. Runkle, of West Eighth street, on Thursday evening, April 30, for the benefit of the King's Daughters work in Plainfield. The affair, which will be an elaborate one, will be given by a number of well-known young society women.

CLIMBED OVER SEATS TO SLAP HUSBAND'S ANNOYERS

The recording blotter at police headquarters bore the following entry today, entered by Patrolman Tobias Nolan:

"Mrs. Bertram Sherman, who is known as Gertie Coddington, complained to me at 11:50 last night that three colored women had called her names and insulted her while she was attending the performance at the New Plainfield theatre. I advised her to appear in court and make a complaint and afterward hunted up the women she spoke of. They are Cora Wales, Ethel Tims and Ethel Mayberry. When I asked them about the trouble they said Mrs. Sherman had been sitting two rows ahead of them and that she suddenly accused them of winking at her husband, who was with her. At the same time she climbed over the two rows of seats and attempted to slap all three in the face, meeting with one-third success. They denied winking at Gertie's husband and added that when they winked they made sure the object was worth the effort. I told them they would be sent for if wanted."

This morning's session of the city court did not adjourn until 10:15 but up to that time Mrs. Sherman had not appeared to prefer any charge against the women who had "made a flirt" with her husband.

SOMERSET FREEHOLDERS HAVE A BUSY SESSION

The regular meeting of the Somerset County Board of Chosen Freeholders was held yesterday in the court room in Somerville, when all the members were present excepting Mr. Powelson, who was reported to be ill. William R. Sutphen was elected clerk pro tem because of the illness of his father, A. P. Sutphen, the regular clerk, who is suffering from muscular rheumatism.

The matter of awarding the contract for the macademizing of the Watchung-Warrenville road, which was laid over from a previous meeting, was taken up for consideration. The contract was awarded to Travell & Hare, of North Plainfield, the lowest bidders. Their figure was $21,600.05.

Charles C. Kenyon and Joseph Barras, representing the Somerville Board of Commissioners, asked to have a new bridge built on East High street.

A communication was received from the Mayor and Council of North Plainfield requesting that the board construct a bridge on the recently accepted extention of Watchung avenue across the east branch of Stony brook, which intersects such street. This was filed.

A communication was received from the N. J. Central R. R. Co. in reference to the condition of the crossing on the Chimney Rock branch, with a promise that it would be improved as soon as possible. Filed.

Attention was called to a dangerous place on the new road from Bernardsville to Oak Stump and request was made that guard rails should be placed there. Counsel Frech gave the opinion that it was up to the Township Committee to do this, as the road is under its jurisdiction and control exclusively.

The action of Senator Frelinghuysen in having the salary of the Prosecutor increased from $1,200 to $1,800 a year, by the introduction of a bill in the Legislature, which passed both Houses and is awaiting the Governor's signature, was unanimously approved.

It decided that the matter of expending $120 extra for placing slop sinks in the new court house be left with the building committee with power.

The bridge committee was given power to advertise and receive bids and award contracts for bridges on the South Bound Brook road.

The board adjourned to meet in North Plainfield tomorrow at 11 a. m. at the fire house, to go from thence to inspect bridges.

COURT GRANTS LICENSES

Judge Schenck warns Tavern-Keepers They Must Serve Better Meals to Transients.

CHARGE TO THE GRAND JURY.

Justice Parker Orders That Alleged Liquor Laws' Violations Be Investigated.

Justice Charles W. Parker, of Morristown, who presided in the Somerset county courts at Somerville yesterday for the first time, made a fine impression. With him on the bench were Justice James J. Bergen, of Somerville, and Judge Louis H. Schenck, of Neshanic.

Justice Parker announced that since his transfer from Sussex to Somerset county there was a confliction in the dates of the opening of the September terms of the two counties, and stated that the opening day in Somerset would be on the third Tuesday, instead of the second, as heretofore announced. The other terms will open on the dates already scheduled.

In his charge to the Grand Jury the Court stated that there were two matters to which he wished to call especial attention. He declared that the liquor laws had been made more effective by recent legislation and that he understood there had been some violation of them in Somerset county. The laws should be obeyed and the Prosecutor will bring before the jury some cases for violation of the liquor law and, the court stated, that the jurors, if they found that, in their judgment, the parties were guilty they should indict them.

Justice Parker handed the Grand Jury a communication from a number of people in Bernards township relating to the management of fiscal and financial matters. It referred to the alleged expenditure of certain moneys on streets and the improvement of different roads. He said the matter should be sifted.

Judge Vail, of Elizabeth, will be in Somerville on Monday, April 27, for the trial of Supreme and Circuit causes.

The constables appointed for the term were George D. Totten, Charles W. Hill, Andrew D. Flammer, William N. Pangborn, Arthur S. Dixon and Joseph De Marco.

The following hotel licenses were granted: Hugo Maul, North Plainfield township; Ellis Sutton, Pottersville; William H. Lyon, Bernardsville; William Greasheimer, Bound Brook; Henry Pedflour, Warrenville; Edward G. Weaver, East Millstone; George C. Ball, Bound Brook; William B. Koechlein, Somerville; Morris Farbram, North Plainfield; Jacob J. Maurer, Bound Brook; John W. Hulsizer, East Millstone; John J. Kennalley and George Howard, Bedminster; William H. Earley, Somerville; Henry Schlothane, Chimney Rock; Herbert H. Mount, Rocky Hill; Richard Mount, Neshanic Station; Kenneth B. Schley, Bernardsville; Leon W. Du Four, Bound Brook; S. Louise Fisher, Middle Brook; Philip T. Hickey, Raritan; Augustus Bechtold, Harlingen; William H. Cawley, Somerville; Vincent J. Sisser, Raritan; William O. Allen, Liberty Corner; Jacob Bailey, Somerville.

These wholesale licenses were granted New Jersey Bottling Co., Somerville and North Plainfield; Adolph Bohrens, North Plainfield.

The character of the meals provided at many of the hotels, Judge Schenck said was of such a nature that it must be remedied and those having a license must serve good meals, when transients come along and were willing to pay the usual prices. Accommodation must also be provided for rigs. He declared that a license granted to a public house gave it a value it would not have otherwise, and it is the duty of the manager of the place to keep it in repair, so that the value of other properties will not be depreciated by the slovenly condition of a hotel.

Trembath, and Miss Laura Sydenham. Miss Myra Emmons will be the accompanist.

'PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

Edward L. and Ernest T. Hand, who recently started in the cement block and brick business on Mountain avenue, yesterday bought the coal business and yards of the E. M. Johnston estate at Fanwood. The new owners intend to enlarge the business by adding a full line of masons' material, including brick and cement block. The increased facilities will enable them to have a yard with siding which will greatly facilitate their handling shipment by rail.

Fanwood Council, R. A., held a meeting last night at which considerable business was transacted outside of the regular routine work. James B. Guttridge was elected treasurer of the council to fill the vacancy caused by the registration of John P. Bornmann.

Rev. Mr. Atkinson's meetings, which are being held every night this week in the Baptist church, are being well attended and spiritual interest of an encouraging nature is being manifested in the work.

At the close of Rev. Mr. Atkinson's meeting at the Baptist church last night a social hour was held by the members of the church and their friends. Refreshments were served.

Miss Halloway spent yesterday visiting other schools nearby. During her absence Mrs. Thomas M. Paff, Jr., acted as substitute teacher.

The new flagpole at the school house was put in position yesterday afternoon. Captain Benjamin Tuzo had charge of the raising.

The "Third Word" will be the topic of the meeting at the Baptist church tonight. Rev. Harris Gillespie will lead the meeting.

The electric lights are actually doing duty again. No one knows for how long though.

LIFE'S JOURNEY

Is Burdensome to Many in Plainfield.

Life's journey is a heavy burden
With a constantly aching back,
With any kidney ill.

Doan's Kidney Pills relieve and cure.

Here is Plainfield proof that this is so:

Mrs. O. C. Moore, of 63 Manning avenue, Plainfield, N. J., says: "My kidneys were diseased for years and I also had trouble with my heart. I have endured the severe torture of a backache that comes from diseased conditions of the kidneys and likewise those heavy dull aches in the head. Many nights I have been unable to rest at all, and when I awoke in the morning my limbs would be so stiff and sore that I would be obliged to slide out of bed. When I caught cold it always settled on the kidneys and any little strain or over-exertion that involved the muscles of my back would cause intense pains. I have doctored with physicians at Washington, D. C., and here at Plainfield, but none of their medicines ever did me the good that I got from Doan's Kidney Pills, procured at Randolph's pharmacy. This remedy went right to the seat of the trouble, dispelled the pains and aches, corrected the kidney arrangements and made me feel like a different person."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

Governor Fort has signed Senate joint resolution No. 2, which provides for a joint committee of three Senators and three Assemblymen to inquire into the reasons why the Delaware and Raritan Canal is no longer used as in former years, how the waterway can be restored to its former usefulness, what interests the State has in the canal, whether they were honestly and irrevocably relinquished, how they can be recovered, and upon what terms the canal can be retaken by the State.

Inquiry is also to be made as to the rates and tolls, whether there is any discrimination or if there are any unnecessary delays or hinderances to shippers.

FRENCH IN ALL BUT THE MAKING.

Comparatively few hats are imported for the very good reason that only the mose extravagantly inclined care to pay for simply a name on a label.

American women are practical above all things, and with trifling aristocratic exceptions they clearly see the folly of paying for titles. They know—Newark women especially know—that they can get all that is unique, all that is beautiful in the French hats, minus the extravagant price. They know that our milliners can reproduce to the most minute detail the conceptions of the Parisian artists, and that everything that enters into the making can be imported—feathers, flowers, ribbons, braids, ornaments—with no heavy duty to pay as it is the case when hats are brought over ready made.

We present at the present moment perhaps the grandest collection of hats we have ever shown in the week previous to Easter.

Smart Dressy Hats that look to be worth all of $8, are here in splendid assortment, trimmed with flowers, wings, ribbons, ornaments in every wanted shape and color, at only $4.75

At $5.95, $6.95 and $7.75 there are many other beautiful models in the most up-to-date effects.

The generous showing of finer hats delights eevery visitor; prices run to as high as $50.

For Misses and Children there are many styles and color combinations—truly handsome effects for as little as $2.95, $3.95, $4.95 and from that on up to as high as you will care to go.

BASEBALL.

"Lou" Wiltse pitched a part of the game for Jersey City against the Giants on Monday, and was very effective, considering the chilly atmosphere. "Lou" says that the coming season will be his best. The Skeeters open at home with Newark on April 22.

Whitney Frazee was among the local fans that witnessed the opening of the baseball season at American League Park, yesterday, between the Highlanders and Athletics.

Fred Burchell, who is on the pitching staff of the Brooklyns this year, should have no trouble in making good. He was one of the best twirlers in the Eastern League last year.

"Warry" MacLaughlin left this week for Springfield, where he will pitch for the Connecticut State League team in that city. "Warry" is in fine condition and expects to have a successful season.

Physical Director Listman, of the Y. M. C. A., is gradually getting his team in shape for the opening of the State Association League, and the prospects for having a strong aggregation here are bright.

No less an authority than Dan Brouthers says that next to Bresnahan and Kling the best catcher in the country is Tad Jones, of Yale.

Hal Chase batted something like .450 in the games he played on the Coast this winter and he says if he bats that well in the American League he will give himself a bonus.

McGraw has released Catcher James to Columbus and First Baseman Pfyl to Baltimore.

GOLF.

George O. Simpson, amateur golf champion of Scotland, a native of Carnoustie, arrived in New York on Saturday. He came over on the same steamer with George Low, the Baltusrol Golf Club professional, and the pair were about town yesterday. Simpson, who comes from a well known family of golfers, has decided to turn professional, and the chances are that he will not have to remain idle any length of time.

Low says Simpson is a fine player, and never knows when he is beaten. He has been round Carnoustie in 74. This makes the fourth player who has won the amateur title in Scotland and then joined the professional ranks here. In 1897 Lawrence Auchterlonie won at Leven, and the same player subsequently won the open championship of the United States at Garden City in 1902.

Fred McKenzie also won the amateur title of Scotland for the first time in 1899, and he repeated the performance in 1901 and 1903. After that the St. Andrews man came here and turned professional. "Jack" Mackie, of Earl's Ferry, who won the Scottish championship in 1900, came to this country the same year and started in as greenskeeper at the Roseville Golf Club. Mackie is now professional at the Dunwoodie Country Club. Simpson won his present title last June.

Something new in the way of a "grass nursery," as James Laing, the Huntingdon Valley Country Club professional, is pleased to style it, has been started by the club at Noble. Three acres have been set aside for experimental purposes, and Laing's intention is to sow various kinds of grass seed, with a view to getting a supply of turf on hand for emergencies. The "nursery" turf will be similar to that on the fairway and putting greens. Laing now has twenty men at work on the course in an endeavor to get things in the best possible condition for the open tournament to be held there next month. The summer greens will be put in commission on April 25.

Cambridge defeated Oxford 4 matches to 3 in their annual contest held recently at Sunningdale, England. This made the twenty-ninth annual encounter, and the record now shows Cambridge to have won fourteen, as against thirteen for the Dark Blue. The other match was halved.

At a recent meeting of the Arsdale Golf Club the annual dues were raised to $25. This step was found necessary to meet the increased expenses that are certain to be encountered this year. The members expect to move into their new clubhouse early in May.

More than fifty golfers made the round of the links at the Richmond County Country Club on Sunday. The course is in fine condition. At a recent meeting of the board of directors the annual dues were raised from $50 to $60.

PROPOSALS FOR NEW PRIMARY SCHOOL

The sealed bids received and opened by the Board of Education September 30th, 1907, for the proposed New Primary School building, being greatly in excess of the appropriation asked for, the Board rejected all bids, and pursuant to resolutions adopted by the Board April 6, 1908, the Board will meet April 27, 1908, at 7:45 p. m., to receive sealed proposals for doing the work and furnishing the materials for the construction of the New Primary School building as provided in the modified plans, and specifications now on file with the architects, Hall & Rogers, 11 East 24th Street, New York; also at the office of the Board of Education, High School building, Ninth Street and Arlington Avenue, Plainfield, N. J.

Plans and specifications will be on file until the day above mentioned for opening the bids. All proposals to be endorsed "Proposals for New Primary School Building" and addressed to the Secretary of the Board.

Upon receipt of the bids or proposals the Secretary will immediately proceed to unseal the same and publicly announce the contents in the presence of the parties bidding, or their agents, provided such parties or their agents choose to be then and there present, and also to make proper record of the prices and terms upon the minutes of the Board. No bids will be received previous to the hour designated, and none will be received thereafter. The Board reserves the right to reject any or all bids.

Application was made yesterday to Vice-Chancellor Leaming, in Camden, by Lewis A. Starr, counsel for Luther W. Perkins, of Beverly, to have set aside a decree for the payment of $7 a week alimony which was given to his wife Addie in 1901 by the late Vice-Chancellor Grey. The case was appealed to the Court of Errors and Appeals, but was subsequently affirmed. In consequence of this the defendant made the payments until March, 1905, when the couple agreed to live in the same house, he contributing to her support. In 1907 the wife began housekeeping on her own account. Following this she filed another bill in Chancery in January, 1908, asking for alimony and alleging constitutional desertion. The Vice-Chancellor reserved his decision.

The pictures shown were text book illustrations, projected on the screen by the school reflectoscope, an instrument which throws the pictures on the screen without them being first transformed into lantern slides.

ASTRONOMICAL EVENTS:
Tonight and Tomorrow Morning.
Sun sets 6:35, rises 5:15; moon sets 5:40 a. m.; 11:47 a. m., full moon.

Just disabuse your mind of any hallucination that your taxes are going to be reduced to any considerable extent this year. It has been semi-officially announced that the present rate of $1.47 on the hundred would likely be reduced to about $1.40. Some experienced and reliable authorities on such matters predict that the rate will be nearer $1.57 than $1.40.

It would not be a bad idea for the Councilmanic street committee to have oil sprinkled on North avenue between Watchung and Park avenues, two thoroughfares now paved with brick. The present water sprinkling arrangement on North avenue has proved very unsatisfactory.

FREEHOLDERS TO DISCUSS BOROUGH IMPROVEMENTS

The Somerset County Board of Freeholders will meet with Mayor Townsend, Councilman Waldron, of the street committee, and other members of the North Plainfield Council tomorrow morning at the borough fire house. With the Freeholders will be County Engineer Joshua Doughty and Counsel John Frech, and the meeting time has been set for 11 o'clock.

The object of this special convocation is to be an inspection of Greenbrook road from Somerset street to the borough limits westward. The Borough Council has forwarded a petition to have the county build and maintain this as a macadam road, and the party will drive over the road to ascertain the cost of the proposed improvement. The road is about two miles long.

Once rejected by the Freeholders because of a legal error in its framing, the petition regarding the road has again been found fault with by the Board. The Freeholders demand a proviso to be inserted that will guarantee ten per cent. of the cost of the road to be supplied by the borough. A special meeting of the North Plainfield Council has been called for Friday night, and at this time the clause will be inserted. It is reported that the Freeholders look favorably upon the petition.

Another matter to be brought before the Freeholders at tomorrow's conference will be the building of certain bridges by the county. The North Plainfield authorities want the County Board to build a concrete bridge at Greenbrook road and Somerset street, to replace the wooden structure. The Freeholders will go in a body to the spot in order to see the needs and to estimate on the cost of the bridge.

Cop for Theatre Gallery.

Because of numerous annoyances that patrons of the house have been subjected to, Manager Counihan has arranged to place a special officer in the gallery of the New Plainfield theatre hereafter. He will be stationed there for the first time tonight and disorderly conduct of any kind will result in the prompt arrest of the offender.

AFRICAN M.E. CHURCH IN ANNUAL CONFERENCE

Rev. J. T. Diggs, Rev. E. B. Maynard and Spencer Kelly, of the Mt. Zion A. M. E. church, are representing that church at the annual session of the New Jersey Conference of the African Methodist Episcopal church, which convened at Cape May, today, and will continue until Monday. The convocation has brought together bishops, general officers and prominent laymen. Bishop Wesley J. Gaines is presiding.

Additional interest is taken in the conference because the general conference of the church will convene on May 1 at Norfolk, Va. According to the reports to be submitted the spiritual and temporal affairs of the churches have been satisfactory. Bishop Gaines is one of the most distinguished churchmen of his race. He is bishop of the second episcopal district, which includes the North Carolina, Virginia and Baltimore Conferences and is the acting bishop of the New Jersey Conference.

Among the general officers who have signified their intentions of being present are: Rev. Dr. E. W. Lampton, financial secretary; Rev. Dr. H. Blanlon Parks, secretary of Home and Foreign Missions; Rev. Dr. John H. Collett, manager of the publication department; Professor H. T. Keating, editor of The A. M. E. Church Review; Rev. H. T. Johnson, editor of The Christian Recorder, the official organ of the convention; Rev. Dr. B. F. Watson, secretary of church extension; Rev. Dr. William D. Choppelle, secretary of Sunday-school Union; Professor J. R. Hawkins, educational secretary; Rev. William H. Heard, formerly United States Minister to Liberia, secretary of denominational insurance department; Miss E. Marie Carter, of the A. M. E. Church Review, and Mrs. Ruth J. Collett, of the publication department. Besides these there will be present many fraternal delegates.

The general conference of the denomination, which convenes next month at Norfolk, Va., will select the bishop for a four years' term. The bishop of the New Jersey Conference has supervision also of the Philadelphia, the New York and New England conferences, which constitute the First Episcopal District.

AUDIENCE WELL PLEASED.

Imperial Stock Company Presents "A House of Mystery."

The Imperial Stock company presented "A House of Mystery" to a well pleased audience at the Plainfield theatre last night, and unless all indications are at fault, business will continue big for the balance of the engagement, which does not terminate until Saturday night. The offering tonight is the sensational four-act production, "Queen of the White Slaves," made popular by the well known actor A. H. Woods, and it will be the very first presentation of this play ever given here at a reduced scale of prices. The announcement for the matinee tomorrow afternoon is "A House of Mystery," the success with which it met last night having prompted the management to repeat it for a Thursday afternoon performance. The pretty military play which delighted a large audience on Tuesday afternoon will again be seen tomorrow night, and directly after the performance the amateur contest will take place, and it will be governed by the usual conditions.

QUIETLY WEDDED.

Miss Alyda Day Becomes the Wife of Albert Colton.

Miss Alyda Day, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William H. Day, of Watchung avenue, and Albert Colton, of West Third street, were married this afternoon by Rev. Dr. Cornelius Schenck at his home on West Front street. Miss May Messeroll, of Somerville, and Roy Day, brother of the bride, were the attendants. There were no others present.

Following the ceremony, Mr. and Mrs. Colton left for Slatington, Pa., where they will remain for a short time. Afterward they will make their home at Allentown, Pa., where Mr. Colton is employed. He is a machinist and formerly held a position at the Pond Tool Works.

Salvation Army News.

Sophie, the well-known scrub woman preacher of New York, will be the speaker in the Salvation Army Hall tomorrow night at 8 o'clock, when there will be solos by Captain Lewis Larkin. Good Friday night at 8 o'clock a commemorative service of song will be conducted by Captain and Mrs. Hopkins. Saturday at 8 o'clock Staff Captain Dodd, recently returned from service in Japan, will give an illustrated lecture on "What the Army is Doing in Japan." Next Sunday special Easter services at 11 a. m., 3:30 and 8 o'clock p. m., conducted by Staff Captain Dodd and Ensign Henricksen.

Memorial to Dr. Yerkes.

It is expected that on Sunday the tablet to be placed in the First Baptist church in memory of the late Rev. Dr. D. J. Yerkes, will be in position. It will be suitably inscribed and occupy a prominent place in the edifice near those erected years ago in memory of preceding pastors. Alexander Gilbert, as chairman of the committee having the matter in charge, announced at the parish meeting of the church, last night, that arrangements were being made to have the tablet completed and exhibited for the first time on Easter Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Staats, who have been spending several months in Florida, returned home last night. They had a delightful time and thoroughly enjoyed the charms of the southern climate.

with holes in them—darned up or otherwise—is bound to have unhappy feet and the man with unhappy feet is bound to be uncomfortable and unhappy himself. The man who wears socks that wear through is bound to have an unhappy wife—at least she's unhappy at times—darning times.

The man wears out his toes, his temper and his pocketbook through wearing through his socks—his wife wears out her fingers, her patience and her time through darning those socks.

There's a way to forget all this unhappiness—a way to make holes and darning a memory.

HANDSOME NEW COACHES ON THE JERSEY CENTRAL

The advance squad of a large order of new vestibuled passenger coaches have just been placed in commission on the New Jersey Central Railroad and those who have inspected them declare that they are models of their type. From the standpoint of construction, they are the strongest wooden frame cars ever turned out of a shop, while for comfort and luxury of appointment, they are all that the traveling public can desire. Nearly 74 feet over all in length, they have a seating capacity of 81, eight more than the standard vestibuled coaches now in service; in weight they rate 90,000 pounds, or 15,000 pounds heavier than the present class. To add to their staunchness, they have eight 5x8 wooden sills, reinforced by iron plates along the side sills, while the platforms are of steel, with cast steel double body-bolsters. The upright posts of the vestibules are also reinforced by iron plates. The trucks are all of steel, the frames of the 5x9 journals are in one solid piece and the frames of the trucks are of cast steel.

The seats are highbacked and upholstered in a rich shade of green plush, while the seats of the combinations (smoker and baggage) are of heavy deep green imitation leather. One of the most effective features is the arrangement of the gothic windows surmounted by half ovals of opalescent glass. The cars are automatically ventilated and are illuminated by six powerful one-mantel gas lamps, with a combinded candle power of 600. Some of the cars have been assigned to the New York-Philadelphia two hour trains, and the New York and Reading and Harrisburg flyers have been equipped with them.

Sentenced After Long Wait.

Joseph Gardner, colored, of this city, who has been in the county jail since last January on a charge of stabbing James Brown, also colored, pleaded guilty before Judge Atwater at Elizabeth, this morning. As he has already been imprisoned eighty-three days he was sentenced to a term of one month. Gardner and Brown resided in the flat building at South Second street and Muhlenberg place and engaged in a fight over Brown's common-law wife. He failed to come before the January Grand Jury and the long delay in his arraignment was due to his refusal to plead.

RAISING SCHOOL AGE TO SEVENTEEN YEARS

Senate bill No. 235, introduced by Senator Price and passed by both houses of the Legislature, is one of the most interesting school measures of recent years and if signed by the Governor will greatly increase school populations.

The bill makes the compulsory school period between the ages of 7 and 17, under certain conditions. Heretofore the maximum age was 14. Under the Price bill, a pupil must complete the eight years of work in the grammar grade. If he does so at the age of 15, he may leave school and go to work. But he must take bona fide employment outside his home that will keep him busy and out of mischief. Work at home won't count. Otherwise he will have to stay in school and take two years of the High School course.

If he completes the grammar work before he is fifteen he must go in the High School course at least until he reaches that age. At any rate the hard-and-fast maximum school age is 15, and the law forbids any child labor under that age during school hours. Of course if a very dull pupil aged 17 hasn't got through the grammar grades, he is free.

CATHOLICS MAY LAY OUT CEMETERY IN ARLINGTON.

The State Board of Health reversed yesterday the decision of the Common Council and Board of Health of the Borough of North Arlington in refusing permission to establish a Catholic cemetery within the borough. An appeal from the derision of the local authorities was taken by the Roman Catholic Diocese of Newark, which has spent $200,000 in purchasing lands for the proposed cemetery. The State Board gave a hearing yesterday afternoon.

The proposed cemetery is intended for the burial of Catholics in Hudson county, a part of Essex and Bergen counties and the southern part of Passaic county. The Catholic cemeteries within the confines of Hudson county are almost filled, and there is practically no place available in the county for the establishment of new ones.

FALL OF FOUR FEET KILLS A ROSELLE MAN.

Roselle, April 15.—Albert Mader, aged 39 years, who had been in ill-health for some time past, fell from the piazza at his home on Drake avenue, in the Larraine section, on Saturday. The fall of four feet caused a fracture of his neck and he died before a physician arrived. Dr. Brown, of Roselle, was summoned, but his services were not needed.

Mr. Mader had been a resident of the neighborhood for the past twelve years. He is survived by a widow and two small children, the youngest only three weeks old. County Physician Westcott visited here last Sunday afternoon and granted permission for burial. Mr. Mader was formerly employed at the Watson Stillman factory at Aldene.

FUGITIVE STOPS WHEN BULLET ENTERS BACK.

Long Branch, April 15.—John Carter, colored, with many aliases, who says that he lives in Newark, is at the Monmouth Memorial Hospital with a bullet in his back.

Carter beat a man named James Haskins, with whom he boarded, leaving him on the floor unconscious. He was afterwards arrested by Policeman George H. Havens. Carter escaped the officer's clutches when a bullet brought him to a standstill. His condition is not serious.

Carter admitted yesterday that he had been shot several times in different fights.

To Present Pythian Altar.

Passaic, April 15.—Benevolent Lodge, No. 48, of this city, will go to Jersey City next Thursday night and make a fraternal visit to Admiral Farragut Lodge, No. 34, which meets in Schindler's Hall, 371 Central avenue. The local Pythians will be accompanied by the grand chancellor and his associate grand lodge officers, and delegates from the lodges of Paterson, Hackensack, Nutley, Newark, Hoboken and Elizabeth. The main feature of the meeting will be the presentation of the Pythian charity altar by the Passaic lodge to the Jersey City lodge.

Good Friday Bank Holiday.

Attorneys for the banks of Newark decided yesterday that under the law April 17, being Good Friday, must be observed as a bank holiday, and that notes, drafts, etc., due on April 17 are, as a result, not due until the day after. Governor Fort recently vetoed an act making Good Friday a legal holiday. The attorneys acted under a law passed in 1907.

Held on Wife-beating Charge.

Paterson, April 15.—Peter Dowling, wanted by the police since February 26 last, was located late last evening by Patrolman Daly. On the date mentioned it is alleged that Dowling, who then lived at 36 Ryerson avenue, administered a severe beating to his wife. Dowling was arrested last night at the home of a relative at 184 Vine street. He is a horseshier and is forty-four years old.

ENTIRE CITY INTERESTED IN YOUNG MAN

Cooper's New Theory Attracts Widespread Attention During Stay in Cincinnati.

An adequate idea of the intense interest which has been aroused by young Mr. Cooper during the past year with his theories and medicines is given in the following article which appeared in the Cincinnati Post while Cooper was introducing his ideas to the people of that city. The article says: "The beginning of Mr. Cooper's second week in Cincinnati gives every indication that he is to enjoy the same astonishing success here as in other cities.

"From the first day of his visit the crowds that call to see him have steadily increased, until now it has reached a point where several thousand talk with him each day. The entire city seems to have become interested in his theory that the human stomach is degenerate, and he already has an army of followers in Cincinnati who seem positive that his claims are correct.

"A number of Cincinnatians were interviewed at Cooper's headquarters on Friday, and several interesting statements, showing their intense faith in Cooper's preparations, were secured. The following are selected from these statements and are characteristic of them all: Mrs. M. E. Emerson of 630 West Court street, said: 'I have suffered with stomach trouble and constipation for a year or so. When I ate I would have bloated spells, sour stomach, fermentation, bad taste in my mouth. In the morning I was as tired as when I went to bed. I had a dull pain in the lower part of my back. I have taken almost one bottle of the New Discovery and am so wonderfully improved that I have come down here to thank Mr. Cooper in person and obtain more of the medicine.'

"Another individual interviewed was Mr. J. H. Brooks, living at 527 Walnut street, who had the following to say: 'For the past eighteen months I have been a constant sufferer from catarrh of the head and stomach. My nasal passages would become inflamed and sore. I would have severe headaches, which affected my eyes, and great crusts of matter would drop into the throat, causing an irritation of the bronchial passages, until the stomach finally became poisoned. When I would lay down at night a phlegm would gather in my throat until it almost choked me, and would cause an annoying cough. Half a bottle of Cooper's New Discovery gave me relief, and when the first bottle was finished I felt like a new man. I am now completely cured and consider Cooper's New Discovery the greatest catarrh, blood and stomach remedy in the world.'"

The Cooper preparations have been wonderfully successful throughout the United States. We consider them remarkable medicines and would be pleased to explain the nature of them. —T. S. Armstrong.

One of the most notable comic opera successes for which the stage of the New York Casino, the home of great musical productions is sponsor, is a coming attraction at the New Plainfield theatre next Wednesday night. The score is by William Furst, the composer of the music for "The Darling of the Gods," and is said to be one of his brightest efforts, and the lyrics and book are in Clay M. Greene's original and happy vein. A big company of comic opera favorites is concerned in the production, including Alma Hearn, William Blaisdell, Pearl Evans, Charles Dungan, John Dudley, Oliver Holden, Edith Berwyn, Josephine Atkinson, Irene Le Roy, L. and Albert Syks and others are in this cast, and it is said that the show girls are the most stunning array of female lovliness that comic opera or musical comedy has ever garnered.

Thomas Jefferson, a name which stands for all that is best in theatricals, is the fifth generation of the famous Jefferson family of actors and the third to keep "Rip Van Winkle" before the American public. His grandfather, Joseph Jefferson, first played it sixty-five years ago, then his father, also Joseph Jefferson, appeared in it for over fifty years, and Thomas, himself, has been playing it for ten seasons. So long as the name of Jefferson is conected with the grand old romance of the Catskills, just so long will the public flock to see it. A rose by any other name would smell as sweet; but "Rip Van Winkle" without Jefferson would not be the great American classic that it is today. Thomas Jefferson in "Rip Van Winkle" will be seen at the New Plainfield theatre next Monday afternoon and night.

FIREMEN TO ENTERTAIN.

Hook-and-Ladder Company of Morristown Arranging for Ladies' Night.

Morristown, April 15.—Resolute Hook-and-Ladder Company has invited the members of Independent Hose Company and their friends to a ladies' night entertainment to be given April 29. It will be the largest function ever tendered by one fire organization of this city to another, 200 persons being expected to participate in it, among them the Mayor and Board of Aldermen and the chief engineers of the fire department. The committee having the affair in charge is composed of Raymond B. Troxell, Wilbur F. Day, Jr., E. Harold Pavie, Harry A. Grove and Frederick H Horsfield. The Free Kindergarten hall and the skating rink adjoining it have been engaged, and an entertainment will be provided in the hall, after which the skating rink will be opened, all who do not skate being entertained at bridge or other games. Later supper will be served, and after that there will be dancing on the rink floor.

The State Hospital Orchestra will provide music during the evening and for dancing, and the rooms will be decorated with bunting, palms and flowers.

Elizabeth Gamblers Fined.

Elizabeth, April 15.—Police Captain O'Leary, with Detective-Sergeants Matson and Mulcahy, Sergeant Kirk, Detectives Nolan and O'Brien, raided late on Saturday night a store at 427 South Park street, Elizabeth, where a poker game was found in full blast. The prisoners gave their names as Herman Ernberg, Samuel Shapiro, Lewis Blumenthal, Lewis Gassler, Isaac Ernberg, Henry Salvin, Mortiz Estronsky and Hyman Eckstein, the last named being proprietor of the place. Eckstein was fined $12.85, while the others were each fined $7.85. They paid the money and were discharged.

Tilyou Wants Equal Taxation.

Atlantic City, April 15.—Officials fear a further muddle in the beach-front tax matter as a result of the projected action by George Tilyou, lessee of the Steeplechase Pier, who has ordered his lawyers to force the taxing of the entire beach front at the same rate as the $100 a foot placed on his property. Should the courts uphold his claim, more than $1,000,000 of taxables would be imposed on beach-front owners.

Found His Bedfellow Was Dead.

Atlantic City, April 15.—Playing the role of good Samaritan resulted in a serious shock for Edward Doran when he awoke yesterday morning and found Charles Frech, whom he had found supposedly intoxicated on the street and asked to share his bed, dead at his side. Frech had died of heart disease during the night. The police are satisfied there was no foul play. Frech is believed to have lived at Spring Lake.

Minister Makes Swindling Charge.

Bayonne, April 15.—Rev. William J. Hampton, pastor of the Forty-sixth Street Methodist Episcopal church, this city, has made a charge of swindling against John Brayden, who conducts an employment agency at 56 Grand street. The minister avers that he paid Brayden $22 to secure him a negro servant for one month. The girl remained at the minister's house only three days and left an empty trunk.

CHAPTER IV.

THE next few months were a period of unprecedented toil and excitement for Alwyn Bennett. He sometimes wondered at his own eloquence. Speech after speech he made in every section of the city—in half built suburbs, in halls where nine-tenths of his hearers were in evening dress and where familiar faces dotted the place; in overcrowded, smoke reeking auditoriums, where not one man in three wore a collar and where a score of nationalities vied for precedence.

With a versatility that delighted Horrigan the candidate managed to adapt himself to every audience and, moreover, to impress his hearers with a sense of his absolute sincerity and honesty. In the crowded, polyglot meetings he hit on the plan of speaking to representatives of each race in their own language. In a single evening, so the papers recorded, he had made speeches in English, French, German, Italian and Spanish. At some meetings toughs had tried to confuse him by interrupting with questions, joking comment or insult. For each Alwyn, without breaking the thread of his discourse, found some quick reply so apt as to turn the laugh on his tormentor and turn the audience's sympathy to himself.

At last election day came and went. And Alwyn Bennett by a fair majority carried his entire ticket to victory. Even his severest critics in the organization were forced to admit that Bennett, and Bennett alone, had saved the party from severe defeat. Horrigan's judgment and choice of men for the thousandth time in the boss' crooked political career was vindicated, and Horrigan himself was overjoyed beyond measure. Nor did the fact that he had failed to oust Alderman Phelan in the primaries wholly cloud the boss' delight.

There was, however, a slight cloud on Alwyn's triumph, for Dallas Wainwright was not present to share that triumph. Within a few days after Horrigan's visit to the Wainwright place Dallas had gone with an aunt on an eight months' tour of Europe and the Mediterranean. But Perry, who at her secret request had kept her posted on every detail of the stirring campaign, cabled her the result on election night, and the following day a reply message of congratulation crossed the Atlantic to gladden Alwyn's heart. In a letter that followed a week later Dallas asked the first political favor the future mayor was called upon to grant. She begged that in his office Bennett would try to find a place for Cynthia Garrison, in consequence of which when the young man made up his list of personal appointments Miss Garrison found herself listed as assistant private secretary at a decidedly comfortable salary.

It was while she was working in that capacity in the mayor's private room in the city hall during Bennett's lunch hour one day in midwinter that her solitude was broken by the entrance of a visitor.

Perry Wainwright, redolent of bandbox and soap as ever, found his way past the doorkeeper and burst into the sanctum.

"Hello!" was his greeting. "His honor isn't around?"

"No," answered Cynthia demurely, looking up from her work with the most businesslike air she could assume. "He's out at lunch."

"I knew he would be," grinned Perry. "I timed it fine, didn't I?"

"If you knew he was out, why did you come?" she asked severely. "You know I never receive callers during business hours. If you didn't come to see Mr. Bennett"—

"But I did. Honest I did. I have a message for him. It's awfully important. He mustn't miss it."

"Perhaps you'll leave it with me? I can"—

"No; it's got an answer to it. I'll have to wait, I suppose."

He sat down, uninvited, with an air of mock resignation that was too much for Cynthia's gravity.

"Perry Wainwright," she exclaimed in exasperation, "how often am I to tell you you mustn't bother me here in office hours?"

"Now you've hurt my feelings," announced Perry in solemn conviction. "But," he added generously, "I'll forgive you, and to prove it I'll give you a peace offering. See? Your old Boston terriers Betty and Prince Charlie, and me holding them."

And he laid before her a photograph. She caught it up, with a little cry of pleasure.

"Oh, the beauties!" she exclaimed.

"We do look well in that pose," he admitted modestly.

"I was speaking of the dogs," she reproved him, with lofty scorn.

"But I'm in the picture, too," he explained. "I'm the one with the hat on. And"—

"Thank you so much for the picture I shall keep it always. They're the nicest dogs I ever had."

"I'm nice too. And it isn't my fault I'm not a dog. I"—

"I told you once before not to give up hope. You'll grow. "I"—

"I told that to some fellows at the club, and we tried to figure it out, and

"What clever men you must be at that club! Are you going to the administration ball next week?"

"Are you?"

"Why?"

"Because that's the answer. I've never been to an administration ball, but if you're there I guess it"—

"Don't be silly. The administration ball is a very great function indeed. I've been asking questions about it. Not only every one connected with the administration goes, but all sorts of capitalists and other people like that. I've heard that some of the biggest financial deals are arranged during that ball. Isn't it queer?"

"Not especially. There's a deal I'm thinking of putting through myself that night if I don't get a good chance earlier—a deal that means a lot to me."

"Then why wait till the ball? Why not"—

"I'd do it now, only Bennett might come in before"—

"What a worker Mr. Bennett is!" broke in Cynthia, turning very pink and hastening to change the subject.

"In the old days we thought he was the soul of laziness, but now he's working here night and day. He's not only the youngest mayor this city ever had, but I think he's the busiest too. He"—

The eulogy on the new mayor was cut short by that dignitary's appearance from the center room. As Alwyn paused to hang up his coat and hat and pull off his gloves Cynthia bent once more over her work, while Perry straightened up and tried to look as though he really had business of pressing importance with his honor.

The months had brought changes to Bennett. There were care lines on his face, and his eyes were tired. A few silver strands, too, had crept into the darker hair on his temples. There was little now about him to suggest the idler.

"Well, old man," he exclaimed on seeing Perry, "what's the excuse this time?"

"The what?" asked the youth uneasily.

"The excuse. You come here—when I'm likely to be out—about four times a week, and always with a perfectly new excuse for your intrusion. I tolerate you for the originality of those excuses. What is today's?"

"I have no need of an excuse," replied Perry, with an air of hurt dignity. "I am the bearer of a most important message to you."

"From whom?"

"From—from— Dallas is home; landed this morning."

A light came into the mayor's tired eyes at the news.

"And the message?" he asked eagerly.

"That's the message. She's home."

"She sent you to tell me that?"

"No; not exactly that," evaded Perry, wriggling uncomfortably.

"Well, what was her message then?"

"She—she didn't send any."

"Then who sent the message that she has come home?"

"Well, the fact is I sent it myself. That's why I brought it."

"Oh, you poor idiot!" laughed Bennett. "The same old excuse in a new shape! Well, now you're here, you can stay just five minutes. I'm too busy to play with little boys today."

"Little boys! I'll be twenty-two next spring. I"—

"Any messages while I was out, Miss Garrison?"

"Yes, one," answered Cynthia. "Your mother telephoned that she would be here at half past 2. She said she had a surprise for you."

"Say," remarked Perry, feeling he was being excluded from the talk, "I'd go easy on that surprise if I were you, Alwyn. I've had surprises over the telephone myself, and they're punk. Once a girl"—

"Alderman Phelan would like to speak to your honor," said Ingram, the old doorkeeper, popping out of the anteroom.

"Show him in," answered Bennett. "Now, then, Perry"—

"Were you about to ask me to stay awhile longer?" asked the boy. "Because I'm sorry, but I can't. Goodby. Good afternoon, Miss Garrison. Glad you liked the photo. So long. Maybe I'll bring another message from Dallas tomorrow."

"What can Phelan want of me, I wonder," mused Bennett, half aloud. "He and I scarcely— Good afternoon, alderman! I think this is the first time you've honored me with a visit."

"Then be lenient with a first offense, your honor," suggested Phelan, shaking hands with the mayor and nodding pleasantly to Cynthia as she passed out to her own office.

"Something important, I suppose," hazarded Bennett.

MADISONS WIN TWICE IN TOURNEY CONTESTS

In tourney games at Johnny Campbell's alleys, last night, the Madisons defeated both the Watchungs and Prospects and the Watchungs won the odd game from the Prospects. Medium scores were the rule, the best team effort coming from the Watchungs who aggregated 858 in the final try. In the individual work, Louis Skelly took the lead, turning in an average of 105. Second best was made by Tom Muir, whose average was 198. Skelly and Muir were the only ones to reach the 200 mark.

Harry Gilmore, who has held the lead in the average column since the tourney started, slumped badly through a hard-luck streak of splits. In his first game he hit for four in succession, all of the impossible variety. His scores were 150 and 180. Harry Van Emburgh and Frank Willett were also hampered by splits.

Plan to Stop Truancy.

Judge Runyon has adopted a new scheme in dealing with school truants and parents who pay little or no attention to their children remaining away from studies. In passing on the case of Victor Webley, son of James Webley, charged by Miss Ball with truancy, the magistrate declared in the city court that he would impose a fine of $1 on the father for every day the boy is out of school hereafter without a good excuse. He added that he would make the same disposition of other charges that are pending.

FINAL LENTEN SERVICES

the evening there will be a service with a sermon. The rite of holy baptism will be administered in the church at 5 o'clock Easter Even, Saturday. A celebration of the Holy Communion at 8 o'clock Sunday will begin the services of Easter Day. There will be special music at the 11 o'clock service, when the rector will preach. The children's carol service will be held at 4 o'clock.

The Catholic Churches.

Impressive Lenten services will be held at St. Mary's and St. Joseph's churches this week and the Roman church ceremonial will make the services on Easter Day particularly impressive. The devotions will begin tomorrow with high mass at 7:30 o'clock at St. Joseph's and 9 o'clock at St. Mary's. At this time there fill be the procession with the Blessed Sacrament to the repository where it will remain until Good Friday. At St. Mary's, this procession will be headed by children as flower scatterers. At the singing of the Gloria during the service on Thursday, the bells will ring and the organ play for the last time until the service Saturday. At the Friday services no bells will be rung, and the singing will be without the organ.

Early Good Friday morning will be solemn prayers for the conversion of the world and the Passion will be read previous to the administration of the pre-sanctified mass. At St. Mary's church there will be the three hours' service of agony, beginning at noon. Father Bogan will comment on the last words of the Saviour and the choir will sing, although without an organ accompaniment. In the evening will be a Good Friday sermon at St. Mary's and adoration of the Blessed Virgin.

Saturday morning early will come the Roman Catholic ceremony of blessing the new fire at the church door, and the paschal candle, typifying the Resurrection, will be lighted. The altar lamps will also be lighted and the baptismal water will be blessed. At the conclusion of the Gloria in this service, the bells will be run again and the organ played.

On Easter Day, there will be five masses before the principal service of the day at 10:30 o'clock. At this time, the choir will be headed by about 100 children, singing. A priest from Hoboken will be the celebrant at St. Joseph's, assisted by Father Miller as deacon, and Father Tyrell as sub-deacon. Father Brennan, of Newark, will also assist. Father Sciola will officiate at St. Mary's, with Father Delehanty as deacon and Father Downes as sub-deacon. Father Bogan will be master of ceremonies. The music at this service at both churches will be from the Cecilian Scroll, in accordance with a recent decree of the Pope and both choirs will be augmented by several voices.

The Easter services at St. Mary's will mark the beginning of the two weeks of the mission. This will be a series of evangelistic services, conducted annually by visiting priests. The special services will last for two weeks, the first week being especially for the women and the second week for the men.

FORT ISSUES WARNING TO MACHINE POLITICIANS

At the hearing on Senate 158, the Frelinghuysen bill, exempting all non-taxable securities held by National and State banks from taxation, Governor Fort yesterday again made known his determination to remain at the New Jersey legislative helm for the next three years, and let it be known later that he would veto the bill.

He had interrupted former Assemblyman Louis Miller, of Cumberland, who was declaring that equal taxation was a party question, when the Governor said:

"Politics don't enter into consideration of business affairs in this administration, and it may as well be understood now that in legislation affecting the people at large there will be no politics, so far as the Governor is concerned, for the next three years."

There was a big gathering of taxing officials from various parts of the State to oppose the bill, and there were a few bankers on hand to support the bill and have it signed. Wilbur C. Fisk, of New York, suggested during the talk that bank stock be made a special class for taxation purposes the same as railroads.

Former President John Howe, of the Newark Tax Board, with Secretary Noah Guter and Joseph Coult, former City Counsel, were present to oppose the bill. Mr. Coult said the bill should be called one to equalize exemptions from taxation, and not one to equalize taxation.

Mr. Howe presented figures showing how banks escaped taxation, and said that every opportunity was taken by banks to escape responsibility for public support. Commissioner Howe was told by bankers that they would not take advantage of the law to swear off taxes.

"We only have present conditions from which to form our conclusions," said Mr. Howe. "The Fidelity Trust Company, of Newark, with $7,000,000 surplus and $2,000,000 capital, paid taxes on only $212,000 last year. National banks would do the same thing."

President Uzal H. McCarter, of the Fidelity, stood beside Mr. Howe, and apparently wasn't pleased.

The Governor will veto the bill because it affects the Lippincott case.

MURDER CASE BEFORE JURY.

Hunterdon County Grand Inquisitors to Decide Over Indictment Against Patzke.

Flemington, April 15.—Supreme Court Judge Alfred Reed presided at the opening of the April term of the Hunterdon County Court here yesterday morning. Former Senator John R. Foster was sworn in as foreman of the grand jury. In charging the grand jury Judge Reed reviewed the High Bridge homicide case minutely.

George Riegelbauer, of New York, was found dead in bed at High Bridge on New Year's morning. Gustav Patzke and Charles Anderson were arrested upon a charge of murder and committed to jail. Patzkie alleges he and Riegelbauer had been drinking and quarreled over the Franco-Prussian war. Both occupied cots in the same room and Patzke claims Riegelbauer threw a bottle over at him, which he might have hurled back. The following morning Riegelbauer was found dead. It is thought that but little evidence has been found which might tend to connect Anderson with the crime.

Henry W. Baird.

Former Freeholder Henry W. Baird, of Somerset county, was found dead in bed at his home at North Branch, this morning, heart trouble being the cause. He was fifty-eight years old and had lived at North Branch a great many years.

Annual Meeting Shows Congregational Church Has Been Especially Active.

REPORTS MADE BY THE PASTOR.

Rev. C. L. Goodrich Summarizes the Year's Work and Church Officers Are Elected.

The annual report of Rev. Charles L. Goodrich, made at the parish meeting of the Congregational church, held last night, showed the church to be in a flourishing condition financially and spiritually and the year opens under highly auspicious conditions in all branches of the church work. In accordance with the Congregational custom, two meetings were held in connection with the annual report of the year's work—the parish meeting and the business meeting. The report of the church treasurer, Morris C. Van Arsdale showed a balance of thirty-five cents on hand from the year's receipts, amounting to $4,086.84. The donations to benevolences have been especially large, totalling to about $3,600 for the year. This makes the local church rank fourth in donations by churches of the State association.

Rollin D. Rice was re-elected church clerk, and John M. Whiton and George S. Raynolds were again chosen deacons for a two year term. Henry C. Nomer, Curtis E. Bates and Sydney H. Dunning were elected members of the official board. Mr. and Mrs. L. B. Morgan and Sydney Dunning were elected delegates to the meeting of the State association to be held at East Orange next week. Joseph E. Morse, Charles A. Rice, Morris C. Van Arsdale and Philip S. Suffern were elected church trustees, and at the subsequent organization of the trustees, Mr. Morse was elected chairman, E. L. Morgan secretary and Charles Steiner treasurer.

The report of the pastor showed that the church now has a membership of 301, and there are 225 enrolled in the Sunday-school, which has an average attendance of 135. Three parishioners have been lost by death and two by removal and nineteen new members have been received during the year. Since the last parish meeting, individual communion service has been introduced into the church, and the discarded set has been sent to two mission churches in North Dakota, from which letters of thanks were read last night.

The report of George S. Raynolds for the deacons' fund showed that $127 had been received and $92 paid out during the year. The list of benevolent donations of the church are to be revised and this matter was placed in the hands of the official board by the pastor. Morris C. Van Ardsdale, chairman of the musical committee, reported that it had been decided to do away with the quartet choir at the church after May 1, and Charles L. Lewis, of the Lotus Glee Club, has been secured as precentor.

Previous to the meeting, a supper was served to the parishioners, in accordance with an annual custom. The Women's Society of the church was in charge of this supper, which was served at 6 o'clock to about fifty members of the parish.

Freeholders Inspected Terrill Road.

The road committee from the Union County Board of Freeholders visited Plainfield today and inspected Terrill road, with a view to recommending that that thoroughfare be made a State aid road The freeholders were the guests of H. W. Marshall, president of the Board of Board of Trade, who provided automobiles for the trip over Terril road. After the inspection, the party adjourned to Maplewood Hotel, Fanwood, where entertainment was provided and James E. Martine, also a guest, made a speech. As Terrill road is one of the principal thoroughfares leading into and out of the city, there is no doubt but that the recommendation will be adopted.

Jailed for Sixty Days.

James Cook, a young colored man who has been somewhat of a nuisance in the Boulevard vicinity, was sent to jail for sixty days by Judge Runyon this morning. He was arrested on West Third street by Patrolman Saffron, yesterday afternoon, for drunkenness and disorderly conduct. As Cook was being led from the desk in the city court the magistrate advised him he would make a wise move by steering clear of Plainfield when his term was finshed.

W. Paulding DeNike Will Play.

WM. DOUGHERTY GETS A HUDSON CO. OFFICE

William J. Dougherty, of this city, for many years chief of the New Jersey Central's detective force, was yesterday appointed a member of the Hudson county prosecutor's staff of detectives. He was named by Prosecutor Pierre Garven, former Mayor of Bayonne, and takes the place of Alexander Ackerman, recently dismissed. Mr. Garven has announced that Dougherty will have the title of chief of the prosecutor's detective staff.

The appointment is an important one from an official and salary point of view and Mr. Dougherty's selection was brought about through a knowledge of his work with the Central, Mr. Garven having formerly been connected with the road as counsel. Since his marriage a short time ago he has been living on West Sixth street but has already taken steps to move to Jersey City. He has many friends throughout the county who will be pleased to hear of his advancement.

MRS. SARAH BAGLIN NOW WIFE OF FRED V. WAGNER

Mrs. Sarah Ellen Baglin, daughter of Captain and Mrs. W. C. Smith, of Grandview avenue, and Frederick Ulrich Wagner, of Rahway, were married last night at the home of the bride's parents by Justice of the Peace Clark Mundy. The ceremony was at 7:30 o'clock in the evening, and ninety-eight guests were present. The affair was an Easter wedding, Easter lilies and palms being used lavishingly in the decoration of the house, and forming a bower in the parlor stood, where the couple stood for the ceremony.

The couple entered the parlor to the music of the Lohengrin wedding march, played on the piano by Miss Clara Barton Smith, a sister of the bride. The bride was gowned in pearl grey crepe de Chine, en train, made over china silk, and wore a bridal veil, caught up with orange blossoms. She carried a bouquet of white roses. Attending her was her sister, Miss Mary Smith, who wore white net, over white taffeta silk. She carried American beauty roses. The best man was William Baron, of Rahway.

The entire lower floor of the house was handsomely decorated and the enclosed piazza was especially illuminated and decorated with white flowers and palms. A collation was served at the conclusion of the ceremony. After the formal reception, the bride and groom left for Rahway, where their new home has been fitted up ready for them by the bride's father and the groom's mother. Mr. Wagner is employed with the traffic department of the Pennsylvania Railroad at Newark. He is the son of the late E. Miles Wagner, of California, and has been living in the east but a short time.

The couple received a wealth of wedding presents, including valuable gifts of silverware, jewelry and cut glass. Among the guests were relatives and friends of the two families from New York, Brooklyn, Newark, Rahway, Freehold, Madison, Summit and Keyport.

NEWARK CLASSIS' WORK

Rev. Chas. H. Schneegas Made Delegate to General Synod of Reformed Church.

TWO PASTORS ARE RETIRED.

Rev. Dr. Schenck Made Pastor-Emeritus—Rev. Dr. Martin Leaves the Reformed Denomination.

The spring meeting of the Classis of Newark was held yesterday at the First Reformed church, Newark, morning and afternoon. The Rev. Peter Hagaman was elected president and the Rev. G. M. Pullen clerk. After the devotional exercises the routine business of the body was transacted. Rev. Charles F. Schneegas, pastor of the German Reformed church, North Plainfield, was elected as one of the delegates to the General Synod.

As told in yesterday's issue, on presentation of a resolution, the pastoral bonds of Rev. Dr. Cornelius Schenck at Trinity Reformed church, this city, were dissolved. He was made pastor-emeritus after the most laudatory remarks had been made concerning his ministerial career. Trinity church was warmly complimented for its loyalty to its pastor during his illness and for its determination to look after his future welfare. Note was made of the fact that Trinity maintains the distinguished record of being third in importance in the Classis.

The various ministers and lay delegates were called in turn by the president and answered the constitutional questions relative to the fidelity of the preachers to the doctrinal standards of the church and to pastoral visitation.

The reports of various committees were heard. The prinicpal was that on the state of religion, which gave in detail the work of the several churches of the Classis of Newark, the amounts each had contributed to benevolent causes and congregational purposes, and the number of conversions and new members each church had received. An animated discussion followed this report, and unfavorable comparisons were drawn between the condition of the work this year and last. It was pointed out by several speakers that the Reformed church had fallen far behind its former prosperity. There had been fewer conversions and fewer scholars in attendance at the Sunday schools than in former years, while the contributions to missionary enterprises were notably smaller in the Classis of Newark.

An incident of the morning session was the application of the Rev. Dr. Daniel H. Martin for a dissolution of the pastoral relation between him and the Clinton Avenue Reformed church. Dr. Martin has been in the classis eighteen years, and is thus the senior pastor of that body in length of service. He recently received invitations to several new fields of labor, to Brooklyn, to New York, to New Brunswick and to the First Presbyterian church of Glens Falls. He has accepted the last.

The classis expressed its deep regard for Dr. Martin, and several ministers made laudatory speeches of the work he had accomplished in building up one of the largest churches in the denomination, and giving his time and strength also to civic interests.

At the dinner which followed Dr. Martin expressed his gratitude to the members of classis for their kindnesses and his regret at leaving the denomination. The church at Glens Falls to which he goes in May is over 100 years old, and is the strongest in wealth and membership of any Presbyterian church in northern New York.

Engle Bought a Package.

Walter Engle, who lives near Oak Tree, came to town yesterday to buy provisions for teh larder and while doing so took aboard a package of liquid goods. The combination made him woozy and Patrolman John Kelly found him hanging over a fence on East Sixth street, at the same time making desperate efforts to hold fast to sundry pounds of meat, sugar and other supplies. When arraigned in court, this morning, he declared a night on one of the "waffle" beds in a cell was sufficient punishment for his offense and Judge Runyon agreed with him.

GILBERT MAY BE HEAD

Former Mayor Prominently Mentioned for Presidency of Proposed Republican Club.

INVITATION COMMITTEE NAMED

By-laws and Constitution Discussed at Committee Meeting—Organization On April 25.

Former Mayor Alexander Gilbert is the one most prominently mentioned in connection with the presidency of the proposed Plainfield Republican Club. The officers will be chosen at a meeting to be held on Saturday night, April 25, and at a meeting of the committee on organization last night at the Casino the probable make-up of officers was fully discussed. Suggestions pertaining to the by-laws and constitution were also considered but it was decided to hold another meeting of the committee before definite recommendations be made.

The general management of the proposed organization will be vested in a board of governors. The membership of this body will be made up of the most representative men in the party without regard to factional affiliations. It was said today that there is a possibility that the new organization will obtain permanent quarters at the Casino. Soon after organization is effected, it is planned to hold a smoker in order to attract the voters generally.

Mr. Gilbert's name was favorably considered at the committee meeting last night when suggestions were made regarding the proper person for the presidency. Others whose names were broached included State Senator Ernest R. Ackerman, R. Henry Depew, the president of the People's Lobby of New Jersey, and Mayor Charles J. Fisk. Numerous ones were mentioned in connection with positions on the board of governors.

Mayor Charles J. Fisk, who was the acting chairman at the meeting on Thursday night, April 9, today announced the membership of the committee of invitation for the purpose of inviting every Republican voter in the city to be present at a meeting to be held at the Casino, Saturday night, April 25, when definite action on the formation of a club will be taken.

Instead of effecting an organization last week, it was thought best to have a committee of invitation with a view to securing the attendance of every Republican in the city at the approaching meeting. This suggestion was made by members of the New Idea wing of the party, and Mayor Fisk was authorized to select the members of that committee from the various wards. The complete list follows:

First ward—First district, William R. Coddington, S. P. T. Wilbur, James T. MacMurray, R. I. Tolles, Armstrong Mulford. Second district, Charles Backer, John M. Lewis, Casper Steadle, Horace G. Adams, C. S. Sminck.

Second ward—First district, William Taylor, Arthur Lovell, E. B. Shoemaker, Clarence Goss, E. J. Cooley. Second district, John G. Bicknell, E. E. Iremonger, William Lockwood, W. W. Coriell, Robert Gutteridge.

Third ward—First district, G. W. V. Moy, Boardman Tyler, Roger F. Murray, W. Lesley Glenney, O. S. Rogers. Second district, J. Stephen Higham, Harry B. MacDonald, Elliot T. Barrows, Gilbert Fletcher, Philip Macintyre.

COP GETS FOUR PRISONERS IN HEAD HITTING CONTEST

Patrolman Messler was soft-shoeing along the West Front street pavement at 11:30 last night when his attention was attracted by a noisy argument among a group of men standing opposite Park avenue. He started forward to investigate and had reached within a few yards of the wranglers when the whole crowd began a head-hitting contest. The Donnybrook slogan of crack anything in sight was prevailing when the policeman waded in and did a little lambasting on his own account.

As soon as the bluecoat's presence was realized, most of the belligerents took to their heels but Messler managed to corner four of them. At police headquarters they gave their names as Theodore Stites, William Barry, Benjamin Howell and John G. O'Brien. In court this morning they told Judge Runyon the trouble grew out of a friendly discussion as to the scale of wages paid union lathers. An attempt to place the blame met with a lot of contradictory evidence and His Honor made it a fine of $5 in each case with a preference of twenty days. All paid up.

MISS GILES BECOMES MRS. CHARLES MORRIS

In a quiet home wedding at New Market, last night, Miss Fannie Giles, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. DeWitt Giles, became the wife of Charles Parker Morris, of West Front street. The ceremony was performed at the home of the bride's parents by Rev. George H. Gardner, pastor of the New Market Baptist church.

The bride was gowned in white satin, en train, and wore a bridal veil. She carried a bouquet of white roses and pink carnations. Attending her was her sister, Miss Edith Giles, who wore white silk over pink chiffon and carried a shower bouquet of sweet peas. The best man was Robert Fitz Randolph. The ceremony was performed in the parlor of the Giles' home, and the couple entered the room to the music of the Lohengrin wedding march, played by Mrs. Fannie Bishop, of Elizabeth, an aunt of the bride, who was at the piano.

Following the ceremony, there was a bountiful wedding collation served to the fifty guests. Amid a shower of rice and confetti, Mr. and Mrs. Morris left the house late in the evening in au automobile, taking the train for New York city. After a short wedding trip, they will take up their residence on Grove street, North Plainfield. Mr. Morris is employed with the Morris Automobile Company, of East Fourth street. The couple received many wedding presents, including cut glass, silverware and china.

TONIGHT "AMATEUR NIGHT" AT THE LOCAL THEATRE.

The Imperial Stock Company will appear in Justin Adams' pretty five act romance, "A Daughter of the South," at the New Plainfield theatre tonight, and the indications are that it will attract the largest audience of the week. The play was presented to a well filled house on Tuesday afternoon, and gave the full measure of satisfaction. Immediately after the performance tonight the amateur contest will take place, and the winners will be awarded prizes. The same conditions will prevail as heretofore, and there is considerable interest manifested.

The announcement for tomorrow night is Carie Corelli's famous story, "Wormwood, or The Absinthe Drinkers of Paris," of which the company is making a feature bill, and as there are a great many who have read this story, the production will doubtless prove more than ordinarily interesting. The presents to be given away on Saturday afternoon are now on exhibition, and are attracting much attention. The play to be given on Saturday afternoon is the beautiful five act domestic drama, "A Wife's Broken Heart."

Freeholders Meet In Borough.

A delegation of members of the Somerset County Board of Freeholders is in North Plainfield today investigating the petitions for county construction of a bridge on Somerset street and county maintainance of the proposed extension of Greenbrook road from Somerset street to the borough limits. The Freeholders convened at Blatz's Hotel at 11 o'clock and were driven to the site of the proposed bridge, returning at 1 o'clock for lunch at the hotel. This afternoon they are being driven over the road which the North Plainfield Council has petitioned that they macadamize and maintain. With them are Mayor Samuel Townsend, Borough Counsel Charles A. Reed, and members of the Council.

LAWYERS NOT CONGENIAL

Waxed Angry in Judge Parker's Court in Apgar Bros. Bankruptcy Case.

REFEREE TAKES AN EXCEPTION.

Threatened Attorney Suydam with Contempt Proceedings for Making Caustic Comments.

The spirit of brotherly love that is supposed to exist between contesting lawyers was conspicuous by its absence at the second hearing on the Apgar Brothers bankruptcy matter before Judge Parker at New Brunswick yesterday. Loud and angry voices were raised, the legal lights sneered at one another and H. C. Suydam, of this city, appearing for some of the creditors, was threatened with contempt proceedings for making caustic remarks to the referee.

The majority of creditors last week voted for William Tuttle, of Westfield, for trustee, but on objection by Isaac P. Runyon, of Plainfield, attorney for petitioning creditors, the selection was not approved but decision was reserved. The objection to him was based on the ground that many of those who voted in his favor were secured creditors and had no right to a choice; also that Tuttle is an interested creditor. Mr. Suydam and Paul Q. Oliver, of Westfield, attorney for Tuttle, were quite angry because their selection for trustee was not approved of and Mr. Suydam became very much excited.

Referee Parker scolded both lawyers now and then, as a teacher reproaches naughty boys. Once when he and Mr. Suydam didn't have the same interpretation of the bankrupt laws and the refree had said that the proceedings had not been instituted in proper form, the lawyer arose from his chair and exclaimed in excited tones:

"Well, if that is the case we might as well stop right here and we will go before a proper court and find out about it.

"Now there is no use of you giving away to temper," quietly ordered Referee Parker. "Unless you control yourself in this court I will have to report you for contempt. I don't mean to stand for such actions." Mr. Suydam subsided after that.

The session was stormy throughout, the attorneys at times acting as if they were sworn enemies and not merely opponents at law. Many of the creditors hold securities and it is Lawyer Runyon's purpose to compel them to deliver up the securities for the benefit of all the creditors Referee Parker adjourned the case, after the Apgar Brothers had been questioned about some transfers of property and about judgements which had been secured against them, for one week at the same place

Thomas Jefferson, who comes to the New Plainfield theatre next Monday afternoon and night, has a French valet with him this season who can hardly speak a word of English. It is Mr. Jefferson's intention to present "Rip Van Winkle" in Paris in the near future, and his employment of the French servant is for the purpose of brushing up on the language which by the way was the first he ever spoke, having been taken to Paris when but a baby.

"The Little Trooper," the three act comic opera, has just been released from copyright litigation between French and American claimants for the right of production under International copyright law, and will be seen at the New Plainfield theatre next Wednesday night. The musical score which is a succession of tingling, tuneful melodies, and sparkling choruses, is by William Furst, the composer of the music for "The Darling of the Gods," and all the Belasco successes. The book of the opera is by Clay M. Greene who writes the lyrics and liberetto for the famous annaus gambols of the Lamb Club of New York, and its humorous construction is in a great measure responsible for the success achieved by the opera.

"The Man of the Hour," which William A. Brady and Joseph Crismer will offer to the theatre-goers at the New Plainfield theatre Tuesday night, April 28, makes a new era in the history of the stage. It follows none of the old methods of speech or action. It enjoys the unique distinction of never having received adverse criticism. The unanimous praise of the New York press burst upon it like a flood and its success with the public was said to be equally spontaneous and emphatic. In fact it has become the talk of the town. With no "booming" of any kind, it has become one of the four established Broadway successes, and bids fair to outlive even these rivals. It is said to appeal to everyone regardless of age, sex or condition. It has been called "The Dawn of Civic Conscience," "A Sermon on Public Honesty," yet it is said to be no "dry sermon." Its interest is human and sympthetic. Its humor creates peals and roars of laughter and is said to have a love story of touching tenderness. It is aptly termed "The Play of the Day."

WHY BANKS CLOSE UP ON GOOD FRIDAY

The Attorney General's office has received many inquries since Governor Fort issued his Good Friday proclamation as to whether or not the banks would be closed tomorrow. The reply has been like the following:

"Hon. William Riker, Jr., Clerk of the Supreme Court of New Jersey.

"Dear Sir—You asked my to furnish you with an opinion as to whether it is your duty, under existing statutes, to close the office of the clerk of the supreme court on Friday next, the 17th of April, commonly known as 'Good Friday.' By act of the Legislature of 1907, Good Friday was made a public holiday, and with reference to the observance of this day, the proclamation of the governor, dated April 9, appoints this day 'as a day of devotion and of fasting and prayer.'

"The act of 1895 (Gen. Stat., Vol. 2, p. 1941) provides that certain days and half days, not, however, including Good Friday, and 'any day appointed or recommended by the governor of this State * * * as a day of thanksgiving or fasting and prayer, or other religious observance, shall, for all purposes whatever, as regards the presenting for payment or acceptance, and of the protesting and giving notice of the dishonor of bills of exchange, bank checks and promissory notes made after the passage of this act, be treated and considered as the first day of the week, commonly called Sunday, and as public holid[illegible] [illegible]ays or half holi[illegible]ays * * * and provided further * * * the days and half days aforesaid shall be considered as the first day of the week commonly called Sunday, and as public holidays or half holidays, for all purposes whatsoever, as regards the transaction of business in the public offices of this State or counties of this State, etc.'

"I view of the proclamation of the governor and the reading of this section of the statute, I am of opinion that the office of the clerk of the supreme court and all other public offices of this State or counties should observe the 17th day of April, 1908, as a public holiday in the same manner as the first day of the week commonly called Sunday, and, therefore, should be closed against the transaction of business on that day.

"Very truly yours,
"NELSON B. GASKILL,
"Assistant Attorney General."

GOVERNOR PROCLAIMS MAY 1 FOR ARBOR DAY

Governor Fort yesterday issued a proclamation setting May 1 as Arbor Day. The proclamation follows

"The conservation of the American forest is now uppermost in the minds of all thoughtful people. He who plants a tree promotes the interest of future generations. The teaching of the young to preserve forest lands and promote tree culture is of great importance. New Jersey has taken an advanced step for the preservation and in the direction of the protection and increase of its forest area. The State, under laws permitting such purchases, now owns about ten thousand acres, and is authorized to purchase additional reservations. The tree tends to increase the rainfall, and it adds to the happiness and comfort of man by the fruit product which it yields.

"The annual observance of Arbor Day is commended by statute, and the public schools are enjoined to observe the day and instruct the youth as to its importance.

"By law the Governor is required to proclaim a day that may be suitably observed. Now, therefore, I, John Franklin Fort, Governor of the State of New Jersey, do hereby by this, my proclamation, designate that Friday, the 1st day of May, A. D. 1908, be observed as Arbor Day throughout the State and in all the public schools thereof, and I do enjoin the teaching of the children as to the importance of this day and of what it means to all the people. Given under my hand and the great seal of the State of New Jersey, in the city of Trenton, this 9th day of April, 1908, and of the independence of the United States the one hundred and thirty-second.

(Signed)
"JOHN FRANKLIN FORT."

NUPTIAL AGREEMEMT MUST BE IN WRITING

Catholic sweethearts must make their engagements in writing after next Sunday. Catholic marriages by Protestant clergymen or magistrates will be invalid. Such marriages have always been punishable, but the Church considered them binding. They are not even that under the new Catholic law.

The revised and betrohal and marriage rules will be read from every Catholic pulpit in the world at Easter and become effective at noon. Speaking of engagements they say:

"Only those are considered valid which has been contracted in writing, signed by both parties and by either the parish priest or the ordinary of the place or at least by two witnesses."

"Private engagements" are referred to as "an incitement to sin and causing the deception of inexperienced girls, and afterward giving rise to inextricable dissensions and disputes."

Written engagements are not made absolutely obligatory, but it is specified that only such will be "considered valid and produce canonical effects."

"Only those marriages are valid," says the papal mandate, "which are contracted before the parish priest or by the ordinary of the place or by a priest designated by either of these and in the presence of at least two witnesses."

The marriage must be by or with the consent of the priest of the parish in which either the bride, the bridegroom, or both, have lived for at least a month.

If neither party has a fixed abode the marriage may not be performed at all except upon permission of the priest's superior.

EXPERTS ARE STUDYING THE RARITAN BAY OYSTER.

Several members of the New York State Oyster Commission were at Perth Amboy yesterday and took samples of the oysters planted in the Raritan Bay beds. The bivalves will be analyzed, and if they are found to contain intestinal bacteria it means that the local oystermen will seek another occupation.

Representative Howell yesterday introduced in Congres a resolution providing for the appointment of three commisisoners by the Secretary of the Interior to make an investigation of the quality of all New Jersey oysters.

Kirmess Rehearsals

The rehearsals for the Kirmess are most promising. Each evening two or more of the dances are given a most strenuous drilling. Last night was devoted in part to the "White Hussars," chaperoned by Mrs. Harry Runkle. This dance is Polish in character and is very stately. It is said to be one of the most taking. The costumes are of white and silver. Those taking part are Mrs. Eliot Cutter, the Misses Euphemia Bakewell, Virginia Hegeman, Grace Kaufman, Margaret McCutchen, Ursula Rowland, Georgiana Smith and Helen Valiant and Eliot Cutter, Harry Eaton, Lester Glenney, Charles King, Herbert Rogers, Daniel Runkle, Will Schoonmaker and Philip Stillman.

"JEWETT" Refrigerators.

You've heard the name before. We've been telling you how good they are for the past ten years. This year they are better than ever. More substantially built and better finished. We have them in Zinc, Enameled, Glass and Porcelain lined. The walls are packed with charcoal, the lift out ice chamber is a special feature and the drain pipe is detachable and easy to clean. They are the most sanitary refrigerator on the market today. We have them in eight different styles and an average of six sizes to each style. In fact a larger showing of refrigerators than all the other stores combined.

We quote you prices on three styles as follows:

HEAR RETIRING PRESIDENT.

Delegates to Spring Session of Classis of Raritan Listen to Rev. Isaac Sperling's Sermon.

Whitehouse, April 16.—The stated spring session of the classis of Raritan was held Tuesday in the Reformed church at Pottersville and was attended by ministers from all sections of Hunterdon and Somerset counties. The classical sermon was preached by the retiring president, Rev. Isaac Sperling, pastor of the Reformed church at South Branch.

Rev. Dr. William H. DeHart, pastor of the Third Reformed church in Raritan, succeeded to the presidency, and Rev. John Erler, of Pottersville, became temporary clerk. Various matters of routine business were attended to, and the women of the church furnished dinner at the parsonage.

JOKER IN EXCISE LAW, LOCAL OPTIONISTS' FIND

South New Jersey officials and law and order leaders are aroused over the discovery of an alleged joker in the new Morgan law which city and county officials believe they see a loophole for saloon keepers to escape compliance with the Bishops' law provisions forbidding the sale of intoxicants to any one under 21 years of age.

The Morgan bill bars children from dance halls and concert gardens, and from theatres and picture shows unless accompanied by parents. Section 3, however, which is alleged to contain the joker, reads: "Any person having a license to sell spirituous, vinous, malt, or brewed liquors, * * * who shall sell or give to any minor under the age of 18 years any such liquor, or shall offer or permit any such minor to frequent or lounge in the rooms or place where such liquors are sold, shall be kuilty of a misdemeanor."

Officers of the Burlington County Local Option League have asked Attorney General McCarter for an opinion as to the legal status of the new legislation in its effect on the Bishops' law provisions. Good authorities agree that in its most innocent light the clause in the Morgan supplement lays the Bishops' law open to attack, and tends to complicate matters for prosecuting officials.

May Appoint Commissioners.

Senate bill 272, which authorizes the appointment in cities of less than 20,000 inhabitants of commissioners of public works and buildings, of streets and highways, of public safety and park commisisoners, was signed yesterday by Governor Fort.

SHE WEDS FIRST MAN THAT SHE EVER KNEW

Back of the marriage of Miss Adah Pratt, of Washington, to E. Franklin Hoover, of Philadelphia, last Saturday, lies a story of unusual romance and interest.

Miss Pratt lived until she was 29 years old without forming the acquaintance of a man. She was born and reared in a community of women taught to believe that marriage was a sin. She was bound by teaching and belief always to remain single. Then she married the first man to whom she ever had been introduced. More than that, she did more than half the courting herself.

Nearly thirty years ago, in Texas, where Mrs. Hoover's mother lived at the time, a Mrs. Martha McWhirter, of Waco, announced that she had had a visitation from the Almighty, and had been told that it was sinful to live with man. Accordingly, she left her husband, and, gathering about her a small party of women who were brought to her belief, went to the little town of Bellton, and there established headquarters of the new creed.

Mrs. Pratt was one of the converts to the religion, and, leaving her husband, she joined the colony, where, two months afterwards the present Mrs. Hoover was born. Ten years ago the commonwealth moved to Washington, taking up a farm in Montgomery county, Maryland, and a large house in the city. The children were taught to beware of men, but, of course, they saw some. Mrs. Hoover says she often had noticed them, but she never paid any attention to any of them until she met Mr. Hoover.

"About a year ago I went downtown with a girl friend and she introduced me to Mr. Hoover," said the bride. "Somehow or other, I could not get him out of my mind. I found myself wishing I might see him all the time. I knew it was not right; at least, I thought it was not. But I couldn't get him out of my mind. Later I met him downtown again, and several times after that. Then he told me he was going to leave the city, and asked me to write. I told him I would.

"I was crazy to see him, and decided to risk my mother's displeasure and give him a surprise party, so I slipped quietly out of the house in Washington and came here. Then I found Mr. Hoover and he was greatly surprised. But we were married right away."

WILL SIGN ALDERMEN'S BILL.

Council's Power Over Financial Matters to Be Restored.

Governor Fort practically admitted yesterday that he would sign Assemman Martin's bill to prevent division of financial responsibility between the Newark Board of Works and Common Council. It gives financial power to the aldermen, which has been taken from them in part by recent laws.

Comptroller Bachelier spoke for the measure. President Bock, of the Board of Works, spoke against the bill.

The New Mayor

Based on G. H. Broadhurst's Successful Play

The Man of The Hour

By ALBERT PAYSON TERHUNE.

Copyright, 1907, by George H. Broadhurst.

"Maybe it is important, and maybe it isn't," returned Phelan. "It all depends on whether that was a true story in the Chronicle today about your veto-ing the Borough Street railway bill. If you've really vetoed that bill all I'll have to do is to say, 'Sorry I can't stay longer,' and get out."

"No," said Bennett, "that announcement wasn't authorized. I haven't vetoed the Borough Street railway bill. In fact, I haven't made public any decision on it. Why?"

"I'm glad to hear it, and, that being the case, I'll invite myself to a seat and stay awhile. Say, your honor, on the level, that Borough bill was the rawest thing that ever came across. Gee, but they did their work with a meat ax!"

"Then you weren't one of the aldermen who voted for it?"

"Me? Nothin' doing. I don't belong to Dick Horrigan's 'solid thirteen.' He can't buy and sell me at his own terms like he does them thirteen geezers."

"And yet, alderman, from your reputation"—

"From my reputation I'm a crook, hey? Well, there's crooks and crooks. And I'm one of the other kind, if I'm crooked at all, which I deny most enthoosiastically. At least I follow no Horrigan whistle."

"Then why are you here in regard to the Borough bill?"

"Perhaps it's on the theory of 'set a thief to catch a thief.'"

"Well," laughed Bennett, amused in spite of himself by the alderman's frankness, "at least you call a spade a spade."

"I sure don't refer to it vague, but as a 'utensil.' You don't need any footnote explanations in one syllable when Jimmy Phelan's talking. Every move a picture. If I hadn't been through the game from shuffle to cash in, would I be wise to what the Horrigan crowd is framing up on you now? Say, I've done some raw work in my time, but this Borough business is the coarsest yet. They must think you're the original Mr. Good Thing."

"You speak as if I were to be made responsible for"—

"And ain't you?" cried Phelan. "Sure you are. When the people get wise to what they're up against and commence to do their scream will they remember that So-and-so framed the bill and that such and such aldermen voted for it? Not them. What the public will remember is that you signed it. It'll go screechin' down the corridors of time as 'the iniquitous Borough franchise bill that Bennett signed.' Catch the idea?"

"Yes," said Bennett grimly; "I understand. But what I don't see is why you should have taken the trouble to come here and warn me of this. You've never shown any special fondness for me hitherto."

"That's right. But I've shown bunches of unfondness for Chesty Dick Horrigan. And Horrigan's the man who's rushing the Borough bill through. Lord, what a bill! It's so crooked that if it was laid out like a street the man who tried to walk along it would meet himself coming back. Why, your honor, I"—

"Mr. Wainwright, your honor," said Ingram at the door; "says he won't detain you long."

"Let him in if you like," suggested Phelan. "I can wait. Shall I go into the other"—

"No. Wait here if you choose. His business isn't likely to be private."

"I'm sorry to break in on your rush hours," said Wainwright as he advanced to greet the mayor. "I won't keep you long. Good afternoon, alderman."

"Howdy," returned Phelan, walking over to the far end of the office, where, by falling into deep and admiring study of a particularly atrocious portrait of some earlier mayor, he denoted that he was temporarily out of the conversation.

"I'll come to the point at once, Mr. Bennett," began Wainwright. "I called to see you about the Borough Street railway bill."

"That's an odd coincidence," answered Bennett. "I was going to call you up this afternoon and ask your opinion of it. What do you think of the measure?"

"What does he think of it?" muttered Phelan, addressing the portrait in an aside that was perfectly audible. "What does he think of it? And him ownin' the rival road! Oh, easy! Ask him a real hard one!"

"You're mistaken, alderman," returned Wainwright blandly. "I am inclined to favor the passage of the Borough bill."

Phelan shot one keen glance of incredulity at the financier, then wheeled about and resumed his rapt study of the portrait.

"Yes," continued Wainwright, "I admit that my City Surface line is in a way the rival of the Borough Street railway, but in a big city like this there's surely room for both lines to carry on a prosperous business, so why should they try to injure each other?"

"Why, oh, why?" echoed Phelan, again addressing the portrait. "Can I be gettin' so old that I've begun hearin' queer things that's never said?"

Wainwright paid no heed to the interpolation, but went on:

"Of course the franchise will be a good thing for the Borough road, but it needn't hurt the City Surface line. Besides, the passing of the bill made Borough stock rise from 63 to 81. Then when that unauthorized announcement was made today that your honor would veto it the stock tumbled from 81 to 73. Just see what power rests with you, Mr. Bennett! If you should veto the bill, the Borough stock will slump to almost nothing. Think what that will mean to widows and orphans and all sorts of poor people who have invested all their savings in that stock!"

"I'll be hearin' harps next," said Phelan.

"I'll be hearin' harps twangin' next," groaned Phelan in wonder. "Has the poor, dear man got swellin' of the heart, or is he maybe the advance agent of the millennium? To think of old Tightwad Wainwright"—

ARMRIGHTS LOSE THE HOME-AND-HOME SERIES

The Armright bowlers, of this city, were defeated by the New Brunswick Elks team in the second half of the home-and-home series rolled last night. The games took place at New Brunswick and the Plainfielders failed to get a look-in. Only three games were rolled, the home team taking all three, making four for the series as the Armrights won two in this end of the match.

Ed Britton was the only one of the visiting five to get a double century and he also ended with the best average, 179. Williams had an average of 172.2, Radin 174, Reville 163.1 and Skelly 153. The Brunswick men being familiar with the alleys had no difficulty in making some nice tallies. The match was for $50 a side.

The scores:

MISSES WILDEY SHINE IN TENNIS TOURNAMENT

A splendid match in women's doubles was played yesterday in the St. Nicholas Rink, New York, lawn tennis tournament. The Misses Edna and Natalie Wildey, of this city, defeated Mrs. William H. Pouch and Miss Elizabeth H. Moore in straight sets, 6—4, 8—6. The ability of the veteran pair defeated accentuates the worth of the victory of their younger opponents. The excellent smashing by Miss Natalie Wildey and her general work at the net and the steady and often brilliant supporting work of her taller and older sister were the factors which in chief made the Misses Wildey victorious.

In the first set the Wildey girls took the first three games for the loss of two points, but after leading at 4—1 were overtaken. Miss Moore weakened in the ninth game, and that and the tenth went after a hard struggle in the Wildeys. The latter continued by earning the first four games of the second set, but again were overtaken at 4—4. The last point in the deciding game was hard to get, and it was not until the fourteenth game that the Wildey sisters got it.

Malcolm D. Whitman and Edgar W. Leonard played a three set practice match in doubles against Theodore R. Pell and Raymond D. Little. The result was not made public. In men's doubles today William A. Larned, the national singles champion, and George L. Wrenn will meet Whitman and Leonard. The Women's doubles also go on.

BASEBALL.

In the opening of the American League season in New York on Tuesday, two former Plainfield players figured in the most sensational play in the contest, which was won by the Highlanders by a score of 1 to 0. Oldring was on third and in attempting to steal home, was thrown out at the plate. The trick was cheered to the echo by the rooters for the Highlanders.

The Daily Press will display the final returns of the big league games every night on a bulletin board, as soon as possible after the contests are finished.

Jersey City expected to play Wilmington at Jersey City, yesterday, but the rain interferred. It was "Lou" Wiltse's turn to go in the box.

A large crowd of Plainfield fans will witness the opening of the Eastern League season at Jersey City next Wednesday, when the Newark club will oppose the Skeeters.

Danny Brouthers, the young shortstop of the Orioles, is hitting the ball in the same style that made his namesake, "Big Dan" Brouthers, famous a few years ago, when the latter was in his heyday. Young Brouthers slammed the leather for three safeties against Altoona Tuesday. Baltimore won the game by the score of 7 to 4.

Jack Rothfus, the Newark player, who is booked to play in Hartford this season, will practise with the Indians this week.

Jerry Donovan, who caught for Providence last year, and who was turned over to Johnstown by the Philadelphia Nationals this spring, is having his troubles over the salary question. According to reports, Donovan received $2,100 from Providence last season, and now the Johnstown club has tendered him a contract for $1,000 flat, representing a cut of $1,100. By the refusal of Donovan to sign with Johnstown, the Philadelphia club has the player on its hands, and Jimmy Sebring is trying to negotiate a deal with the Phillies whereby Donovan can play with Wilmington.

Jimmy Sebring, who is acting-manager of the Wilmington team, in the absence of Mike Grady, yesterday asked Chief Stallings to fix a price on Snaps Mueller. Stallings told Sebring that Mueller wasn't for sale, and added that the excellent showing made by the youngster this spring has made a favorable impression on him. According to this Mueller is sure of a permanent berth with the braves.

One of Chief Stallings's fads is to create nicknames for his players. After applying "Goat" to Krichell, he has given Clyde Engle the title of "Hackenschmidt." Pardee he greets sometimes as "Buzzer."

The Scholars A. C., recently organized and composed of players from a local private school, would like to arrange games with teams averaging 16 years of age, but particularly with any school team in this locality. Address Patrick A. McDonough, Plainfield, for dates.

GOLF.

The championship tournament of the Intercollegiate Golf Association will be held this year over the links of the Brae Burn Country Club, near Boston, October 6 to 10. This will be the first time in several years that the competition has been scheduled outside the Metropolitan district. There have been two instances where the tournament was run off on distant courses—once at Atlantic City and once at Myopia.

The collegians gathered at the Nassau Country Club last fall, when Yale won the team championship and Ellis Knowles, of the same college, won the individual title, defeating Ralph Peters, Jr., of Princeton, in the final round. At that time the Harvard delegation, especially those who resided over Boston way, maintained that it would be only fair to hold the 1908 tournament on some Massachusetts course.

The question was left in the hands of H. H. Wilder, the Harvard captain and president of the association. As Brae Burn had previously expressed a desire to entertain the collegians, the West Newton club was finally selected. The women's national championship tournament was held over the Brae Burn links in 1906.

While they are not returning to Long Island this year, the collegians wish it understood that everything was highly satisfactory at Nassau. One of the Yale golfers in discussing the change said that the treatment at the Nassau Country Club was the best he had received during his four years' experience. The reason the early part of October was selected was because it has been found that the weather frequently becomes disagreeable the latter end of the month.

The tournament committee of the Glen Ridge Golf Club, consisting of J. O. Newell, chairman; C. M. Brown and H. W. Benson, has eclipsed all previous efforts in the way of a season's competitive schedule. Beginning with a ball sweepstakes on April 18, there will be something going on every week until December. The championship of the club will begin on September 5 with an eighteen-hole medal play qualifying round, those with the best eight scores to continue on at match play for the title. There will be a consolation cup for the second eight. Fred Baldwin is the present club champion.

As an extra incentive a special cup has been offered for the player making the best average net score in competition during the season. Only members who have competed in at least eighteen contests will be able to qualify. The governors' cup contest will be open to those who qualified during the season. The best eighteen-hole score each week qualifies. On October 3 those who have qualified during the season will compete for the trophy in a special eighteen-hole play handicap.

There has been a revulsion of feeling against team matches at Glen Ridge, as these interclub affairs have been responsible for too much congestion. Consequently there will be no team matches. It has also been decided to keep the present nine-hole course as it is, instead of enlarging it, as was contemplated a short time ago. Enough additional hazards will be made to make the course more exacting and in every way a better test of golf.

Concert Next Month.

A concert which promises to be an event in the musical season of Plainfield, will be given at the Y. M. C. A. Hall on Thursday, May 14th, when The Lansing-Daland-Kent Trio will give an interesting program. Miss Mary Lansing, contralto; Miss May Daland, pianiste; Harold Kent, baritone. Announcement of the patronesses of the concert will be made at a later date, but it is known that the "400" of Plainfield will be well represented.

The vested choir of the First M. E. church, under the direction of J. Edmund Skiff, organist, will render a special program of Easter music Sunday morning and evening. The Sunday-school will hold exercises in the afternoon.

OBITUARY.

John H. Mandigo.

John H. Mandigo, who had been in the service of The New York Sun for thirty-three years, and its sporting editor since the 80's, died yesterday at his home in Brooklyn, after a short illness. He was considered a leading authority on sports and is said to have decided more questions relative to sports than any other newspaper man. He became an expert baseball reporter and was the first man to write what is known as a technical story of a game on the diamond. Mr. Mandigo had many acquaintances here. Thomas H. Keller, formerly of this city, was his warm, personal friend, the two often attending together sporting events of national prominence.

Richard Kuber.

Richard Kuber, aged seventy-six years, died this morning at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Otto Moor, of West Third street. He had been in failing health for some time. The funeral arrangements have not been made.

FLEMINGTON WOMAN'S BURNS MAY PROVE FATAL.

Flemington, April 16.—Mrs. J. Willard Everitt was horribly burned late yesterday afternoon. While burning some brush in the garden the back of her dress caught fire. Her cries for assistance were heard by two women occupying a portion of the same residence.

Portions of her clothing were torn from her body, and other wearing apparel was wrapped about her, in an effort to put out the flames. She was burned about her body.

Dr. George Henry did everything possible to ease her sufferings, but no hope is entertained for her recovery.

SAYS "INDICT POLICE."

If They Have Been Winking at Violation of Excise Law.

Judge Booraem yesterday at New Brunswick instructed the Grand Jury to indict members of the police force if it finds that the force has been winking at liquor violations in New Brunswick, and to also inquire if anyone has influenced the police not to make excise arrests.

Chief Harding in reply to this insinuation claims that the police have made many excise arrests, but that nothing has ever come of the trials.

Amboy's Oldest House Being Razed.

The oldest house in Perth Amboy is being torn down in spite of protests from a number of prominent citizens who would have liked to see the old landmark remain. The structure was erected in the sixteenth century, and has been known as the old Keene house. Recently it was purchased by Forrest L. Smith, who decided the property would be more valuable if the house was removed.

Appointment by Popular Vote.

Governor Fort yesterday signed Senate bill 291, which authorizes the election of a president of the board of aldermen in second-class cities when approved by popular vote. The measure affects Bayonne. Another measure signed by the Governor is House bill 347, which authorizes the appointment of a special officer in counties having a population of from 40,000 to 80,000.

GOOD FRIDAY OBSERVED

Solemn Services at the Episcopal and Roman Catholic Churches.

THREE HOURS OF DEVOTION.

Union Services Tonight at the Crescent Avenue Church—Banks and Schools Closed.

The banks and public schools are closed as this is Good Friday. Union services will be held at the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church tonight as customary under the auspices of the local Protestant church. The service will begin at 7:45 o'clock. "The Sins that Cruicified Jesus" will be the theme, and while all of the pastors will have some part in the service, there will be four addresses as follows:

"The Sin of the Politician," Rev. Dr. C. E. Herring; "The Sin of the Society Man," Rev. Dr. J. S. Zelie; "The Sin of the Populace," Rev. C. L. Goodrich; "The Sin of the Church," Rev. Joseph O. McKelvey.

The hymns will be "Beneath the Cross of Jesus," "Alas and Did My Saviour Bleed," and "When I Survey the Wondrous Cross." Before the offertory there will be silent prayer; "The Gloria" will be rendered at the opening of the service and after the reading of the lesson, an anthem will be rendered by the choir. The offering, as usual at this service, will be for the Children's Home.

The usual Good Friday services were held in the local Episcopal and Catholic churches this morning. During the early hours there was a general suspension of secular work on the part of church-going people and the edifices were thronged with worshippers who took part in the solemn and impressive services.

At the Church of the Holy Cross there was morning prayer and ante-communion service at 9:30 o'clock. This was followed by a young people's service, while the principal service of the day was from noon until 3 o'clock with the full vested choir in attendance. Rev. G. A. Warner was in charge.

The five services at Grace church include the ante-communion at 7:30 o'clock this morning, followed by a children's service at 9 o'clock. At 11 o'clock there was morning prayer, litany and sermon by the rector, Rev. E. Vicars Stevenson, while the meditation on the Passion continued from the noon hour until 3 o'clock. The principal service at the Church of the Heavenly Rest was held at 10 o'clock with an altar service and an address by the rector.

The service of the pro-Anaphora was held at St. Stephen's church at 10 o'clock, and the Passion service began at noon, lasting until 3 o'clock. Rev. A. S. Peck, rector, was in charge.

The services at St. Mary's church began at 8 o'clock this morning and the devotion in honor of the "Seven Last Words," continued from the noon hour until 3 o'clock. Father Bogan spoke on the last words of the Saviour and the choir sang, without organ accompaniment. Similar services were held at St. Joseph's church, this morning, in charge of Rev. W. H. Miller, the rector.

DEATH OF FRED TOWNSEND.

Passed Away at His Father's Home Early This Morning.

Fred Townsend, son of John E. and the late Margaret Townsend, died early this morning at his father's home on Richmond street, following an illness from a complication of ailments. He was in his thirtieth year and had been a resident of Plainfield practically all his life. He was clerk for E. M. Laing for a long time while the latter was in business on Park avenue, but of late had been employed in New York. He is survived by his father, a stepmother, two sisters and a brother.

The funeral will be held at his father's home Sunday afternoon at 2:30 and will be conducted by Rev. A. S. Peck, rector of St. Stephen's church.

Funeral of Patrick Moran.

The funeral of Patrick Moran, who died at his home on West Fourth street, Tuesday night, was held in St. Mary's church this morning. According to the Catholic custom of no requiem mass on Good Friday a burial service was conducted by Father Sciola and mass will be said later. Interment was made in St. Mary's cemetery, the following acting as pall bearers: William O'Connor, of Newark; John Kelley, Thomas Hyland, Henty Lutz and Thomas McCue.

Mrs. Charles M. Dolliver and daughter, Florence A., of Fairview avenue, are visiting Mrs. Dolliver's parents in New York.

FREEHOLDERS' VISIT HERE

Union County Board Decides to Improve Terrill Road After an Inspection.

MAJOR KING'S STATEMENT.

Director Says that Union County Will Be Ready for Realty Boom When Tunnels Are Built.

All of the members of the Union County Board of Freeholders, with the exception of William H. Swain, together with County Engineers F. J. Hubbard and J. L. Bauer and County Road Inspector J. W. Fink, inspected Terrill road yesterday afternoon for the purpose of seeing what should be done toward improving that thoroughfare. Following the inspection, which was made by the party in automobiles, luncheon was served at the Maplewood Hotel. During the repast, J. E. Martine made a speech.

Major Benjamin A. King, director of the Board of Freeholders, announced the intention to improve most of the county roads. The plan is to form a connecting link between Plainfield and Rahway, the idea being to extend Terrill road in Plainfield through Fanwood, Westfield, Clark Township and thence to Rahway. It has been suggested that the Somerset County Freeholders take up the other end of Terrill road and extend it into the centre of Somerset county.

Owing to the fact that the road appropriations have been made it will be impossible for the county to receive State funds for the improvement of the thoroughfare as named this year. There is a plan being considered, however, for the freeholders to undertake the proposition in anticipation of receiving State aid later on.

Speaking on the subject, Major King said:

"In a word, we want to be ready for the development which will strike this part of the State when the new tunnels and bridges and other plans for realty advancement take tangible form'.'

Mr. King went on to explain that a main source of income through which it is hoped to make their increased expenditures on improvement is from the benefits of the new Frelinghuysen automobile law. By the provision of this law, framed especially to help Union county, the apportionment of funds from auto licenses, fines, etc., is distributed on a basis of county built roads. As Union county has built nearly all its roads without State aid, it has heretofore been cut off entirely in this assistance. The act is designed to enrich Union county this year by about $5,000.

These freeholders were in the party yesterday:

Major Benjamin A. King, director; E. K. Adams, Thomas J. Pierson, J. Logan Fay, Robert C. Maurer, John Robinson, Henry Krouse, Elston Darby, Bradford Jones, S. P. T. Wilbur, J. Hervey Doane, George B. Cladek, John H. Stephan, Peter H. Meisel, John N. Cady, Noah Woodruff, Charles A. Smith and Joseph Perry. They all appreciated the hospitality of the Plainfielders who furnished the automobiles for the trip. This was arranged for by H. W. Marshall, president of the Board of Trade, assisted by David T. Kenney, who kindly loaned his big touring car for the occasion.

Little Miss Leary's Party.

Catherine Leary, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jerome Leary, of the Hotel Iroquois, celebrated the third anniversary of her birthday, yesterday, and in the afternoon a party was given in her honor. The affair was arranged by Mrs. Leary and a number of Miss Leary's young friends were present to enjoy the festivities and congratulate her. Among the guests was her cousin, Miss Edith Marie Vogel, of New York. The young people played games and enjoyed a repast. A feature of the affair was the reading of an original poem, "Our Autumn Girl," dedicated to Miss Leary. Each guest was presented with a copy. The young celebrant received a number of gifts.

Dr. Strong to Speak Here.

Dr. Josiah Strong, author, editor and lecturer, founder and president of The American Institute of Social Service and of The Museum of Safety Devices and Industrial Hygiene, will speak at the Y. M. C. A. Sunday afternoon. His topic will be "The Religion for the Times in Which We Live." Charles L. Lewis, baritone soloist, will sing. Dr. Strong's books, including "Our Country," "Expansion," "The Times and Young Men" and "The Challenge of the City," entitle him to rank as an authority on the interpretation of facts concerning the world's progress.

Russell Lawrence, the schoolboy champion, hung up new records in two events, the shot put and the standing broadjump. He competed without a handicap and broke the association record in the broad jump by 2¼ inches, clearing 9 feet 7¾ inches. In competition as a shot-putter, Lawrence boosted the 12-pound weight 50 feet 3 inches, which established a new Y. M. C. A. record.

TROUBLE AGAIN AMONG MT. OLIVE BAPTISTS

By mutual consent the pastoral relations of Rev. M. A. Alexander with the Mt. Olive Baptist church, have been dissolved and hereafter Mr. Alexander will conduct Sunday services in Reform Hall, while the church will take steps to obtain another pastor.

The change which is now in effect, is the result of a dissatisfaction on the part of pastor and people extending over a period of several months. In a report presented to the church last November by the board of deacons it is declared that "many of the members of the church claim that the deacons insisted on forcing them to keep and maintain a man who is in no sense capable of the pastoral work of the church from the fact of lack of intelligence and from a physical standing."

The report then goes on to say that after a review of the facts a conference with the pastor was held and he was requested to resign, the church offering to pay him less salary with the understanding that he would preach at one Sunday service. The resignation was to take effect in three months. After a long discussion Mr. Alexander refused the offer.

The deacons then declared that after being called cowards, deceitful and many hard names, called a meeting and again submitted the offer to Mr. Alexander. Again refusing the deacons decided to bring the matter before the whole church. As a result the pastoral relations were severed and Mr. Alexander today declared that he is no longer the pastor of the church, but that he would hereafter conduct services every Sunday at Reform Hall. In the opinion of the members of the Mt. Olive Baptist church there has been a steady decline in membership and interest and the action of the deacons is considered essential for the welfare of the church.

Old Guard Band to Play.

Van Baar's Old Guard Band will furnish the music for the younger society set dance at the Casino, Monday night. This will be the first time that a military band has been engaged to furnish music for a society function in Plainfield and it is sure to lend additional charm to the affair. Miss Eleanor Waring is the chairman of the committee of ten in charge of the arrangements.

COUNTY TO BUILD BRIDGE

Somerset County Freeholders Grant Petition of North Plainfield Council.

RESULTS OF CONFERENCE HERE

Board Met With Borough Officials Yesterday and Favorably Considered Road Improvements Petition.

As a result of yesterday's conference between the Somerset County Freeholders and the borough officials, the county board is to build a concrete bridge on Somerset street at Greenbrook road, and will probably take action favorable to North Plainfield in the matter of macadamizing and maintaining Greenbrook road to the borough limits and the extension of Watchung avenue to Somerset street. The board will hold its next regular meeting May 14 and at that time will decide upon the matter of the two roads.

The conference yesterday showed the county and borough officials to be on the best of terms, and there seems to be a desire on the part of the Freeholders to grant the petitions of the North Plainfield Council. Yesterday's meeting was attended by all but two members of the Board of Freeholders and they came to North Plainfield in company with their counsel, John A. Freck, and County Engineer Joshua Doughty, Jr. They were received at the Council chamber by Mayor Samuel Townsend and Corporation Sounsel Charles A. Reed. With the borough officials were B. R. Waldron, of the North Plainfield street committee, A. I. Smalley and W. L. Smalley, Jr., as property owners on Greenbrook road, and George Bird, who owns property which will be affected by the extension of Watchung avenue.

At the council chamber Mayor Townsend spoke of a feeling on the part of North Plainfielders that it is impossible to get anything from the county for local improvements. He said that he did not take this antagonistic stand against the Freeholders, and that the Council had framed its petitions with the expectation of action by the Board and a square deal. He mentioned the fact that this is the first time that the borough has asked for any road improvements at the expense of the county, and urged that this be all the more of an instigation to the Freeholders to grant the requests of the North Plainfield government.

Along similar lines was the speech of Corporation Counsel to the Board. He took the tax bills for his text and showed that the borough has been annually turning over large sums of money on the county tax and has as yet received no tangible benefits. "Last year," Mr. Reed said, "we raised $25,800 here in the borough for our local needs. We spent it in the maintainance of our street, fire and police departments, and we have something to show for our money. We also raised $20,364 for county tax money last year. We have nothing to show for that." He concluded by urging the Board to consider favoribly the petitions for the bridge and road maintainance.

At the conclusion of the session in the Council chamber, the Freeholders and boroughites were driven in four carriages to the Somerset street bridge, where the county engineer made a careful inspection. As a result, it was announced that the new concrete bridge petitioned for would be erected at the expense of the county and that work would be started at once. The party next drove over Greenbrook road to the western limits of the borough and later went over Watchung avenue and discussed the petitioned extension of that road to Somerset street. At the conclusion of their long drive, they adjourned to Blatz's Hotel for lunch, and after a short business session, at which routine matters were disposed of, they formally adjourned.

Although no official statement of the proposed action of the Board about roads was made yesterday, Mayor Townsend said today that he believed that the Board looked favorably upon the petitions. The Freeholders insist that the formal petition for road improvements, as made by the North Plainfield Council, include a clause providing that the borough pay 10 per cent of the cost of the proposed improvements. The boroughites will incorporate this clause in their petition.

Richard Auber's Funeral.

NORTH AVE. MERCHANTS PETITION CITY FATHERS

The property-owners and merchants on North avenue have signed a petition to be presented to the Common Council urging that either a new pavement be laid on that thoroughfare or that the present pavement be oiled to eliminate the dust nuisance The petition was circulated yesterday and within a short time practically everyone on the avenue had signed it It is intended to present the petition to the Council at the regular May meeting.

Ever since the contract for the brick pavement was awarded the merchants and property-owners on North avenue have been making efforts to have that thoroughfare improved. By some it was considered a mistake that North avenue was omitted from those streets to be paved with brick. At the time the matter was being discussed by the city fathers, representative merchants and a committee from the Board of Trade appeared before that body and urged that a permanent pavement be laid in North avenue The Councilmen did not feel warranted in making the extra expenditure, it is said, but if sufficient pressure is now brought to bear it is believed the city fathers will be willing to give the residents on North avenue the relief they ask for and either lay a new pavement or try the oil as a prevention from dust.

"WORMWOOD" TONIGHT AT PLAINFIELD THEATRE.

The Imperial Stock Company continues to please large attendance at the Plainfield theatre, and tonight's offering is a dramatization of Marie Corelli's well known story, "Wormwood, or the Absinthe Drinkers of Paris." This should prove an attractive bill to a great many persons who have read the book, but have never had an opportunity to witness it as a production, and the attendance promises to be more than ordinarily good. The play follows the story closely, and there are many remarkable scenes and situations depicted. The specialties will be a feature as usual, and Moore, the handcuff man and entertainer, will demonstrate how easy it is to escape from a regulation strait jacket. He will perform this feat in full view of the audience.

The matinee tomorrow will be the beautiful five act domestic drama, "A Wife's Broken Heart," and "Deserted at the Altar" will be the final play tomorrow night. The presents to be given away tomorrow afternoon are now in the windows on exhibition.

Mass Meeting Was Postponed.

The colored Republican voters of Plainfield did not hold their mass meeting in Reform Hall last night as announced. The leaders decided to postpone it until a more definite form of organization is effected. Last night's speakers were to have been Former Minister Powell of Hayti and Lawyer Spragin, of Jersey City. An executive session of the club leaders was held at the home of William Kline, Wednesday night, when several minor details were discussed and plans for the next campaign were presented.

Salvation Army Notes.

A commemorative service of song will be held in the Salvation Army Hall tonight at 8 o'clock conducted by Captain and Mrs. Hopkins and Captain L. Larkin. Tomorrow night Staff Captain Dodd, who has just recently returned from army service in Japan, will give an interesting lecture entitled "What the Salvation Army is Doing in Japan." Next Sunday special Easter services will be conducted by Staff Captain Dodd and Ensign Hendricksen at 11 a. m. and 3:30 and 8 p. m.

UNION MEN QUIT WORK

Employment of Non-Union Masons at Dr. Corbusier's House Causes Trouble.

200 MEN ARE OUT ON STRIKE.

Galbraith's Shop Declared "Foul" and All Union Men Quit Where His Plumbers Are Employed.

As a result of the employment of non-union masons on the remodeling of the house at 612 Park avenue, recently purchased by Dr. Harold D. Corbusier, of Watchung avenue, union plumbers from D. J. Galbraith's shop have been ordered off the job, and a delay in the enforcement of this order by Mr. Galbraith has caused his shop to be declared "foul." At a meeting of the conference committee held Wednesday night, union men were ordered to quit work at all jobs where Galbraith's men are employed, and nearly 200 union artisans are now out on a sympathetic strike Galbraith's entire force of fourteen plumbers has left his shop on strike, in accordance with last night's ruling of their union.

The labor trouble was caused by Dr. Corbusier's ignorance of the rules of the trade unions. He employed Leland and Thompson as his mason contractors on the Park avenue house, where union plumbers were already at work. The employees of Leland and Thompson are not union men, for the firm's application for membership of the union was turned down at a recent meeting of the Master Builders. A law of the union provides that no union men shall be employed on a job where there are non-union men at work, and Mr. Galbraith was ordered to withdraw his men from the Park avenue job. He did so last week, but they went back to work pending action by the conference committee of the masters and union associations. This action resulted in Galbraith's shop being declared "foul" by the union.

The strike is merely another chapter in the fight being waged by the Master Builders' Organization against Leland and Thompson. Mr. Thompson said today that he will continue the fight to the very end, declaring that he had not had fair treatment from the Masters Builders in the matter of his application for membership, made six months ago.

HOT CROSS BUN DAY.

It's Proper to Eat Them Today, Good Friday, Until Next Wednesday.

Thousands of hot cross buns will be eaten in Plainfield today for it is Good Friday. Where originally they were eaten by a few people of two or three religious denominations, they may now be called non-sectarian. It is the popular Good Friday dish.

The sale of them begins about three weeks ahead of time, and they will continue to be eaten until the Wednesday following Easter, when the season is over.

There is nothing special about the buns, which are made in the ordinary simple way, with the cross on each one, which gives them a general appearance of being upholstered. They are thickly powdered with sugar.

A Birthday Surprise.

Miss Emily Pilger, of New street, was given a surprise party yesterday afternoon in honor of her birthday. The affair was planned by her mother and Miss Hall and was enjoyed by a dozen of her young friends. The hours from 4 until 6 o'clock were pleasantly spent in playing games and listening to music and phonograph selections, after which refreshments were served. Miss Emily received a number of appropriate presents. Those present were Grace Hall, Mildred Preiner, Adelaide Cole, Wilhelmina Endress, Catherine Endress, Evelyn Meeker, Genevieve Salley, Lillian Schleif, Madeline Blimm, Alice Auten, Master Howard Hall and Norman Pilger.

Violate Excise Law.

City Attorney James C. Connolly, of Elizabeth, at a meeting of the Excise Board yesterday afternoon declared: "It is a well-known fact that the Bishops' law is being violated at will in this city while being rigidly observed in Newark."

BASEBALL.

The Somerville fans will hold a meeting tonight when plans for the coming season will be discussed. The county seat boys will have a team all right and it will be a good one. Rogert Conklin is behind the movement and he is chock full of enthusiasm over the prospects.

The chances for seeing contests between Plainfield and Somerville are brightening and if this is accomplished the fans will witness some of the old-time rivalry.

High Bridge is also getting anxious to join the circuit and as soon as Somerville decides upon its plans a meeting will be called to arrange a schedule of games among teams representing Plainfield, Somerville, High Bridge and Flemington.

The New York Americans generally win their opening game.

Capt. Tad Jones of Yale is banging out one or two hits in every game he plays.

About 125,000 persons saw the seven opening games in the National and American leagues.

Oldring is not well and Connie Mack may send Moran to centre field until the Rube is fit again.

"Mathewson as good as ever," is the general verdict. That will make a shudder chase down the spine of Commander Chance.

Topsy Hartsel is sporting a pair of black eyes, the result of being hit on the nose by a pitched ball in practice before last Tuesday's game.

Tim Jordan made the first home run of the big league season. He made his in the second inning, while Cobb made his in the eighth and Delehanty in the ninth.

John Kelly, a National League baseball player in the '80s, died at his home in Paterson, Wednesday. He ended professionally as catcher of a Cincinnati team in 1884.

Fielder Jones, the White Sox leader, says the new rules prescribing a sacrifice hit on a fly that scores a man from third base will result in batters making sacrifice hits when they are not wanted.

Ty Cobb started off at a rapid pace with the stick, making three hits in the first game. Other big leaguers who clouted safely three times in their first game were Kleinow, Rossman and Evers.

To all appearances the new rule preventing pitchers soiling a new ball was not all right. If the pitchers controlling the new fashioned dull finish ball they did not show it. Still, one day isn't a test.

"Kleinow's lucky hit is the way the New Yorker's two bagger in the twelfth inning is described in Philadelphia. It was as clean a hit as ever was made and would have been good for two bases and probably three under any other circumstance. Smith of the Athletics, however, made an unlucky hit. His two bagger would have been at least a three bagger but for the ground rule.

GOLF.

A point raised by club handicappers, who send in their ratings for the official lists, is whether a golfer who plays his home links better than other courses should be given more strokes by the handicap committee than he receives at his home club.

The answer that generally follows a question of this kind is that the player should be handicapped on what he does on his home course. The fact that a golfer cannot play a strange course as well as his own links is his fault, and is taken as evidence that he needs only experience on the foreign course to play down to his handicap. There are many cases where a golfer will make a better round over a strange course than over one with which he is familiar, for not being aware of difficulties, he will escape them. This is especially so on a well bunkered links.

There may be a few exceptional cases among low handicap men who are good on their own links and yet could not fairly be given so honorable a rating as at home on the association lists. The low handicap men on the lists have to be judged specially in relation to each other. The association handicappers cannot get an absolutely accurate list, but they get as near to it as they can.

Although almost alone in his contention that putting with one hand is the proper thing, Harold Hilton, former open and amateur champion of Great Britain, persists in this style. During the amateur championship tournament at St. Andrews the bulk of the criticism among players and spectators was unfavorable. It is generally conceded that delicacy of touch and accuracy of direction are the two essential features of good putting, and it is argued in favor of the one-hand style that it gets rid of the constant defect of using both hands by taking away the dragging, pulling power often unconsciously applied to the club by the left hand.

In discussing the subject a foreign critic says, in part: "The reason may be obvious enough to the majority of players, but, inasmuch as the one-handed system has not been imitated by a large number of players, it would seem that the general body of golfers would rather linger in the paths of error and be orthodox in style than expose themselves as targets for the shafts of ridicule."

An opportunity will be afforded soon to get something of a line on the relative strength of the Princeton and Columbia golf teams. The latter played its first team match of the season yesterday over the links of the Dyker Meadow Golf Club, while tomorrow the collegians will try their luck at the Forest Hill Field Club. On the same day the Princeton team will play a match at the Nassau Country Club.

Additional tournament dates of importance have been arranged over Boston way. The Brae Burn Country Club course has been selected for the annual championship tournament of the Women's Golf Association of Boston, May 25 to 28, which is the same week selected for the championship of the Women's Metropolitan Golf Association at the Essex Country Club. The amateur championship of the Massachusetts State Golf Association will be held at the Wollaston Golf Club, June 17 to 20.

ELKS' EXCURSION TO DALLAS.

Arrangements have been completed by a committee of Newark Lodge, No. 21, of the Benevolent Protective Order of Elks, for an excursion to Dallas, Tex., during the session of the grand lodge, which meets July 12. An itinerary has been mavped out which will afford an extensive sightseeing tour, starting Friday, July 10, and lasting until July 19. The committee in charge of the affair consists of John J. Burke, chairman; Robert J. Boettner, treasurer; George Guenther, William Pressendorfer and Exalted Ruler Richard P. Rooney.

REMARKABLE RECORD MADE IN NORTHWEST

Young Man with New Theory Is Astonishingly Successful in Minneapolis.

The remarkable success that has attended L. T. Cooper during the past year has not been confined to any one locality, but is so widespread that the young man is now a well-known figure in most of the leading cities of the country.

Mr. Cooper believes that the stomach is the foundation for most ill health, and claims that his preparation, by regulating the stomach, is a true specific for most diseases. The following extract from the Tribune of Minneapolis gives an idea of the surprising number of people who are accepting Cooper's theory. The article was one of many that appeared during Cooper's stay in Minneapolis, and is as follows:

"The sale of Cooper's preparation is now phenomenal in this city, and an estimate made today seems to indicate beyond all doubt that it will equal the large figures reported from Pittsburg during the thirty days Mr. Cooper spent in that city.

"During the past twenty-two days Mr. Cooper has been in Minneapolis, the sale of his preparation has averaged about two thousand bottles a day. When the amount of medicine disposed of throughout the state is added to this, the amount will be doubled. Therefore, the young man has sold in twenty-two days eighty-eight thousand bottles of his medicine in the state of Minnesota alone, which is a truly remarkable record.

"During the past week so many hundreds of Minneapolis people have been calling to thank Cooper for the good he has accomplished with his medicine, that it is safe to say that his visit will long be remembered by the sick of the city."

We sell the famous Cooper preparation which has made a similar record to the above wherever introduced.
—T. S. Armstrong.

Mapl-Flake Day

At Your Grocer's

To let you know Mapl-Flake, we are going to give you tomorrow a Full-Size Package FREE. Not a mere sample, as in former years, but a week's supply. We want this food itself to show your whole family how superior it is to any food that you know. The expense is enormous, of course, but Mapl-Flake itself will do more to convince you than anything we could say.

Big 15-Cent Package FREE

Mapl-Flake is the finest breakfast dish in the world. There is nothing else to compare with it.

It is made of whole wheat—white Washington wheat.

The highest grade of the one grain that contains all the needed food elements, perfectly balanced.

It is prepared by a process requiring 96 hours. Yet flaked foods can be made in one-fifth of that time.

The wheat is first scoured. Then steam cooked for six hours. Then thoroughly cured.

Then each separate berry is flaked so thin that the full heat of our ovens can attack every particle.

Then the flakes are baked at 400 degrees.

The result is a food that's all food, because it all digests.

The granules of starch are so separated that the digestive juices can get to them.

No shorter process will do that. Any grain insufficiently cooked is only partly digestible.

Mapl-Flake is the only food cooked in pure Vermont Maple Syrup.

That exquisite flavor, found only in Mapl-Flake, is due to this fact.

Children like maple sugar better than anything else that is good for them. That is why we employ it.

For this is the children's food—the food that is best for them. So we make it enticing.

Try it tomorrow—at our expense. Then ask the children which food to get next.

Every family that reads this paper is entitled to one of these packages. It would be unjust to yourself not to get it.

Get it in any of the following ways:

Take this coupon to your grocer.

Send the servants or children. Or telephone your grocer, and give this coupon to the delivery boy.

Any grocer will accept this coupon—within six days—for a 15-cent package of fresh Mapl-Flake. Cut out the coupon now.

A Truly Ancient Wasp.

Professor T. D. A. Cockerell, of the University of Colorado, describes a well-preserved specimen of a wasp, belonging to the genus Paratiphia, found in the shale rocks of Miocene time at Florissant, Col., which exhibits a peculiar venation of the wings, exactly as it appears in the same genus today. The most striking peculiarity is a characteristic imperfect vein in the wing, which persists in the same insect at the present time.

An Ancient Exposition.

Perhaps the first industrial exposition on record was held in 1569 in the rathhaus of Nuremberg. A catalogue published at the time thus states the purpose of the exposition: "It shall bring before the public all innovations in the trade of the whole world in modern times, together with domestic art productions."

Not Visible.

"Have you any visible means of support?" asked the policeman sternly.

"Me? Yes, sah, I sure has. As a wash lady mah wife is out of sight."

"Then she's not visible," rejoined the policeman, and the march to the patrol box began.—Kansas City Independent.

William Edwin Vail.

A RISING YOUNG ARTIST

William Edwin Vail, Native Plainfielder, Has Had Interesting Stage Career.

PLAYING HERE THIS WEEK.

One of Three Brothers Who Entered the Theatrical Profession in This City Twelve Years Ago.

The Himmelein Stock Company, which has been appearing this week at the New Plainfield theatre, has been drawing large audiences because of strong dramatic offerings and the fact that the leading member of the organization is William Edwin Vail, a native of this city and a local resident until he began his stage career. Although he has been in the profession for twelve years, the present engagement is only the second time that he has had an opportunity to display his talent in his home town and he has easily established himself as a finished actor. He is still in his early twenties but his work would reflect credit on thespians twice his age.

Mr. Vail is a son of the late Frank Vail, who is well remembered by Plainfielders, and is one of three brothers who took to the stage twelve years ago. The other two are Frank, the eldest of the three, and Bertram, the youngest. William, who is known professionally as Edwin, and Frank, when little more than boys joined the John Kennedy Players while they were filling a week's engagement at Music Hall They finished the season as song and dance artists and acting minor roles, after which they separated. Since then William has been with numerous well known companies and has traveled the length and breadth of the country several times.

Leaving the Kennedy players, William became a member of Corse Payton's stock company at the Lee Avenue theatre in Brooklyn, and remained a year. The next two seasons he traveled with Jacob Litt's "In Old Kentucky" and after that played "Tony," the Mexican lead in "Arizona." Since then he has been with Mrs. Spooner's Brooklyn Stock company, Aubrey Mittenthal's Aubrey Stock and three seasons on tour with Pierce Kingsley's "Deserted at the Altar," leaving the company in order to join the Himmelein Stock. Next year the young man will branch out as a manager and under the firm name of Hoyt and Vail, will place two companies of the Knickerbocker Stock in the repertoire field, one appearing in the East and the other the Middle West.

Frank Vail, the elder brother, has also had a varied career but has devoted most of his time with Dustin Farnum's "Virginian," a production that is well known to local people. At the present time he is with the Harder Hall Stock which opens at St. John's, New Brunswick, next Monday night, for an eight weeks tour of the Canadian provinces Bertram, the remaining brother, closed an engagement with the Dot Hall Stock two weeks ago and is now living with his mother in Brooklyn.

While in the West a few years ago, William was introduced to Miss Genevieve Winden, a young society woman of Madison, Wis., and a relative of Senator La Follette. A close friendship was the result and shortly afterward she became Mrs. Vail. She is at present in Madison where she acts as dramatic critic for the Wisconsin State Journal.

The repertoire of the Himmelein Stock includes Marie Corelli's stirring production Mr. Vail has one of his best parts. It will be the attraction at the theatre tonight and it will afford Plainfielders a good opportunity to note his histronic ability.

THE FORUM.

Profanity.

Editor, The Daily Press:

Is there any protection in Plainfield against profanity in the public streets?

Passing up Park avenue a few days since, I could not help hearing two negro men blaspheming terribly, and again a few days later I heard another of the same race using profane language in Watchung avenue.

I would not have subjected the ladies of my family to hearing such profanity upon any consideration, and I know you would feel the same in regard to the ladies of your family.

I talked this morning to a very decent policeman who said he never heard the profanity in the streets of Plainfield.

I am afraid that there is a good deal going on that the average policeman neither sees nor hears.

ENDS LIFE BY HANGING AT AGE OF SEVENTY

Hanging by his neck from a rafter of his barn, former Freeholder William P. Smith, seventy years old, of Glen Gardner, was found late yesterday afternoon by a member of his family.

Mr. Smith was was a carpenter by trade. He was born in England, and came to this country when he was a small boy. A little over fifty years ago he married Miss Worman, daughter of the late Wilson Worman, and sister of Township Committeeman W. T. Worman. Mr. Smith purchased a small farm near the Spruce Run church, where he had since resided, and where he conducted a distillery, making apple whiskey on a large scale for a number of years.

By a mistake on the part of one of his employes the government stamps were not placed upon the barrels of whisky, and revenue inspectors being notified, Smith was arrested and heavily fined. This so preyed upon him that his mind became unbalanced. He has three sons living, Elsworth and Winfield Smith, of Washington, N. J., and Joseph Smith, of Plainfield.

BODY ON GRAVE'S BRINK TAKEN FOR AUTOPSY.

Morristown, April 17.—The body of Mrs. William C. Brown, colored, who was found dead in bed in her home on Water street, last Saturday, was not buried yesterday.

After Coroner Bliss Coultas, who is a practising physician, had looked into the case and granted a burial permit, he was informed of several things suggesting possible foul play in connection with the woman's death, the allegations coming to him just previous to the intended interment Tuesday.

He had the funeral stopped at the grave after the burial service had been read. The body was then removed to Hughson's morgue and an autopsy made under the supervision of Dr. Clifford Mills. It was found that there were no reasons for suspecting foul play, and that Mrs. Brown's death occurred from fatty degeneration of the heart, as originally certified by the coroner.

MILLIONAIRES AS OFFICIALS.

Asbury Park, April 17.—Six millionaires have promised to take active part in the annual field meet of the Y. M. C. A. of Monmouth county, to be held in Asbury Park Saturday, May 16. Lewis S. Thompson, of Brookdale Farms, will be the official starter. Melvin A. Rice will act as chairman of the judges, the others being Charles Donahue, well known in connection with the Long Branch Horse Show; Walter Pattern and Howard and Bertram Borden. Robert J. Collier will act as clerk of the course. The medals are donaed by Lewis Thompson.

They are of solid gold, silver and bronze. They are sixty-six in all. John Flanagan, the former champion hammer thrower, or Martin Sheridan, the champion all-around athlete, will act as referees.

THESE HENS ARE HUSTLERS.

High Bridge Man Says Nine Fowls Produced 628 Eggs in Four Months.

High Bridge, April 17.—An egg-producing record has been established by nine hens belonging to N. H. Apgar, Railroad avenue, this place, who claims the fowls have produced 628 eggs in four months. The hens are of the White Wyandotte variety. Mr. Apgar began his record last December and has kept strict account of all eggs laid.

The record follows: December, 168; January, 174; February, 132, and March 154. The February and March records were made by eight and seven hens respectively, two having commenced hatching. The record was made during the winter months when eggs usually are scarce.

HER FACE WAS A TOWEL.

Some time ago a little West Philadelphia girl went to Tioga to spend the day with her aunt, and while they were seated in the den the family cat rambled in and began to wash herself with her paws after the manner of the feline species.

"Look, Bessie," said the aunt, pointing to the cat; "pussy is washing her face."

"No, she isnt," stoutly asserted little Bessie.

"Why, Bessie," returned the aunt in a surprised tone, "what is she doing then?"

"She is washing her feet and wiping them on her face," was the prompt reply of the youngster.—Philadelphia Telegraph.

BACK FROM SHOPPING TRIP, FINDS SUICIDE.

Elizabeth, April 17.—Despondent from being out of work, Bernard Donald, an old iron molder, killed himself yesterday by inhaling illuminating gas at his home, 534 Fulton street. His wife went to New York to do some shopping, and on her return found her husband dead.

Donald sat in a chair in the kitchen with a rubber tube in his mouth, the other end of which was attached to a gas jet. The suicide was fifty-eight years old and a member of the Iron Molders' Union of Elizabeth.

He was a member of Grace Episcopal church and leaves a widow and three children.

SHUMACHER, THE OHIO "OATMEAL KING," DEAD.

Akron, O., April 17.—Ferdinand Schumacher, known as the "Oatmeal King of America," from having founded the breakfast food business in this country, died unexpectedly at his home here last night. He was eighty-two years old on March 30 last. He retired from business in 1899, after having been president of the American Cereal Company, now the Quaker Oats Company. He came to America from Hanover, Germany, in 1850, and settled on a farm near Cleveland, but later embarked in the grocery trade, and in 1856 he began the manufacture of oatmeal in this city and a small scale. The business grew until several large mills were erected and later were destroyed by fire.

Schumacher was also prominent as being an original Prohibitionist. He gave large sums for educational and charitable purposes.

ADDRESSED NOTE TO DEITY.

Italian Arrested for Stealing a Ham Wrote that He Was Starving.

Bayonne, April 17.—Oravio Tanelurrino, who was arrested last night for the theft of a ham, was allowed to go free by Recorder Hymann Lazarus when he said that the reason he took the ham was the fact that he was starving. The recorder also gave him twenty-five cents and the man started for New York, where he had friends.

In his cell last night Tanelurrino write in Italian a postal card, which be addressed "To the Redeemer, Streets of Paradise."

On the postal he confessed to the Deity the theft of the ham and added: "I did not steal maliciously, but because I needed it. I have not eaten anything in ten days. I wish I could have died the moment I was doing this."

P.H.S. WINS LOOSE GAME

Upsala College Lost in Ninth Inning by the Score of 21 to 17.

THE SEASON'S POOREST GAME.

Local Nine Made Thirteen Errors at Kenilworth but Kept Up Their Unbroken Winning Streak.

Heavy hitting in the ninth inning at Kenilworth yesterday gave the Plainfield High School team six runs against Upsala College and enabled the local nine to score another uphill victory. The final score was 21-17, and if the game could be called baseball, it was nothing for either team to brag about.

Upsala College is a Swedish institution situated in the foothills of the Rahway Valley railroad. The baseball diamond is laid out on a hillside, and was used for a cornfield last year. Deep centre field is a young swamp, filled with natural hazards in the shape of corn hills. The Upsalians have a small knowledge of the rules of the game, but support a strong debating club. The umpire is a candidate for the chair of Optical Science at the college, but will never make good.

"Despite the fact that they were outweighed thirty pounds to the man," the local nine hammered in five runs in the opening session, causing the retirement of Daniel Danberg from the slab. He was succeeded by Jacob Jacobson. Now Jake had lots of speed, and the umpire had good control, the new pitcher was a success. The third was a painful session for Plainfield, for the ball got caraming around the cornhills and the big collegians scored five runs. Murphey took Van Zandt's place in the box after that. Again in the eighth, Upsala cleaned up five runs and when the High School came to bat for the last time, the score was 17-15 in favor of the college. Some bases on balls by Jake, a two-bagger by Dodwell and a single by Doane gave the victory to Plainfield.

The local boys made thirteen errors, and the college boys ten. The Swedes did the best work with the stick, hitting safely twelve times, while P. H. S. got eleven hits. Features of the game were the nineteen debates with the umpire. The rah-rah boys nearly won the game by their cheering, for the Plainfielders were afraid of being hit with a ragged Swedish consonant and they huddled over on one side of the diamond during the yells. The painful story follows:

THOMAS JEFFERSON, OF THE FIFTH GENERATION, IN "RIP VAN WINKLE"

JOSEPH JEFFERSON
SECOND OF THE GENERATION OF JEFFERSONS

JOSEPH JEFFERSON
FOURTH IN THE FAMILY LINE OF ACTORS

The JEFFERSON FAMILY of ACTORS

The announcement that Thomas Jefferson is to appear at the New Plainfield theatre next Monday afternoon and night has led to much discussion of this family of famous actors and the following interesting history of the five generations is apropos:

Thomas Jefferson, a young man of eighteen, rode to London in 1746, on one of his father's farm horses, and there met David Garrick, the greatest actor of his time. Jefferson was the wit of Ripton, Yorkshire, and it was there that he first made the acquaintance of Garrick. He was struck with the genius of Jefferson and proposed his going on the stage with him, which he accepted. This made the foundation of the Jefferson family of actors. Jefferson died in 1807. His family consisted of wife and two sons; the youngest became a minister, and the elder, Joseph Jefferson the Second, an actor. He was born in 1774. Having some difficulty with his father's second wife, he left England and came to America, arriving in 1797. Joseph Jefferson found lodging in New York, with a Mrs. Fortune. She had two daughters, one Euphemis, who became the young comedian's wife. The other married William Waren, the father of the celebrated and much beloved comedian of the Boston Museum. This is where these two talented families of actors became related. His second son, Joseph Jefferson the Third, was born 1804. He inherited his father's talent for drawing and painting. He married Miss Cornelis Frances Thomas, who was the reigning singer of America at that time. She had four children, two of them died in infancy; the other two were Joseph Jefferson the Fourth and Cornelia Jefferson.

Joseph Jefferson the Fourth hardly needs an introduction as he has become known all over the world as the actor of his time. Few artists have played as many parts and none ever lived that held the public hearts with so firm a grasp. He was born in Philadelphia, February 20, 1829, and at the early stage of three years, made his debut. One might fill many pages with the analysis of Mr. Jefferson's impersonations; they have so many times been described that it will not be hard for those of another generation to get some idea of his powers. The present generation will remember him chiefly as the creator of "Rip Van Winkle," "Bob Acres," "Caleb Plummer," "Mr. Golightly," and "Dr. Pangloss." Eleven years ago Jefferson was taken ill at the Fifth Avenue theatre, New York. He conceived the idea that it would give his son, Thomas, an opportunity to display his talents, and allotted him the part of Rip Van Winkle. On the night of the first performance all were eager to see this young actor in the part his father had made famous throughout the world. They came, they saw, and young Jefferson conquered; the mantle of his father had fallen on him and dear old Rip would live in the son and be handed down to generations as it has been for over forty years.

Thomas, we will note as Jefferson the Fifth! He was born in New York, September 10, 1857. In early boyhood he was sent to London and afterwards to Paris to be educated. After adopting the stage he made his first appearance at Edinburg and continued in England playing a number of parts. He afterwards returned to Paris and played in French. On his returned to the United States, he was engaged by Lester Wallac kto join his company. This young man has played a great many parts with such stars as the elder Jefferson, Booth, Barrett, Neilson, Wallack, Davenport, Mrs. Drew, W. J. Florence, John Gilbert, Viola Allen and many others. With all this experience and his love for his profession he hopes to keep up the name made famous by his illustrious father and ancestors.

With the cast of "The Little Trooper," which comes to the New Plainfield theatre Wednesday night, showing such well known names as Alma Hearn, William Blaisdell, Charles Dungan, John Dudley, Pearl Evans, Oliver Holden, Edith Beswyn, Josephine Atkinson, Irene Le Roy, and L. and Albert Sykes, and a promise of abnormal development in the beauty column of the show girls, much is to be expected. The stage settings from the studio of Joseph

Physioc are said to be especially handsome, and the costumes furnished by the Orange Company rich and harmonious in color.

In view of the fact that playgoers of this neighborhood are to get their first chance to see the great New York city and Chicago hit, "The Man of the Hour," in the New Plainfield theatre Tuesday night, April 28, it is interesting to recall some of the things said about the play by distinguished persons who have seen it in the course of its long New York city run or who saw it while it was in its sixteen-weeks' season in the Illinois theatre, Chicago, throughout last summer. Senator La Follette—"A play that ought to be seen by every man with a vote and by every woman who feels pride in having her husband, brother or sweetheart do his duty!" Bronson Howard—"A play that means something to everybody called American." William Archer (the famous London dramatic critic)—"Strong, forceful, and true, and a play that ranks among the best ever written."

N. Y. AMUSEMENTS.

Charles Frohman has acquired the English speaking rights of "Le Bouteen-Train," now running at the Athenee theatre, Paris.

During the New Orleans engagement of John Drew in "My Wife" last week, the local newspapers frequently reported the weather to be "as nice as Billie Burke."

A rare treat will be accorded the patrons of the Grand Opera House, during the week commencing Monday, April 20, when Cohan & Harris will present for the first time at prevailing prices, Victor Moore in Geo. M. Cohan's gigantic musical success, "The Talk of New York." Victor Moore as "Kid Burns" has in one season, jumped from comparative obscurity to the position of one of America's greatest stars. The "Talk of New York," replete with catchy music, comely maidens, and Cohanesque situations, is now on Broadway, where for the past twenty (20) weeks delighted audiences have packed the theatre. Immediately prior to the Broadway engagement, it played to capacity for twelve weeks in one of Chicago's largest playhouses. "The Talk of New York" is in four acts and as much care has been paid to the scenic effects and costuming as characterized all of the other Cohan successes. Seats now on sale.

Margaret Dale, who is declared by Acton Davies and other competent judges to have builded permanently for her future by her splendid performance of "Bessie Brayton," in support of William H. Crane in "Father and the Boys," is, oddly enough, neither the daughter of a Confederate general, the graduate of a convent, the victim of an automobile accident, nor the subject of the latest diamond robbery. These deficiences have always limited the scope of Miss Dale's achievements. They have prevented her from being anything more than an excellent actress on the stage by separating her from the large army of those who are content with being fine actresses off the stage.

The twenty-third week of Augustus Thomas' drama, "The Witching Hour," still finds it firmly intrenched at the Hackett theatre, New York, where it is doing capacity business. It is unanimously considered among those who liberally patronize the theatres that this play is unquestionably the biggest success seen in New York in many years. One strong feature of its drawing power is that it appeals to all classes. Inasmuch as it combines theatrical entertainment with mental divertisement, it is just the sort of play that makes the friends after witnessing a performance encourage others to attend. The comedy element is so piquant, and its humor so irresistable that it supplies a much needed relief to the tired business man jaded after a hard day's work. The usual Thursday and Saturday matinees are liberally patronized by out of town residents, and for the special convenience of the suburbanites who will be in New York on Easter Monday, April 20, an extra matinee will be given on that date.

A commentator on matters musical recently wanted to know through the columns of a newspaper if Franz Lehar had copied the wonderfully melodious "Merry Widow" waltz, which is the big hit at the New Amsterdam theatre show of that name, from an air of Mendelssohn's oratorio of "St. Paul." He asks: "Is the 'Merry Widow' waltz only a skillfully concealed 'appropriation' from Mendelssohn, dead these sixty years?" A vaudeville performer and her husband, an orchestra leader, have made affidavits that the "Merry Widow" waltz is practically identical with the music of the waltz of the opera "Le Paradis de Mohemet" composed by M. Robert Palinquet, a French composer, dead these many years. It is a pity that Messrs. Mendelssohn and Palinquet are dead else we might put it up to them. Under the circumstances, however, it seems but meet to leave the discussion to the dead composers' respective champions—the commentator and the vaudevillian. Until these two have arrived at a common decision, it seems hardly necessary to call Herr Lehar to the stand.

JOURNALISTIC OPINIONS

MARTINE IS A CANDIDATE.

For the first time in many a year, if not for the first time in his history, James E. Martine announces himself as a candidate. The unbroken record hitherto, so far as it can be recalled at the present time, has been strictly of the Cincinnatus order. Mr. Martine has been called by his party again and again and again; and when defeat overtook him and his party had no further use for him he returned to his plow. Never was he a voluntary candidate, and never was he elected, and in this latter respect Mr. Martine and Cincinnatus parted company.

But this time "Farmer Orator" Martine announces himself a candidate. He says he sincerely believes "that the nomination of William J. Bryan as Presidential candidate is the toilers' and breadwinners' hope and our country's salvation," and to aid in saving the nation and to realize the toilers' and bread winners' hope, Mr. Martine declares himself a candidate for Democratic delegate-at-large to the national convention at Denver, that he may help to nominate his personal friend, William J. Bryan.

This will precipitate more or less of a fight in Union county as well as in the State. General Collins, one of the Democratic leaders, is opposed to both Martine and Bryan, and in truth the State is divided over this issue. It is a fact unique in political history that an individual citizen, such as Mr. Bryan is, should be so strong a candidate for President that hi opponents in his own party are compelled ti arganize in order to prevent him from carrying away the nomination.

Hitherto political party organizations have been utilized to boom certain men, but this year many Democratic organizations, though unable thus far to agree upon any other candidate, are agreed to defeat Bryan if possible. Mr. Martine's announcement, therefore, has much more than ordinary signficance. In the coming Democratic State convention the fiercest fighting may be on the very ground whereon James E Martine stands.—Newark News.

STAR PERSONALITIES.

Lord Rasleigh (John William Strutt) has been elected lord chancellor of Cambridge University in succession to the late Duke of Devonshire.

The French Minister of Justice has appointed M. Silvain, a well-known French actor, of the Comedie Francaise, to teach young lawyers how to use their natural gifts to the best advantage.

David S. Rose, who has just been elected mayor of Milwaukee by a plurality of 3,000, has four times before held that office. He was elected four times in succession as a Democrat, and met defeat two years ago by the present mayor, Sherburn M. Becker.

Rt. Hon. John Morley, according to an announcement in the London Daily News, while retaining the office of Secretary for India, will accept a peerage, his reason being declining health and a throat affection that makes the strain of the work in the House of Commons too great.

One of the most brilliant students of the second yard class at Barnard College is a blind girl, Miss Margaret Hogan, an orphan, of Greenville, this State. She is the first sightless co-ed of the fair sex that Columbia University has ever had, although the university boasts of two blind young men students.

TALES OF CITIES.

New York city has the third largest German population of any city in the world, only Berlin and Hamburg being ahead of it.

Philadelphia is talking about celebrating the two hundred and twenty-fifth anniversary of her founding next October, and Mayor Reyburn recommends that the old home week idea be adopted.

A town that doesn't owe a cent, has not had a debt for twenty-five years, but has money invested; where the tax rate is only $18.20 on $1,000 and where practically the entire commitment, over $16,000, is collected within the year, it is assessed—that is Warren, Me.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Prayer Meeting Topic For the Week Beginning April 19, 1908.

By REV. S. H. DOYLE.

Topic.—Sunday, our weekly Easter, and how to observe it.—John xx. 1-10; 19-23; Rev. i, 10.

When Easter Sabbath comes we are always reminded that Christ arose from the dead upon the Sabbath, but throughout the rest of the year we fail to remember that every Sabbath is a memorial of Christ's resurrection. But it is. In the Old Testament the seventh day was the Sabbath day, but in the New Testament it was changed from the seventh day to the first in honor of the fact that on that day our Lord rose from the dead. The seventh day is no longer mentioned as the Sabbath day. The apostles met on the first day of the week, and they speak of the Sabbath as "the first day" and "the Lord's day." John says, "I was in the Spirit on the Lord's day." There is no question but what the change was made and that today the first day of the week is the Sabbath, so that every Sabbath day is Easter Sabbath so far as the commemoration of Christ's resurrection is concerned.

It is well to remember this tremendous fact. It may help us to attach more importance to the Sabbath and inspire us to honor it and keep it holy in a higher and truer sense than we now do. This is "a consummation devoutly to be wished." There is a great increase in the desecration of the Sabbath day. The enemies of Christianity disregard it, denounce it and try in every way to break it down. Moreover, the professed followers of Christ are more and more disregarding the Sabbath. This should not be so. Man needs the Sabbath. For the best interest of body, mind and soul he needs one day out of seven "to be in the Spirit" and to rest from worldly cares and recreations. The man who disregards the Sabbath is his own enemy, shortening his life here and risking the loss of his soul in the life to come.

But how are we to observe the Sabbath? God has told us. (1) We are to rest. This resting is not loafing or pleasure seeking or visiting. Body and mind are to rest from usual cares that attention may be paid to the soul. (2) We are to honor the Sabbath. The man who truly honors it will find the proper way to keep it holy. God through His word and Spirit will reveal to him what to do and what not to do. "Remember the Sabbath day and keep it holy."

caster, Canton, Akron, Cleveland and Carey. He has been eminently successful in revival work, and his services have been in demand in many fields as an evangelist. He is president of his conference union of Christian Endeavor in the United Evangelical church and is secretary of the mission board of his conference.

President Harpster is the busy and successful pastor of the United Evangelical church at Carey. He is one of the leaders in his conference and denomination. For many years he has been one of Ohio's most active and interested vice presidents.

Busy Men and Christian Endeavor.

The other night when the rain was pouring torrents an editor met President Copeland of the Massachusetts union on a train. He had been speaking for a local union. "When will you reach home?" he was asked. "About 1 o'clock in the morning," was the answer. "How often do you make such trips?" "About once a week." That is a sample of the splendid consecration that busy men are making for Christian Endeavor.

Prayer of

Strive, and ever it profits more
To fight and fall than on time's dull shore
To sit and idle ever.
For to him who bares his arm to the strife,
Firm at his post in the battle of life,
The victory faileth never.
Therefore in faith and prayer
Abide thou and endeavor.

WISETTES.

Penniless men are at least bunko proof.

If love is blind how can there be love at first sight?

May heaven help the rich; the poor have no automobiles.

It's easy for a millionaire to preach the virtues of poverty.

A joke always needs explaining when it turns on its author.

Wise is the man who can correct a mistake before he makes it.

Many a man's so-called independence is nothing but contrariness.

Some men wouldn't take advice if it were offered to them in capsules.

Things of no cash value are generally the ones that are prized for association.

A real kind-hearted man couldn't enjoy heaven if his horse was tied outside.

Diogenes wasn't honest enough to tell us he couldn't get a smokeless wick for his lantern.

If we are everlastingly fidgeting to get people to see we are right we don't see we are ourselves.

Would-be reasoners ought to remember that a premise, an assumption and a proclamation don't constitute a syllogism.—Exchange.

GOLDEN THOUGHTS.

Fear—the consequence of wickedness.

It is easy to appreciate the points of a sermon when they are sticking the other fellow.

Many would speedily reach the heavenly haven if progress could be secured by blowing their own sails.

Receive no satisfaction for premeditated impertinence; forget it, but keep him inexorably at a distance who offered it.

The sweetest music is not in the oratorio, but in the human voice when it speaks from its instant life tones of tenderness, truth and courage.

The desire of power in excess caused the angels to fall; the desire of knowledge in excess caused man to fall; but in charity there is no excess.

Hope is the sweetest friend that ever kept a distressed soul company; it beguiles the tediousness of the way and all the miseries of your pilgrimage.—Woman's Life.

SAITH THE OWL.

After putting up a bluff a man is apt to stumble over it.

Many a man's early training has kept him from making good.

Gray matter is all right in its place—and so is the long green.

You can't always judge a man's worth by the size of the pay envelope.

Love may make the world go round, but matrimony gives it a flat-wheel motion.

Even the man who carries chips on both shoulders doesn't necessarily walk upright.

THOUGHTS.

To marry with only love in the bank is the height of folly.

Love may be a very beautiful thing, but you cannot live on it. The baker would not give you a loaf of bread for a carload of love.

The idea seems to prevail with many young men and young women that the discussion of monetary matters spoils the true romance and sentiment of courtship. Of one thing they may be quite sure. The happiness of the marriage will be irrevocably spoiled if they do not understand their financial position.—Amy Van Worden Spencer.

WAYSIDE PHILOSOPHY.

Lots of folks fly high and fall hard without the aid of an airship.

The world was made for all, and it won't do for a few to try to fence it in.

Hope sings such a sweet song that we trust her when we know she is deceiving us.

We seldom stop to think that when we are spending money we are also spending time.

DO YOU EVER THINK—

That good looks are often marred by an expression that betrays a disagreeable temper?

That people who think only of pleasing themselves should not be surprised when they find very few people care to please them?

That though it is said "love is blind," it is not safe to trust to its blindness to the extent of neglecting to dress as becomingly as possible?

Ingram forestalled any reply from the financier by entering with the tidings that Thompson was in the anteroom with an important message for Wainwright.

"May I see him in here?" asked the visitor. "It is my private secretary, and"—

"Certainly," asserted Bennett. "Show him in, Ingram."

"I'd like to see a private secretary of mine come buttin' in like this," confided Phelan to the picture. "I'd chase him so far he'd discover a new street. I'd"—

The alderman broke off short. His eye had fallen on Thompson as the latter entered. Phelan stood rigid, with mouth open and eyes bulging, taking in every detail of the quiet, pallid young man's appearance. The secretary meanwhile had gone up to Wainwright and begun to deliver his message.

"Mr. Horrigan called you up, sir," said he, "just a minute or so after you left the office. He wishes you to come and see him immediately if possible."

"All right," answered the financier, "I'll come at once. I'm sorry, your honor, that I am called away just now, for I'd like to discuss this Borough bill further with you. But what I wished to express can be said in a nutshell. If I, who own the rival road, am in favor of granting the Borough franchise, I can't see why any one else should object to it. Come on, Thompson. Good day, your honor. Good day, alderman."

The financier passed out. Thompson was following when Phelan, who had never once removed his eyes from the secretary, stepped in front of him.

"Well, young man!" said he.

"Well, sir!" said Thompson in mild surprise.

"You remember me?"

"I don't think so, sir."

"Huh! That's queer! I'm Alderman Phelan of the Eighth."

"I've read about you, of course, sir, but I"—

"But you don't know me? Never met me before?"

"I'm sorry, sir, but I can't recall it if I did. Good day, sir."

The secretary hurried out after his employer. Phelan, with a puzzled shake of the head, seemed trying to solve some elusive problem. But Bennett, who had not noted the brief scene between Thompson and the alderman, broke in on the latter's musings with the remark:

"You appeared to be amazed at Mr. Wainwright's attitude toward the Borough Street railway franchise."

"'Amazed' is a mild, gentle word for my feeling," declared the alderman. "To hear that old flint heart prattlin' about widows and orphans and fair play—why, say, your honor, I know Charles Wainwright from way back, and I tell you he has the same affection for the money of widows and orphans that a tomcat has for a canary. As for fair play, he wouldn't recognize it if he was to hear it through a megaphone. He's up to something! I don't know just what. But I'll"—

"Come, come!" remonstrated Bennett good humoredly. "I'm sure you do Wainwright an injustice. He"—

"He's a fine old bird! Do you chance to remember the Garrison case nine years back? President Garrison of the Israel Putnam Trust company"—

"Who shot himself after being ruined by a financier who was his dearest friend? Yes. What has that to do with"—

"With Wainwright? Oh, nothin' much. Only Wainwright happened to be the financier."

"No! You must be mistaken."

"Am I? I ought to know something about it. I was the chief of police at the time and handled the case. It was I who suppressed Wainwright's name. For a small consideration I"—

"Wainwright!" gasped Bennett. "Of all men! But"—

"So you see why I coppered the 'mercy' and 'fair play' cards when he dealt 'em just now," purred Phelan. "There's something big behind this talk of his in favor of the Borough bill. Wasn't it at his house last summer that Horrigan offered you the nomination? That's the story, and"—

"Yes. On the 25th of July. He"—

"The 25th of July, hey? That was the day he had me out there. The day I met that fellow Gibbs. By the way, your honor, the papers say it's Gibbs' firm that's buyin' all that Borough stock. They've been buyin' it up on the quiet for months. I begin to see a lot of funny little lights that make this thing clearer. Gibbs is buyin' Borough stock. He's Wainwright's chum. Horrigan and Wainwright frame up your nomination; then the minute you come into power this Borough franchise bill is flashed on you by Horrigan, and Wainwright begs you to sign it. Take my tip—Wainwright owns the Borough road as well the City Surface, and Horrigan's gettin' a fat wad of stock for arrangin' the franchise. Oh, they've got your honor all tied up in ribbons, like you was a measly bookay. You and me ought to get together and fight this thing out side by side, and when once I get the Indian sign on Dick Horrigan"—

"But I've no personal quarrel with Horrigan. He"—

"You've got the same quarrel with him that the pigeon had with the muskrat. If you don't use your wings you'll be swallowed. Let me put you on to a few of the little jokers in that bill of his. You see"—

"I see more about that bill than you think," interposed Bennett. "I've worked over it night after night, with my lawyer. Don't you get the idea I've been asleep just because I haven't been making any premature disturbance."

He held out his hand, and Bennett gripped it cordially.

"I think," observed Phelan slowly, "I think I'm beginnin' to get a new line on you and understand you better. If it's any joy to you to know it, Jimmy Phelan says, 'You're all right!'"

He held out his hand, and Bennett gripped it cordially.

"I'm glad we had this talk, alderman," said he. "We are fighting from different points of view, but our main object is the same. I think we can pull together on this matter."

"We sure can!" agreed Phelan. "An' as for Horrigan, when I'm done with him he'll be rolled up in a nice bundle, an' I'll print on it in big letters, 'Use all the hooks you like.'"

"Mrs. Bennett, sir," said Ingram.

"I thought you was single!" exclaimed Phelan.

"It's my mother. Show her in."

From the musty antechamber came the rustle of feminine attire, and Mrs. Bennett came in. Devoted as he was to his mother, Alwyn now had no eyes for her, for over her shoulder he had caught a glimpse of another face.

CHAPTER V.

"DALLAS!" cried Bennett, oblivious of his surroundings—of everything except that the girl he had so long missed and who had inspired him to all he had achieved—that she was standing before him.

It was Dallas herself who brought him to a sense of the other's presence, for as he sprang forward to meet her and eagerly grasped both her outstretched hands the girl bowed in mock reverence and answered his ardent greeting with a demure:

"Good afternoon, your honor!"

"Don't!" he begged half in jest. "It's so good to see you again that I"—

"I sent word that I had a surprise for you, Alwyn," interrupted his mother. "I knew it would please you. But," with a glance at the alderman, "you're busy? Perhaps we"—

"Not at all, mother. May I present Alderman Phelan? Miss Wainwright, this is"—

"Alderman Phelan of the Eighth," amended the politician, thoroughly ill at ease in the presence of the visitors. "I must be goin' now, your honor. I"—

But Dallas had come forward with a smile that melted the speaker's embarrassment in an instant.

"The Alderman Phelan who gives turkeys to all those poor people at Christmas?" she asked in genuine interest. "I've often read about"—

"The same, ma'am, at your service," assented the delighted Phelan. "I fill 'em with turkey an' coal in winter an' I take their wives an' kids on outings in summer. Ever been to one of the James Q. Phelan outings, miss?"

"No," replied Dallas, with a perfectly grave face. "I'm sorry to say I haven't. Tell me about them, won't you?"

"They've got to be seen to be understood. A thousand poor tired wives an' white faced, spindly kids turned out into the country for the only glimpse of green grass an' shady trees they ever get all year. A thousand mothers an' children out in a cool grove with nothing to do but roll around the soft grass an' play an' eat all the fancy grub they can hold. Maybe, miss, it wouldn't mean a lot to you, but if you'd been workin' an' livin' an' sleepin' an' starvin' for twelve months in a stuffy, dark, smelly back tenement room, toilin' like a slave to keep food an' clothes betwixt the kids an' starvation, an' was barely able to keep body an' soul together—well, maybe then you'd understand what them outings an' turkey fests an' loads of coal means to the poor. And they won't turn down Jimmy Phelan at Horrigan's orders,"

"I had a surprise for you, Alwyn," interrupted his mother.

"I do understand," cried Dallas, her big eyes bright with tears. "I understand, and, in behalf of all women and children, I thank you with my whole heart!"

"You're all right, miss," muttered the delighted, embarrassed Phelan, at once at a loss for words. "You're—you're all right! I'll leave it to his honor if"—

"Indeed she is!" broke in a suave voice at whose sound the little spell of sentiment was broken and which caused Phelan and Bennett to turn in annoyance toward the door.

Scott Gibbs, bland, well groomed, quite ignoring the other men's lack of welcome, stood bowing on the threshold.

"Oh, I forgot to tell you, Alwyn," whispered Mrs. Bennett in a hurried aside to her son as the latter summoned up sufficient civility to greet the newcomer. "I forgot to tell you. Mr. Gibbs was calling on Dallas when I stopped for her, and he asked leave to come along. I'm sorry, but"—

"How are you, Bennett?" Gibbs was saying. "And—Mr. Phelan, too, isn't it? Alderman, I'm glad to see you again. You remember me? Scott Gibbs? I met"—

"Yes," said Phelan, "I remember you, all right. You was up to Wainwright's last summer—that day me an' Horrigan sent the dove of peace screechin' up a tree. I didn't know you visited the city hall too."

"I don't, as a rule," answered Gibbs. "I came here with Mrs. Bennett and Miss Wainwright. I wanted a glimpse of the man who can make one pen stroke that will send Borough Street railway stock up to 100 or down to 10."

"Do you mean," broke in Dallas, "that Mr. Bennett can really have such an effect on the stock market?"

"That and more," Gibbs assured her. "Why, the mere rumor that he meant to veto the Borough's franchise bill has sent the stock tumbling eight points since the market opened today."

"What power for one man!" exclaimed the girl, turning to Bennett in surprise. "And are you going to veto it?"

"Office secrets," reproved Alwyn jestingly. "Hands off!"

"Veto it?" echoed Gibbs, with a laugh. "Of course he isn't. It would be too hard upon his friends—unfair and unkind, to say the least."

"But why?" queried Dallas, forestalling Alwyn, who was about to speak.

"Because," cut in Gibbs before Bennett could interfere, "the men who are backing the Borough bill are the men who made him mayor. It wouldn't be square for him to turn his new power against the very men who gave him that power. Now, would it?"

"By 'the men who are backing the bill' whom do you mean?" asked Bennett.

"Oh, I just spoke in generalities. As a matter of fact, the break in the price today was lucky for those who wanted to buy."

QUITS DUTCH REFORMED TO JOIN PRESBYTERIANS

Rev. Dr. Daniel H. Martin, pastor of the Clinton Avenue Reformed church, Newark, has accepted a call to the Presbyterian church of Glens Falls. He will begin his work there Sunday, May 17. He will take the place left vacant by the resignation of Rev. John R. Mackay, who resigned recently to become pastor of the North Presbyterian church, New York city.

Dr. Martin yesterday declined to make any statement about the Glens Falls call. He announced several days ago that he had decided on his future plans, and would announce them next Sunday. He will sever his relations with the Clinton Avenue Reformed church Sunday, May 3. The pastoral relations were formally dissolved at the spring meeting of the Newark Classis yesterday.

Dr. Martin's resignation contained this statement:

"Three considerations have led me to my conclusion. One is the health of some of my family, to whom a change might prove beneficial. The second is my personal need of more leisure for the pursuit of certain lines of study than can be afforded in so extensive a parish, where the conscientious attention to numberless details of administration exhausts the limits of time and strength. For many months I have felt that if the Master should open a door into a less exacting field where I could serve to the very top of my ability and yet have larger margins of time for my special studies, I would consider it an indication of the divine will. More than one such door has opened recently."

COWS LEAD TO ASSAULT CASE.

Dover, April 17.—Harry Snyder, who is in charge of United States Senator John Kean's farm at Lower Longwood, was arraigned before Justice of the Peace John W. Young here yesterday on a charge of assault and battery and the use of abusive and profance language, preferred by Albert H. Fichter, of Longwood, Jefferson Township. Snyder waived a hearing and was held in $200 bail for the May term of court. Bond for his apeparance was given by Richard Conlan.

Fichter told Young that Snyder had made an unprovoked attack on him when he went to the Kean farm to get five of his cattle which had gotten out of his meadow lot. In addition to knocking him down, Snyder, Fichter charged, used abusive and profane language toward his wife.

Fishter said that Snyder telephoned to him that five of his cows had trespassed on the Kean property and were being held at the barn. Fichter replied that he would go after them. As it was about three miles from the Fichter farm to the Kean place, Fichter says that he hitched up and took his wife with him to return with the wagon while he drove the cows. As soon as he arrived, he said, Snyder became abusive and threatening and struck him in the face. Fichter's face bore ample evidence that something had struck him. He had to leave without his cows and Snyder still has possession of them.

E. D. Neighbor, who appeared as counsel for Fichter, asked Snyder whether he was holding the cows on his own account or for Senator Kean and he replied that he was "doing it for Mr. Kean."

OYSTERS KILL COUPLE.

One of Two of Their Surviving Children Dying.

Mrs. Rose Bendt, whose husband, Ferdinand Bendt, a prominent florist of Newark, died in that city last Saturday from typhoid fever, the result of eating infected oysters, died yesterday of the same disease contracted in a like manner. She died in ignorance of her husband's death. Her daughter, Dora, 13 years old, is also in a dying condition from the disease, and knows nothing of the death of her parents.

Of the family of four, Nellie Bendt, 8 years old, was the only one that did not partake of the oysters that brought on the fever. She was sent to the home of a friend yesterday, after the double funeral of her mother and father had been held in the afternoon. Dora and Nellie, if the former lives, will be the sole inheritors of their father's large florist business and real estate holdings, which are considerable.

HIS CHICKEN BROOD JUST LIKE A RAINBOW.

Owner Wanted Red, White and Blue Hen—Animated Easter Novelties the Result.

Joseph L. Meehan, of Elizabeth, displays in his window a hen and fourteen vari-colored chickens. The chicks are green, purple, lavender, red, maroon and cerise. Mr. Meehan said that the chicks were not barnyard accidents, but were the fruit of efforts on his part to produce by careful breeding a patriotic hen, combining in its feathers the three colors—red, white and blue.

"I believe it can be done," asserted the chicken fancier, "and I will warrant that no dye is used in the attempt."

Mr. Meehan was deeply offended when asked if the real purpose of his experiments had not been to educate his fowl up to the point of laying pre-colored Easter eggs.

REPUBLICANS MAY REDUCE REPRESENTATION.

After long discussion, the Republican County Executive Committee, at a meeting held Tuesday at headquarters in the Dix building, Elizabeth, decided to recommend to the County Committee that the representation of the county at the State convention be lessened to the extent that the lowest unit sending a delegate be a ward, town or township. This action was in accordance with the suggestion of the State Committee.

The reason given by the State Committee in making the request was that at previous conventions it has been found awkward to handle so large a number of delegates as it has been the custom for the county to send. The change will eliminate fractional votes.

NEARLY TRAMPLED TO DEATH.

Summit Coachman Has Hard Task Getting Horse Out of Burning Barn.

Summit, April 17.—In attempting to get a horse out of a burning barn, on the property of George W. Fuller, 160 Boulevard, Tuesday, Charles Brown, employed as a coachman by Mr. Fuller, narrowly escaped being trampled to death by the animal. When the blaze was discovered by Brown, he rushed into the stable and in the blinding smoke attempted to elad the horse from the burning structure. The animal reared and plunged and striking Brown with its fore feet, knocked him under the manger in the box stall.

The coachman, although almost overcome from the dense smoke, succeeded in getting a bag over the animal's head, and finally backed it out of the stable. It is said the barn was ignited by some burning leaves along the Lackawanna Railroad tracks.

PENNSYS WAR ON TRAMPS.

Thievery by Knights of Road Compels Concerted Action.

That the Pennsylvania Railroad lost $136,000 last year by thiefts by tramps is shown in figures just made public to show the seriousness of the problem the railroads of the country face in dealing with trespassers. This sum was paid out in 1907 in claims for losses traced to thefts.

The railroads of the country are about to take concerted action looking to an abatement of the tramp nuisance, and it is to be one of the important matters to be taken up at the next annual joint meeting of the State Railroad Commissions.

The New York and Chicago and Chicago Railroad Manufacturers' Association has taken up the matter and an attempt is to be made to enlist the support of the authorities in suppressing the evil, in which, the railroads contend, lies the backbone of all vagrancy.

Governor Signs More Bills.

Among the bills signed by Governor Fort yesterday were Senate 313, which provides for the distribution to the schools of the State of the $2,500,000 main stem railroad tax of 1906, as provided by the Perkins act of that year; Assemblyman Burpo's anti-anarchist measure; Senator Frelinghuysen's, permitting fire insurance companies to insure against automobile accident losses.

To Test Sunday Baseball Rule.

The New Brunswick baseball club will test the right of the polict to stop its Sunday games next Sunday, when it has a date with the All-Hudsons, of New York. The police called off a game last Sunday. The club has retained State Senator George S. Silzer to fight the case if action is taken against the members for playing next Sunday.

Reduced Church Debt $112,000.

Sheppard, vicar-general of the Newark Diocese, it has just been announced, has reduced the church debt $112,000. In addition the congregation has raised $61,213 for church purposes.

OBSERVED GOOD FRIDAY

All Protestant Congregations United in Service Commemorating the Crucifixion.

ADDRESSES BY FOUR PASTORS.

Crescent Avenue Church is Filled by Congregation Representing Many Christian Denominations.

Representatives from the congregations of all the local churches united in worship and meditation at the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church last night on the occasion of the union Good Friday service, and the gathering was larger than on previous years, taxing the seating capacity of the main body of the edifice. The service was deeply impressive. Rev. J. W. Musson, pastor of Faith chapel, had charge, conducting a simple service of special form, in keeping with the sacred anniversary.

A feature of the service was the speaking by four local pastors, Rev. Charles E. Herring, of the Park Avenue Baptist church; Rev. John Sheridan Zelie, of the Crescent Avenue church; Rev. Charles L. Goodrich, of the Congregational church, and Rev. J. O. McKelvey, of Warren chapel. In place of the customary remarks on the seven last words of the cross, the general topic this year was "The Sins that Crucified Christ."

After the opening scripture sentences, said by Rev. J. W. Musson, the congregation joined in a general confession. This was followed by the Lord's Prayer and responsive reading from Isaiah LIII: The evening's lesson, from Matthew 27: 15-37, was then read by Rev. A. E. Finn, pastor of the Park Avenue Baptist church. Music was a feature of the service, including the rendition of several impressive Good Friday hymns. The offering amounted to $46, and will be given to the Children's Home.

In connection with the crucifixion, four sins were dealt with by the speakers. These were the sins of the politician, the society man, the populace and the church. Each of these was developed to show its bearing on present day Christianity as well as the religion of the times of Christ.

The Politician's Sin.

In his remarks upon the theme, "The Sin of the Politician," Rev. Dr. Charles E. Herring spoke at the outset of the wrong done by Pilate, the Roman governor. The speaker emphasized three sins, all of which, he pointed out, are wrongs of present day politicians. The first is the sin of irresolution, an indecision and indefiniteness of action. Pilate had a negative attitude, which was just as much a cause of Christ's crucifixion as His death sentence would have been. This sin exists today and is the cause of many mistakes in politics.

In the second place, Pilate sacrificed his principles and his conviction to the end of furthering his personal political ambition. The speaker drew a parallel of present day political life, where a man allows himself to be influenced in order to "stand in with his constituency." Pilate's third sin was the sin of his personal life, reckoning his power by his own misdeeds. He was the worst governor the Romans ever had, and was hated by the Jews, whose favor he tried to regain by his action in the case of Jesus. Dr. Herring pointed out that the political man of today puts himself in the power of his opponents by his actions in political life, which leave weakenness in his character utilized by his opponents in campaign time.

The Sin of the Society Man.

In dealing with his topic, Rev. John Sheridan Zelie stated at the outset that any man attempting to extend the work of Christ into difficult places in the city would find that a populace would again and again resist its own welfare by failing to realize its source of inspiration. The society man, his own personal friends and admirers, will stand aloof, and the sin of the society man is perhaps the hardest of all.

"But Christ could not go far in the world of today without meeting this man," continued the speaker. "Never before has what he call society life bulked so large in the life of man. It was never so powerful as today, where in many quarters it almost dominates the church itself. Once the corruption of the church came from its alliances with the state; today it springs from the alliances with society. There is nothing that leaves a man more jaded and listless for hearing the commands of Christ than this heated and excited struggle to shine and advance in the social world. Yet in it are thousands who once felt the claims of Christ.

"Men get into that world and, although in their hearts they believe in Christ, their life is so organized

REAL ESTATE MEN PLAN BIG BANQUET

With the advent of milder weather, the New Jersey real estate developer is desirous of displaying his wares. At a recent meeting of the Excange, in discussing the best methods of bringing to public notice the attractiveness of the different home settlements within commuting distance of the Metropolis, the scheme of automobile inspection trips by the Board of Governors was suggested and favorably received. The plan contemplates a series of weekly tours, each of which to embrace certain territory conveniently located for a day's trip.

The details of the banquet on April 25 in honor of the Hudson River Tunnel Builders are now practically completed. The diners will represent every section of New Jersey, and judging from the prominent standing of the subscribers, the gathering will be representative of New Jersey best citizenship. The special guests of honor are to be Governor Fort, President William G. McAdoo, Walter G. Oakman, Chief Engineer Charles M. Jacobs, Pliny Fisk and Wilbur C. Fisk and William M. Barnum. Among the invited speakers are ex-President Grover Cleveland, Professor Woodrow Wilson, president of Princeton University; Governor J. Franklin Fort, ex-U. S. Attornew General John W. Griggs, President of the Senate John W. Hillery, Judge James B. Dill, of the New Jersey Court of Appeals, Chancellor Eugene Stevenson, and Hamilton W. Mabie, editor of the Outlook.

POSTOFFICE FLOODED WITH THE EASTER CARDS.

The Easter postal card craze has made the postoffice lots of work yesterday and today. Twenty-five thousand one-cent postage stamps, for use on Easter postals, were sold at the local office yesterday, and the line at the stamp window was a long one today. The mails, both out-going and in-coming, are heavier than they were even on St. Valentine's Day.

The picture postal fad is here to stay, it would seem, to judge by the sales in this city. Daintly colored cards, bearing Easter verses, or pictures of rabbits, eggs and Easter chicks are being purchased in large quantities at the local shops, where the postal card trade is reported as growing especially heavy for the Easter season.

Christian Endeavor Notes.

On Thursday evening, April 30, at 8 o'clock in the Trinity Reformed church, Senator Ernest R. Ackerman will deliver one of his popular stereopticon lectures on his travels abroad for the benefit of the Plainfield Christian Endeavor Union. The Endeavorers are planning for the State Christian Endeavor convention for Plainfield in 1909 and a silver offering will be taken at the lecture for the convention fund. The subject of Mr. Ackerman's lecture will be announced later. At the next Congress of the Christian Endeavor Union, which will be held on May 14, the state president of Christian Endeavor, J. T. Sproull, of Arlington, will give information in regard to the method of conducting State conventions. The next mass meeting will be held on May 28. The speaker will be A. Harry Moore, of Jersey City, the vice president of the State Christian Endeavor Union.

Guests at Biltmore.

Beside members of the family of Mr. and Mrs. A. D. Shepard, of "The Gables," Fanwood, and Mrs. Elliott F. Shepard, of New York, who have gone to Biltmore, N. C., for the festivities attendant on the wedding on Thursday of Augustus D. Shepard, Jr., and Miss Marie E. Baxter Rees at All Souls' Church, Biltmore, are Mr. and Mrs. John Doull Miller, of this city; Miss Edith Smalley and Miss Georgianna H. Smith, of this city, and Mr. and Mrs. Pierre Mali, of New York, whose summer home is on East Front street.

Rheumatic Patient Recovering.

J. A. Wilson, of Grove street, who has been afflicted with rheumatism for the past two months, has been undergoing a special treatment of baths at Brookside sanitarium for the past few days. The treatment is under the supervision of Dr. Dundon and the complete recovery of the patient is looked for within a short time.

Arrested On Suspicion.

Patrick McCarthy, of 120 Ely street, Elizabeth, was arrested on suspicion by the police police last night. He proved to Judge Runyon's satisfaction this morning that his visit here was purely friendly and he was ordered released.

Women's Clubs Represented.

The Monday Afternoon Club and the Rasores Club, of this city, were represented at the conference of the Federated Women's Clubs of Union county held this week in Association Hall, Elizabeth.

PROPOSED FIRE HOUSE PLANS ARE INSPECTED

Councilman Robert E. Hall presented a set of plans for the proposed new fire house in the East End of the city, at a meeting of the Councilmanc Fire Committee, last night. They call for a two-story brick structure equipped with all modern conveniences. The members were much pleased with the plants, it is said, but some were of the opinion that if followed the cost of construction would be too great. It is estimated that it will cost between $12,000 and $15,000 to build the structure desired. The probable cost of the apparatus and other equipment has not been agreed upon. A report will be made at the May meeting of the Common Council.

The city recently purchased a site for the fire house on South avenue, adjoining the Netherwood station park. It faces the south and the location is considered ideal for the purpose desired. It is the hope of the committee to get matters in such shape that the building can be erected this summer.

NO SUNDAY ICE CREAM IN EAST ORANGE NOW

A storm of protest is brewing in East Orange over the provisions of a blue law ordinance passed early this week, prohibiting the sale or delivery of anything but the barest necessities of life on Sunday. The cutting off of Sunday ice cream is the chief objection to the law, and the citizens are getting up a monster petition to pursuade Mayor Cardwell to veto the measure. The local newspapers printed big advertisements yesterday asking for signers to the petition stating where copies of the document can be found. The advertisement reads:

"To residents of East Orange: Do you want ice cream on Sundays? If so, sign the petition against the ordinance recently passed by the Common Council, which is now in the Mayor's hands, and which prevents the delivery of ice cream on Sunday. Call in and sign it, and thus go on record as against this attempt at encroachment on personal liberty. Sign the petition."

NEW SWEET PEAS VARIETY BEARS GOVERNOR'S NAME.

In honor of Governor Fort, A. C. Zvolanck, the Greenbrook florist, has named a new variety of sweet peas that he is cultivating. Being a great admirer of the governor, he decided that either one of his two new varieties should bear his name and be registered officially as such. Accordingly he sent a large basket of the to Trenton, Charles Sebring, the president of the J. F. Fort Republican Club of Greenbrook, acting as the messenger.

In thanking the florist for the courtesy, Governor Fort wrote yesterday:

"The sweet peas which you sent me were duly received. They were certainly beautiful. Mrs. Fort enjoyed them greatly and wished me to return her thanks with my own for them. The bonch which we like the better was seedling No. 93, and I appreciate your thought in naming them after me. It is a beautiful and delicate recognition for which I am grateful."

VanWyck Property Sold.

The handsome residential property at Stelle and Plainfield avenues, formerly occupied by P. V. R. VanWyck, was sold yesterday to R. H. Hood, a wealthy retired New York merchant and he expects to take possession this summer. The property has a frontage of 250 feet on Stelle avenue, and extends back to Randolph road. Mr. Hood is delighted with his new home, the choice of which was made after visiting several other suburban towns in New Jersey. The consideration is not known, but it was a cash deal, Mr. Hood paying the entire amount to Charles H. Lyman, the broker, who negotiated the transaction for the owner. Mr. Hood is now making his home at the Hotel Savoy, New York. His new property here is one of the finest in the city.

Contracts For Hegeman Memorial.

Contracts for the construction of the Hegeman Memorial building to be erected at Muhlenberg Hospital have been awarded and ground was broken yesterday for the work. Tallamy Brothers have the mason work, C. W. Krausse the plumbing and Wyman & Haberle the carpenter work. The American Laundry Company, of Troy, has received the contract for supplying the entire laundry equipment, all of which is to be operated electrically. The estimated cost of the building complete is about $15,000.

W. S. ANGLEMAN'S VICTORY.

Twenty-Six Defendants In All In the Case—An Appeal Will Be Taken.

That Plainfield lawyers are among the leaders of the bar in the State and successfully present some of the hardest problems brought before the courts for decision has again been demonstrated in the victory for the defense won by Counsellor W. S. Angleman in the case brought by George W. Marsh, of North Plainfield, through his counsel, former Judge P. H. Gilhooly, of Elizabeth, against twenty-six defendants to foreclose a mortgage for $3,000 given by John K. Van Ness on certain property on East Front street in 1891 to the late John R. Marsh, of Scotch Plains.

The case has been pending in the Court of Chancery for many years, and the final argument was made over three years ago. Since then the case has been under consideration by the court, and this week a decision has been rendered by Vice-Chancellor Emery, allowing the defendants $1,500 in payments claimed to have been made on the mortgage but which were disputed.

The complainant made a hard fight on the allowance of any of the alleged payments on the mortgage, and in addition to the full oral argument made on the final hearing, Judge Gilhooly submitted a brief of thirty-seven pages to sustain his views of the case.

It is understood that the case will be taken to the Court of Errors and Appeals.

MASTER BUILDERS MAY DECLARE "OPEN SHOP"

Because of the sympathetic strike declared by the conference committee of the plumbers' union, involving nearly 200 men, the local Master Builders' Association is contemplating action to have the "open shop" in this city, unless prompt adjustment of the strike is made by the conference committee.

Speaking to a Daily Press reporter about the strike tody, an officer of the Master Builders' Association said: "We have always been in favor of the union, but consider this action unwarranted. We think they have no right to order a sympathetic strike on such slight provocation. If the conference committee, which ordered the strike, does not hold a meeting for adjustment within a few days, it is probable that we will have the "open shop" here, and employ any men whom we can get."

Work on the new St. Mary's College is now practically at a standstill. Sixteen carpenters, masons and plumbers were ordered off the job as the result of employment of non-union masons on Dr. Corbusier's house on Park avenue. There are no men working at the College today, except a few tile fitters. Union men of all building trades have been ordered off all jobs where Galbraith's men were employed, and as a result of this ruling by the union, 200 men are idle.

Charges Hackman with Assault.

Fred Harris, colored, who lives at the lower end of Central avenue, appeared before Judge Runyon today and preferred a charge of assault against Joseph Jarsons, a local hackman. He claims that he was dickering with Parsons to take him home at an early hour this morning and that the cabman became angered and struck him over the left eye with a whip. A warrant was issued for Parsons' arrest.

Summer Gardens.

The Charity Organization Society offers three prizes, $3, $2, and $1, for the best kept vegetable and flower gardens during the summer. On Tuesday morning, April 21, at 11 o'clock, packages to plant gardens can be obtained for five cents at the rooms, 544 West Front street.

Slight Fire In Brass Factory.

A still alarm was received at fire headquarters at 1:30 this afternoon for a slight blaze in the brass factory on Berckman street. Apparatus was sent to the place but the flames had been extinguished before its arrival. The fire was started by acid used in casting.

GOOD FRIDAY FATAL DAY FOR ELIZABETHAN

Donald Caswell, twenty years old, who lived with his parents in Elizabeth, was struck and fatally hurt by a train yesterday. On the same day and at the same hour one year ago Caswell was struck by another train at the same place, the Madison avenue crossing of the Central Railroad of New Jersey in Elizabeth. He died at the Alexian Hospital last night.

Caswell was mentally unbalanced owing to an injury of the head which he received as the result of the accident a year ago. The first accident occurred at noon on Good Friday, 1907, and the accident yesterday occurred a few minutes before 12 o'clock. How he came to be struck by the train yesterday it not known. There were no witnesses. An employee of the Consumers' Ice Company, whose plant is near the scene of the accident, found the young man lying unconscious alongside the track.

The sun may shine tomorrow, and the Easter parade in New York may be for the unalloyed delight of all, but, according to the Weather Bureau, it will be between showers if it so happens. "Showers and warmer" is the official prediction for this region.

"Generally fair" is promised for the rest of the country, except for possible showers in the Northwest.

New Brunswick, April 18.—Mrs. Viola Herman's suits against Policeman Christopher Hanson, for $5,000 damages for being ejected from a meeting of Mohawk Council, Degree of Pocahontas, at Perth Amboy, resulted in a disagreement of the jury yesterday morning, after it had been out over eighteen hours. Three of the jury voted for the woman and nine for the policeman. The lodge had ordered out the woman, who was a former member, and who claimed that she had been reinstated and had a right to the meeting as a visitor, and when she had refused to go the policeman was called and put her out.

AMUSEMENTS.

Easter week's program at Proctor's Newark theatre promises to be as bright and welcome as a proverbial Easter Morn. Vaudeville's greatest producer, Jesse L. Lasky, offering his latest sensation, "A Night on a House Boat," the scenic effects are especially pretentious for a vaudeville offering. Special novel music and comedy make this one of Mr. Lasky's best efforts. Williard Simms and company offer their side splitting sketch, "Flinders' Furnished Flat." Griff, one of England's best jestive jugglers, will appear here for the first time. Wynn and Lewis offer a lively conversational turn of up to date witticisms and parodies. Ferreros, the great French animal trainer, offers his wonderfully trained dog in a series of acrobatic feats that show a great amount of patience and skill on the part of the trainer. Wills and Hassan, two of the world's greatest equilibrists, appear in a turn bordering on the sensational. Of great interest to the Newarkers will be the Proctor debut of one of her native sons, Jos. A. Luby, in an amusing monologue, brim full of originality and humor. Murphy and Francis, high class colored entertainers and a new ludicrous film of animated pictures.

ROBBER THE ROBBER.

That Is, Kivlon Said He Did—McGovern Got His $240.

Jersey City, April 18.—Thomas Kivlon, of 75 Morris street, was last night arrested by Detective-Sergeants Lee and Prescott, charged with robbing Andrew McGovern, a neighbor, of $240. McGovern was in a saloon last night, and, exhibiting the roll of money, invited a number of friends to join him in a farewell drink.

"I am going to sail for Ireland in a few days," he said, "and I want you all to have a good time at my expense." After ordering several rounds of drinks, McGovern started to go home, when he discovered that his money was missing. Kivlon and several others had left the saloon.

McGovern reported his loss to police headquarters, and Captain Larkins, of the detective bureau, detailed Lee and Prescott on the case. They found the money under a pile of dirt in the hallway of Kivlon's home. When taken into custody Kivlon admitted the money belonged to McGovern. He denied, however, that he stole the money from McGovern.

"I saw a man whom I do not know take the money from McGovern," he said, "and then, when I got the chance, and without his knowledge, I stole it from him." Kivlon said he intended returning the money to McGovern.

PASSAIC'S WATER PROBLEM.

General Bird W. Spencer Comes Forward With a Plan.

Passaic, April 18.—General Bird W Spencer, former Mayor of this city, yesterday announced a plan for providing this city with water after August 1, 1909, when the city's contract with the East Jersey Water Company expires. The Council is desirous that the city own its own water supply, but the time is too short for action. Besides, the Council has voted to postponed municipal ownership until a suitable source can be suggested, and none has been mentioned that complies with requirements.

General Spencer suggests that the city lease the East Jersey company's mains here for five years, and purchase water from it, the water afterward to be sold to the consumer. His plan is for the city to return the pipes at the end of the five years, if it sees fit. The idea will be presented to the Council at its meeting Monday.

COCAINE LAW NOTICES.

Warnings to Be Sent to Every Police Department in State.

Every police department in the State will today receive a copy of the recently passed anti-cocaine law. Yesterday the wholesale druggists notified the retailers that they must live up to the law. The notice reads as follows:

"FOR YOUR OWN PROTECTION.

"Owing to the new law, commonly called the anti-cocaine law, which goes into effect immediately, we must have a signed order by a registered pharmacist for all cocaine or its salts, alpha or beta eucaine, or their salts, opium, morphine, cedine, chloral or any of the derivatives of chloral, or any admixture of or patent or proprietary remedy containing cocaine or eucaine, ordered. We enclose envelopes for same and trust when ordering you will abide by the law. As soon as we receive an official copy of the law from Trenton we will take pleasure in sending you one."

China's Bishop in Elizabeth.

Elizabeth, April 18.—The Rev. A. Henninghause, bishop of South Shantung, China, addressed an audience of over 800 persons in St. Michael's church last night. The bishop, who was accompanied by the Rev. Peter Chang, of the Chinese priesthood, is traveling in the interest of missionary work in China. He is a native of Germany, from which country he went to China twenty-two years ago as a missionary. Speaking in the German tongue, the bishop preached a sermon appropriate to Good Friday.

WEDDING MARKED BY MIX-UP.

Ushers Foil Attempt of Jr. O. U. A. M. Members to Kidnap Bridal Party.

New Brunswick, April 18.—Unusual excitement marked the wedding of Victor G. Swain, of this city, and Miss Gertrude Crowell Stelle, of Metuchen, at the Stelton Baptist church Thursday night, owing to the resistance put up by the bridegroom's bodyguard to a plan of the guards of Goodwill Council, Jr. O. U. A. M., to kidnap the members of the bridal party and give them a ride to Metuchen in a truck. Mr. Swain is a member of the Goodwill Guards. A degree team of the council hired a truck and, in full uniform, went to the church early Thursday evening.

Word of the guards' intention had come to the ears of the bridegroom, and Gilbert Mason, a Princeton graduate and old football player, one of the ushers, and others of the ushers, enlisted a bodyguard to surround the church. As the bridal party left the church there was a mix-up.

The two sides were well organized and the contest even, but finally the Goodwill Guards were outwitted, the bridal couple slipping back into the church. The bride's veil, however, had been torn and it is said blows were struck, though both sides deny this. Finally the would-be kidnappers dispersed and after nearly an hour's delay Mr. and Mrs. Swain left by a side entrance and were taken to the bride's home in a runabout.

Mrs. Harry Bush, of Orchard place, has been visiting relatives at Somerville.

Miss Alice Taylor, of Newark, who has been visiting friends here, has returned home.

Mrs. Garret T. Conover, of Rocky Hill, who has been visiting relatives here, has returned home.

LOCAL AMUSEMENTS

Thomas Jefferson in his masterly performance of Washington Irving's good-natured vagabond of the Catskills, "Rip Van Winkle," will be seen at the New Plainfield theatre next Monday afternoon and night. Mr. Jefferson's production of the play this season is by far the most elaborate ever given of it.

The dramatic incident of the coming week in which chief interest will center will be the first revelation of local theatregoers of the splendors of the Harry Sellers Amusement Company reproduction of "Dora Thorne," a dramatization of Bertha M. Clay's famous novel. The piece has been declared a drama of more than usual effectiveness and power, and as a production is said to surpass anything the Harry Sellers Amusement Company have as yet achieved. "Dora Thorne" is justly entitled to rank as one of the season's popular successes. It will be seen with the original cast and scenic environments next Tuesday night at the New Plainfield theatre.

Cheever Goodwin was originally engaged to unite the Book and Lyrics of "The Little Trooper," the three act comic opera, which is announced for appearance at the New Plainfield theatre next Wednesday night, with a company of fifty-five people, headed by Alma Hearn, and including the clever comedian, William Blaisdell. When he received the commission, he hied himself to a fishing haunt in the Vermont wilds, and in occasional letters he announced that the fishing was fine, the bait good—but no hint came of progress on the libretto. William Furst's patience eventually ceased to be a cordial virtue, and Clay M. Greene, the clever author, was prevailed on to collaborate with the composer, and the result is one of the most successful comic operas of the present day.

The longest run of a non-musical play Chicago has ever known was that, last summer, of "The Man of the Hour," which was acted in the Illinois theatre there by a special company for the first time on May 12, and ran continuously, nine performances a week, until Sunday, September 1, or a total of sixteen weeks, consisting of 146 performances. This is the great play which the Brady and Grismer special company will act Thursday night, April 28, in the New Plainfield theatre, where the play will then be seen for the first time in this neighborhood.

Plainfield Has to Bow to the Inevitable—Scores of Citizens Prove It.

After reading the public statement of this representative citizen of Plainfield given below, you must come to this conclusion: A remedy which cured years ago, which has kept the kidneys in good health since, can be relied upon to perform the same work in other cases. Read this:

Richard Day, of 208 East Front street, Plainfield, N. J., says: "I have given a statement which has appeared in our papers for several years. I can recommend Doan's Kidney Pills because I know there is no reason why they will not do for others what they did for me. I had a miserable dull pain across my back and a sort of lameness across my kidneys. Standing any length of time or walking any distance aggravated it greatly. I was never sick much and did not like to take medicine but these attacks grew worse instead of better, and reading frequently about Doan's Kidney Pills I bought a box and used the contents. After taking the contents of two boxes I was cured."

SPORTS HERE AND THERE

BASEBALL.

Burke's Elizabeth Stars expect to play the Bridgeport, Connecticut State League team at the Port, tomorrow. Si. Ferry, of Seton Hall, is salted to pitch for the Stars.

It is reported that "Phil." Smith is to be given a try-out by Manager Stallings, of the Newark Eastern League Club. By the way "Phil." never pitched as good ball as when Jack O'Neil was at the receiving end. It is a question that puzzles the fans.

In the second victory of the New York Americans over the Athletics, Keeler was again the king pin, his play saving the game for his team.

The Eastern League season opens on Wednesday. The game of interest to local fans is that between Newark and Jersey City at Jersey City. The event will be a gala one.

The Lancaster club has signed Pitcher Toren, who played last season with Toronto. Lancaster has also made overtures to secure Doc Reisling, manager of the Reading Union League Club, but Reisling refused to desert Al Lawson's team.

Danny Shay, utility second baseman for the New York Giants last season, was yesterday declared to be a free agent by the National Commission. Shay was released by the Giants to the Oakland (Cal.) club, but as the player had not signed a contract with New York, and as neither that club nor Oakland wanted him, the commission granted Shay's request.

Rube Witherup, the former Boston National pitcher, has signed to play with the New Castle (Pa.) team of the Ohio and Pennsylvania League.

Mrs. Jack Chesbro, wife of the New York American pitcher, Thursday instituted a suit against a railroad company for $500, which represents the value of a diamond brooch, lost on a train while en route from Atlanta to New York last week.

The Boston American League club has filed a petition in the Massachusetts Legislature asking permission to play a baseball game in Boston on Sunday, April 19. If the request is granted the proceeds of the game will be given to the Chelsea fire sufferers. The Philadelphia Athletics are slated to be the opposing team.

GOLF.

Golfers have received the program for the Garden City Golf Club invitation tournament on May 7, 8 and 9, which makes complete the announcements of the trio to open the Metropolitan Golf Association open season. At the Lakewood Country Club on April 23, 24 and 25, and at the Country Club of Atlantic City on April 30 and May 1 and 2, the qualification rounds will be at thirty-six holes and there will be a match play cup for about every sixteen to finish. At the Garden City tournament, as a difference, the qualification round will be at eighteen holes and there will be two sixteens to keep on for the president's and the Hempstead cups. The beaten eight of the first sixteen will play for the Garden City cup. There will be a gold medal for the best score in the qualifying round and also for the best gross score in the eighteen hole score play handicap on the last day, with a cup for the lowest net score.

At the Garden City match play will be at eighteen holes except the final rounds for the three cups, in which the players will go the double round. The final for the president's cup last spring found Walter J. Travis trained to the hour, and after an uphill fight for the greater part of the journey he won from Jerome D. Travers on the thirty-eighth hole. Travis had a 3 there after being in the bunker, while Travers needed 3 puts, a spectacular finish to one of the hardest matches of last season. The number of starters may be somewhat larger than usual this time on account of the amateur championship being a fixture for the course in September, for some of the aspirants for that title may take advantage of the opportunity to get an early knowledge of the changed aspects of the links, which presents now new hazards for old.

The usual special note on the program of Gorden City Golf Club fixtures appears, stipulating that "stimies must be played." No player may win more than one cup and the committee reserves the right to reject any entry or to modify the conditions of play.

Dr. Simon Carr has an English rival in the cloth and this is said of him by a golfing journal of that country: "A remarkable golfer is the Rev. Father Dillon of North Manchester. There is nothing small about him—he is over 6 feet in height and his heart is as big in proportion. He has made wonderful strides in the game, and what is more he plays his best game in competition. The mention of Father Dillon's name at Hesketh, where he is also a member, is always associated with an incident wherein he administered just punishment to a ball thief. At one of the holes his drive was rather wild, and rushing up to the side of a sandhill to watch it disappear he saw a youth, who was lurking behind a sandhill, rush out and put it in his pocket, and was pretending to be looking for the ball when Father Dillon came up. Thrusting his hand into the lad's pocket he brought forth the ball and then pronounced judgment: 'I am not going to hand you over to the police. I am going to give you six strokes at intervals of a minute each.' And before the astonished youth realized what had happened he was deftly seized and the handle of the putter came smartly down on the less honorable portion of his anatomy. Then Dillon took out his watch and when a minute had ticked by he proceeded with the infliction of the rest of the punishment.

WOODBURY PASTOR BLOWS OUT HIS BRAINS

Woodbury, April 18.—Rev. George W. Thomson, pastor of the Woodbury Presbyterian church, one of the largest congregations in the southern section of New Jersey, committed suicide with a revolver either Thursday night or early yesterday by shooting himself in his room at Newton's hotel here. His dead body was found, with a bullet wound in his head, when a maid knocked on the door to awaken him yesterday morning.

The death of Mr. Thomson caused a great shock here, especially in view of the fact that his engagement to marry Mrs. Fannie Kenworthy, a wealthy widow and an active member of his congregation, was announced last week. Mrs. Kenworthy has a daughter eighteen years old, and lives on Hunter street.

There is an allegation that the suicide was the sequel of Mr. Thomson's entanglement with a young woman who lived at the hotel and attended his church. Following the announcement of his engagement to Mrs. Kenworthy, it is claimed this young woman declared that the clergyman should marry her. A delegation of church women called on her last Monday and after a stormy scene she left for the Pacific coast. Why she claimed the minister should marry her is not known.

When seen yesterday, Mrs. Kenworthy said that she knew of no reason why Mr. Thomson should commit suicide. She said there had been no quarrel between them.

Mr. Thomson was forty-five years old. He was a widower, his wife having died about a year and a half ago.

He formerly had charge of a church at Clayton, but came here about ten years ago. He built up the Woodbury congregation, and his salary was raised several times.

Mr. Thomson attended a convention of a missionary society in the afternoon Thursday and delivered an address. He had an engagement to call on Mrs. Kenworthy Thursday evening and when he did not appear she telephoned to a prominent member of the church.

A searching party was organized and efforts to locate him were made without success. At 12:30 o'clock yesterday morning his room was looked into. The bed was untouched and the searchers went away.

It is thought Mr. Thompson was lying dead on the floor on the opposite side of the bed. It was here that the body was found.

Mrs. Kenworthy was elected secretary for young people's work at a meeting of the Women's Home and Foreign Missionary societies of the West Jersey Presbytery.

Grace M. E. Church Out of Debt.

The annual statement of the financial condition of Grace M. E. church, just announced, shows that the entire indebtedness has been liquidated and there is a balance in the treasury. This is the first time in the history of the church that it has enjoyed this condition and it is gratifying to the people as well as the new pastor, Rev. Ora J. Shoop.

that it is difficult to serve him. The society man's denial of his Lord is so refined and gentle that it seems almost like an acceptance of Him, but because of the denial of this man, who, commonly owes to Christ so much, more good work is made impossible than by anyone else.

"But Christ redeems men even from the wastes and losses of that life, and the redemption in this case, comprises taking that which was devoted to one purpose and applying it to another. Christ purposes nothing less than the capture and transformation of the society man. There are many lives right out of this society world which have brought of their best and brightest to put to God's service. The Christ who has captured so many movements that were against him may yet turn this also to his own purposes."

The Sin of the Populace.

Rev. Dr. C. L. Goodrich emphasized the point that it was the populace who really crucified Our Lord, and although they were prompted to this action by the priests and elders, the act was the sin of the people. They showed themselves easily swayed by the suggestion of the politicians.

Today the same condition exists. Men are too willing to follow the crowd, to let a few do their thinking and to act with the masses. This is true in politics, where two or three politicians sometimes run the party without a thought for the individuals. An it is also true in society, in forming our customs, fashions and morals. The power of thinking and reasoning by conscience has entirely disappeared with some people, who act according to the suggestions of a few leaders without reasoning the why or the wherefore.

The Sin of the Church.

"There is a tendency today," said Rev. J. O. McKelvey in connection with the evening's last topic, 'to isolate the church from all outside human relations. Christ is, of course, pre-eminently God, but He is also man." Christ was a man as he lived on earth, and his life was that of an orthodox Jew. He was publicly received into the Jewish church when a boy and followed the customs of the Jewish religion. But He came with a protest against the traditionalism and the formalism of the church. The sins of the church are of two classes, outward and manifest, and subtle. Of the first class are the acts of bribery and crucifixion. Among the more subtle inward sins were mentioned the sin of personal hatred, causeless in the case of the Jews against Jesus. Another sin is that of spiritual blindness, showed by their failure to recognize the Messiah. Then there was the sin against his Love and the sin of not following Him, who came as a Shepherd to the world. The church of old exemplified the sins in the flesh, the present-day church is a prey to the sins of the spirit, which must be sternly combated.

Erastus H. Allen.

Erastus H. Allen, a former resident of the borough, died yesterday at his home at 138 Plane street, Newark. He was born in Washington Valley seventy-two years ago and learned the carpentering trade in Plainfield, following it for many years. He was an uncle to the following residents of the borough: Howard D. Allen, Mrs. E. J. Smith, Mrs. Sarah Moore and John H. Allen, of Grandview avenue; Philip Ackor, of Westervelt avenue and Dan F. Ackor, of Watchung. The funeral will be held at his late home tomorrow afternoon.

"Wormwood" Capably Presented.

The Imperial Stock Company presented "Wormwood" before an appreciative audience at the New Plainfield theatre last evening. The members of the cast handled the difficult parts in a manner that elicited much favorable comment while Edwin Vail interpreted the role of Gaston Beauvias in a most convincing way. It affords him exceptional opportunities to display his versatility. This afternoon the company is presenting "A Wife's Broken Heart" and will close the engagement tonight with "Deserted at the Altar."

James Hill, colored, was arraigned in the city court, this morning, charged by William Cheshire with calling him abusive names and striking him. The affair took place in Simmonds' pool room on Madison avenue, but there were no witnesses in court to back up Cheshire's allegation. He claimed that he would get a couple of men to corroborate his story and Judge Runyon adjourned the matter until Monday morning.

HAVE RIGHT TO RETAIN NAME.

Advantage English Women Possess Over American Sister.

"The English woman has at least one advantage over her American sister," said a young woman who has just returned from a two years' stay in London. "The English law does not require a wife to take her husband's surname. She can please herself. The point was settled several years ago when Mrs. Fenwick Miller was elected on the London school board. She had never taken her husband's name, merely altering 'Miss' into 'Mrs.,' and a formal protest was entered against her election because it was claimed that she had not stood under her legal name. This protest was referred to the law officers of the crown and they decided in her favor. Now, there are a large number of society women in England, most of them widows, who have never taken the names of their husbands. They refuse to give up the title and position they already possess for the sake of using their husbands' names. Of course, the question of changing the name and thus losing their identity in marriage is even more important to the professional woman whose well-known name is often of commercial value. In America, where the women use one name for business purposes and another for society, it would seem dreadful never to take the husband's name at all, yet it is much simpler, and the almost invariable rule among English women."

OCCUPATION FOR "REAL GENT."

Ignorant Englishman Could Not Understand Where Laugh Came In.

When Jack McAuliffe, the retired lightweight champion, was in England a few years ago he met Jumper Howe, a noted pugilist of Newcastle. Jack and Jumper became fast friends and in a burst of confidence Howe told McAuliffe one day that he could neither read nor write. He also asked Jack to read for him a letter he had just received from a sweetheart. McAuliffe readily consented to read the love note and was getting interested when Howe exclaimed:

"I say, Jack, 'old up there! Yer don't care to know just wot she writes, does yer?"

"No, it's of no interest to me, Jumper," replied McAuliffe, with a yawn.

"Well, then, old pal, jest put yer fingers in yer bloomink hears so yer won't 'ear it!" McAuliffe laughed so much at this sally that Howe, red hot, grabbed the letter, saying:

"You bleedin' Hamericans are great kidders, aren't yer? I'll get some Englishman to read, who'll plug up his bloomink hears like a real gent!" McAuliffe tried to explain, but it was of no use.

Paper Foe to Rheumatism.

Rheumatism being such a universal complaint, it is hardly to be wondered at that there exists a paper entirely for the benefit of rheumatic sufferers. This is published in Germany, and in it rheumatic patients discuss their symptoms and tell of anything that has proved a relief to their pains, while medical men contribute articles to it on the different phases, symptoms and species of rheumatism and the progress which the cure of rheumatism is steadily making. Needless to say, most rheumatic patients in Germany make a point of seeing this strange publication.

Why Turbines Shake.

Passengers of the new turbine steamers often express disappointment and surprise to find that the vibration experienced on ocean-going vessels has not been entirely eliminated. As a matter of fact, the vibration, so far as it relates to the engines, has been suppressed and the conditions greatly improved, but there is a certain amount of vibration resulting from the passage of the propellers through the water, and this never will be overcome so long as propellers are used.

Disturbed the Coons.

In tearing down an old farmhouse in northern Michigan the other day the men toppled down a chimney that had not been in use for 30 years, and two coons were killed by the bricks and five others got away.

The cunning animals had seen that the chimney was a safe retreat and they had been making a lair of it for years and years. They reached the chimney by climbing a tree and then jumping to the roof of the house.

Locusts and Wild Honey.

The Bible tells us that John the Baptist fed on "locusts and wild honey," and most persons seem to take it for granted that the locusts were the insects that we call by that name. It is probable, however, that they were not insects at all, but the fruit of the carob tree, the dried pods of which are the "locust-beans" now sold as food for cattle. The carob tree is sometimes called the honey tree, from the sweet pulp contained in its pods when they are fresh.

With Thanks.

John Budd was a most sedate, precise and altogether exemplary young man. When he wooed and won Susan Smiley, the belle of the village, everybody rejoiced at John's good fortune. However, he bore his triumph with modesty and decorum until the day of the wedding. Then, for one awful moment, his air of aplomb failed him. When the officiating clergyman asked, "Will you, John, take this woman to be thy wedded wife?" John responded, blushingly: "Yes, please."

VARIED USES OF THE ONION.

Homely and Strong Smelling Vegetable Not Without Virtue.

The ancients frowned on the onion as a food and classed it with garlic and leeks, as of an acrid nature, of unwholesome juices. "When twice boiled they give little nourishment, but when unboiled they do not nourish at all," says Paulus Aegineta, and Burton, advising as to the diet of the melancholy, dismisses the onion as troublesome to the head. The people at large pay no heed to these sayings. To the man who smiles at the conflicting opinion of dietists, the onion is healthful, when plainly boiled. As a child he was taught that it was good for a cold. These same ancients thought highly of it as a medicine. It occasions a rapid growth of hair, it breaks hard tumors; chewed, it is beneficial in paralysis of the tongue; it is eminently rubefacient; its juice is useful in suffusion and dimness of vision from thick humors. Discordies recommends it as a cataplasm with salt, rue and honey for the bite of a mad dog. There are many to-day who believe that onion juice is of assistance in deafness. Italians in the north end eat the insides of little onions and stuff them in aching ears of their children. They leave them there for weeks. An union put under the pillow will bring dreams of the loved one. The thickness of the skin determines the mildness or severity of the coming winter. But to dream of onions is a bad sign. In some countries it presages sickness.

MR. BOGGS KNEW THE AMOUNT.

Possibly He Had Often Computed the Water He Carried.

It was by no means a holiday task for Amos Boggs to carry pail after pail of water from the old well through the orchard and across the henyard to the kitchen, where Mrs. Boggs washed for the family and a dozen or so of customers. Therefore he was in no mood to enjoy questions.

"How many years have you been at this sort of things?" asked the elderly person of wealth, on whose white skirts Mrs. Boggs was then expending her energy and the heat of a heavy iron.

"Ten years," responded Mr. Boggs, striding on with his pails.

"Dear, dear!" said the woman, in a commiserating tone. "Why, how much water do you suppose you've carried in that time?"

"I've carried all that's been in the well during that time, and isn't there now, ma'am," and Mr. Boggs entered the kitchen and set the pails down with as near a thump as the nature of their contents would permit.—Youth's Companion.

Only Mortal, After All.

"When I went to church last Sunday," said a young woman visiting in Washington, "I sat directly behind a high executive officer whom I have regarded as almost more than mortal. I tried not to be rude and stare at him too much, but I could not help my eyes wandering toward him occasionally. I glanced at him just once, near the end of the sermon, and what do you think he was doing? He was yawning, and he yawned a large and vigorous yawn, which came on him so suddenly that he did not have time to hide it behind his hand. I must confess that I was delighted. My veneration for the executive officer is just as great as it ever was, but I am glad I found out with my own eyes that he is subject to ordinary human weaknesses and cannot help yawning during a sermon."

German Shipping Trade.

The activity of the German shipping trade is demonstrated by the fact that the number of vessels built in the empire in 1906 was 760, of 398,151 registered tons, against 646 of 310,771 registered tons in 1905, and 535 of 267,991 registered tons in 1904. Among the vessels built in 1906 were 11 men-of-war of 30,831 registered tons. In addition to the foregoing, there were built in foreign countries, on orders for German firms, 119 vessels of 122,845 registered tons.

Children's Favorite Toys.

A hundred and thirty-two schoolboys of Paris and 72 girls were invited to describe their preferences in the way of toys. Among the former 31 voted for a railway train, 23 for tin soldiers, ten for steam engines, nine for building bricks and eight each for toy typewriters and mechanical horses. Forty girls—a solid majority—declared without hesitation that a doll was superior to any other implement of recreation. The super-child seems, happily, a long way off.

Historical Fragment.

P. T. Barnum had just added the woolly horse to his wonderful collection of curiosities.

"That's an entirely new kink in horses," he said.

Regretting that the animal's wool was not finer, so it could show fur, and thus be to some extent a forerunner of the automobile, he instructed his press agent to send the news of his find to his friend, the editor of the New York Herald.

When the Band Played "Dixie."

Judge Sam White of Baker City, the Tom Taggart of Oregon Democracy, a few years ago threw a five-dollar hat through a skylight 75 feet from the ground in Baker City when the band started up the tune of "Dixie."—Pendleton East Oregonian.

The New Mayor

Based on G. H. Broadhurst's Successful Play

The Man of The Hour

By ALBERT PAYSON TERHUNE.

Copyright, 1907, by George H. Broadhurst.

"An' your firm's doin' most of the buyin', I'm told," interpolated Phelan.

"We have a great deal of the stock, I admit," said Gibbs; "so you see, Ben-[illegible] you can make me or break me. I p[illegible]e myself in your hands."

"I see you are taking a most unfair advantage of me, Mr. Gibbs," retorted Alwyn, with some heat. "You have no right to thrust this information on me and to appeal"—

"But I was only"—

"You were trying to influence my action toward the Borough bill. You cannot do it."

"Why, I didn't think you'd be angry at"—

"I'm not. Let's drop the subject, please."

"I only answered Miss Wainwright's questions. I"—

"We'll leave Miss Wainwright's name out of the matter, please," replied Bennett.

"Certainly, if you like," assented Gibbs, with a shrug of his broad shoulders. "I am afraid my time is up. Good day, Bennett. I'm sorry you misconstrued"—

"I didn't. Good day."

"I'll be on my way, too," announced Phelan, breaking the awkward pause that followed Gibbs' exit. "Ladies, I'm proud to have met you. If either of you knows a poor woman needin' a turkey or a family wantin' an outing, just drop me a line, an' I'll see they get it. An' they needn't come from my ward neither."

"That's bad - politics, alderman!" laughed Bennett.

"It's good humanity, though. There's two things I love to do—first, to down the man who's me enemy, an', second, to give good times to folks who's strangers to fun. Goodby, your honor. I'll be in ag'in now I've found my way, ladies."

"Alwyn," said Mrs. Bennett as the alderman bowed himself out with many flourishes, "I want to see Cynthia. Can I go into her office now, or is she too busy? I'll be back in a few minutes, Dallas, and bring her with me. I know how anxious she is to see you again."

"I wonder what Phelan would think of that for 'raw' work," thought Alwyn as the old lady bustled into the inner room, leaving Dallas and himself alone. Perhaps Dallas, too, understood, for her manner was less assured than usual as her eyes met his.

"It is so good—so good to see you again!" he said. "It seems years instead of months since you went away."

"But how splendidly you've filled the time! And what a magnificent fight you made! I was so proud of you, Alwyn!"

"Really? I remember you once said I was a mere idler—a rich man's son—and that you weren't at all proud of me."

"That is past. We must forget it. You are awake now."

"Forget it? Not for worlds. I owe all my success to you, Dallas. It was your face that strengthened me when there seemed no hope. It was the memory of your words that kept me brave and made me resolve to win against all odds. You were my inspiration, the light in my darkness. At each step I thought 'Dallas would be glad' or 'Dallas would not approve of this.' And I steered my course accordingly to victory."

"No, no!" murmured the girl. "It was your own courage, your strength"—

"Not mine. It was your faith in me. Do you know, I think no man ever accomplishes anything by himself. There is always a woman, I think, behind every great achievement. The world at large does not see her—does not know of her existence—but she's in the heart of the man who is making the fight. He battles in her name as did the knights of old, and the triumph is hers, not his. Whether his reward is the crown of love or the crown of thorns, she is the inspiration."

"Then if I had a share in your success I am very happy, Alwyn, for your name is in every mouth. You are the man of the hour, even as you were in the olden days on the football field. Oh, I am proud of you—very, very proud! There is a glorious future before you."

"That all rests in your dear hands," cried Alwyn.

"Future or present, Dallas, it's all the same. If only you"—

"Say, Bennett," roared a deep voice as the door from the outer office was banged open and Horrigan, red faced and angry, burst in, "I understand that you've— Oh, I didn't know you had a lady calling on you," he broke off.

"Don't keep me waiting long," said Horrigan.

"Well, I have," retorted Bennett, furious at the untimely intrusion. "Ingram should have told you that at the door."

"I don't stop to hear what folks tell me at doors. I'll wait outside till you're alone."

"Don't trouble to wait. Goodby."

"You can bet I'll trouble to wait," snarled Horrigan. "There's something you and I have got to settle today. Understand? I'll be outside. Don't keep me waiting long!"

CHAPTER VI.

"WHAT a strange man!" exclaimed Dallas Wainwright in wonder, as the anteroom door slammed behind the boss. "And what utterly abominable manners! Who is he, Alwyn?"

"Horrigan."

"Richard Horrigan, the"—

"The boss. Yes. He has a pleasing way of stamping into this office unasked, as if he owned it and as if I were his clerk. But today's behavior was the worst yet. It's got to stop!"

"But don't do or say anything reckless, Alwyn. Promise me. Remember how strong he is!"

"There's no danger of his letting me forget his power," said Bennett, with a bitter smile. "He"—

"But you'll be careful, won't you? Please do, for my sake. And you mustn't keep him waiting. If there's a way out through Cynthia's office we'll go by that. Goodby. I'll explain to your mother. No; you must let us go now. Office business must come first. Won't you call this evening? I'll be home and alone."

Despite Bennett's remonstrances she was firm, and it was in no pleasant frame of mind that the mayor threw himself into a seat when he was left alone in the room. That the talk with Dallas, which had promised so much for him, should be thus rudely interrupted. That— Horrigan flung open the door and stamped in. The boss' anger had by no means subsided in the few moments of delay, but had, rather, grown until it vibrated in his every word and gesture. He wasted no time in formalities, but came to the point with all the tender grace and tact of a pile driver.

"Look here, Bennett," he rumbled, menace underlying tone and look, "I'm told Phelan's been here this afternoon. What did he want?"

"To see me," answered Bennett calmly, the effort at self control visible only in the whitening of the knuckles that gripped the desk edge.

"What did he want to see you about?"

"A business matter."

"What business matter?"

"Mine."

"Yours, eh?" sneered Horrigan. "Well, young man, I want you to understand here and now that no one can be chummy with Jim Phelan and be my man at the same time. Got that through your head?"

"Yes," assented Bennett; "I think I have. And while we're speaking plainly I want you to understand here and now that no one can bully me, either here or elsewhere, and that I'm no man's man. Have you got that through your head?"

Horrigan stared in savage amazement. He doubted if his ears had not played him false. Bennett had always treated the boss with uniform courtesy, and Horrigan belonged to the too numerous class who do not understand until too late the difference between gentle breeding and weak cowardice. That a man should speak to him courteously and not interlard his talk with oaths, obscenity or roughness seemed to Horrigan, as it does to many another boor, an evidence of timidity and lack of virility. A Damascus blade is a far more harmless looking weapon than a bludgeon, yet it is capable when the necessity arises of far deadlier work.

It is only the man whose gentleness has not granite strength as its foundation who deserves the newly popular term of "mollycoddle."

Had Horrigan's large experience with men been extended to embrace this fact he would probably never have picked out Alwyn Bennett in the first place as candidate for mayor nor deemed the younger man a fit tool for the organization's crooked work. The French nobles of the old regime, whose polish of manner was the envy of the world, fought like devils on occasion and went to death on the scaffold with a smile and a jest on their lips, while many a brutal demagogue in the same circumstances broke down and screamed for mercy. However, Horrigan chanced to be more familiar with the history of the organization than with that of France; hence, deeming Bennett's reply a mere sporadic flash of defiance from a properly cowed spirit, he resolved to crush the rebellion at a blow.

"Don't give me any insolence!" he roared. "I won't stand for it, and"—

"Moreover," quietly continued Bennett, as though the boss had not spoken, "I shall be very much obliged if in future you will knock at my door instead of bursting in on me. This is my private office, not yours."

"Do you mean to"—

"I've explained as clearly as I can just what I mean. If you don't understand me I can't supply you with intelligence."

"Bennett," said the boss, his burning rage steadied down to a white heat, far more dangerous, but less incoherent, "you and me are talking too much and saying too little. We've got to come to a showdown. You're a clever boy and you made a rattling good fight, and you're on the right side of the public and of the press too. You're the best material we've got, and if you try and do the right thing there's no limit to what you can rise to—but only if you do the right thing."

"'The right thing,'" echoed Bennett. "What do you mean by the right thing?"

"I mean you've got to do the right thing by the men who put you where you are today."

"That's fair. But who 'put me where I am today?'"

"I did—I, Dick Horrigan. Who ever heard of you till I took you up? Nobody. If I didn't make you mayor, who did. I'd like to know?"

The voters. The people of this city."

"The voters," scoffed Horrigan. "The deuce they did! Who had you nominated?"

"You did. But it was the public who elected me, and I'm going to obey your orders in one thing. I'm going to 'do the right thing by the men who put me where I am today.' I'm going to pay the voters for their trust in me by giving them a fair and square administration. In the case of this Borough Street railway franchise bill, for instance," tapping the document lying before him on his desk, "before I sign that bill I intend to make sure it's for the good of the people, that it is for the good of the city, not merely for the good of Richard Horrigan and a clique of his friends and heelers. No, don't swear. It'll do you no good. I'm firm on this matter. If you're discontented with me it's your own fault. I warned you months ago that if I was elected I should keep my oath of office. As for this Borough bill"—

"As for this Borough bill," broke in Horrigan savagely, "you'll sign it. If you don't"—

"Well?" queried Bennett, as the boss paused, choked by his own fury. "If I don't sign it—what then?"

"If you don't, your political career is ended from this time on. See? It's ended. Smashed flat. You think of yourself as a fine, promising young man who's on the road to the governorship and maybe to the White House. Well, you aren't. You're what Dick Horrigan made you, and your future will be what Dick Horrigan chooses to make it. I lifted you up, and I can tear you down just as easy. And, what's more, by ——, I'll do it if you don't sign the Borough bill. I'm a man of my word, and before ever you were nominated I pledged my word to have that bill put through. The bill paid your election expenses. It"—

"I paid my own election expenses. You know that."

"Your personal expenses, perhaps. But who paid for parades, halls, banners, fireworks, speakers, advertisements, workers and watchers and all the other million things that elected you? The men behind that Borough bill paid them. And they did it on the understanding you'd sign the bill."

"In other words," remarked Bennett, "you made a bargain for me. Well, I can't keep it."

"Oh, I'll keep it all right. You'll sign that bill or you'll"—

"Mr. Horrigan," exclaimed Bennett, controlling his temper with more and more difficulty, "you said something just now about our coming to a showdown. This is the time for it. I want you to remember henceforth that I wear no man's collar—yours or any one else's—and that you can't deliver any goods you've bargained for in my name. If I sign that bill it won't be under your orders, but because I think it right."

"Oh," laughed Horrigan, who thought he began to see the drift of the other's mind, "I don't hold out for that. I don't care why you sign it as long as you do sign it."

"What do you think about the bill yourself?" inquired Alwyn. "Do you consider it honest?"

"What do I care? It's got to be signed, and"—

"I care. And I think the bill is fraudulent."

"Getting tender in the conscience, aren't you? Well"—

"If you put it that way, yes. I think this Borough bill is crooked from first to last. But"—

"What's the matter with it? Ain't"—

"Let me explain," pursued Alwyn. "This bill gives the Borough Street Railway company the right to use whatever motive power they choose to. It gives them the right to charge five cent fares without any transfers. In one paragraph there's a clause permitting them to build a subway if they want one. By another paragraph's concessions they can build a conduit and lease it out for telephone or telegraph wires. By another they can do an express business. But all these provisions are as nothing compared to the fact that the bill gives the streets above and below ground to the Borough company forever and ever—not for a term of years, but until the end of the world. It delivers that route to the company not only for our time, but for always, and binds us and our descendants to its terms. That is the chief outrage of the whole thing. To think that the"—

"Oh, we've got a howling reformer in the mayor's seat, have we?" scoffed Horrigan. "If I'd known that"—

"The people have got a man who is trying to protect their rights and property. Here's a letter I received today. You'll recognize the name of the capitalist who wrote it. You know he is honest as well as wise. This is his proposition: He will pay $2,000,000 for that same franchise, give the city 10 per cent of the gross receipts and turn over the whole plant to it at the end of fifty years. What do you think of that?"

"It's a fake."

"It is a bona fide offer. He volunteers to deposit $1,000,000 to bind the bargain. Now, what I want to ask you, Mr. Horrigan, is this: If the franchise is worth $2,000,000, why are you and your faction in the board of aldermen so anxious to give it away for nothing?"

"Look here!" blustered the boss. "I"—

"I am looking," returned Bennett. "I've been looking deeper into it than you realize. I asked you a question just now. I'll answer it myself in one word—'Graft!' That is why you want to give away a franchise that is worth $2,000,000."

"Graft!" snorted Horrigan contemptuously. "The same old reformer howl! What's your idea of graft anyway?"

"Graft is unearned increment. Money to which the recipient has no legal or moral right. That is"—

"So! Then show me the man who ain't a grafter! A lawyer shows his client how to evade the law, and he takes a fee for doing it. What's that but graft? A magazine takes pay for printing an advertisement its editors know is a fake. What's that? Graft! When a congressman votes for an appropriation because another congressman has agreed to vote for one of his, what's that? Graft! When a five thousand a year senator retires at the end of ten years worth a million, what's that? Graft! A police captain on $2,750 a year buys yachts and country estates. Graft! How about the railroad president who gets stock free in a corporation that ships over his road, or the insurance man or banker who gives or takes fat loans on fancy securities and clears 1,000 per cent? Grafters, all of 'em! Grafters! Every one grafts who can or who isn't too stupid. Show me a man who doesn't graft and I'll show you a fool. Present company not excepted."

"That's where you're wrong," returned Alywn, ignoring the slur and speaking with a judicial quiet oddly at contrast with the boss' vehemence. "The man who said 'Honesty is the best policy' knew what he was talking about. It pays best not only hereafter, but here as well. Why did Missouri choose Folk for governor? Because in spite of his faults he is honest. Why was La Follette sent to the senate from Wisconsin? Because, faults and all, he was honest. Why did the people of this country make Roosevelt their president? Were they blind to his faults and foibles? No, but they knew he was honest! I am honest. This bill isn't. That is why I won't sign it."

"You won't, eh?" roared Horrigan. "Then veto it! Veto it if you dare! I'll not only smash your political career, but I'll pass the bill over your veto. That'll show you pretty well how you and me stand as to power in the city. I'll make you the laughingstock of the administration by taking the whole thing out of your hands and passing it in spite of you."

"I doubt it," answered Bennett, paling, but meeting coolly the fiery wrath in Horrigan's little red eyes. "I intend to fight your Borough bill in the aldermanic chamber and outside that council. To pass a bill over my veto you'll have to get a two-thirds majority. That means fourteen votes. You have only your 'solid thirteen.' And I'll make it my business to see you don't get a fourteenth vote."

"I'll look out for that, all right, all right."

"One thing more, Mr. Horrigan. I have reason to believe there is bribery in this matter. I'll ferret out the name of every man who gives or takes a bribe in connection with the Borough franchise bill, and I'll send every one of them to jail—not only the aldermen, but the capitalists who are behind the measure. Receiver and thief shall go to jail together."

"Is that so?" chuckled Horrigan. "Then, Mr. Reformer, let me tell you who is really behind this whole affair, the man you'll have to jail first of all, Mr. Charles Wainwright, uncle of the girl you're trying to marry."

He leaned back to note the effect of his revelation, but Bennett's face moved no muscle, gave no hint of what lay beneath.

"Besides," went on Horrigan, eager to press his advantage, "every cent of Miss Wainwright's fortune and of her brother's has been put by Wainwright into Borough stock. If the franchise is beaten, that stock will collapse and Miss Wainwright will be a pauper. You'll beggar the girl you're in love with and her young brother if you veto that bill. Now go ahead and do as you like."

"Now go ahead and do as you like," said Horrigan.

It was Horrigan's trump card, and he had played it well. White, silent, Bennett walked back to his desk. The fight seemed all knocked out of him. Heavily he moved, like a man overexhausted. Picking up a pen, he wrote rapidly, then cast aside the pen, crossed to the window and looked out into the snowy, crowded park.

"You've signed the bill?" cried Horrigan in delight.

"I've vetoed it," replied Bennett.

JOYOUS MUSIC IN ALL CHURCHES ON EASTER DAY

Despite the Rainy Weather, Large Congregations Attended Services Both Morning and Night.

FLORAL DECORATIONS PROFUSE

Inspiring Sermons On the Risen Lord a Feature—Musical Programs Elaborate.

In all the churches yesterday the Christian Feast marking the anniversary of the Resurrection was observed by elaborate services.

Holy Cross.

Easter lillies, azaleas, palms and smilax were used lavishly in the decoration of Holy Cross church for the five Easter Day services. A triple lancet window design, executed in trailing smilax on the dorsal added impressiveness to the decoration, and the chancel was banked with lillies. At the conclusion of the evening service, the flowers were distributed to the congregation by choir boys at the door. There were unusually large congregations at all the services.

Two altar lights were presented to the church by sisters of Herbert Brooks, as a memorial to their brother, and these were used for the first at the 6 o'clock communion service. The full vested choir of forty voices was in attendance at all the services and led the rendition of the Easter carols by the Sunday-school at the children's service in the morning. Choirmaster H. Raymond Loder was at the organ and sang "He Is Risen," as the offertory at the morning service. The rector, Rev. George A. Warner, preached morning and evening, his texts being II Timothy, 2: 8, and Galatians, 3: 1. At the service of holy baptism Saturday afternoon, ten children were baptized. The mite box offering from the Sunday-school was the largest in the history of the church, and will be devoted to church missions.

First Presbyterian.

Elaborate decorations consisting of flowers, plant and greens, and a fine program of music, combined to make the Easter services at the First Presbyterian church attractive. The music was in charge of Clifford A. Braider, organist, and the quartet, comprising Miss Anna L. Case, soprano; Miss Jessamine Burd, contralto; Elmer D. Cutting, tenor, and Herbert R. Byard, baritone, sang several anthems and solo numbers at both the morning and evening services. The pastor, Rev. Dr. C. E. Herring, in the morning preached an Easter sermon and in the evening gave the third discourse in the series on "The Apostles Creed." In the afternoon the Sunday-school took part in a special program, consisting of Easter carols and concert recitations.

First Baptist.

What was probably one the most elaborate floral displays at the First Baptist church was witnessed at the Easter services yesterday. There was a massive bank of azeales, lillies, varied colored carnations about the pulpit platform, while about the choir loft and organ was an attractive arrangement of greens, all from the conservatories of C. W. McCutchen.

The program began with a prelude, "Adagio," violin and organ, Miss Florence Wohlfert and Howard Case, after which the chorus choir sang several anthems. The solo parts were taken by Miss Louella C. Harris, soprano; Miss Gertrude Tinz, contralto; William Holmes, baritone, and George H. Smith, tenor. Rev. Dr. J. A. Chambliss, pastor, occupied the pulpit, assisted by his brother, Rev. Joseph Chambliss, who offered prayer, and at the request of many, he preached the same sermon delivered just five years ago, with a little different arrangement of the subject matter. The theme was "Consider the Lilies of the Field How They Grow." It was a masterly discourse.

In the afternoon at 3 o'clock the Sunday-school exercises were held. These consisted of Easter songs by the school, anthems by the choir, Scripture reading, Easter message and son, "Lord, Who Lovest Little Children," by the primary depart- [illegible] recitation by Dorothy Hall; [illegible] le Song," violin and [illegible] n and song, by the girls o[illegible] nior department, with a "Song of Victory," by the Junior department. At this service Miss Wohlfert and William Dorr assisted with violins and Miss Jessie Utter was at the piano. Superintendent George H. Batchelor had charge of the exercises, assisted by F. W. Jones and J. E. Church.

A feature of the afternoon program was a concert recitation, with a solo by Miss Elsie Moore and chorus of five children, comprising Miss Emeline Manning, Miss Grace Hunt, Miss Elsie Moore, Miss Dorothy Hall and Eleanor Browning.

Trinity Reformed Church.

The Easter services at Trinity Reformed church, both morning and evening, yesterday, were largely attended and the hearts of both old and young were made joyful by the fine programs arranged by Arthur L. Titsworth, organist and choirmaster, and Mrs. J. M. Tier, superintendent of the primary department. The services for the day began with a sunrise meeting, an annual feature greatly enjoyed. There were fifty-three persons present. Martin A. Korff was in charge and Miss Nora Schenck, soprano, sang a solo, while E. D. Young gave a cornet solo, both being highly appreciated.

The beautiful display of flowers, plants and palms was arranged by a committee composed of Mrs. Jacob Beekman, Mrs. L. R. Schofield, Mrs. G. W. Cole and Mrs. Henry VanName, and was greatly admired.

The special music at the morning service was rendered by the regular church qu[illegible], Miss S. Etta Raybert, sopr[illegible]; Miss Winifred Carroll, contralto; Edmund D. Young, tenor, and Fred S. Cutter, bass. Mr. Titsworth was at the organ. A feat[illegible]re of both this and the evening service was the playing of W. Paulding DeNike, 'cellist, of New York. In the morning he delighted the congregation with four solos and in the evening he rendered three selections in a way that made a host of friends for him. He was accompanied by Mr. Titsworth in the morning and by Miss Lillian A. Force on the piano in the evening.

Rev. Dr. E. P. Johnson delivered a pleasing Easter sermon in the morning from the third chapter of Philippians and part of the tenth verse, the theme being "The Power of Christ's Resurrection." The discourse for the evening was from the subject, "The Stone Rolled Away."

At the close of the morning service, Robert Clark, Jr., chairman of the finance committee, presented a statement of the church's finances for the year. The total amount raised for denominational benevolences was $1,015.03, while $572.89 was contributed to other benevolences. The amount given to congregational expenses was $6,036.36, making a total of $7,624.28. Mr. Clark added that all bills are paid and there is a small balance in the treasury. He also took occasion to speak of the warm words of praise he heard at the meeting of the Newark Classis concerning the relations between the church and Rev. Dr. Cornelius Schneck, whose active pastorate has ended.

In the evening the service was in charge of the Sunday-school, and assisting was an orchestra composed of C. P. Wheeler, violin; Elmer P. Wheeler, flute; R. W. Barnes, violin; E. D. Young, cornet, and Miss Lillian A. Force, pianist. Horace J. Martin, Sr., acted as precentor and led the school and congregation in the singing of Easter carols.

An interesting feature of this service as the part taken by the little folks from the school, under the direction of Mrs. J. M. Tier, superintendent primary department. An exercise, entitled "Easter Gifts," was given by the following members of the beginners' department: Alma Allegar, Florence VanNest, Dorothy Ross, Donald Willett, Alfred Baker and Carmen Trembath.

This program by the members of the primary department was then followed:

Recitations, "An Easter Herald," Adele Freeman; "The Easter Dress," Wilma Tier; song, "Open Wide Your Dreaming Eyes," primary department; recitations, "My Easter Lesson," Alfred Willett; "The Minister's Call," Howard Willett; "The Least I Can Do," Malcolm Sheppard; "The Children Are Happy," Marion Woolley; exercise, "What Shall We Wear?" Louise Seader, Theodosia Vail, Mabel Laury, Lillie Laury, Helen Saffren, Ella VanArsdale, Grace Sowden, Harriet Higgins; song, "Easter Gladness Has Begun," primary department. During the evening the Misses Eliza Dufford and Alice Brown sang a duet and Miss Dufford also sang a solo.

Seventh-Day Baptist.

Easter services were held at the Seventh-Day Baptist church on their Sabbath morning. The chorus choir was assisted by William Holmes, baritone, and George H. Smith, tenor. Mrs. Violet Truell-Johnson assisted with the violin, while Miss Mabel Maxson was at the piano and Miss Jessie Utter at the organ. There was a prelude, violin, organ and piano; Gloria from 12th Mass, Mozart; offertory solo, George H. Smith, and after brief remarks by Rev. A. H. Lewis on the subjects, "The Background of the Crucifixion," and "If

THIRD TALK ON CREED

Dr. Herring Takes "And In Jesus Christ His Only Son Our Lord" as Theme.

IT HAS A FOURFOLD MEANING.

Christ As the King and Master of Our Lives—An Instructive Discourse.

Continuing his instructive series of discourses on the Apostles' Creed, Rev. Dr. Charles E. Herring, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, last night, addressed his congregation for the third time on the subject. The phrase "And In Jesus Christ, His Only Son, Our Lord," was his theme.

Dr. Herring said:

There is an inspiration in the first part of the creed when a man says to God, 'I put my reliance in Thee as an Almighty Father.' But the next clause adds positive strength to that utterance, 'I put my reliance in Jesus Christ, His only Son our Lord.' A man would never know the full meaning of the word 'Father" had not Jesus Christ revealed the character of that Fatherhood. We know that Fatherhood is a Fatherhood of individual souls only as Jesus Christ has made that clear. Jesus responded to the question that Philip asked by saying, 'he that hath seen me hath seen the Father.' So you and I say I believe in Jesus Christ for the perfect light He throws on the nature of God as God is related to us.

"There is fourfold meaning in this part of the creed we have chosen for tonight.

"First. When you say you believe in Jesus Christ, you declare your belief in the Old Testament. How? Why Christ is but another word for the Messiah and all through the Old Testament patriarch, psalmist and prophet have been painting the picture of the coming Messiah and in the fullness of time the Messiah came just as the Old Testament had promised.

"The confession of the early Christians was, 'Jesus is the Christ.' In other words Jesus is the Messiah. The Old Testament finds its consummation in Christ. He has fulfilled it and God has been found true to his promises.

"Again, second. When you say 'I believe in Jesus Christ you are not confessing your belief in the miracles or the works of Jesus Christ; you are confessing your reliance in the person of Jesus Christ just as if He were a living presence whom you could see with your physical eye, for He is a living presence today.

"It is possible to criticise the Christian church and the methods that men employ in doing Christian work, but you cannot criticize the sinless Lord.

"Dr. W. E. Channing said beautifully of Christ, 'To know Jesus Christ is to approach His soul, comprehend his spirit, and to see how he thought.' Dr. Channing's thought while beautiful does not contain the whole truth. He sees simply the beautiful character that lived here 1900 years ago, but he does not speak of reliance upon a living Christ.

"'I believe in Jesus Christ' does not mean that we are following a beautiful example merely, but that we are inspired by a living presence.

"Third. The third confession of your faith is that this Christ is 'His Only Son.' All men are sons, men redeemed are in a special sense the sons of God, but Christ is called here in a very special way the 'Son of God.' You confess here that while the Lord lived the life of a man He was far more than that. He was the only son of God, and in essence, God.

"Bring to your mind what the Lord said to the Jews. 'Before Abraham came into existence I am,' not became. Paul so described Him as the Image of the invisible God,' and and in a remarkable utterance to the Philippians, that though 'being in the form of God, and on an equality with God, He did not deem that equality a thing to be grasped at or retained but emptied himself of that glory and took upon Himself the form of a man.' He temporarily and freely relinguishes His rights with the Father that He might carry out the purpose of love. He, therefore, is the 'only Son.' Deny this if you will but you must find the basis of that denial outside the Bible.

"In the early history of the church when the deity of Christ was assailed men gathered in great councils to define teh attitude of the church in the matter. One of these councils was held in 325 A. D. and the Nicene Creed was formed which said, 'I believe in one Lord Jesus Christ, the only begotten Son of God, begotten of the Father before all worlds, begotten not made, being of one substance with the Father." There is no uncertainty as to the Deity of the Lord in this utterance. The great council of Chalcedon 451 A. D., affirmed this position by saying, 'Jesus

AGGRESSIVE PRISONER CARRIED LOADED REVOLVER

Patanio Alfiodeosen, a Spaniard, was committed to jail in default of bail by Judge Runyon, this morning, on a charge of carrying a concealed weapon and also resisting arrest. He pleaded ignorance of English and as there was no interpreter in court a statement could not be secured from him.

The prisoner was one of fourteen men discharged by Contractor Foster Callahan, Saturday morning, and he was seen by Detective-Sergeant John Flynn lying in a clump of bushes at East Seventh street and Woodland avenue at noon time. When the officer spoke to him he replied in a surly way and flourished a small knife with which he had been whittling a stick. Flynn placed him under arrest on suspicion. He went along quietly until a patrol call box was reached when he suddenly pounced upon his captor and made a desperate attempt to down him. During the scuffle that followed a fully loaded revolver of heavy calibre dropped from the prisoner's pocket. Flynn secured this and in a minute or two afterward had the owner under subjection.

Alfiodeosen claimed to have been badly hurt by the officer and insisted that his head be bound up yesterday morning but an examination failed to reveal any injury. He simply shrugged his shoulders in response to Judge Runyon's queries today although at times after his arrest he easily made himself understood when he wanted anything.

ODD FELLOWS PLAN FOR BIG CELEBRATION

PRESBYTERY WILL MEET AT RAHWAY TOMORROW

The spring meeting of the Presbytery of Elizabeth will be held in the First Presbyterian church, Rahway, tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock. There will be three sessions, closing with a popular meeting in the evening. The women of the First church will entertain the delegat[illegible] [illegible] attendance of which promises [illegible] be large.

Among the matters of special interest to come before the Presbytery will be the election of four commissioners to the General Assembly to be held in Kansas City, Mo., the third Thursday in May. At the meeting in Columbus, O., last May, Rev. W. I. Steans, D. D., of Westfield, and Rev. W. W. Casselberry, of Dunellen, and Elders Lewis C. Batson, of Clinton, and Thomas H. Morris, of the First Presbyterian church, Woodbridge, were commissioners. The Rev. Mr. Casselberry went as the Rev. A. W. Karnell's alternate, as the latter had to return before reaching Columbus on account of sickness in his family.

The "Narrative of the State of Religion" is always interesting, and should prove doubly so this year. The "Budget Plan" if the boards created quite a little discussion at the fall meeting, and will come up for final disposition ond Tuesday.

The Rev. C. E. Herring, Ph. D., of the First Presbyterian church, this city, will retire as moderator, the election of a moderator for one year being the first business after devotional exercises and roll call. The report of progress in brotherhood work will be presented by the Rev. William Force Whitaker, D. D., of the First church, Elizabeth.

UNVEIL A MEMORIAL TO THEIR LATE PASTOR

Special interest was attached to the Easter services at the First Baptist church yesterday for the fact that the handsome bronze tablet in memory of the late Rev. Dr. D. J. Yerkes, who was pastor of the church from 1863 to 1905, was in position and seen for the first time. It occupies a prominent place just inside the auditorium and was greatly admired yesterday by the large congregations.

The tablet bears an excellent bust figure of Dr. Yerkes, and the following inscription: "In Loving Memory, David Johns Yerkes, D. D., Pastor of this Church, 1863-1905. To Live in the Hearts we Leave Behind is Not to Die." The tablet is now fastened temp[illegible]ry to a board, which will soon be replaced by a marble slab. It is the work of the Hinman Bronze Company, of this city, and is considered a fine piece of work. Alexander Gilbert was the chairman of the committee having the matter in charge.

Charlie Williams In Again.

Charlie Williams, whose love for booze makes his name appear with great frequency on local police court blotters, is in the toils again. This time Special Officer Soul, of the borough force, locked him up for raising a drunken disturbance on Somerset street late Saturday night. Frank Jordan, who is employed at Sam Thornton's pool room on West Third street, complained to the police today that "Professor Conjunction" Jones had trimmed him for $10. He stated that he gave "Conjunction" a bill for that amount to get changed and that he had left the place but failed to return. The police promised to help him in his search.

Judge Gives Him a Chance.

Nicholas Kelley, who was released from the Somerville jail only a few days ago after serving a term, was arraigned in the city court this morning on a charge of drunkenness. MAY SETTLE THE STRIKE

If Masons' Union Consents "Open Shop" Building Firm Can Join Association.

200 UNION MEN STILL IDLE.

Leland & Thompson In Union's Bad Graces for Employing Non-Union Men, May Be Admitted.

As the result of a conference between heads of the local trades organizations Saturday afternoon, the sympathetic strike which has made 200 plumbers, carpenters and masons idle because Dr. Harold D. Corbusier employed Leland & Thompson, a firm of non-union builders, for the remodeling of his Park avenue residence, may be adjusted by admitting the non-union firm to the Master Builders' Association. President C. W. Krausse, of the Master Builders' Association; John Williams, president of the local Masons' Union, No. 14; Dan J. Galbraith, the plumber whose shop has been declared "foul" because his men worked on the Park avenue job where non-union masons were employed; W. A. Leland and H. S. Thompson, of the non-union firm, and Dr. H. D. Corbusier, who unknowingly caused the strike by awarding the contract to Leland and Thompson discussed the situation at a meeting held at the Park avenue house Saturday afternoon. Local Masons' Union, No. 14, will have a meeting tonight, where action will probably be taken to admit the non-union firm.

The power to lift the strike now rests entirely with the local Masons' Union. About six months ago, Leland & Thompson applied for membership to the Master Builders' Association, but no action was taken in the matter because the association could not get a favorable endorsement of the firm from the Master Masons' Association. This latter organization had applied to the local Masons' Union, No. 14, for credentials of endorsement to membership for the applying firm, but learned that No. 14 union had imposed a fine on the firm back in 1893, which had never been paid. For this reason, the Master Masons could not give a "clean slate" record of the candidates to the Master Builders. Members of the firm of Leland & Thompson allege that the fine was unwarranted and for this reason they refused to pay any attention to the demands of the masons, not being a union firm.

The strike has been effective so far, and no union artisans are employed on any of the jobs where Galbraith's men were working at the time the strike on the Park avenue building was declared. The Master Builders' Association is in entire control of the situation, which does not, however, effect any local plumbers except Galbraith.

National Mining and Leasing Co.

Operating in the Greatest Lead and Zinc District in the World.

Mines and Mining Properties Located in Missouri, Kansas, Arkansas and New Mexico.

Three Hundred Thousand Tons of Lead and Zinc Ore on the Dumps.

Reference—Ten Banks, The Joplin Stock Exchange, Joplin, Missouri.

DIVIDENDS, Twelve Per Cent. Per Annum, Payable Monthly.

DIVIDEND Number Fourteen will be payable MAY FIRST.

In addition to the Mines and Mining Properties, the Company is the largest owner of the stock of the Joplin Reduction Company, and the Window Mountain Copper Mining Company, of New Mexico, and the "Noted Lead Mine Tract," of Boone County, Arkansas, from which chunks of pure lead weighing from twelve to fifteen pounds have been pried from crevices, and knocked from the rocks with a hammer. As far back as Eighteen Hundred and Fifty-two, the Old Settlers mined lead from the surface of this Tract to make Bullets and other necessities.

The Joplin Reduction Company, which is controlled by the National Mining and Leasing Company, has just completed a Sludge Mill Capable of milling Four Hundred tons of lead and zinc ore daily, and is the owner of all the tailing ores on the Leonard land located two miles west of Joplin, (estimated at Three Hundred Thousands Tons). And in addition the tailing ores from the Bessie, the Brooklyn and Superior Mines is piped to the mill, these three mines have a daily output of nearly five hundred tons. The product from these mines and the enormous amount of reserve ores on the dumps should be sufficient to keep the mill in operation for fifty years and pay large yearly dividends.

The Window Mountain Copper Mining Company, also controlled by the National Mining and Leasing Company, is mining copper ore in the Florida Mountains in Luna County, New Mexico, worth One Hundred Dollars a ton and carrying several ounces of silver. The copper ore produced by this Company is said to be very similar to that mined by the Copper Queen, of Bisbee, Arizona, which is paying millions of dollars annually in dividends. The Superintendent states that a new tunnel now being completed will probably open up a one hundred foot ledge of nearly pure copper.

Mr. E. D. Middlekauff, the Vice President of the National Mining and Leasing Company, has just returned from a four weeks' visit to the different mines and mining camps, and will take pleasure in showing some fifty photographs of the different mines, mills, and properties, as well as samples of pure lead and zinc ore; some pieces weighing from twenty-five to thirty pounds, also copper and silver ore from the Window Mountain Copper Mining Company, of New Mexico, and tailing ores from the property of the Joplin Reduction Company,—all of which is controlled by the National Mining and Leasing Company. To those who are interested in mining, he will present a copy of the Souvenir Book, published by the Publicity Committee, consisting of fifty members of the American Mining Congress. This book contains two hundred and fifteen views and is said to be one of the finest books ever published in the West, entitled "The World's Greatest Lead and Zinc District as Seen Through the Camera." Statistics show that the production of lead and zinc ore from the Missouri-Kansas District amounts to the enormous sum of Two Hundred Millions of Dollars.

The Manager and Secretary of the Joplin Stock Exchange who has recently inspected the properties of the National Mining and Leasing Company states that he believes that an investment in the shares of this company to be one of the best in the country. All stockholders will participate in the profits of the mines and mining properties of the company, and in the profits of the Joplin Reduction Company, and The Window Mountain Copper Mining Company, and it is predicted by the people who are in a position to know that the shares of the National Mining and Leasing Company will be worth Ten Dollars per share within a very short time.

MILLION DOLLAR BRIDGE READY ON THURSDAY.

The new $1,000,000 bridge of the New York and Long Branch Railroad across the Raritan river near Perth Amboy is finished, and the formal opening is planned for Thursday, when a number of railroad officials will make the first trip across in a special train. The bridge was dynamited a few weeks ago, which delayed the opening.

John H. Gregory says he will probably move the draw of the present bridge next Wednesday.

The tide will be high Wednesday at noon and, if the draw is successfully floated, it will be at Mr. Gregory's yard soon afterward.

About an hour before flood tide the scows will be towed to the bridge and placed under the draw.

23 Years With Broken Back.

New Brunswick, April 20.—Rudolph Janzen, custodian of the Middlesex county buildings, received word this morning of the death of his brother, Ferdinand Janzen, of Brooklyn, in a New York hospital. Death was indirectly due to an injury which Mr. Janzen received while working in the factory of the Meyer Rubber Company, now the United States Rubber Company, in this city twenty-three years ago. His back was broken in an accident at that time. In a Newark hospital two of his vertebrae were removed. The injury finally led to tuberculosis.

BASEBALL.

Just to show that he is not all in, "Rube" Waddell shut out Chicago last week by a score of 1 to 0, allowing the Windy City aggregation but one scratch hit. He will no doubt give his old team mates, the Athletics, a run for their money.

George Wiltse, one of the star twirlers for the Giants, spent Saturday with his brother, "Lou" Wiltse, in this city. The day before he defeated the Philadelphia Nationals, his first league contest, by a score of 14 to 2.

Manager Dorflinger, of the Clinton Avenues, has scheduled a number of strong games for the season, but has left open dates for Somerville, High Bridge and Flemington.

A host of Plainfield fans journeyed to Elizabeth yesterday to see the Stars play.

The shutouts are coming fast these days. Four in the big league since the season opened.

As an outfielder Moran of the Athletics seems to be strictly high-grade.

Clifford Randolph, the twirler for Clinton Avenue, is showing up in good form this season in practice.

Jack Martin promises to make good as a diamond star this season. He will as usual cover one of the infield positions for Clinton Avenue.

Somerville expects to be represented on the diamond this season by several of the old Ironside players of Newark.

The Trojan Athletic Club, of Elizabeth, defeated the Edward Clark Club, of that city, Saturday afternoon on the Star's grounds, in a ten inning game, by a score of 4 to 2. The Clark Club was strengthened by the Garwood battery, Johnson and Brown. Hansen, Lindbloom and Fine, of Westfield, all played a fast game. The Trojan's won by clever base running and good fielding. The Clark Club was unable to score until the sixth inning. A feature of the contest was the playing of Bert Trotter, formerly of the Mono A. C., who covered third base for the Trojans. The score by innings:

Batteries, Bender and Bruggy; Johnson and Brown.

GOLF.

George Turnbull did not stay long at the Knollwood Country Club, being tempted away by an offer from the Columbia Golf Club, Washington. R. M. Thompson has now been hired at Knollwood.

The competitions for outsiders appear on the Baltusrol Golf Club spring and summer schedule sent out by the committee, James A. Tyng, Thomas C. Ennever and Willis L. Garey—the Women's M. G. A. tournament of May 5, and the M. G. A. championship of May 20-23. The club events begin today with a handicap against bogey. On Wednesday, May 13, the qualifying round will be played for the club championship, eight to keep on and the final to be on Memorial Day. There will be a team match with Apawamis on May 16. Among cups to be played for is the "Duffers," open to members having a handicap of 20 or more and who have never won a prize at Baltusrol. I. K. Taylor has presented a cup on the conditions which proved so successful last year, one player to qualify each Saturday at handicap medal play until sixteen have qualified.

Summer greens were put into commission Saturday at the Marine and Field Club, and under the new arrangement with the Dyker Heights Country Club the golfers will be more comfortable than ever. The competition on April 18-19 was at selected nine holes medal play for a prize given by Thomas A. Reid. Similar week-end cup events are scheduled until June 20-21, the donors including M. A. Rue, W. C. Biddle, C. J. Sawyer, F. W. Johnson, M. F. Tompkins and C. A. Kihball. Johnson and Tompkins are members of the Dyker Heights Country Club. The cups to be played for on Decoration Day are presented by Dr. C. F. Ash and James Herbert. J. H. McClement gives the Independence Day cup.

Presley N. Sproule has presented a cup for scratch play. The member making the lowest gross score each month in all events from May to October is to have his name and score engraved on the cup. In November all these members will play off at thirty-six holes for the cup. Another announcement of interest is of a cup for the handicap men to play for each month. The lowest eight net score men in each month's play on dates to be posted by the committee. There will be championships in October for both class A and B players, which is something of a novelty.

TENNIS.

A force of men is being employed at the Park Club putting the tennis courts in condition for the opening of the season this month.

TALES OF CITIES.

The city of Leipsic gives prize money to women who nurse their infants.

The birth rate in New York in 1907 was one baby every three and a half minutes during the year. The death rate was one in every five and one-third minutes. There was a marriage for every eight and one-third minutes.

Norway, Me., boasts that it is the most distinctive woman's town in America. Every line of commerce and finance, trade and profession is successfully carried on by women. Women not only clothe, hat and shoe the population, but they own and run the meat markets, the three hotels, they bury the dead and marry the living.

POINTED PARAGRAPHS.

People tolerate those they fear further than those they love.

As people grow older the days become shorter and the nights longer.

Many persons would be bright if they were not too lazy to scour off the rust.

The farther away a man gets from the day of his sin the more he is convinced he is not guilty.

There are very few things that you can receive an invitation to and not be called upon afterward to pay your dues.—Atchison Globe.

THINGS THEATRICAL.

Eugene Walter, the author of "Paid In Full," is to write a play for Viola Allen.

The new play in which Eddie Foy is to appear is called "The Wild and Woolly West."

The company in "Until We Meet Again" has disbanded. It is said the play will be retried.

Harry Kellar and Paul Valedon, the noted masters of legerdemain, have combined this season in a program of novel tricks and innovations in the black art.

Home-Made Tooth Powder.

A simple formula for tooth powder is this: Five ounces of areca not charcoal, two ounces of cuttlefish bone, one ounce of raw areca nut, pounded. Mix together. Two or three drops of oil of cloves or of classia may be added if a perfume is required. Use a firm brush when cleaning the eeth. Remove all foreign particles with a piece of dental floss. Twice a year have the dentist scrape away the tatar which is sure to form in spite of all care.

—The residents in the vicinity of West Front street and Grant avenue are planning to present a petition to the Common Council for new crosswalks at that corner. The ones now in use are broken and half submerged, making them almost useless.

TOBACCO COMPANY REDEEMING TAGS FROM MANY BRANDS.

According to reports from the local dealers in tobacco more people are saving tobacco tags than ever before in the history of the giving of presents in exchange for tobacco tags. This tremendous increase in tag saving is due to the acction of the American Tobacco Company in offering a remarkable list of valuable presents in return for tags from various popular tobaccos.

Such brands as Standard Navy, Sailor's Pride, Town Talk, Tinsley's, Granger Twist, Jolly Tar, Horse Shoe, and about a dozen others, bear tags which can be exchanged for presents. An idea of what can be accomplished by so far-reaching a co-operative system is gathered from such sample offers as the giving of an English Steel Razor for only 50 tags.

Reports in the tobacco trade indicate that dealers throughout the country are laying in stocks of presents in order to be able to meet the rising boom in tobacco tag saving. In places where the dealers are not supplied with presents, the American Tobacco Company is redeeming by mail—tag-savers selecting the presents they wish from a free catalog.

Delicious Dessert.

Hominy or rice boiled to a jelly may be molded in cups for dessert and served with a jelly sauce. Thin the jelly with hot water, add a little lemon juice or sherry and a trifling portion of thickening in the form of corn starch if the jelly is thinned very much. Very sour jellies, like currant, will bear thinning, while the sweet apple jelly needs only melting with a little water and turning around the molds of rice.

Sea moss blanc mange may be served in similar fashion, although nothing is better on it than sugar and cream. It is quite too bad that this simple sea plant should be quite for it is sure to be pure and harmful, containing properties from the sea that are helpful to delicate throats. It is often made into a mucilaginous drink with lemon for this purpose.

Delicious Baked Apples.

Peel and core the apples, then place in a deep pan, allowing a heaping teaspoon full of sugar and half a cup of water to each apple. In the centre of each apple place a tablespoonful of chopped nuts and a strip of lemon or orange peel, and over the whole sprinkle cinnamon and nutmeg. Bake very slowly and the juice will become jellylike.

Miss Alice Smith, of Elizabeth, returned home today after spending several days with friends here.

Miss Freida Sindlinger, of New York, is visiting her aunt, Mrs. Conrad Sindlinger, of Somerset street.

CHURCH AND CLERGY.

It has been agreed by the Methodists of the United States and Canada to erect a monument to Barbara Heck, the "Mother of American Methodism."

Milford (N. H.) people heard a sermon on a recent Sunday delivered by the oldest active minister in the United States when Rev. William Hurlin of Antrim, aged ninety-four years, consented to conduct the services.

The Christian church at Chickasha, Kan., held an election to see if the women should wear their hats during the services. As the lady members were not allowed to vote, the men carried the election in favor of no hats.

Epiphany mission, a little Protestant Episcopal church at Sherwood, O., recently received the gift of a large bell. As the church is without a tower or belfry, the bell was hung to an old chestnut tree which stands so near the church that one large limb extends over the roof.

MODES OF THE MOMENT.

For linen suits which will hold first place among washable materials colored trimmings will be popular.

Instead of trying for a Lady Hamilton or a Romney effect, the latest fashion decree calls for a reproduction of the classic draperies of old Greece.

Skirts are longer. For all but the typical walking suits they are very long and sweeping, while the street suits have taken on another inch and just escape the ground.

Frocks of wash materials will be made up in the same semi-tailored style as rules other fabrics at present. If anything the skirts will be more elaborately trimmed, but always in such a way as to lose none of that semi-tailored appearance.—New York Post.

What They Took.

Bendick—Tom Jones asked Jerry Smith to "come in and take something."

Biblus—What did he take?

Bendick—Whisky. And then a policeman came along, and the saloonkeeper asked him to "come in and take something."

Biblus—What did he take?

Bendick—He took Tom and Jerry.—Catholic Abstainer.

Not a Joke Huckster.

"You seem to like him."

"Oh, fairly well."

"Yet he never has any save hard luck stories."

"That suits me. It's easier to simulate sorrow than to pretend to be amused."

THOUGHT DUST.

Blue blood sometimes is a sign of lack of oxygen.

Twelve pairs of shoes do not always signify a good understanding.

Some women would make a "hit" if they substituted home made bread for wafers.

The brilliance of many a diamond makes up for a lack of that quality farther up.

Many degrees do not make an educated man; many small bacteria have long names.

A man is told, not by the company he keeps, but by the company he would like to keep.

A man's reputation may be judged by his hat and coat; his character, by the way he treats the hired man.

The fact that one's great-great-grandfather shook hands with Washington does not signify the bravery of the great-great-grandson.

Some self-made men are wise in calling themselves such; they have too much respect for their lives to credit anyone else with the job.

A silk hat and patent leather shoes always do not signify a gentlman, nor do a three-year-old slouch hat and half-soled shoes signify a boor.—Sunday Magazine.

GOLDEN THOUGHTS.

Buried hopes require a deep grave.

Let us be such as help the life of the future.

That groat is ill-saved that shames its master.

Never trouble another for what you can do yourself.

All is not false which at first seems a life.—Southey.

Thoughts are but dreams till their effects are tried.

A good man is one whose goodness is part of himself.

Labor rids us of three great evils—poverty, vice and ennui.

By learning to obey you will know how to command.—Solon.

The road to home happiness lies over small stepping stones.

To have faults and not strive to correct them is to add to them.

TABLOID PHILOSOPHY.

There is nothing really new—not even New Year's resolutions.

A new dress is simply a habit with a woman.

Lots of people are wrong simply because they insist they are right.

In any event the Knickerbocker Trust had a good run for its money.

Out of the financial wreck comes the pungent truth that very few trusts are to be trusted.

There seems to be a close and intimate relationship between tight shoes and the corn crop.

The public is still a little suspicious of the taximeter cab. Sounds too much like gas meter.

Some men's idea of winter is that it is the time to get skates on.—From Coxey's Magazine.

WU TING FANG'S PHILOSOPHY.

Snakes are not all poisonous.

The highest form of civilization is philanthropy.

Americans drink too much whisky and eat too much.

We are all apt to be prejudiced against what we do not know.

A highly civilized man can sympathize with the men of every country.

Racial prejudice and religious intolerance are twin ministers of barbarism.

The best diet is a simple one of nuts, vegetables and fruits, with no flesh or strong drinks, champagne included.

American women wear too much about their feet and too little about their shoulders. Their street gowns are not cleanly, their party gowns are not modest.

BY THE WAY.

Unless travel inspires you with a love for home, stay where you are.

The man who does not want to work is generally the one who has to.

Does anyone know of much more of a misfit than a man in a coachman's uniform driving a one horse coupe?

The contented man is a creature of circumstances, while the unhappy one is the fellow who wants to make circumstances his creature.—Uncle Dick in Milwaukee Sentinel.

"Yes," was the response.

"Can the bear take his warm overcoat off?"

Christ is perfect in His Godhead, a begotten before all ages as to His Deity.'

"There is a fourth confession you make in this part of the creed: You say 'Our Lord.'

"When Thomas after the resurrection put his hand into the nail prints he said 'My Lord and my God.' He would not believe others. Jesus came to him personally and Thomas claimed Him as his personal Lord.

"So you with others claim the Lord as the Lord and sovereign over your life. You believe in Him as the Master of your life.

"Throughout the history of the Christian church men have offered themselves their lives, in devotion not to Christian principles, but to a personal Christ. Polycarp, the aged Bishop of Smyrna, when he was asked to recant his Christian faith, said, 'Eighty and six years have I served Him. How can I blaspheme the name of my Lord and king.'

"In later times the great Livingstone wrote as the last record in his diary, 'March 19, 1872, birthday. My Jesus, My King, My Life, My all. Again I dedicate myself to Thee.'

"So let us here who believe in the Lord Jesus Christ claim Him as the King and Master of our lives."

CHEST WORKMEN FIND MAY CONTAIN FORTUNE

A rusty iron chest containing bonds, stock certificates, old English coins and deeds for about seventy acres of land near Lancaster, England, was discovered Thursday on the farm of Andrew B. Williams, of Troy Hills, in Morris county, by workmen digging a cellar for a barn. Mr. Williams says his grandfather, Herbert Williams, who was eccentric, came to America from England in 1857 and purchased the Morris county tract. He never said much about his old English home except that he came from Lancaster.

For the last ten years of his life, he was not considered to be in his right mind, although quite harmless. At this time he often spoke of being the owner of considerable property in England, but no attention was paid to what he said. In 1885 he died. The box was found near the stump of an old maple tree. The exact value of the papers has not been learned.

ARTHUR BRISBANE'S ADVICE TO MOTHERS AND FATHERS.

The human being most in need of amusement, most greatly benefited by amusements that stimulate the imagination, is the child. And in our civilization there is far too little done in the line of amusement for children. Whatever stimulates imagination stimulates mental growth. The circus and the Hippodrome are beneficial, normal, entrancing stimulants to the imagination of children. That is why we urge parents to take their children to the Hippodrome or the circus. Better still, to both of them, twice a year at least. The building of the Hippodrome, and its management on clean, intelligent, broadly spectacular lines, constitute a real public service in New York city. The elephants, with their toes neatly manicured and brilliantly white; the prancing horses, the dogs that stand on their heads or their hind legs, or carry cats about in friendly fashion; the clowns, the sinking platform, the water, mermaids, and all the rest of it—those are the things upon which children's minds develop. Children suffer if they do not occasionally receive the normal stimulant of pleasant excitement. An old American joke represents the father taking the child to a circus as an excuse for going himself. No excuse is needed for circus or Hippodrome. Boys and girls should be taken to the circus and Hippodrome regularly. It is their right, and the father and mother should go along to enjoy the performance with the children, and to enjoy above all the children's intense delight.—New York Journal.

High School Boys Strike.

More than twenty students in the Belvidere High School are out on strike because of the expulsion of George Samsel, whose father is a member of the Board of Education. The boy had a dispute yesterday with the supervisor, Prof. Ernest T. McNutt. Yesterday he returned to the school, when he was told by the supervisor that he could not stay. He left, and twenty of his friends went with him, and they will not return until Samsel is reinstated. They say they will go before the School Commissioners themselves and present their grievance.

NEW JERSEY IS NOW MINUS HEALTH BOARD

Until the Governor can convene the Senate in special session to receive his nominations for officers created by the Legislature this year, there will be no State Board of Health. The Governor has signed Senate bills 58, 59, 60 and 61, which abolish the State Board of Health, the State Sewerage Commission and wipe off the books the law providing for the work of the State Sewerage Commission.

The last provides for the appointment of a new board to take over the duties of the ither two. The new body is to consist of six members, to serve for six years at $2,000 per year each, and one to be designated as secretary and one as president, the secretary to get $500 more a year than his associates.

NOW IS THE TIME TO START SEEDS AND BULBS.

Plant the entire bunch of dahlia roots in a bok of soil; keep in a warm place until sprouts appear, then remove to a cooler situation.

Begin planting out hardy plants, shrubs and vines as soon as the ground can be worked. Prune such as need it before growth begins.

Send for the flower catalogue early and make your selection of roses and shrubs, and get your orders in early so as to avoid disappointment in choice and delay in planting.

Have the man of the house make you a hotbed. He can do it easily and at little cost, and in it many varities or flowers may be started. Have him do it now before he gets too busy with his own affairs.

If there are humps and hollows on the lawn, cut and roll back the sod, fill in level, or cut away hump, then roll back of sod, and firm down smooth. Scatter unleached wood ashes over the lawn, and seed bare places before ground hardens.

Sow sweet peas now, the sooner the better. This is the method employed by H. A. Caswell, one of our New York folks, who has gratifying success: "I dig a trench about a foot deep, then put in clay, then manure, then dirt and stamp in the seed. The clay holds the moisture."

Divide the canna roots into pieces of one eye each, and place in flats about three or four inches deep, and a couple of inches apart, according to size of tuber. Cover loosely with soil, or sand and soil, and keep warm and moist, but noe wet. When they have grown four or five inches high, transplant to pots or boxes until time to set outside. The plants will show flower stalks within about six weeks from planting.

Many of the flowers that will bloom late in the autumn must be started now. Among these are chrysanthemums. Soon after the old plants are brought from the cellar, sprouts will appear. When these reach a growth of two inches, separate from the old plants, taking care to leave a bit of root attached; plant in small pots that have been filled with rich hoil. Keep them in a moderate temperature, and waer well until time for transplanting to the open.

WOULD DISFRANCHISE NEGRO.

Mr. Griggs, of Georgia, Advocates Drastic Measure.

Washington, April 20.—Mr. Griggs, of Georgia, made a speech in the House of Representatives yesterday favoring the disfranchisement of the negroes. He declared that this step was necessary to insure white control and to maintain peace and prosperity in the South.

"At present," he said, "the negro is only a menace, a scarecrow—not a factor in deciding political issues. The rights of the negroes of the South are secured only through white judges and white jurors, and those rights will not be changed by disfranchisement.

The claim that manual training and technical education of the negro of the South presented a solution of the race question was denied by Mr. Griggs. "That in itself is a recognition of the negro's inferiority," he said.

LOSES SUIT FOR $10,000.

Hackensack, April 20.—All Ridgefield Park is satisfied, for a jury here yesterday refused to award a cent damages to Albert Shafer, who sued to recover $10,000 from Benjamin B. Stern for the beating Stern gave him last June.

Shafer had insulted Mrs. Stern in remarking while passing the Stern house: "Ah! there's a pretty girl; guess I'll kiss her."

Shafer had Stern indicted and fined $75 last December for the beating. Shafer claims to have been injured internally, but the jury offered no sympathy.

When Stern returned to his home in Ridgefield Park he was welcomed with flying flags and new brooms tied to porches.

Pineapple Juice.

An old pineapple grower tells strange stories about the effect of the juice of the fruit upon certain substances. The juice of the pine is supposed to do more for the larnyx than anything else in the world. Says the grower, "Drop a piece of leather into a glass of pineapple juice and see how quickly it will be eaten up."

CHAPTER VII.

"THE boss is turned down!"

This startling news flew lightning fast to every quarter of the organization and in its wake spread a trail of incredulous amaze. Every member, from alderman to "heeler," knew why Horrigan had made Bennett mayor. That the latter should turn against his benefactor seemed not only black ingratitude, but something akin to insanity, for it apparently spelled political suicide for the young man.

While neither of the disputants had repeated the details of the quarrel, yet those details with many another were already passing from mouth to mouth in the mysterious fashion whereby the closest kept secrets are divulged and enlarged on. In the financial world, too, the veto came as a bombshell. Borough Street railway stock fell with a thud that shook more than one colossal fortune. Bennett—central point of the whole upheaval—was the calmest man of all who were involved. He had chosen his course, and he was following it with a dogged quiet far more dangerous than any loud mouthed bluster. He had laid out a campaign, and that campaign he rigidly followed.

His first step was to send for Perry Wainwright early in the morning following the clash with Horrigan and, under strict pledge of secrecy, to explain the whole complicated affair to that very bewildered young man.

"You're all right, Alwyn! You're all the goods!" crowed Perry in genuine admiration. "But why didn't you backheel Horrigan and throw him downstairs?"

"I think I did," said Bennett dryly. "I think I'm still doing it. That's why I sent for you today."

"Want me to lick him for you?" asked Perry in delight. "He's a bit over my weight, but I wouldn't mind pasting"—

"No," interrupted Bennett, amused at the lad's vehemence. "I want you to play the melodramatic brother and protect your sister."

"Say," snorted Perry, all the lightness gone out of his manner and his young frame stiffening ominously, "d'you mean to say the cur is framing up any game on Dallas? I"—

"Sit down," ordered Alwyn, "and try to use what little human intelligence you may have. I've got to have your help, and what use are you when all you can think of is getting thrashed by somebody? Sit down now and listen to me."

Perry meekly obeyed the new note of command in his friend's voice, and Bennett resumed:

"Your uncle has tried to hamper me by putting all your fortune and Dallas' into Borough Street railway stock. The news of my veto will reach the exchange almost at once. That will cause a slump in Borough stock. If Horrigan fails to carry the bill through over my head—and he will fail if I can possibly block him—that will mean the practical collapse of the stock. It will mean that you and Dallas will be almost penniless."

"Well," suggested Perry cheerfully, "then you can marry Dallas, and little brother Perry can come and live with you. Don't worry, old chap. I"—

"Shut up, you young idiot, and sit down and listen! Here's a check; also a note of introduction to my broker. He's a close mouthed fellow, and he'll keep the secret. I want you to sell Borough stock short to the amount of"—

"To speculate? Gee! I never thought"—

"I don't believe in speculation as a rule, but this time it's the only way out. Sell short. Then if the bill is defeated you and Gladys will still be as well off as you are now, even after paying me back this sum I've advanced. If the bill is passed over my head, the stock will boom, and you'll both be richer than ever. Understand the idea? I think I've arranged it so you and she won't lose a dollar in either case."

"Alwyn," cried Perry, the full idea at last penetrating his youthful brain, "you're the whitest ever. The"—

"Hold on! I do this on one condition."

"Oh!"

"On condition you promise solemnly that neither Dallas nor any one else shall know my share in it."

"But"—

"Promise!"

"Oh, well, all right, then. But Dallas ought to"—

"No, she oughtn't. Now clear out. I'm busy. Don't waste any time going to my broker. I'm holding back the official announcement of the veto as long as I can. But"—

"I'm on. So long, old chap. Enter Perry the Lamb into Bear and Bullville! Let Horrigan & Co. indulge in a timely tremble!"

Scarce had Perry departed on his mission when Phelan was announced.

"Your honor," he shouted as he first caught a glimpse of Bennett. "You're all aces! Nothin' to it. Friend Horrigan's bitin' holes in the ceilin'. He's—oh, you needn't look so mum. I'm wise. I haven't spent ten years and close on a million bucks in scrapin' together a private secret service system for nothin'. 'You've signed the bill?' squeals Horrigan. 'No, you big stiff!' says you, 'I've vetoed it. Now go chase yourself before I knock you from under your hat!' says you. Them was the very words, so I'm told."

"I congratulate you on your secret service men," laughed Bennett. "They seem to have a wonderful faculty for quoting one's remarks literally, but"—

"But did I come here to ladle out hot air to you?" supplemented Phelan. "No, I didn't. I come to tip you off to a meetin' that's held last night at Wainwright's house—him an' Horrigan an' Gibbs an' some others, incloodin' Hen Williams, who's Horrigan's mouthpiece an' handy man in the board of aldermen. Didn't happen to hear of that meetin', did you?"

"No. I am unfortunate in having no secret service corps."

"Never mind," returned Phelan, on whom the satire of the reply was quite lost. "You can get the benefit of mine. Now, at this meetin' they did a lot of jabberin' an' they cussed you up hill an' down dale. Says Horrigan, 'If that young cub'"—

"Thanks," interposed Alwyn, "but I don't care to hear what was said about me. I"—

"All right, then, but there's something you do want to hear. They got busy at last an' framed up a new wordin' for the Borough bill that'll maybe throw dust in your eyes if you ain't put on to it in advance. They've cut out the subway paragraph an' the express business clause, an' they allow transfers at all cross lines. That's the way they'll put the bill up to the aldermen next time. A nice, harmless lookin' document it'll be, an' perhaps the board 'll swaller it if"—

"But do the alterations in the bill also eliminate the 'perpetual franchise' clause?"

"Ah, there's the point! They don't. All the other things you kicked against have been wiped out, but the 'perpetual franchise' clause stands."

"And the $2,000,000 cash offer stands, too," added Bennett. "I still fail to see why I should present Mr. Wainwright's company with a franchise for which another man is willing to pay the city $2,000,000, and I shall fight the bill to the very end."

"Good boy, your honor! An' Jimmy Phelan's with you. We'll make Horrigan look like"—

"He needs fourteen votes to carry the bill past my veto. He has his thirteen aldermen, under Williams' lead. But only those thirteen voted for the bill in its original state. Unless Horrigan and Williams can find a fourteenth alderman to"—

"Unless one of the men who voted against it before can be brought to vote for it next time Horrigan loses," answered Phelan. "He'll make it his business to buy a fourteenth man, an' I'll make it my business to find out who he tries to get an' to help your honor keep that same fourteenth man straight. That's how it adds up so far. Well, I'll be joggin'. I'll keep you posted, an' between us we'll make Horrigan give a livin' picture imitation of a man without a scalp before we're through with him."

Little of Phelan's exultation was reflected in the new mayor's face as the alderman bustled out. His duty lay clear before him, and that duty he would follow. But he alone realized the cost. He had so counted on the promised talk with Dallas Wainwright the preceding evening. On the hopes of that interview he had staked his all. In it he was to have received the half pledged reward for his months of toil and achievement.

Yet in view of his present relations toward Wainwright he could not, of course, visit the financier's home. The doors of the house that contained the woman he loved had been barred to him. And Dallas—what must she have thought of his failure to call?

CHAPTER VIII.

"I'VE found out who their fourteenth man is, your honor," whispered Phelan in high excitement. "It's Roberts—Richard P. Roberts of the Third. He's the alderman that Horrigan's trying to put the Indian sign on. We've got to nail him if we can."

"You're sure it's Roberts?" asked Bennett in the same undertone.

The administration ball was in full swing. Mayor and alderman had chanced to meet for a moment in a big, crowded reception foyer just off the ballroom.

"Am I sure it's Roberts?" echoed Phelan. "Am I sure? Might as well ask me am I sure Chesty Dick Horrigan is crooked. I've got the facts down straight. Them secret service chaps of mine"—

"If they get Roberts they will be able to pass the bill"—

"They ain't goin' to get him if Jimmy Phelan's hand don't turn out to be all deuces an' trays. 'An'"—

"Keep an eye on him and don't let him go away without my knowing it. I must see him tonight and learn positively how he stands in regard to the matter. He has a reputation for being honest. If only"—

"Here's Alwyn, Mrs. Bennett," came Perry Wainwright's voice from the doorway. "In here. Say, your honor, your honorable honor's honored mother has been looking everywhere for you. And now that I've reunited the long lost mayor and his anxious mamma I'll chase off and find my partner for the next waltz. I wish it was Cynthia. Ever dance with Cynthia, Alwyn? Poetry of motion and all that. Like a swan or—or a—oh, good evening, alderman. I didn't see you? Are you dancing tonight?"

"Dancin'?" repeated Phelan in high disgust. "Do I look it? It's bad enough to be harnessed into this open faced suit that feels like I was goin' to slip through of it every minute, without tryin' to dance too. At a show of this kind I feel like a pair of yellow shoes at a fun'ral. So long, your honor. Even', Mrs. Bennett. There's the music startin', son," he added to Perry as he started for the barroom.

"I heard it," said the lad, "but I'm in no wild hurry."

"Thought you said you had a partner to look up?"

"I have—one of Judge Newman's daughters. Ever see her? I thought not or you wouldn't have wondered why I wasn't in a hurry. Better late than"—

"Are you having a good time, mother?" Bennett was asking the little old lady as he found a seat for her.

"Yes," she answered. "Aren't you?"

"Of course I am. Why do you ask?"

The foyer was thinning out as people trooped to the ballroom. For the moment mother and son were alone together.

"You aren't having a good time, Alwyn," she contradicted gently. "You're unhappy about something. Tell me."

"Nonsense!" he denied, with a forced laugh. "I"—

"You are thinking of Dallas, my boy. Is anything wrong between you and her? What has happened?"

"Nothing," he answered sullenly. But the mother was not content. Her heart ached for the grief her son was trying to hide.

Local Boys Take Uphill Game From Strong Metropolitan Nine.

THE SCORE WAS NINE-SEVEN.

Plainfielders Batted In Runs In the Sixth Inning, When Poly Led, 5-3.

The Plainfield High School baseball nine won the season's third victory over metropolitans school team at Crescent Oval Saturday afternoon, when a batting rally in the sixth netted five runs and gave the local schoolboys an uphill victory over the Brooklyn Poly Prep team. The final score was 9-7. The Plainfielders started in with a ragged exhibition, and Poly led 5-3 up to the sixth, when the local team got together and clinched the game by good stick work.

Hits by Mulvihill and Crafts, together with a couple of errors by the local team, started the scoring in the first inning, when three Brooklyn boys crossed the plate. Blanking the Plainfielders, Poly added two more in their second session with the willow, when Bryan's triple and another single by Crafts helped out materially. For P. H. S., Dutcher was out at third for trying to stretch his two-bagger for another sack, but Doane's single scored Snyder, who drew a pass, with the first run for the home nine. Dodwell and Snyder scored on a passed ball by Butler, of Poly, in the fourth.

The local nine took the game in the fifth, when Giddes, Dey and Dutcher hit safely after Wiarda had given two men passes and hit a third High School batter. Butler scored for Poly in the seventh and ninth; Dutcher's hit in the eighth scored Giddes and the Plainfielders did not have to come to bat in the ninth. The score in detail:

Highlanders Won, 16-4.

The Highland Park A. C. nine trimmed the Jr. O. U. A. M. team in a well-played game on Home Common Saturday afternoon. Coon and Winters were the points for the Highlanders, and Montross and Van Ardsdale were on the slab for the Juniors, while Banks wore the big mitt. Coon's arcs fooled the Juniors completely, and he kept the hits scattered. Brown was strong at the bat for the Highlanders, while "Maneater" Mullen's base running was a feature. Next Saturday the Highlanders will play the East Millstone team at East Millstone.

EASTER IN THE CHURCHES

the Cross Were All," the choir rendered the cantata, "The Crucifixion," by Schnecker. The services were concluded with an anthem, "Alleluia," Humphrey, the benediction and the recessional, piano and organ. Rev. Dr. T. L. Gardiner expected to take part in the service, but was called to New York to preach in the Seventh-Day Baptist church there.

Faith Chapel.

The principal Easter service at Faith chapel was held last night under the auspices of the Sunday-school, of which L. W. Randolph is the superintendent. In the opening exercises Rev. Dr. J. A. Crambliss read the Scripture lesson and his brother, Rev. Dr. Joseph Chambliss, offered prayer. This program was then followed:

Anthem, "They Have Taken Away My Lord," choir; recitation, "What Eater Means," Nellie Askham, Clinton Eckstein, Cora Cornelius, Lillian Ryno, Mary Conaway, Clarence Hook; song, primary department; recitations, "The Easter Dress," Lillian Ryno; "Easter Dawn," Grace Baker; "The Resurrection," Hardress and George Patterson; solo and chorus, "The Stone Is Rolled Away," Grace Baker and primary department; recitation, "Easter Morn," Harold Wahlig; anthem, "Easter Dawn," choir; recitation, "Easter Herald," Vernon Stewart; duet, Bessie Carson and Christine Viebrock; recitations, Edna Stewart, Austin Eckstein; vocal solo, Blanche Askham; anthem, "Choir Angelic," choir; remarks by the pastor, Rev. J. W. Musson; anthem, "Low in the Grave He Lay," choir; carol, "Jesus is Victor Today," school. The renditions by the choir were under the direction of William Holmes. Special music was given by the choir in the morning and the pastor, Rev. J. W. Musson, preached an appropriate sermon.

Monroe Avenue M. E.

The baptism of Henry Frank Schwarz, the infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Schwarz, was a feature of the Sunday-school Easter services at the Monroe Avenue M. E. church, yesterday morning. Rev. C. S. Kemble, pastor, officiated. The members of the school participated in a special program, including concert recitations, singing of carols, while Mr. Kemble gave a short address. The superintendent, Walter McGee, was in charge. Miss Charlotte Aldrich was at the piano.

In the morning and evening there was special music by a chorus choir and Easter sermons by the pastor. The theme in the morning was "The Significance of Christ's Resurrection," and in the evening he delivered a unique discourse, using a lump of coal as the basis of his remarks for the theme, "Why should it seem a thing incredible to you that God should raise the Dead."

He said that the lump of coal which he held in his hand and had fallen millions of years ago, represented light, heat and power and by this illustration he showed the possibilites of the Resurrection. He said that coal represented carbon in humiliation and through a process the diamond was glorified and shown in its greatest purity. This he likened unto the body glorified through the cleansing progress of the Holy Spirit. The idea impressed on the congregation was that if such wonderful things could be accomplished with coad, why should the Resurrection be attended by doubts in the minds of the people.

Park Avenue Baptist.

"The Story of Calvary," an Easter cantata, was the feature of the service at the Park Avenue Baptist church yesterday morning. The rendition was by the chorus choir under the direction of Robert H. Lowry. Horace J. Martin was the narrator, while Arthur Mosher and Miss Arline Brown assisted with violins. The pastor, Rev. A. E. Finn, preached a sermon on the subject of "The Resurrection of Christ." The church was elaborately decorated for the occasion with flowers and plants.

The principal service of the day was in the afternoon, under the auspices of the Sunday-school, and in which the primary department had a part. There was a cornet solo, "The Lost Chord," by Whitney C. Frazee, and vocal solos by Mrs. William H. Sebring and Miss Adelia Runyon, together with instrumental selections by the school orchestra and violin accompaniment by Miss Arline Brown, recitation by Miss Elinor Stutsman, with quartet accompaniment and carols.

The choir rendered special music in the evening and the pastor preached on the subject, "The Resurrection of the Spiritually Dead," after which he baptized Miss Lily Hibbin, Miss Florence A. Crammer, Miss Lilian Van Winkle and Charles Edward Dalby. There were large congregations at all three services.

First M. E.

Easter anthems by the vested choir under the direction of J. Edmund Skiff, together with solo numbers, and appropriate sermons by the pastor, Rev. A. C. McCrea, attracted large congregations to the First M. E. church yesterday. The edifice was lavishly decorated with flowers, plants and greens, banked about the pulpit platform. At both the morning and evening services there were solo numbers by Miss Bertha van-Nuis Willis, soprano; Miss Suzanne Zimmerman, contralto, and a feature was the rendition of "The Resurrection," by Arthur Chamberlain, baritone.

In the afternoon in Vincent chapel, the Sunday-school, under the direction of J. R. Joy, superintendent, presented a special program. There were Easter carols by the main school, concert recitations, while the members of the primary department, under the direction of Mrs. Thomas MacDonald, superintendent, and the beginners' department in charge of Mrs. Arthur E. Crone, superintendent, gave a program of songs and recitations as published in The Daily Press on Saturday.

Warren Chapel.

Easter Day services at Warren chapel were marked by unusually large congregations and lavish floral decorations, with special music added beauty to the services. Rev. J. O. Mapping Airship Harbors.

The mapping of airship harbors is a new duty of the British war office. The map already made shows chosen hollows in woods, at the foot of sheltering hillsides and in deep gravel pits, where a balloon in distress may descend quickly and lie protected from gales that may be sweeping over the exposed country.

For the Hot-Water Bag.

Heat applied locally for neuralgic pains is very soothing and effective. It is best to have a hot-water bag always in the house, as it is one of the best ways of applying heat. The heat of the water may be too intense to hold the bag itself against the skin, so it is a good idea to make a flannel bag for covering the rubber bag.

To Relieve Sore Throat.

A simple way to relieve sore throat is to take a lump of resin about as large as a walnut, put it into an old teapot, pour on boiling water, and then put the lid on and place the spout in your mouth; the steam will prove beneficial in allaying inflammation.

Defends Electric Light.

Reports to the effect that electric lights are detrimental to the eyesight are pronounced unfounded by an electrical expert in the London Times. He says that the trouble arises from too direct exposure of the eye to the light, and that effect would be the same or worse with any other light.

ROAD WORK IN BOROUGH

Arrangement with County to Macadamize Greenbrook Rd. and Extend Watchung Ave.

ELECTRICIAN LOSES HIS JOB.

Telephone Company to Do This Work in the Future—Councilmanic Routine.

By guaranteeing ten per cent. of the cost of the improvements sought, the North Plainfield Council made the macadamizing of Greenbrook road and the extension of Watchung avenue to Somerset street practically a certainty at a special meeting held last night. The petition for these improvements was made by the borough fathers to the county Board of Freeholders some time ago, but was recently returned for the insertion of the ten per cent. clause.

There was no opposition to the incorporation of the clause when the councilmen assembled last night. Mayor Samuel Townsend had the two petitions read and a formal resolution for their amendment by the insertion of the clause was presented by Councilman Waldron and unanimously carried. When the Freeholders were in North Plainfield last week to inspect the proposed improvement and extension, it was reported that the members of the Board look with favor on the borough's petition.

After considerable discussion, in which the Mayor and Councilmen Woolston, Nichols and Smith took part, it was voted to frame a contract with the New York and New Jersey Telephone Co. to maintain the borough fire alarm system at the rate of $275 a year. This proposition was submitted through Mayor Townsend, and the rate includes the entire cost of keeping the North Plainfield fire alarm system in repair, both as far as wires are concerned and in fire headquarters. The company is to supply material for repairs.

Several years ago, it was the custom of the borough's mayor to appoint a borough electrician, who was paid $175 a year to keep the wire system in repair. This did not include material. In adition, the telephone company was paid $100 yearly for electricity to maintain the system. A faction of North Plainfield taxpayers, claiming that the borough electrician had duties which could easily be discharged by the telephone company, brought the matter to Mayor Townsend's attention and the contract was framed after a consultation with the telephone officials and Borough Counsel Charles A. Reed. It was unanimously endorsed at last night's meeting.

The Council's attention was called to the fact that the former borough electrician, while not formally reappointed by Mayor Townsend, had been attending to the fire alarm system since the beginning of the present administration, but this eventually proved no drawback to the endorsement of the contract with the telephone company.

STORES WILL BE OPEN MEMORIAL DAY HERE

Several shopkeepers objecting to the plan of closing their stores on holidays, the Plainfield Merchants' Association, at a regular meeting, last night, voted to keep open on Memorial Day. This action was taken after a lengthy discussion. A majority of the members favored closing, but for the purpose of giving the change a trial, they voted with those who want to keep open. After that the association will determine what is to be done on succeeding holidays.

The question of a "bad credit list" was reported by the executive committee and a more complete statement will be presented later. The committee has been busily engaged in preparing a list of people who should not be given credit and when this is completed each member of the association will be furnished a copy.

The members discussed a number of other matters of more or less importance tended to advance their interest and renewed their allegiance to the plan to refrain from advertising in anything but newspapers with a bona-fide paid subscription list. This action is taken to protect the merchants from persons who are constantly seeking advertisements for programs, catalogues, etc., which is considered a useless investment of money.

FORMER LOCAL RESIDENT PASSES AWAY IN GERMANY

Friends in Plainfield have received news of the death of Gustav Schipper, for many years a prominent local resident, which occurred on April 8 at his home in Oldenburg, Germany. He had been in ill health for a long time but his demise was unexpected.

Mr. Schipper was sixty-seven years old and a native of Oldenburg, but came to this country when a young man. He was a brother to the late Charles Schipper, of West Seventh street, and lived for many years on East Ninth street. He returned to Germany in 1903, believing the ocean voyage and the change of climate would benefit his failing health and it did to a certain extent.

Mr. Schipper married a Miss Escher, a member of one of Oldenburg's finest families, who with one child survives him. The young woman came to this city to visit Charles Schipper's family and it was while a guest there that she was introduced to her future husband. The wedding took place here and was a social event.

While not as actively engaged in hospital and other philanthropic work as was Charles Schipper, the deceased was a broad-minded, liberal man and his beneficiaries in Plainfield were equally as numerous.

Department Inspection.

Mayor Fisk will hold the annual inspection of both the police and fire departments on Wednesday afternoon, May 6.

George Moore, Jr., of West Fouth street, has been discharged from uhlenberg Hospital where he underwent seven weeks' treatment for pneumonia and complications.

THE "BIG SMOKE" SENDS YOUNG TOUGHS TO JAIL

Complaints made recently by property owners living along the line of the New Jersey Central that it was impossible to keep panes of glass in barns and chicken-coops because of coal train riders hurling missiles through them, resulted in the local police making a crusade yesterday. They picked up five offenders who proved to be the "toughest" youths ever in a cell at headquarters. They described themselves as Charles Raybold, Thomas Connell, Robert P. Talbot, Henry Bolte and Charles See, all about sixteen years old and residing in Jersey City.

When Judge Runyon reached the police station, this morning, the prisoners were shouting with the full strength of their lungs and any admonition to keep quiet was greeted with a volley of curses. The magistrate paused in the shadow of a cell door to listen to them unobserved and he had barely taken position when one of them yelled:

"We don't care for anyone in Plainfield; the Big Smoke on the bench can give us thirty days if he wants to."

The "Big Smoke" took the shouter at his word and when the quintette lined up before him he sentenced all to one month in the county jail. They snickered openly at his verdict and as Doorman McCue locked them up again they sang in chorus: "Ta, Ta, Au Revoir, I'm goin' to go."

SOMERSET ST. CARS TO RESUME SHORT SCHEDULE

As the result of a conference between Mayor Samuel Townsend, of North Plainfield, and District Superintendent J. J. Gettings and Local Superintendent George Luhrs, of the Street Railway Department of the Public Service, the trolley cars on the Somerset-Fourth street line will resume the fifteen minute night schedule tonight. The conference was brought about at the instigation of the Mayor when the cars were run on a half hour schedule on Somerset street after 10:30 o'clock at night. This was begun about two weeks ago, without any previous notice from the trolley people.

Mr. Townsend met the two trolley officials at the North Plainfield Council chamber this morning at 11 o'clock and requested that the cars be run on full schedule again. He said that he had received many complaints from boroughites who had stood long and expectantly on the street corners of Somerset street and said he was surprised to learn that the cars should be changed from a fifteen minute schedule to a half hour schedule without notifying him.

When asked the reason for the change in schedule, the Public Service officials said that the receipts from the line had not been sufficient to guarantee the full schedule time late in the evening. The Mayor pointed out that, to judge by the number of complaints he had received, it seemed that it would pay now, and the short schedule will be resumed.

Choir Children Entertained.

The children of the choir of Grace church Mission were given a reception and egg hunt at the home of Miss Lulu Douglas on East Third street, yesterday afternoon, from 3 to 6. Rev. and Mrs. J. H. Simons were in attendance and assisted in the entertaining. The affair was arranged by Miss Douglas, Miss Carrie Bundy and R. B. Norwood.

In the City Court.

Patrick Ennis, a coachman employed by a family on Rahway road, was arraigned in the city court this morning on a charge of disorderly conduct. He left his place yesterday and in an argument over the amount of wages due it was declared that he had become very abusive. Judge Runyon fined him $10.

CAPT. HOPKINS EFFORTS

Head of Local Salvation Army Corps at Work Getting Barrack's Finances in Shape.

HE HELPS THE TAXPAYER.

Keeps Well Known Characters' Names Off Police Blotters By Reforming Them—Receiving Good Support.

In organizing the work of the Salvation Army in this city on a practical business basis as far as the matter of donations is concerned, Captain Arthur Hopkins has aroused greater interest in the work here and has proportionally broadened the local field. He and his wife, whose singing is a notable feature of so many of the meetings, ar heart and soul in the work, and have won the support of many for the charitable work of the corps.

Capt. and Mrs. Arthur Hopkins.

Captain Hopkins succeeded Ensign James Johnson as the head of the local corps in July. His first work was to inform himself perfectly as to the financial condition of the corps and to prepare a budget of the cost of maintaining the work. He found that it is costing $2,600 annually to continue the work, while the receipts from donations, collections and box contributions lear year amounted to but $650. Maintaining that perpetual "nagging" for money is a poor policy, he has adopted the system of securing annual subscriptions for the work.

His canvass has resulted in obtaining $750 toward making up the deficit. Among those who are interested in the support of the work are Harry G. Runkle, Mrs. Percy Stewart, C. W. McCutchen, E. S. Hooley, Alexander Gilbert, Alexander Millar, R. B. Corey, John D. Lolzeaux and William S. Tyler.

"So many people misunderstand the work we are doing here," said the Captain to a Daily Press reporter today. "They think we are solely a charitable organization for the poor, whereas we are striving to bring about the evangelization of the poor and the unchurched masses. First and foremost, then, our work is of a religious nature, for you know there are some people who do not care to attend the churches, thinking, I suppose, that their clothes are not good enough.

"The maintainance of this work is really an advantage to the taxpayer. You see, we have been successful in bringing into our corps several who were constantly an expense to the city through the police courts. Drunken characters are such an expense to the community that you would be astonished to hear the figures. I heard recently that fifteen character, reformed through the work of the Salvation Army corps in Buffalo, cost that city $47,000 for their support while in jail and in bringing about their arrest. They were constantly in the lock-up, it seemed.

"Now right here in Plainfield we have effected the conversion of two drunken characters, a man and a woman, whose names you can see with regular frequency on the police court blotters of several years ago. We have not been successful in every case, but we are never discouraged and are greatly encouraged by the fact that these two, at least, have entirely quit drinking and now are self-supporting, in Christian homes.

"The Industrial Home is a distinct branch of the work of the Salvation Army, and is practically self-supporting. Our first boject in this is to supply employment for men who constantly appeal to us. They are mostly men who are 'down and out' and have a bad record, so that after they reform, it is hard for them to find a job and get a new start in life. We send them out to collect papers and magazines, which we sell to the paper mills. Clothing, too, is donated in large quantities, and this we distribute to the needy poor. You may be surprised to know that most of these poor people whom we sup-

THIS NEW PASTOR COMES FROM A FAMILY OF MINISTERS

Rev. Edwin Shaw and Family.

Rev. Edwin Shaw, the pastor-elect of the Seventh-Day Baptist church, who will enter upon his duties here about July 1, comes from a family of ministers on the paternal and maternal side for three generations. He will succeed his own brother, Rev. George B. Shaw, at Westerner, the latter having left here to accept a charge in the West.

Mr. Shaw is about forty years old and was born in Central Minnesota. He obtained his early education in a preparatory school and later entered Milton College, Milton, Wisconsin, from which institution he was graduated. He then accepted the professorship of chemistry and Latin there, which position he has held for twenty years with the exception of a brief interval, during which he took a course at the Chicago University. Although he never expected to enter the ministry, he was ordained that he might fill the pulpit at the Seventh-Day Baptist church, Rock River, Wis., which is about five miles from Milton. He has done a good work there and added many persons to the membership.

Mr. Shaw has a wife and three children. Mrs. Shaw is equally zealous and active in religious work. Rev. George B. Shaw in speaking of Mrs. Shaw, said: "My brother's wife has the same Christian name as myself and the same Christian graces as my wife."

The members of the Seventh-Day Baptist church here are looking forward with happy expectancy to the arrival of Mr. Shaw and his family. The choice is said to be particularly fortunate and the new pastor as well as the people are counting on an active campaign in religious endeavor here.

AMERICAN MADE LACES.

American manufacturers are bound sooner or later to produce on this side of the water the millions of yards of laces used by the American women. It may take English machines to do the work, as is the case with this product of the American Lace Manufacturing Co., of Elyria, O.; but the feat is being accomplished, and such beautiful and well finished laces are being turned out that there is much to be hoped for in the American lace maker.

We will introduce thru this special sale and exhibition of American made laces an exceptional line of Valenciennes Laces in Filet, German, French and other Fancy Meshes in charming original designs and entirely new styles, the finish and quality being of the best, every yard being guaranteed to wash and wear as well and even better than the imported goods.

The Knollwood Country Club near White Plains will have a new professional this year, R. M. Thomson having been recently engaged to take the place of George Turnbull, who has gone to the Columbia Golf Club.

The officers of the New York Golf Club are arranging a schedule of members' competitions to begin at an early date on the Van Cortlandt Park links. The officers for the year are: President, John Clingen; vice president, J. A. Holden; secretary, Francis J. Kelly; treasurer, Ogden Davidson.

Rubber teeing grounds will be used this season by the players of the Calumet Country Club, Chicago. Rough rubber matting about four inches thick will form the "teeing ground," the officers having decided to give the experiment a trial with a view to overcoming the wear and tear on the regular dirt tees.

Bernard Nicholls, who recently won second place in the so-called North and South open championship at Pinehurst, has laid out a new 9-hole course for the Cherokee Country Club, Knoxville, Tenn. It will be increased to 18 holes later in the year.

Miss Julia R. Mix, one of the foremost golf women in the Englewood Club, will be a prominent competitor in the metropolitan events this year. She has been keeping in good practice on Southern links, her most notable triumph being her victory in the women's North and South tournament at Pinehurst, when she defeated Mrs. Allan P. Chase, of Boston, 1 up in a 21-hole match.

Frederick Snare has been appointed chairman of the greens committee of the Englewood Golf Club for the coming season. H. V. Keep is chairman of the contest committee, and Walter C. Shoup of the house committee.

The Nassau Country Club has been assigned June 19 and 20 as dates for a two days' invitation tournament. This will probably be run off along lines similar to those decided at Montclair and Baltusrol last fall. With a two-day affair it is customary to have the contestants qualify in eights. These quick action tournaments seem destined to become popular in this section, where business men find it difficult to get away for a longer period.

LOCAL AMUSEMENTS

"Dora Thorne," a dramatization novel of the present season, marks a new departure in melodrama. The story of the play follows the book accurately enough to permit the use of the title, but the playwright has chosen the incidents and happenings with excellent taste, and woven them into a play that is interesting in the extreme. The audience cannot help but engage themselves sympathetically with every turn of the fortune of "Dora Thorne," a girl whom the English would call "low born," who won the affections of and married the Duke's son. The resultant plot may be mapped out but the treatment of her natural girlish exuberance in contrast to the habitual reserve and repression of the manner aristocratic, must be seen to be appreciated. A large share of the success of the performance is due to the cast, which is strong throughout, including as it does Miss Corinne Snell in the name part. "Dora Thorne" will be seen at the New Plainfield theatre tonight.

An exchange says: "Miss Alma Hearn's popularity was fully demonstrated last night before a capacity house. Piquant, vivacious and diminutive, her position as one of our leading comediennes is assured." Miss Hearn appears at the New Plainfield theatre tomorrow night in the three act comic opera, "The Little Trooper," surmounted by a well known and capable cast of operatic associates, including William Blaisdell, formerly with "The Jewel of Asia," "The Toreador," "Fantanna," and other comic opera successes. A splendid chorus is promised, individually attractive and well trained musically. Frederick Solomon, director for Klaw & Erlanger, staged the production with their permission. The organization carries the entire scenic effects for the three acts.

During one of United States Senator Robert M. La Follette, of Wisconsin, visits to New York, he attended the performance of "The Man of the Hour" and after the performance said: "'The Man of the Hour' is indeed a great play ably acted. The action of the piece develops along the lines I have been following in my political career for many years. It shows up 'graft' in public affairs and illustrates the great pressure brought to bear upon a public official who seeks to fulfill his obligations to the people. Such a play should have tremendous influence, for the stage is as powerful in its influence as the press or pulpit." "The Man of the Hour" will be presented at the New Plainfield theatre next Tuesday night.

John Hand Camp, No. 28, Sons of Veterans, will hold a regular meeting tonight at Reform Hall to plan for Memorial Day. The Women's Relief Corps will meet at the same place Friday night for the same purpose.

BASEBALL.

The Scotch Plains team will open the season at home Saturday with the Perth Amboy nine for its opponents.

Pulliam's new umpire, Rudderham, has a good voice.

Jack Kleinow it hitting the ball harder than any other catcher.

Dubuc, Notre Dame's pitcher, who is wanted by many clubs, will probably go to the New York Nationals according to report.

There wasn't a manager in the National League who wasn't pleased at Wagner's return to Pittsburg or who became any the less hopeful for his own team on that account.

Hummel is doing finished work in left field for the Brooklyns. Patsy Donovan said when he returned from the South that Hummel would be the best outfielder in the league.

From the accounts of the Lobert row in Cincinnati and the language directed at that player by the occupants of a so-called "rooters' row" it is a wonder that the Cincinnati team ever can win a home game with such "rooters" on hand.

Johnny Evers is quoted as declaring that he will take a year of rest after this season. He thinks he isn't robust enough to stand the strain; yet he points out that he now weighs 137 pounds stripped and weighed only 115 when he joined the Cubs in 1902.

The kind of home runs that the cranks like to see most are not those which sail over a convenient fence but the sort that keep in the field, roll and roll and offer some sort of a chance for the fielder to get the ball in and head off the runner. The wallops that clear the ramparts are all one sided.

The schedule has provided some fat plums for the Brooklyn club. The Brooklyns opened at home, had the equivalent of an opening with the New Yorks last Saturday and are the visiting team when the New Yorks open at the Polo Grounds next Wednesday. These three games will attract fully 50,000 persons.

Where is the consistency of a ruling that in the event of an attempt to make a double steal the man going to second shall not be credited with a steal if the other runner is put out at third, where as if the latter is not put out the man going to second shall get a steal? If the ball is thrown to third base there is no chance of getting the man at second anyway, and whether or not the man at third is put out has no bearing on the other runner getting to second. Either the man going to second should be credited with a steal no matter what happens to the other runner or no such thing as a double steal should be recognized.

The New York Sun has adopted the style of omitting the column of runs from the box score and running them in the summary, thereby allowing room in the box for the "times at bat," a feature generally liked by those who follow detail scores. It is expected that the style will be copied more or less by other newspapers.

The Eastern League season will open tomorrow, the particular game of interest here being the one between the Newarks and Skeeters at Jersey City. "Lou" Wiltse may pitch for Jersey City.

The Plainfield High School baseball team will play a practise game with the Camp Bowser nine on Crescent Oval this afternoon. There will be several prominent college players in town who will play with Camp Bowser. Van Zandt will be on the slab for the High School.

GOLF.

Undaunted by defeat last week in their first team match of the season, the Columbia golfers are going to be very much in the game for the next two months, and will play matches with a number of local club teams. The team members at present are C. W. Hart, Jr., A. R. Broe, G. Loder, W. S. Hoyt, and H. Hudson.

A team match for a dinner in honor of Judge Thomas J. Lintott, president of the club, will be the novel and interesting opening competition of the Forest Hill Field Club near Newark on May 9. The dinner will

GUARD GETS SADDLE OF GEN. PHIL KEARNY

The Phil Kearny Guard, or as it is officially known now, Company C, Second Regiment, N. Y. N. G., held its fortieth anniversary dinner last night in Grand Army Hall, Elizabeth, in the same room in which the guard was organized forty years ago.

General Dennis F. Collins, commanding officer of the Second Regiment, was the principal speaker, and sprang a surprise by presenting to the company the old saddle and bridle of General Kearny, which had been preserved in Trenton. Mayor Rryan also made an address.

General Collins was accompanied by his staff, among whom were Major William B. Martin and Colonel Robert L. Patterson. Besides these there were in attendance Captains Richard Cross, T. F. McCarthy and Conrad Hall, Lieutenants Louis J. Park, George Woodie and Pearsall. The committee in charge included Lieutenant William R. Grant, Sergeant W. T. Davis, Corporal E. M. Davis, Charles Pearsall, Arthur Cook, Edward Egbert and Walter Jacobson.

Seven-Minute Trolley Schedule.

The Public Service Corporation has agreed to the proposition to operate the Netherwood cars through the business part of the city as far west as Grant avenue, providing a seven-minute schedule in this part of the city. It is expected that permission will be granted the company to move the Fourth street turnout to a point near Liberty street and thus obviate the present trouble of holding up cars on the other local lines. The public affairs committee to which the matter was referred will present a report at the May meeting. If the company could obtain permission to install several "Y's" in the city new and improved cars would be placed on the local lines, but no action is expected soon regarding this matter.

Twenty-four Indictments.

The Somerset county Grand Jury, which began its labors at the opening day of the spring term of courts last Tuesday and adjourned over Good Friday and Sunday, finished its work late yesterday afternoon and returned twenty-four true bills of indictment. The largest number of complaints a Somerset jury has investigated in some years came up for consideration. The jurors were dismissed by Judge Schenck, with the thanks of the court. There were no murder cases for investigation this term. It is probable that the majority of those indicted will be arranged to plead on Friday morning next.

A special meeting of the Middlesex Volunteer Fire Company was held last evening in Temperance Hall, at which William Hamilton, president pro tem, stated that an offer had reached the company from the owners of the old Teeple property to sell to them a sixty foot front 150 foot rear and the building contained thereon at five dollars a running foot and a consideration for the building. The offer was accepted unanimously and P. C. McDonough, R. Horn and Rev. C. W. F. Attlee were appointed to complete the purchase. This is a most desirable property and will exactly meet the requirements of the fire company. The special committee held a meeting at which they found that it would be necessary to negotiate a loan but two of the members instantly declared their willingness to provide it and the purchase therefore may already be regarded as an accomplished fact.

THE FORUM.

Editor, The Daily Press:

Late Thursday night, Governor Fort signed a bill fathered by Senator Ackerman, that is destined to do more practical good, and avoid more downright misery than all the rest of the work of the last Legislature put together.

The old law gave to the childless widow only one half her husband's money.

If all men died rich, this would be all very well. But most men die poor, and this made-made statute worked great hardship and cruelty. Women who should have been comfortable for life were made poor. Women who might have been poor, but still able to exist, were made paupers. Honest women became dishonest in their attempts to keep what the law gave to others. And the public was burdened with unnecessary cases of destitution.

All this has been done away with by Senator Ackerman's bill. Now upon a man's death, leaving no children, all his money goes to his wife. Unfortunately, this is not true of his land. But a great evil that has existed for over 150 years has been remedied, and that without noise or ostentation.

In the Senate, Mr. Ackerman made a stirring speech in behalf of his bill. It was opposed by Senator Robbins. Senator Gebhardt however, speaking in its favor, said it was a reflection upon the lawyer members of the Senate that it should have been left to a lay member to introduced so beneficial a piece of remedial legislation. Senator Hillery also spoke in favor of the bill.

The bill reached the Governor late in the session; other bills pressed upon his attention. The present law had stood for centuries. Could it not stand a year longer? But Senator Ackerman's persistency won. The Governor worked late into the night, and almost the last bill to be signed within the five days after the adjournment of the Legislature, was Senate Bill 197, doing away with another crying evil. No longer can it be said that the laws of New Jersey oppress the widow in her affliction. Still she is not put on an even footing in this matter with her husband, but a long stride has been taken toward justice and equity.

TIMELY STAGE NOTES FROM NEW YORK TOWN.

"The Warren of Virginia," with Charlotte Walker and Frank Keenan in the principal roles, is in its sixth month at the Belasco theatre.

Much of the characteristic excellence of Frank Keenan's Virginia gentleman and soldier, Gen. Warren, in "The Warrens of Virginia," is due to the actor's painstaking study of the Virginia people at close hand. After "The Girl of the Golden West" closed its season last year Mr. Keenan went to Virginia and spent his vacation there.

David Warfield is filling Belasco's Stuyvesant theatre at every performance with "The Music Master" and "A Grand Army Man," the latter play constituting the attraction every Saturday night.

"The Warrens of Virginia" will complete its 150th performance at the Belasco theatre with the Thursday matinee, April 16.

The same little black-and-tan dog that was secured for the first performance of "The Music Master" is still in the cast at Belasco's Stuyvesant theatre, where David Warfield is apeparing in his famous character of von Barwig every night excepting Saturday. The little animal appears only in the first act.

"OPEN PULPIT" IS RESENTED.

Episcopal Clergymen Are Quitting Their Church of the Richmond anon.

Milwaukee, Wis., April 21.—The "open pulpit" canon passed at the last convention of the Protestant Episcopal church has stirred the High Church element in this diocese. Already several High Church clergymen are reported to have joined the Roman Catholic church, and others are moving in that direction, it is said. It is reported that many divinity students at Nashotah have quit the seminary.

Nine in all, including students and instructors, are said to be included in the list, and though all have not joined the Catholic church, two, Rev. Edward Hawks and Rev. James Bourne, it is asserted, have been baptized into the Catholic church at Philadelphia. Three others are said to have gone to Philadelphia, but the Eposcopalian authorities refuse to confirm the report. These clergymen, claiming valid ordination direct from the sacramental institution by Jesus Christ, resent the throwing open of their pulpits to the clergymen of other Protestant beliefs, who, it is alleged, have no valid claim on holy orders.

FEW IMMIGRANTS ARRIVE.

In March Total Was 32,517 Against More Than Four times as Many Year Ago.

Washington, April 21.—Immigration into the United States in March decreased seventy-six per cent. as compared with the same month of of 1906, and seventy-seven per cent. as compared with 1907. The total number of immigrants arriving in this country last month was 32,517 as against 139,118 in March a year ago.

The country showing the greatest decrease is Italy. In March, 1907, there were 44,455 Italian immigrants, but only 6,612 in March, 1908. Hungary stood next with a total of 27,367 for March, 1907, as against 1,804 for March of this year. In March, 1907, 3,400 Japanese arrived here, as against 1,202 for last month. In March, 1906, Russia contributed 24,202 toward our population, and in March, 1907, 21,275, while in March just past only 5,469 arrived from that country.

WANTS CATS TO BE LICENSED.

Alderman Says They Are Common Disturbers of the Peace.

Alderman William C. Herbert, of the Eighth ward, Jersey City, contemplates having an ordinance passed to have cats licensed, because he complaints his sleep has been so disturbed of late he is nearly distracted.

"I look at its this way," said the alderman. "Dogs are licensed and the city gains many dollars, and a dog never disturbed any one's slumbers except to frighten away the intruder. Cats are common disturbers of the peace, and, according ti my way of thinking, should be licensed. I intend to take the matter up with the other members of the board at the next meeting."

VICE-CHANCELLOR WALKER WILL HONOR GEN. COLLINS.

General Dennis F. Collins is to be the guest of honor at a dinner to be given by Vice-Chancellor Edwin R. Walker in the Windsor Hotel, Trenton, tonight.

General Collins will be attended by his staff. After the dinner they will attend the grand military ball to be given by the citizens of Trenton for the joint benefit of the hospitals of the city and the Second Regiment.

Pictures and Vaudeville.

Salisbury's pictures will be the attraction at the New Plainfield theatre Thursday and Friday of this week and on Saturday the pictures will be given in conjunction with a high class vaudeville bill. Manager Counihan has already secured four headline cast for matinee and night performances.

Rasores Club Meeting.

The Rasores Club met this morning with Mrs. T. H. Tomlinson, of East Seventh street. There were quotations from Thomas Carlisle.

The New Mayor

Based on G. H. Broadhurst's Successful Play

The Man of The Hour

By ALBERT PAYSON TERHUNE.

Copyright, 1907, by George H. Broadhurst.

"Something has happened, Alwyn," she declared, "and I want to know what, so that I can help you. You love her. And that day she came back from Europe I felt sure she loved you. What is holding you two apart?"

"Nothing that can be helped."

"But you never go to see her or"—

"How can I? You know my attitude toward her uncle. How can I call on her while she is in his house? I exposed his relations toward the Borough Street railway franchise bill. I am fighting him and his iniquitous bill with every means in my power! Dallas lives"—

"I hadn't thought of that. You poor boy! But surely"—

"And something more. Her money and Perry's are invested in Borough stocks. By beating that bill I seem outwardly to be willfully wrecking their fortune. I told you the plan I arranged with Perry to avert this, but she doesn't know of that. And"—

"Why don't you tell her, then? Or let me tell her?"

"Because it isn't her gratitude I want. I want her to love me."

"But don't you see in the meantime what a weapon you are putting into Mr. Wainwright's hands? Suppose he tells Dallas of your enmity to him and lets her know you are seemingly trying to impoverish her and her brother? He might prejudice her terribly against"—

"I've thought of all that. I must be content to wait. Next Friday the revised Borough bill comes up before the aldermen again for the final fight. When it's settled one way or the other I can go to her and explain. Meantime"—

"Meantime she is here tonight with Mr. Wainwright. Have you seen her?"

"Only for a minute."

"Did she treat you with the same friendliness, the same interest, as of old? Don't think I'm inquisitive, dear. I only ask all these questions because I love you."

"I know," he answered, pressing her hand as it lay on his arm, "yet I can hardly answer you, for I hardly know. In her presence I am not at ease because I can't tell her everything, and she seems ill at ease because she knows there's something I don't tell her. Oh, it's a wretched position for us both!"

"Then why don't you clear it up?"

"Then why don't you clear it up?"

"By going to her and saying: 'Dallas, I am exposing your uncle as a blackguard and am destroying your fortune and Perry's. Will you marry me?' These are the facts; but, thank God, it's only till Friday. After that I can go to her and make it all clear."

Before Mrs. Bennett could reply Perry returned to the ballroom, Cynthia at his side.

"Then why not give me the next one, too?" the lad was pleading. "If one twostep's good, two twosteps are twice as good. Please"—

"But see," expostulated Cynthia, showing him her card. "The next is Mr. Gibbs'. I've told you that twice."

"I wish Gibbs all the luck in the world," observed Perry benevolently, as he deposited Cynthia on a fauteuil beside her chaperon, Mrs. Bennett. "I wish him so much good luck that if he'd slip and break both his legs I'd pay for a cab to take him home."

"Look out, please!" begged Cynthia. "He's coming."

"The next is ours, I think, Miss Garrison," said Gibbs, entering from the ballroom with Dallas on his arm. "I hope we'll have better fortune than Miss Wainwright and I. My step does not seem to suit hers tonight."

"No, I'm afraid the fault was mine," protested Dallas. "I'm a little tired, I think. May I sit here with you a few minutes, Mrs. Bennett?" she added as Gibbs bore Cynthia away for their dance.

"You don't seem very fond of Mr. Gibbs, Perry," observed Mrs. Bennett, noting young Wainwright's scowl of impotent wrath.

"Not fond enough to make me want to live in the same world with him, Mrs. Bennett, you're too pretty to be just a chaperon. Come and dance this twostep with me. Please do!"

He nodded with vast significance toward Dallas and Bennett, and the little old lady, catching the idea, accepted with alacrity.

"I'm so glad even to get this minute with you," began Alwyn when he and Dallas were alone. "It's so long since"—

"Since you came to see me? Yes, but that is your fault. Alwyn, why haven't you called since I came home?"

"Don't you know why, Dallas?"

"No."

"Are you certain you don't know?"

"I—I don't know absolutely," she faltered. "Oh, there are so many things I don't know absolutely!"

"What is one of them?"

"For one thing, you and I used to be such good friends and"—

"That is past," said Alwyn firmly. "There can be no talk of mere friendship between you and me, Dallas. I must be everything or nothing to you. Tonight I can't speak as I want to, but I can in a very few days. Trust me till then. You know I am fighting Mr. Wainwright's interests and"—

"Yes," she replied bitterly. "My uncle gives me no chance to forget that."

"Don't think I'm fighting him for my own amusement! I must oppose him or else give up a fight that I set out to win. And I mean to win it!"

"That's the same old fighting spirit I used to try so hard to awaken in you," said Dallas, a faint note of admiration in her rich voice. "I told you once it always took a blow to arouse you. That blow has evidently been struck."

"It has been struck!" he acquiesced, with a sad ghost of a smile.

She saw the haggard lines about his mouth, the tired look in his eyes, and a lump came into her throat. She leaned forward impulsively, but before she could speak he had unknowingly thrown away the golden moment by continuing:

"I must win this fight even though it affects others besides Mr. Wainwright. Even if"—

"What others do you mean?"

"Oh, I can't explain now. After Friday I can. On Saturday may I come to see you and tell you everything?"

"Why not now?"

"There are obstacles that"—

"Tell me what they are!" she begged.

"I can't. All I can tell you now is that I love you. I love you above all the world, sweetheart, and"—

But fate in the dual guise of Horrigan and Wainwright intervened. The financier and the boss, seeking some quiet spot for a chat, strolled through the foyer, where Horrigan on sight of Bennett halted with a glower of dislike, which he took no pains to conceal.

SOME STATE NEWS BRIEFS

George Miller, collector of delinquent taxes in Ewing Township, has been arrested in Trenton, charged by his wife with desertion.

Three persons were baptised by Elder Croudy along the North Cramer Hill shore, East Camden, during the hailstorm Sunday afternoon.

Instead of sticking a chicken, Schuyler Wilkinson, of Jefferson, stuck his hand with the knife, making a gash that required a doctor's attention.

John M. Kemp, a photographer of Main street, Paterson, has undergone three operations within a week as the result of a bite on the hand from a pet parrot, which brought on a severe case of blood poisoning.

Vineland's reputation for the unique is sustained by a poultry-house and yard an top of a barn. L. F. Hatch, recently from Maine, first built a stable for his horses and cow in the second story and taught them to climb the stairs nights and mornings. Now the chickens are above them.

Mrs. Jane B. Shinn, who died recently, left $34,000 to charity, the chief beneficiaries being the First Baptist church of Atlantic City, which she founded and to which she gave $5,000; Bethany Baptist church of that city, $5,000, and the Atlantic City Hospital, Children's Seashore Home and Mercer Memorial Home for Old Women, $1,000 each.

In an effort to escape the storm Harry Dobbins, fourteen years old, of Pavonia, fell overboard while running along a wharf at the foot of Twenty-fifth street, East Camden, yesterday afternoon, and was rescued by William Harker, a watchman. The little fellow was so badly frightened that he ran away in his bedraggled new Easter suit, leaving his cap on the wharf.

Despondent because he was out of employment, Ernest Brunner, thirty years old, of North Thirteenth street, Philadelphia, twice attempted to jump from the ferryboat Hammonton into the Delaware river yesterday. On the first occasion the man was hauled from the rear railing by two passengers. A few minutes later he was caught by two deckhands trying the same thing. When Camden was reached Brunner was turned over to the police, but later permitted to return to his home.

Objecting to an anarchistic speech, which he claimed N. Katzelson, a disciple of socialism, was delivering before a crowd on a downtown corner, in Atlantic City, Jacob Alexander walked up to the speaker and hit him on the nose, according to his own confession to Magistrate Haughey. Katzelson's friends had Alexander arrested, but when he informed the magistrate that the exhorter was about to wipe his feet on the American flag the official refused to hold the man, and he was released under bonds not to fight again.

Philadelphia employment agencies, which sent several hundred men and women to Atlantic City on the promise that work had been secured for them in hotels during the Easter rush, made trouble for Mayor Stoy and the police when the newcomers found that the jobs were mythical. A score of women who had spent their last money to get to the shore, only to learn that the places had been filled for two days, wept in the Mayor's office while they begged for means to get back to Philadelphia. Police made up a purse and most of the deluded women got away Saturday night.

OLD COUPLE AT ODDS.

Mrs. Jacques Pages, 74 Years Old, Sues Octogenarian Husband for Non-support.

Paterson, April 21.—Jacques Pages, eighty years old, is being sued by his wife, who is seventy-four, for non-support. The couple have been married six years. Both had been married previously. Pages declares his wife drinks so heavily that landlords in the Riverside section, where the Pages have been living, refuse to rent their rooms to them. Pages works, when able, at his trade of dyer, but a son has been partly supporting him for years.

Mrs. Pages accuses her husband of beating her, as well as failing to support her. Pages is indignant that he, a Frechman, should be so accused, and he says that he never struck a woman in his life. He says he was able to look after his wife until her drinking habits became so extraordinary.

WILL RETURN FLAGS CAPTURED FROM SOUTH

Under the concurrent resolution adopted by the Senate and the House of Assembly of the New Jersey Legislature, which was signed several weeks ago by Governor John Franklin Fort, preparations are being made by Adjutant General R. Heber Brientall and his office force to return to their original owners nine flags of Confederate troops which were captured by the Third and the Seventh Regiments of New Jersey Volunteer Infantry at the battles of Manassas and Chancellorsville during the early part of the Civil War.

Since the return of the New Jersey troops at the close of the war, or for more than forty years, the flags have been in possession of the State military authorities. They have been kept in vaults in the cellars of the State House, in Trenton, and are today in exactly the condition in which they were received from the fields of battle, on which New Jersey's volunteers bore the brunt of the fray in some of the hardest fighting of the entire four years of bitter strife between the North and the South.

When taken from their long place of rest the other day, some of them split in places where the silk of which they were made had been folded for two-score years or more; but this did not destroy them to any appreciable extent.

In nearly all of them are holes made by bullets from the rifles of the contending forces in the desperate struggles in which they were taken, while the ragged edges of most of them show plainly how the greater part of each of the flags was shot away in the conflict. On one of them, a large silk flag, which is said to have been made from a shawl once worn by a Southern society belle, there are, plainly discernible, on the broad cream-colored and light brown stripes into which it was fashioned, blood stains, presumably from its defenders.

In the very center of that flag is embroidered in golden-hued silk a single star. Near it is the word "Field," similarly embroidered, which seems to be the last word in a sentence which was torn from the flag by shot and shell in the battle of Manassas before its capture, on March 11, 1862, by Company A, Third New Jersey Volunteers, Captain D. Vickers, after several days of the hottest kind of fighting, which resulted in the New Jersey brigade of which the Third Regiment was a part compelling the Confederate troops to evacuate a commanding position at Manassas. From the records of Foster's "New Jersey in the Rebellion" is gained the information that the missing portions of the sentence would make it read "Carolinians in the Field." Following this, and still in good condition is embroidered on the flag the legend: "Traitors, Beware!"

Of the other flags which New Jersey is soon to return to the States of the original owners, four are Confederate "Jacks," which were used as guide flags and field headquarters flags. They are about five feet square, of bunting, and are in a perfect state of preservation. They have a deep red body, wide border of white, with a cross of St. Andrew extending across the full length and breadth of each.

REV. GEO. W. TOMSON'S FUNERAL AT WOODBURY.

Woodbury, April 21.—The funeral services of Rev. George W. Tomson, pastor of the Presbyterian church here, who was found dead Thursday with a bullet in his head, and who is believed to have committed suicide, took place here yesterday.

The Presbytrian church was closed Sunday, and members of the congregation participated in services at other churches.

The reason for the suicide is still the all-absorbing topic in this town.

Theories have been advanced aplenty. There has been talk of murder, talk of accident and a report that Mrs. Kenworthy had induced Public Prosecutor Alexander Rodgers to reopen the case, with a view to investigating the foul play theory. Nothing of the kind, however, has been done.

The receipts aggregated $33,341.37 and the cash balance on hand is $810.23. The recources reach a total of $154,216.77. At the conclusion of last night's meeting a number of new shares were issued.

Engagement Announced.

About twenty-five young people from Somerville and Plainfield were entertained Saturday evening at the home of Mrs. Aaron A. Vander Veer South street, Somerville, when the engagement of her son, Allen Ackor, of Plainfield, was announced. The party was a most unique affair and proved a thoroughly enjoyable event. Progressive hearts were played and the prize winners were each presented with a "bird." When the packages were opened messages in them announced the engagement. Sumptuous refreshments were served.

CURFEW STILL RINGS AT 9 AT PRINCETON

At 9 o'clock every evening in Princeton during term time the curfew rings from the college belfry, as it has done for the last one hundred and fifty-odd years. In Colonial days it called the undergraduates back to their rooms in Nassau Hall, not to stir therefrom until the rising bell at five the next morning. The calling-in rule long ago ceased to be enforced but the curfew, a curious survival of the time honored law, still rings at the official close of the day.

Once a student entering Princeton was required to transcribe the "Laws and Customs" of the college for his own use and his copy, to quote the 1760 edition, "being signed by the president, shall be the testimony of his admission and shall be kept by him whilst he continues as a member of the said college as the rule of his behavior." A perusal of this useful document would remind him that if he cut morning or evening prayers he would be fined two pence and if he did not "timely attend" he was liable to a fine of a penny, all fines being doubled on Sundays. Rule 3, under the heading "Moral Conduct," informed him that "None of the students shall play at cards or dice or at any other unlawful game under the penalty of a fine not exceeding five shillings."

Furthermore, he might not go out of town without leave, a law which remained on the books until recently, although, like the curfew rule, it had for years been honored in its breach rather than in its observance. Undergraduates might roam around the country within a radius of two miles, but to venture beyond that distance was forbidden. This law was still in force late in the sixties. Another law more picturesquely stated in its eighteenth century form than in its simpler modern version for it is still on the statute books hoary with age, warned its reads that "no jumping or hollowing or any boisterous noise shall be suffered, nor walking in the galleries or corridors of Nassau Hall, during the time of study." The freshman of Colonial days, moreover, learned that Jersey mud was to be strictly left outside college walls, rule 8 telling him he "shall keep his room neat and clean, and when he enter the college shall clean his shoes to prevent soiling the floor, which if he be observed to neglect he shall be fined four pence." Those who smoked or chewed tobacco in their rooms were charged an extra shilling for cleaning.

Grammar school boys meeting the president had to take their hats off when ten rods away and half that distance when meeting any other member of the faculty, and when the president went in or out of the chapel the grammar scholars were to rise and bow, a rule that has a curious counterpart today at Yale, in the senior class obeisance to the president as he leaves chapel. Freshmen sent on an errand were to "do it faithfuly and make quick return."

The etiquette to be observed in the college commons was most carefully worked out. At the ringing of the bell for meals the classes were to assemble at the door of the dining hall in order of seniority and wait until a members of the faculty or a resident graduate arrived to head the procession to table. There the four classes were to keep to their respective tables, at each of which tutors or graduates presided.

The seating was in alphabetical order, beginning at the tutor's right hand. Every day, however, a man's seat was moved up one place, the head of the alphabet changing over to the tutor's left hand, so that each member of the class had the seat of honor in turn. The honor, however, had its responsibility, for rule 23 says "He that sits highest shall always carve; he that sits opposite him cut bread and he that sits next on the right hand serve in dealing out provisions." The closing phrase of this rule is a stern admonition, "None shall eagerly catch at his share, but wait until he is served in his turn."

A hint that more luxurious habits were creeping into college life is found in the edition of the laws issued in 1802, where it is stated that "No student shall employ any barber or hairdresser to shave or dress him on the Sabbath," and also, "No student shall keep for his use or pleasure any horse or riding beast, nor shall any student keep a dog or gun or firearms or ammunition of any kind." Ten years later the words "Sword dirk, sword cane or any deadly weapon whatever" were added to the list of contraband articles and remained in the laws for several college generations.

In the middle of the nineteenth century a new rule appeared directed against horn sprees, a form of undergraduate bedevilment of authorities that had not been thought of in earlier days. At a preconcerted signal on a dark night from behind every tree on the campus the tooting of innumerable horns would suddenly break the silence. The din was hideous and the college proctor and often the vice president himself would be kept pursuing the dodging figures. It was to stop this amusement that the law against blowing horns on the campus was put into operation.

Rules still forbid undergraduates to keep dogs in their rooms and they are not allowed to discharge firecrackers or kindle bonfires on university grounds. It is a mystery where the scores of fox terriers and bull pups are kept, which seem to be the favorite pests of the modern undergraduate; and the din that echoes around the campus during what is called "Poler's recess' at nine o'clock in the evening during the examination period, signalizing a few minutes' respite from hard study in preparation for the tests of the next day, seems to indicate that there are exceptions to the rule against discharing firearms too numerous for the proctor to handle.

ELIZABETH DECLARES FOR THE OPEN SHOP.

Master Masons' Association of Elizabeth have declared for an open shop, to take effect immediately. This decision is a result of union men refusing to work for union wages without an agreement between the Master Masons' Association and the union.

Union masons have been on a strike in Elizabeth since the first of the month and have practically tied up all building operations. It is expected the action of the master masons last night will decrease the ranks of the union and will result in the master plumbers, master painters and master carpenters declaring for an ouen shop by the first of next month, when their agreements with the union men will expire.

The old agreement between the master masons and the union men became invalid April 1. According to teh agreement the masons were to receive the union scale, sixty cents an hour. The master masons say that they are willing to pay the union scale, but will not sign an agreement to pay it for a year owing to unsettled business conditions at the present time, which have prevented them from getting the usual amount of work.

All Plainfield banking institutions will be represented.

PARALYSIS FATAL TO REV. NICHOLAS BOWERS

Rev. Nicholas Bowers, pastor of the Presbyterian church at Stirling and one of the best known ministers in this section, died at his home in Stirling yesterday afternoon at 1 o'clock. He was stricken with paralysis a few weeks ago and had been sinking steadily.

Mr. Bowers was born in Germany seventy-eight years ago and came to this country when he was a child. At the age of eighteen he located near Basking Ridge and took up religious work, first acting as exhorter and conducting revival meetings throughout Somerset and adjoining counties. He continued in this way until ten years ago when he assumed the pastorate of the Stirling congregation.

The deceased leaves a wife, one daughter, Mrs. John Faulkner, of Basking Ridge, and four sons, Henry, of Newark; Hayes, of Liberty Corner; John, of Bernardsville and Israel, of Millington. A brother, Peter Bowers, died at his home in North Plainfield last November, soon after selling his farm in Warren township and moving into town.

The funeral will be held in the Basking Ridge Presbyterian church, Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock, the Stirling church being too small to admit of a large attendance. Burial will be at Basking Ridge.

Second Attack of Scarlet Fever.

An unusual case that is attracting consideration attention from local physicians is that of Miss Ella Kirstein, of South Second street, who is suffering a second attack of scarlet fever. The young woman had the first attack three or four years ago and was recently taken ill with the same disease. Dr. J. Hervey Buchanan is the attending physician and he has called in several other physicians to see the case. So far as known in the medical profession here it is the first instance of the kind in Plainfield. The present attack is not a severe one and a speedy recovery is expected.

Clinical Society Meets.

The Plainfield Clinical Society was entertained last night at the home of Dr. J. H. Carman, of Watchung avenue. Dr. Trimble, of New York, read a paper, which was followed by a general discussion.

COUNTY AGAINST BRYAN

Thirty-Eight Admirers of Martine Elect Bryan Delegates at Local Primaries.

COLLINS FOR STATE COMMITTEE

Union Overwhelmingly Against Nebraskian But Martine May Be Delegate-at-Large.

Union county Democrats last night at their primaries went on record as against the third nomination for William Jennings Bryan for the Presidency. They also stamped their approval on the candidacy of Brig. Gen. D. F. Collins, of Elizabeth, for member of the State Committee to succeed Peter Egenolf. While the Bryanites were completely routed outside of Plainfield, it is likely that Union will support James E. Martine as a candidate for delegate-at-large, at the State convention, to the National convention.

Almost the solid delegation from Elizabeth will be anti-Bryanite and in addition to the nine votes from Plainfield, the Peerless One will get but two other delegates in the entire county.

Without any opposition nine delegates were elected as the Democratic primaries in this city to attend the State and Congressional conventions, and while they were not instructed, all are said to be favorable to the candidacy of William J. Bryan for the Presidential nomination and will vote for James E. Martine as one of the four delegates-at-large to attend the National convention to be held in Denver July 7. It was a clean victory for the supporters of Bryan and they feel particularly happy over the result. This is especially true of J. V. F. Dilts, who claims to have made a ten strike after the refusal of the county committee to endorse the Nebraskan's candidacy.

The primaries were held at the Hotel Kensington, with only thirty-eight members of the party present. Mr. Martine, fresh from his visit with Bryan to Trenton, where they were guests of Governor Fort at a luncheon, was filled with enthusiasm for the Peerless One. Patrick J. Reville was chairman of the meeting, J. V. F. Dilts secretary and Charles Sturtevant and Joseph Burke, inspectors. The nomination and the election of the following delegates were completed in short order:

First ward, first district, J. A. Staats; second district, W. L. Hetfield, Sr. Second ward, first district, Charles Sturtevant; second district, J. V. F. Dilts. Third ward, first district, J. H. Harkins; second district, Frank Shattle. Fourth ward, first district, D. A. Galbraith; second district, Patrick J. Reville; third district, Ira Hurlburt.

After the selection of delegates, the voters present were entertained by Mr. Dilts and as one Demorcat expressed it, "the harmony was so thick you could cut with a knife." Speeches were made by Mr. Martine, Mr. Reville and James Guttridge, all expressing loyalty to what they termed the true principles of Democracy, adding that they would fight to the last ditch for Bryan.

The attention of the party here is now directed to the meeting of the State delegates from Union county to be held at Elizabeth Friday night, when a successor to Peter Egenolf, as State committeeman, will be chosen.

Union county Democrats elected seventy-one delegates last night to the State convention to be held next Tuesday at Trenton to elect delegates-at-large to Chicago. The primaries were open from 8 until 9 o'clock, and a fairly heavy vote was cast. Little interest was attached to the election in Elizabeth, and there were no contests of any importance.

The entire delegation from Elizabeth is rabidly anti-Bryan, but nevertheless may support James E. Martine when it comes time to elect two delegates from the Fifth Congressional District at the convention which will be held on the same day that the State convention is. The "Farmer Orator" has announced his candidacy for the office, the first time that he has followed such a course in all the years that he has been fighting in the political field, and many are inclined to give him what is regarded as an honorary office. Martine is heart and soul for Bryan.

The delegates elected last night will caucus Friday night at Democratic headquarters, in Elizabeth, and then may come something like a split. General Dennis F. Collins and John J. Lane, of Summit, are aspirants ofr the place of State committeeman, which will have to be filled that night. Each is fighting hard. All the chances favor Collins, as the delegation from Elizabeth, comprising a majority of the delegates, is for him. The question of passing resolutions favoring Bryan may also come up at the meeting.

BRYAN AS FORT'S GUEST

Entertained by the Governor, Nebraskan Drinks to Toast with Water.

FORT AND OTHERS TAKE WINE.

Martine and Katzenbach the Other Guests—Peerless One Forecasts Platform.

Democratic leaders friendly to the Nebraskan were gratified at the turnout of people yesterday afternoon in the Taylor Opera House, at Trenton, where William Jennings Bryan spoke following a reception at the Hotel Sterling and a luncheon with Governor Fort at the State Capitol.

At the luncheon there were about twenty persons, all Republican heads of departments, except Mr. Bryan, Mr. Martine and Mr. Katzenbach. Mr. Bryan sat on the Governor's right; next to him was State Treasurer Daniel S. Voorhees, and then Mr. Martine. On the Governor's left Mr. Katzenbach sat.

When the wine was served Mr. Martine proposed the good health of the Governor. This was acknowledged with only a bow, as it was understood there was to be no formal speech making. In turn Supreme Court Clerk William Riker proposed the health "of our honored guest." This was also acknowledged with a bow from Mr. Bryan, who took only water. The conversation was of a general character, referring principally to campaigning experiences.

Introducing Bryan, Mr. Katzenbach likened the condition of the Democratic party to that of France when a minister at the Paris court, during a crisis, remarked that the event would mark the death of France. The other ambassador replied that he had "been many times at the deathbed of France." France was resuscitated, said Mr Katzenbach, and so would be the Democracy. This prophecy was received with cheers.

Mr. Bryan said, while the Republican party boasts that it has been in control of affairs in the country for almost half a century, he felt prouder of the fact that the Democratic party had the qualities that enabled it to live more than a century.

Money Question Settled.

Mr. Bryan told how the Republicans have been helped by natural conditions; the opening of new gold mines in various parts of the world, the success of crop conditions and similar incidents.

"They said the Democratic party had a monopoly of panics, but now the people are willing to admit that the Republicans have destroyed a monopoly. They've got the panic now. For the first time in the history of the country the banks had the audacity to tell a depositor how much of his own money he could get to use in his business."

Mr. Bryan referred to Secretary of War Taft's views on trust regulation as being not so far advanced as seventeen years ago, and said Taft was walking backward. Bryan berated Taft on the question of government by injunction, and said Taft was the father of the system. Swollen fortunes were the result, said Bryan, of Republican methods of favoritism and priviliges.

Mr. Bryan, immediately after the speech, went to the train to keep his engagement to speak in Cooper Union and to rejoin his family.

"It is more to say of a party that it has lived fifty years under defeat," said Mr. Bryan, "than to say that it has lived fifty years while in office."

Describing how the Democratic party during its career had always taken the people's side in various issues, he told how two Democratic houses of Representatives had voted for the popular election of United States Senators and that Republican houses would not act on the proposition until eight years after.

Forecasts Platform.

"This means," said Mr. Bryan, "that the Democratic party has more faith in the people than the Republican. The Democrats have put this principle into two platforms, and it will do the same in the next platform. I can say this without fear of contradiction. I can say this positively because at the St. Louis convention, where we fought sixteen hours over other things to put in the platform, we were unanimous on this point. If a principle got through the St. Louis convention there is no doubt about it being adopted again in Denver. What Republican can make a prophecy about this plank being in the next Republican platform?

"In 1896 the Republicans said they could elect anybody," Mr. Bryan said later on. "Since that time they have had twelve years of control in all branches of the government, and were able to repeal or enact any laws they saw fit, having the Supreme Court with them to construe the law any way it liked, and yet the party

MASONS ARE IN SESSION

Plainfield Lodges Represented at the Annual Meeting of the Order in Trenton.

WOLFSKEIL MAY BE "G. W. M."

The Election Takes Place Tomorrow—The Reports Are Being Read Today.

Delegations from this city and surrounding towns left for Trenton today to attend the annual communication of the ancient and honorable society of Free and Accepted Masons of the State of New Jersey, in session in Masonic Hall, Trenton. Special arrangements have been made for the care of the delegates, and the interest in the event extends beyond the limit of fraternity.

William Taylor and S. K. Fish as the worshipful masters of Jerusalem and Anchor lodges, respectively, are in attendance.

Austen H. McGregor, one of the best known of Newark's business men, is the most worshipful grand master, and he and his associates will take up part of the day in reading their reports. There will be a reception also later today to the many distinguished visitors that are gathering at the State capital.

Tomorrow the brethren will elect their officers for the new fiscal year, and additional interest will be lent to the occasion by the fact that there will probably be a new grand secretary and grand treasurer.

If Grand Master McGregor does not succeed himself, Deputy Grand Master W. D. Wolfskeil, of Elizabeth, as the next in line of advancement, will be the head of the fraternity in the State. This would probably mean the promotion of Senior Grand Warden Judge J. Clarence Conover, of Freehold; to be deputy grand master.

HENRY PAUL AMONG U. S. GRAND JURORS

The Grand Jury for the April term of the United States District Court was sworn in and charged by Judge Cross yesterday at Trenton. The jurors are:

SEEK $20,000 FROM R.R. FOR DEATH OF COUPLE

The suit of E. C. Potter, as administrator of the estate of Isaac C. and Elizabeth Dunn against the Pennsylvania Railroad, for $20,000 damages, will be tried in the United States Circuit Court at Trenton on Friday. G. W. V. Moy, of this city, represents the administrator.

The action is brought to recover damage for the death of Mr. and Mrs. Dunn, both of whom were killed at the grade crossing of the Pennsylvania Railroad in Stelton about a year and a half ago, while they were driving home from attending prayer meeting at the Stelton Baptist church. They were both well-known in this city. Mrs. Dunn was a sister of Mrs. Thomas Cuming, of North Plainfield, and she lived here prior to her marriage to Mr. Dunn.

Bridge Party for Miss Howell.

Miss Valiant gave a bridge whist party at her home on Myrtle avenue for Miss Sarah Mae Howell and Harry L. McGee, whose wedding will occur on April 29. Miss Virginia Hegeman and Raymond McGee received the prizes. There were twenty guests, including most of the members of the briday party. Tomorrow afternoon, Mrs. Allen B. Laing, of Washington avenue, will give a card party for Miss Howell and the other women members of the bridal party.

60 YRS. A TELEGRAPHER

OSLER'S THEORY DISPROVEN.

Veteran Knight of the Keys Is As Active As Average Man of Fifty—Hale, Hearty and Happy.

Manager Charles H. Schermerhorn, of the Western Union Telegraph Company office here, is celebrating the seventy-fifth anniversary of his birthday today. He has been connected with the local telegraph office since 1870, having been transferred from Beverly, N. J., to this city in that year. He has been an operator for thirty-eight years and is as hale and hearty as ever. He began work at the age of seventeen as a messenger boy and assistant to Joseph Worl in the telegraph office at New Hope, Pa., in 1848.

The next year he was put in charge of the office and remained until 1851, when he was transferred to Princeton. In those days the Western Union was hardly known, and the business was done by the Magnetic Telegraph Company. So few telegrams were handled that the offices at New Hope and Princeton were used mainly as testing stations for all wires running north and south. It was part of the operator's work to look after repairs to the wires after storms, and Mr. Schermerhorn has often walked from New Hope to Philadelphia with climbers and the rest of the repair outfit looking after the wires.

From Princeton he was transferred in 1853 to New York, and took charge of the office in Barnum's Museum. For a time he was in the main office, then in Hanover street, which had a manager and six operators. In 1856 a line was laid across the East river, the forerunner of the great Atlantic cable, and when an office was opened in Brooklyn he was put in charge. The line had been working only two months, when a schooner dragging anchor, tore up the cable, and the service was then maintained for some time by messengers.

In 1857 Mr. Schermerhorn was transferred to Beverly, N. J., where the Union soldiers were in camp, and had a busy time with messages for the soldiers to their families. He was assisted here by his wife in a material way. When Gen. Grant was in Beverly, where his family were then located, the general sat all night in the little telegraph office awaiting news from the front. He introduced Mr. Schermerhorn to Generals Sherman and Sheridan at one time with the words, "Gentlemen, this man has done his part for the Union cause. He has kept me in close touch with the army with some very important messages when I have been away from the front."

FRED ENDRESS RETIRES FROM MEAT BUSINESS.

The meat and provision business which has been conducted by Fred Endress on West Front street during the past twelve years, was sold yesterday to John K. Roundey, of New York, and William Pluger, of Jersey City. Possession will be taken May 1. The new owners are thoroughly experienced in the meat and provision business and will maintain the high standard of the present proprietor. Mr. Roundey is a member of the New York Produce Exchange, while his partner is president of the Halsted Packing Company, of Jersey City. The new firm will be known as the Endress Meat and Provision Company.

Mr. Endress will continue to reside in Plainfield and will devote his attention to his large farm at South Plainfield, where he has a rending factory and other interests. He came from Brooklyn to Plainfield fourteen years ago and first opened a market on Liberty street, moving two years later to his present place.

LABOR STRIKE SETTLED

Leland and Thompson Relieve the Situation by Quitting Park Avenue Job.

GALBRAITH'S SHOP REINSTATED

Two Hundred Men Affected By Sympathetic Strike Declared, Resumed Work Today.

Through a concession made by Leland & Thompson, the "open shop" masons who caused the sympathetic strike among union artisans last week, the firm has quit the job at Dr. Harold D. Corbusier's house on Park avenue and the union men have been ordered back to work again. The settlement was effected at a conference in Trades Union Hall last night and at the same time Den Galbraith's shop on North avenue, which had been declared "foul" by the union, was put on the "white list" again so that the fourteen union plumbers he employs went back to work there today. Two hundred plumbers, whom Walking Delegate David Bodine ordered out on a sympathetic strike when Galbraith's shop was declared "foul."

In order to avoid a long strike and the possible ruling of the Master Builders' Association of the "open shop" in this city, W. A. Leland and H. S. Thompson, who were at the meeting last night, declared that they would give up the contract and thus allow the union men to go back to work. At the meeting were C. W. Krausse, president of the Master Builders Association; David Bodine, representing the union labor forces, and Den Galbraith. Dr. Corbusier, who employed the "open shop" masons, said today that he was ignorant of the union rulings at the time. The masons had completed the job before the strike was declared.

Leland & Thompson have a grievance against local Masons' Union, No. 14, for action taken by that organization back in 1895. At this time a fine of $25 was imposed by the organized masons on the firm, because of a violation of a union rule. The firm declared that the fine was unjustly imposed, and did not pay it. It is probable that on account of the action of Leland & Thompson at last night's conference, the local masons' union will shop their appreciation of the action by consenting to "let by-gones be by-gones."

PASSENGERS GET A SHAKEUP WHEN TROLLEY IS DERAILED.

Because of slippery, wet rails, which made the brakes ineffective, car No. 74 was derailed on Arlington avenue early yesterday afternoon and the eight passengers received a bad shaking up when the trucks left the rails and the car crashed over the macadam for several feet. The accident happened at the transfer point made temporarily necessary by work on the south side sewer, and the bumper laid across the rails to mark this transfer point derailed the front trucks of the car.

The derailment caused a delay of half an hour and partially blocked the roadway, for the car left the rails and turned toward the gutter on the south side of the street. The passengers, among whom were several women, were uninjured, but received a severe shaking up.

COUNTY TO MACADAMIZE MILE OF TERRILL ROAD.

The Union County Board of Freeholders at a meeting in Elizabeth, this afternoon, voted in favor of recommending the making of Terrill road a State aid road, and the plan is to macadamize at least a mile of the thoroughfore this summer. Later on when the State road commissioner approves the proposition, which it is believed he will, the improvement will be completed as originally decided.

Tomorrow afternoon the freeholders will inspect a portion of Munn avenue, East Orange, which has been covered with liquified asphalt, with a view to determining the advisability of using it on the roads in Union county. The preparation is said to have considerable merit and the freeholders may decide to give it a trial.

Miss Edna Dilts Entertain.

Miss Edna Dilts, of Duer street, entertained the S. S. S. Society at her home, last night, when Miss Cornelia Hansen and Miss Marie Hahn were initiated into the mysteries of the society. Harrison Fahn and Edward Honeyman were in charge of the initiation. Afterward a social time was enjoyed and refreshments were served.

MENINGITIS PROVES FATAL

Stricken While Dancing, Abe B. Gaston Remains Unconscious Until Death.

NERVOUSNESS INDUCED ATTACK

Victim Was Son of Dr. Gaston and a Student at the Plainfield High School.

Following thirty hours of convulsions brought on by an acute attack of meningitis that first developed while he was attending a dance at Truell Hall, Monday night, Abe B. Gaston, son of Dr. and Mrs. William F. Gaston, of West Front street, died at the home of his parents at 3:30 this morning. He became unconscious soon after he was stricken and remained in that condition until he passed away.

The young man was one of a coterie of young people who were the guests of Stanley Karner at the dance at which he became ill. According to his father, he was in a nervous state when he left hime, due to the fact that he had been working hard on a prize essay for submission at the Plainfield High School and also that several friends he expected would be at the affair informed him at the last moment that they could not attend. At about 11 o'clock he complained of headache and numbness in the limbs and the young woman he was dancing with at the time suggested his retirement from the floor for a brief rest.

Young Gaston was carried to a bedroom where he said that he had struck his elbow while dancing. Convulsions quickly followed but it is said that the alleged injury was in nowise responsible for his death.

Telephone calls were sent for a cab and the young man's father and he was removed to his home. Physicians worked over him constantly but without avail, the meningitis increasing in its intensity until the end.

Young Gaston was in his eighteenth year and was a member of the 1911 class of the High School. He was of a quiet, unassuming disposition but had many friends among the students and elsewhere. He is survived by two brothers, William and Don Gaston, and one sister, Dorothy. The funeral arrangements have not been completed.

JAILED FOR COURTING ANOTHER MAN'S WIFE

On complaint of Martin Schneiderbeck, of East Fifth and Sycamore streets, the police yesterday arrested John McDonald, well known locally, who the former claimed was "breaking up his home." He asserted that McDonald had been the "star boarder" but he began paying too much attention to Mrs. Scheiderbeck and was chased away. He continued to come back while the husband was at work, however, and the complaint was made.

Patrolman Dobson caught McDonald yesterday afternoon as he and Mrs. Scheiderbeck were walking at Park avenue and Ninth street. He spent last night in a cell and this morning Judge Runyon sent him to jail for thirty days.

MERCHANTS AGITATED OVER MEMORIAL DAY CLOSING.

The report yesterday that the Plainfield Merchants' Association had decided at a meeting Monday night to keep the local stores open on Memorial Day, caused considerable discussion today and several members of the association took occasion to deny that such a decision was reached. The information was given out by F. A. Duttenhofer, a member of the association, who alleged that owing to the dissatisfaction over the action to close on Washington Birthday, it was decided to try the plan of keeping open on Memorial Day. He also said that a decision regarding succeeding holidays would be made after that holiday.

A. E. Force, president of the association, stated today that a decision to keep open May 30 was not reached Monday night, it being the general opinion that it would be better to lay the matter over until the meeting on Monday, May 18. He believes that the storekeepers would keep open on that day.

It is likely that the grocers and butchers will keep open as they did on Washington's Birthday.

S. C. Peck, the dry goods merchant, said today: "I would as soon think of opening my store on Sunday as on Memorial Day." Peck's store will be closed all Memorial Day.

The Geography of a Great Cigar Sold in Our Stores at 5 Cents

LOOK at the map—that tells the story—Porto Rico and Cuba the twin sisters of the West Indies.

Both islands send us cigars—Cuba's bearing a heavy import duty—Porto Rico's free of duty. For example, take such a cigar as

La TUNITA Princesas

If this cigar were made in Cuba (exactly as we sell it) you would pay at the rate of seven-for-a-dollar for it. It's a Puritano size. You get it from Porto Rico (duty free) for 5 cents—but only at UNITED CIGAR STORES. Before the Spanish-American War the price for the cigar was two-for-a-quarter.

No wonder we find difficulty in keeping our stores supplied, although we take every La TUNITA Princesas the factory makes, and always beg for more. Doubtless we could get twice as many if our orders did not require the cigars to be made exclusively of Porto Rican tobacco by Spanish workmen—if, for instance, we would accept Florida wrappers instead of wrappers of native growth, of which there is always a great scarcity.

But La TUNITAS are all Porto Rican. There is no other cigar like La TUNITA Princesas sold at less than 10 cents. This is guaranteed.

Remember when you buy La TUNITA Princesas at 5 cents (by the box of 50, $2.50,) you get an Imported cigar—the map tells the story.

PROF. BANYAN COMING.

Noted Telepathist and Hypnotist to Be at Local Theatre this Week.

As an added attraction to Salisbury's pictures and vaudeville, the management of the New Plainfield theatre has secured for three nights and one matinee, beginning tomorrow, Prof. Banyan, European expert in occult science. Banyan's most mystifying and bewildering experience have been the talk in Europe for many years and he has created a great sensation where ever he worked. His wonderful demonstration of telepathism and hypnotism, which are scientific and also very amusing, will without doubt satisfy the most hard-to-please theatregoer.

Prof. Banyan's program so far is: Thursday afternoon about 5:30 he will undertake one of the most daring attempts in telepathy; that is, to ride blindfolded through the city, without the aid of any individual whatever. In the evening he will demonstrate his ability in mental telepathy and hypnotism. Friday he has challenged any merchant to supply a packing case or crockery barrel or other case which come under the qualification of packing cases, etc. He will be securely tied to a chair by some members of the audience and will be nailed up in a packing case and will then make his escape without breaking the boards or cutting the ropes.

For Saturday he has another surprise, something he will not say yet and also expose and explain how his method of hypnotising and influencing people is done which he specially recommends for salesmen and commercial business people.

Foresters to Discuss Rates.

Judge Daniel T. Howell, of Newark, past high chief ranger and Supreme Court Representative and Deputy Supreme Chief Ranger Willet T. Bingham, of Elizabeth, will visit Court Plainfield, No. 1144, Independent Order Foresters, at its meeting Friday night. All members of the order prior to 1899 are urged to be present as well as members from Court Watchung, Dunellen, South Plainfield, Westfield and Cranford. There will be a statement in explanation of a plan for the readjustment of the rates of the old members, those admitted prior to 1899. Of the 12,000 members in New Jersey, not over 3,000 will be affected by the proposed readjustment.

New Railroad Bridge Opened.

Perth Amboy, April 22.—The new bridge of the New York and Long Branch Railroad, spanning the Raritan river between this city and South Amboy, was thrown open to traffic yesterday. No formal ceremonies marked the opening. The old bridge will be taken away today. There was nearly a head-on collision between two trains on the old bridge Monday night. The engineers of the trains, however, each saw the other train approaching and put on the emergency brakes. The trains stopped within 200 feet of each other.

FREIGHT RATES DISCUSSED BY RAILROAD ATTORNEY

Outlining at length the duties of railroad officials in determining freight rates, Jackson E. Reynolds, an attorney for the Central Railroad of New Jersey, gave an interesting talk on rates at the regular meeting of the Congregational Men's Club held at the church last night. While he made no direct reference to the recent legislation affecting the freight rates, he referred in the course of his lecture to the problem confronting railroad officials in adjusting rates under the present laws.

Rates on different commodities vary according to the risk in transporting which the company assumes, the danger from breakage, the weight and the bulk. While the government acts as a check on the rate making by the railroad, this power is limited by the relation between the stock-holders, as people engaged in a business proposition, and the government authorities.

The lecturer, who was introduced by Dr. Frank L. Clawson, is at the head of the railroad's corps of attorneys, and has under his supervision much of the work of rate making. The lecture was but sparsely attended last night, and following the talk by Mr. Reynolds, refreshments were served.

DEAN FORBIDS SHORT SLEEVES AT EUCHRE

Downtown women in Elizabeth are all stirred up over a move made by the Very Rev. Dean Gessner, of St. Patrick's Roman Catholic church, the largest in the State. Pretty nearly all of St. Patrick's parishioners attended a euchre in the parish hall, when Father Gessner happened in. Some of the women had fancy spring waists on, and some were rather lacking in sleeves, so far as length goes.

The Dean's eye caught these, and rather brusquely he told three of the women that they'd have to leave the room and dress more appropriately; that, in fact, their bare arms were an offense to dignity. The Dean was about to continue around the room on the same errand and the euchre party was threatened with a sudden end, when somebody informed him that he was wanted on a sick call, and the incident was closed. The women who were forced to leave the hall later came back—but they wore their coats the rest of the evening, and so did a good many others.

AFFINITY GOES TO JAIL, HUBBY PAYS HIS FINE

Lena Koster, committed to the Middlesex county jail from Perth Amboy, yesterday morning, is the first woman prisoner that the jail has had in eighteen days, which is a new record for the institution. Mrs. George Hartung, the wife of a Perth Amboy detective, claims that the woman has come between the detective and his family, and once before she caused both girl and husband to be jailed. Hartung's mother secured his release and he promised to reform.

On Monday the couple were found together at Perth Amboy and the arrests yesterday followed. Hartung was released by paying a fine, but the woman was sent to jail for thirty days.

Rev. J. T. Diggs Returns Here.

Rev. J. T. Diggs has been returned to the Mt. Zion A. M. E. church for another year by the African Methodist church conference, which closed its session at Cape May on Monday. The action of the conference in this respect is gratifying to the members of Mt. Zion church, as well as Mr. Diggs, who has been doing a good work here. Those who attended the conference from here were Rev. and Mrs. J. T. Diggs, Rev. and Mrs. E. B. Maynard and Mr. and Mrs. Spencer Kelly. They say that the session was the best in the history of the church. Bishop J. Wesley Gaines was the presiding officer. Next year the conference will be held at Jersey City.

Easter Church Offering $158,000.

New York, April 22.—The largest single Easter church offering in New York was $158,000 at Grace church, Broadway and Tenth street—one of the largest sums ever given in one day in a New York church. It included a $40,000 memorial fund, to be used for endowment of a home for aged men, which forms a part of Grace Hospital. It also included $116,500, given as a Grace parish centennial thank offering, to be used to purchase and lay out the ground on the south of the church, on which the Fleischman bakery has stood for years.

A number of Frankie Lee's friends tendered him a surprise party at his home on Front street, yesterday afternoon. The afternoon was spent in playing games, after which refreshments were served. The special meetings being conducted at the Baptist church are being well attended and the spiritual interest manifested is encouraging to Rev. H. S. Atkinson, who is in charge. His father, Rev. Dr. Henry Atkinson, will make an address tonight.

Interesting Reports Read at the Spring Institute in Bedminster Church.

North Branch, April 22.—The spring institute of the Somerset County Christian Temperance Union was held yesterday in the Reformed church at Bedminster, with morning and afternoon sessions. The attendance was large, nearly every union in the county sending a delegation of its members. At the morning session Rev. E. R. Kruinenga, pastor of the Reformed church at Bedminster, conducted devotions and an address of welcome was delivered by the president of the Bedminster Union. Miss Maude Wrench, of Millstone, responded.

After roll call there were interesting reports from the presidents of the different unions throughout the county. Mrs. Tweedale conducted a mothers' meeting and a symposium of "What Next?" was in charge of Mrs. Leonard C. Davis, of Somerville. There was a noontide prayer service, after which luncheon was served by the women of the Bedminster Union.

Mrs. C. A. Garretson, of Millstone, led the early afternoon devotions. Miscellaneous business was transacted, after which Mrs. Isabelle H. Demarest, of Chester, the State corresponding secretary, made an address. The reports from the different departments of W. C. T. U. work in Somerset county indicated that the organization had made rapid strides during the past year. After a song service adjournment was taken.

Fire Chief Safeguards Property.

Morristown, April 22.—Fire Chief J. Fred Runyon, who is also building inspector, used the first drastic measures yesterday that he has found necessary in enforcing the building laws within the fire limits. Mr. Runyon recently notified Antonio Terrino, who is building a store on Speedwell avenue, to remove some of the woodwork he was placing close to a tile chimney in the structure. The inspector was again looking over the building yesterday, and finding that Ferrino had paid no attention to his orders, he went to Resolute Hook and Ladder house and taking a half dozen firemen to the Ferrino place ordered them to tear the woodwork from about the chimney. Mr. Runyon warned Mr. Ferrino not to replace it, as it would be a menace not only to his own building, but to surrounding property.

MISSION STUDY WORK IN ELIZABETH PRESBYTERY

That thorough organization for mission study will be a prominent feature of the work in churches in the Elizabeth Presbytery this year has been made certain by the appointment of Miss Harriet Halloway, of Plainfield, as secretary of this branch.

At the meeting of the Presbyterial W. F. M. A., held in Cranford last week, Miss Halloway was elected secretary of mission study classes, the department being added to the society's work. Her ability for organization and for imparting enthusiasm in regard to the study of missions has brought to her a further honor—the appointment as mission study field secretary for the Woman's Board of Foreign Missions of the Presbyterian church. She will represent both the Philadelphia and New York headquarters, and will organize and stimulate classes wherever possible.

Although the mission study class idea is general among the denominations, the Presbyterians lead in the work. This is also true in Elizabeth, as there are classes in all the Presbyterian churches. Carter Milliken, who addressed the young people's conference which followed the W. F. M. A. meeting in Cranford on Tuesday, gave such a clear, systematic presentation of the plan of study classes that an outline of it is here given for the benefit of Christian Endeavorers who are not familiar with the method, or who are seeking improvement.

Mr. Milliken gave first his definition of an ideal mission study class.

It is a small group of persons banded together for the study of missions.

It plans a short couse of study—eight weeks, or, at the most, sixteen weeks.

It holds frequent sessions, meeting once a week, if possible.

It has one leader throughout the course. His or her duty, however, is not to teach; the leader is not to pour in, but draw out.

The class must have a definite aim. This aim should be fourfold, viz.: 1. To seek speritual development. 2. To show the need of the work. 3. To create a sentiment of personal responsibility. 4. To lead to action.

Speaking of the objection made sometimes that study classes needlessly multiply the organizations in a church, Mr. Milliken said that: 1. The mission study class is not coordinate with other organizations, but auxiliary. 2. The class is not permanent; it is temporary organization; study itself should be permanent, but not classes. 3. The class is not a channel for gifts; it will stimulate to giving, but it will be through the usual channels.

The speaker made a plea for leaders in church work, and said that the study class was a good place in which to develop them.

Summing up the whole matter he said that the aim of every class should be to study missions. The greatest danger lay in the tendency to be carried away by "head interest." To counteract this the members of a class must not neglect the prayer life. Intellectual pleasure must not be allowed to outdistance soul development and profit.

Tired all the time;

Weary and worn out night and day;

Back aches; side aches.

All on account of the kidneys.

Must help them at their work.

A Plainfield citizen shows you how:

Mrs. E. Derflinger, of 219 Mansion place, Plainfield, N. J., says: "Several weeks ago I began to have heavy dull pains in the top and back of my head. Backache continually clung to me and it seemed to me that my kidneys were weak and gradually breaking down. I also had a tired feeling, with a sort of languor or general depression. I saw Doan's Kidney Pills advertised, and as it was a case of 'any port in a storm,' I got a supply of this medicine at Randolph's pharmacy and before I had taken two boxes of it I found that my kidneys were acting stronger and better and the pains were leaving me. I continued with them and am now able to say that Doan's Kidney Pills have cured me—at least I am not trouble any more and feel well and strong in every way."

CHAPTER IX.

THE moment of strained silence that ensued upon Horrigan's entrance was broken by the irrepressible Perry, who, having rescued Cynthia from Gibbs at the close of their dance, was escorting her triumphantly from the ballroom.

"This is my dance," he remarked happily to Alwyn as he came up, "and we're going to sit it out. If Mrs. Bennett in her capacity of chaperon should ask for Cynthia, you can tell her we're going into the glass house to stroll among the romantic vegetables."

And he departed with his prize in the direction of the conservatory. The moment's interruption had sufficed for Wainwright to whisper an admonitory word in Horrigan's ear. Dallas, too, fearing a clash, took Bennett's arm.

"It's so warm in here!" she murmured. "Perhaps we can find better air in one of the other rooms. Shall we try?"

"Wainwright," exclaimed Horrigan, as the portieres closed behind the mayor and girl, "I don't like that! Is your niece on his side or with us?"

"I don't know," answered Wainwright discontentedly, "and I don't like to force an issue by asking her. It doesn't especially matter, I suppose. In any case, I can trust her."

"You're in luck!" sneered Horrigan. "That makes two people you say you can trust—first your secretary, Thompson, and then— Hello!" he broke off as a swarthy middle aged man hurried in. "Looking for me, Williams? What's up?"

The newcomer was visibly excited, and at first glance Horrigan had seen that something was amiss.

"What's up?" repeated the boss.

"Ellis has gone—deserted!" cried Williams.

"Ellis!" echoed Wainwright in dismay, for the man of whom Williams spoke was one of the aldermanic "solid thirteen" on whom Horrigan counted. The boss made no comment, but waited impatiently for his henchman to continue.

"Ellis has gone," repeated Williams. "He left a note for me saying his wife is very ill and the doctor's ordered him to take her south. So he can't attend Friday's meeting."

"Can't attend the meeting?" gasped Wainwright. "But everything depends on"—

"Oh, he'll be on hand, the cur!" growled Horrigan. "The rest are standing solid of course?"

"I think so," hazarded Williams, "but some of 'em are pretty scared. We've never had such a fight before as Bennett's putting up against us now, and"—

"I'll strengthen 'em up so as to knock out any weakening!" declared Horrigan confidently. "It's Ellis we've got to look after now. Go after him, Williams, on the first train south and haul him back. Have him here by Friday if you have to kidnap him. I'll stand for any damage or expense. Only see he's here for that meeting. It's up to you. Now jump!"

As Williams hastened toward the door Horrigan called after him:

"On your way out send word to Roberts that I want to see him here. Well, Wainwright," he resumed, turning back into the room, "it looks bad."

"Do you think"—

"I think we're in a tight place. If our aldermen found out about Ellis' quitting, there's no knowing how many of 'em would bolt. If we could only work Bennett!"

"Out of the question. He can't be turned."

"There's no man who can't be turned. I've one card up my sleeve yet that ought to land him. But I'd rather try something else first. I wish we could get a line on his price."

"He can't be bought! He"—

"Rot! Everybody can be bought. Only there's some that can't be bought with cash. I'm wondering what there is that'll buy him if money won't."

Gibbs, in search of an elusive partner, crossed the foyer and paused to greet them.

"What news?" he asked.

Wainwright surveyed the broker's well groomed figure with less approval than usual.

"You seem to be industrious enough tonight," said he. "It's a pity some of tonight's dancing energy couldn't have been devoted to your work this morning."

Gibbs flushed at the reproof in words and tone.

"I don't understand," he replied stiffly.

"Why didn't you notify me of the big block of Borough stock that was bought up just before noon?"

"I hadn't heard about it," answered Gibbs, with not quite all his customary assurance.

"Everybody else heard of it. You'll have to keep better tabs on the market than that if you're to be any use to us. Do you know who bought it?"

"No," returned Gibbs, with growing uneasiness. "Of course I don't. How should I know? What are you driving at?"

"This is what I'm driving at: Several big blocks of the stock have been unloaded on the market during the past few days and have been quietly snapped up. Somebody's evidently tailing on to our game. You don't know who?"

"I've told you twice that I didn't know," blustered Gibbs, masking his concern under a show of virtuous indignation.

The effort called forth all the astute young broker's nerve, for a certain shrewd scheme of his showed signs of falling through. By his original arrangement with Wainwright he was to have manipulated all the Borough stock purchases on the exchange floor and to receive 20 per cent of the profits on the condition that he invest not one dollar in the stock on his private account.

MANY INFLUENTIAL PEOPLE ADOPT NEW THEORY

Statements from Followers of Cooper Obtained Recently in Various Cities.

A number of statements from prominent people located in various cities where the widespread discussion over Dr. T. Cooper's new theory regarding the human stomach has recently waged, give an idea of the intense interest the young man has aroused during the past year. The statements are as follows.

Mr. C. D. Mitchell, of 2412 Avenue F, Birmingham, Ala., has this to say with regard to his belief in Cooper's medicine: "I have been troubled with indigestion and stomach trouble for the past year. I had heartburn, bloating after eating, gas on stomach and bowels, palpitation of the heart, pain in the lower part of my back, and various other symptoms, and was a victim of much distress. I tried many remedies, but received little or no benefit from them. I was advised to try the Cooper preparations, and did so. In one week's time I was improved wonderfully—the first relief I had been able to obtain. Mr. Cooper's medicine does all he claims for it."

Mr. J. O. Spradling, of 705 South Tejon Street, Colorado Springs, Colo., says: "I was troubled with indigestion for two years. It caused me a great deal of suffering and misery. I did not dare to eat meat at all, and everything I did eat soured on my stomach. I tried various remedies, but found no relief. Three months ago I started taking Cooper's New Discovery, and after using the contents of three bottles I was entirely cured. I can now eat and relish anything that my appetite craves. The New Discovery is truly a great stomach medicine."

Mr. Wm. Codier, of 408 Graves Street, Syracuse, N. Y., is very strong in his expression of belief in the new medicine, and has the following to say on the subject: "I have suffered from catarrh of the nose and throat for four years. It must have been communicated to my stomach, for all this time my stomach has given me a great deal of trouble, and caused me much pain and suffering. My stomach was often sour, and my food did not digest. I was bothered by a continual desire to spit, and there was a constant dropping of mucus into the throat.

"The first relief I have been able to obtain is from Cooper's New Discovery, which I have been taking for about a week. My catarrhal condition has been greatly improved and my stomach is almost well. Mr. Cooper's medicine has benefited me more than anything I have ever used."

These statements are from reliable citizens in various communities who have tried these celebrated medicines. We sell them and will gladly explain their nature to any one interested.

LOCAL AMUSEMENTS

Alma Hearn, the clever star of "The Little Trooper," the comic opera, which is announced for appearance at the New Plainfield theatre tonight, has a role in this production which suits her to perfection. She is one of the brightest comediennes, and the role of Clairette gives her full scope for the display of her inimitable art. She is in her element as the Little Trooper, and makes a very charming picture.

Alma Hearn, In "The Little Trooper," at the New Plainfield Theatre Tonight.

Joseph R. Grismer, who is William A. Brady's co-producer of "The Man of the Hour," was talking about the difficulty in finding a suitable actor for big Boss Horrigan, the machine dictator in Broadhurst's anti-graft drama, to be seen at the New Plainfield theatre next Tuesday night. "We needed a man of enormous physique and masterful personality and as soon as we laid eyes on Ralph Delmore we knew we had him. We sent him to a mass meeting in Tammany Hall to study general types on the platform; this was in the height of a gubernatorial campaign. He returned to tell us that he had seen a score of men, any one of whom might be a Horrigan. He caught the spirit of the part at the first rehearsal and has played it several hundred times." Delmore is a giant physically, over six feet tall and weighing about 230 pounds. He has the square jaw, heavy jowl, and truculent bearing, but off the stage he is as gentle-mannered as a country clergyman. He is a foremost official and active worker in organizations that benefit the actor in distress and help him to gain prosperity.

—The brick pavement was completed on Park avenue yesterday, and the large force of men is now engaged on Front street. It is expected that the newly-laid pavement on Park avenue will be opened to travel the last of the week.

—The Watchung Hunt Club will hold its weekly chase on Saturday, if the weather will permit. The riders will meet at Colonia railroad station. The last chase for the month will be held on Wednesday, the start being made from the kennels.

The members of the Monroe Avenue M. E. church will tender a reception to Rev. and Mrs. Charles Sumner Kemble, the new pastor and his wife, tomorrow night.

The reception to Rev. and Mrs. Ora J. Shoop will be given at Grace M. E. church Friday night. The pastors and members of the other Methodist churches have been invited.

CAMP BOWSER NINE WON FROM P.H.S., 11-4

The Camp Bowser nine, composed of Yale, Harvard and Princeton men, defeated the Plainfield High School team in a practise game at Crescent Oval yesterday afternoon by a score of 11-4. The schoolboys were outclassed in all departments of the game and helped swell their opponents' score by unsteadiness at critical times.

Three hits and three errors by the schoolboys gave the collegians three runs in the first session and they added another in the second. Three hits in the fourth resulted in another tally and Lyons' tow-bagger, with hits by Brown and Ralph Schoonmaker gave them four more in the sixth. Pond and Schoonmaker scored again in the eigth. The schoolboys' runs were made in the sixth. Walker gave two passes, Snyder hit safely and Lidgate hammered out a two-bagger. Four players scored.

Walker, who plays on the Princeton team, was a problem to the schoolboys in the pitcher's box. He fanned six, gave four passes and kept the 5 hits well scattered. VanZandt, who was in charge of the curve department for the High School, was hit safely thirteen times. He passed two and fanned four. Murphey, who was on third base, had four errors scored against him, and the rest of the column is clean. For the collegians, Brown made two errors and "Bob" Abbott one. The summaries:

P. H. S.....0 0 0 0 0 4 0 0 0— 4

Two base hits: Lyons, Van Zandt, Lidgate. Base hits: Lyons 3, R. Schoonmaker 3, W. Schoonmaker 2, Craig, Brown, Abbott, Dutcher, Dodwell, Snyder, Lidgate, Van Zandt. Double play: Abbott and W. Schoonmaker. Struck out: By Walker, 6; by Van Zandt, 4. Bases on balls: Off Walker, 4; off Van Zandt, 2. Umpire, Brokaw; scorer, Henry Pound.

BASEBALL.

The uncertainity of baseball was again illustrated on Monday, when "Rube" Waddell, pitching for St. Louis, against Chicago, was knocked out of the box. Last week he held a team to one scratch hit. Raymond pitching for the St. Louis Nationals against Chicago, held his opponents to one hit and yet loss his game by a score of 2 to 0.

The members of the Amen Corner will witness the opening of the season at the Polo Grounds today. It will be their first trip to a big league contest this season.

Bill Hogg has a sore arm, but says a few warm days will fix it all right.

With Burch doing the work he is, Lumley is not missed to any serious extent by the Brooklyns.

Shipke, the Washington third baseman, does clean cut work with his hands in gathering up ground balls.

The Cubs do not seem to have lost any of their speed, so if they are to be headed off this year rivals must acquire additional speed.

Ability to land the games that are decided by a one run margin is an encouraging sign, and that is what the New York Americans are doing.

A spectator at Washington Park yesterday was arrested on the charge of stealing a ball, and Christy Mathewson went along to make the complaint.

Cantillon's men are not afraid to take chances on the bases, and they seem to be a team that will not recognize defeat until the string is played out.

"We were up against a pitcher the other day," says Joe Kelly, "who, according to the rooters, was using a 'knuckle' ball. I noticed that whenever one of our men struck and missed the fans called it a 'knuckle' ball, but if the bat connected with the same sort of a ball the comment was, 'Oh, he didn't pitch the knuckle ball that time.'"

FORMER LOCAL RESIDENT DIES SUDDENLY AT ORANGE.

Corey Moffett, at one time a well known resident of this city, died suddenly last night at the Orange police station, to which place he had gone on becoming ill in the street. He had barely informed the desk sergeant of his trouble when death came. Heart trouble is given as the cause.

Mr. Moffett was a son of the late Amos Moffett and a brother to Mrs. John Stryker, of West Sixth street. He was also a half-brother to Fred Moffett, of West Second street. He learned the hat-making trade when the industry was an important one locally and after the closing of the factories here he secured employment at a shop in Orange. No announcement has been made of the funeral arrangements.

Would License Cats.

Alderman Herbert at Jersey City last night introduced an ordinance putting a license fee of $1 for every cat within the city limits, and with a tag number to be issued with each license. All unlicensed cats are to be gathered up by agents of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals. Mr. Herbert said he was sincere in his stand. He declared that there are altogether too many cats running loose through the city.

The moving picture halls are hard hit by the new law prohibiting the admittance of children under sixteen years of age to theatres and other places of amusement unless accompanied by parents or guardians. These places derive their income principally from the patronage of children under the age mentioned in the law.

The law, which was passed by the Legislature and signed by the Governor at the urgent behest of educational and police authorities in some of the larger cities of the State, has for its object the safeguarding of youth. Those instrumental in causing the passage of the bill claim that it will act as a check to the spread of crime and vice, which in many cases, they say, has been traced directly to theatres of the lower sort where the so-called "blood and thunder" and even immoral plays are produced.

Not only are theatres affected, for the innumerable moving picture halls that have sprung up all over the State, will come under the ban.

REAL FUN IN THIS PLAY

Miss Saunders' "Another Day in Paris" Would do Credit to Professional Playwright.

AT BENEFIT PERFORMANCE.

Cup Bearers' Circle Affair at Casino Proves Highly Successful —Doll Show Good.

The Casino was thronged with the members and friends of the Cup Bearers' Circle of King's Daughters, yesterday afternoon and last night, when that organization gave a play, doll exhibition, Punch and Judy show and conducted a sale of candy and flowers. Liberal patronage was accorded and the circle will net a substantial sum for the support of the King's Daughters' work. The whole affair was under the direction of Mrs. Henry L. Hall, president of the circle, and Mrs. F. W. Butler, vice president, assisted by all the members.

The feature was the presentation of a one-act play written by Miss Louise Saunders, daughter of former Mayor W. L. Saunders, of the borough, entitled "Another Day in Paris," and it made a decided hit. The story is a very cleverly written one, and is in the nature of a take-off on one of the Cook's tourist parties abroad. Some of the younger members of the party, who are fascinated with Paris, devise all sorts of schemes to remain in that gay city for another day, against the wishes of a majority who want to go to Germany. The laundry, belonging to the members as supposed, was hidden, but later developments discloses a lot of baby clothes and the incident brings down the house. Just as all hope of remaining in Paris is abandoned, Miss Anna Garrigues, as "Mrs Bellehaven," who has invited them to spend three weeks with her, arrives, and everything turns out lovely for the young women.

The principal parts were taken by Miss Marion Hall, as "Sue Alden," Miss Eleanor Waring as "Joan Jasper," and Miss Marion Brown as "Miss Esterhazie," and they kept the audience convulsed with laughter. The other members of the cast were also very good, and Walter McGee, as "Mr. Terwilliger," who was in charge of the party, took his part especially well. Stella Butler, the young daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Butler, who had a small part, was clever.

At the close of the play there was loud applause and continued calls ofr the author. Miss Saunders was showered with beautiful floral gifts, and when quiet was restored she said: "I never made a speech in my life, but I am sure that with such a cast any play would have been a success. I am glad that you liked it."

The cast for the play follows:

Joan Jasper, Miss Eleanor Waring; Sue Alden, Miss Marion Hall; Miss Esterhazie, Miss Marion Brown; Miss Love, Miss Gabriel McQuaid; Miss Denton, Miss Lucie Budlong; Mrs. Broxbury, Miss Frances Hyde; Mrs. Maloney, Miss Helen Stevens; Evangeline Maloney, Miss Stella Butler; Mr. Terwilliger, Walter McGee; Mrs. Bellehaven, Miss Anna Garrigues; French errand maid, Miss Anna Fisk; other tourists, Miss May Faber, Miss Susan Wharton, Miss Kathryn Titus and Miss Helen Timpson.

The exhibition of dolls was one of the sights of the affair. They ranged in age from a few days to 150 years, there being a number whose age is between fifty and sixty years. Several of these dolls were obtained for the exhibition by Mrs. Harry L. Hall, while many were loaned by Plainfielders. One of these ninety years old was loaned by Miss Margaret Vail, of Church street. Another 150 years old came from Newport, while Mrs. R. M. Brown loaned a beautiful wax doll 130 years old.

The sale of flowers and candy was a great success, everything being disposed of at good prices. The members of the Circle are: Misses Natalie Bradley, Lucie Budlong, Anna May Campbell, Marguerite Carpenter, Beresford Letcher, Bessie Flanders, Charlotte Finch, Mabel Hooley, Ray Hooley, Katheryn McCutcheon, Gabriel McQuaid, Anna Garrigues, Louise Saunders, Frances Hyde, Marion Hall, Constance Wilcox, Helen Adams, Marion Brown, May Faber, Helen Moody, Ethel Most, Gladys Peck, Eudora Sullivant, Susan Wharton, Anna Fisk, Dorothy Fisk, Helen Timpson, Eleanor Waring, Caroline Martin, Helen Stevens, Alice Titus, Katheryn Titus, Seline Zinkeisen and Stella Butler.

The chairmen of the various committees follow: Candy, Miss Alice Titus; flowers, Miss Dorothy Fisk; lemonade, Miss Ethel Most; grab-bag, Miss Marguerite Carpenter; Punch and Judy, Miss Katherine McCutcheon; parcel auction, Miss Caroline Martin; exhibition of dolls, Miss May Faber.

NEGRO VOTERS CHEER SPEECH FOR FORAKER

In a rousing speech delivered at the smoker given in Reform Hall, last night by the colored Republican Club, Rev. D. W. Cannon, pastor of the Ebenezer Baptist church, strongly praised Senator Foraker for the stand he had taken regarding the Brownsville affair, and declared that the better class of thinking people of this country felt the same way. He refrained from saying anything for or against Roosevelt or Taft. He said that the Republican party had made mistakes in the past and would probably do so in the future.

The speaker said that he was well acquainted with many of the discharged members of the 25th Infantry, who are supposed to have been implicated in the Brownsville affair, but he deplored the fact that they have not been given an opportunity to prove themselves guiltless, which he believed they could do without much trouble.

A greater part of the evening was devoted to giving instructions regarding the duty of the colored voters at the primaries and telling them how to vote. It was agreed that all should support the straight Republican ticket. William A. Kline, as one of the chief advisers of the club, made a few remarks. Fifty new members were enrolled and there was great enthusiasm shown throughout the meeting. A feature was a program of vocal and instrumental music by John Taylor's quartet.

The club will meet again Tuesday night before the primaries and march to the polls. The next regular meeting will be held Thursday night.

Among those who have signified their intention of attending the dinner are Frank S. Katzenbach, the defeated candidate for Governor at the last election; Robert Hudspeth, chairman of the State Democratic Committee; William B. Gourley, former chairman of the State Democratic Committee; former State Senator James E. Martine, the farmer orator; former Judge Gilbert Collins, of Jersey City; Job Lippincott, of Jersey City; General Dennis Collins, of Elizabeth; Mayor P. H. Ryan, of Elizabeth; William J. Thompson, of Gloucester county; Alvah A. Clark, of Somerville; Congressman LaGage Pratt, of Essex county; Johnston Corish, of Washington, and Samuel Kallisch, of Newark.

TWO CONTESTED CASES IN THE DISTRICT COURT

In his action against the Watchung Stone Company for $195 as wages due on contract, Fred Winn was given a verdict for $15 by Judge Newcorn in the district court this morning. The plaintiff, who was represented by Francis J. Blatz, contended that there was an agreement between himself and the company, whereby he was to be employed last winter, but testimony showed that the crusher shut down on December 30 and that Mr. Winn was discharged that day.

The defendant claimed that there was no such agreement as stated, that the plaintiff was hired for $15 by the week. The company had offered the plaintiff $5 for two days' work, but when all the evidence was presented the court decided that Mr. Winn had been hired by the week and gave him a verdict for $15. Walter L. Hetfield, Jr., represented the Watchung Stone Company.

The only other contested case in the district court today was the landlord and tenant proceedings of P. J. Reeves, agent for his wife, Mrs. Reeves, against William Lindsey, Jr., the amount claimed due as rent being $138.20. Andrew C. Boswell, of the law firm of Apgar & Boswell, of Ocean City, represented the plaintiff, and W. S. Angleman the defendant. The case continued until 1 o'clock, when an adjournment was taken for one hour. Several witnesses are to be called this afternoon.

Judgment was given in the following contract cases:

RUNAWAY'S WILD DASH

Horse Belonging to Father Bogan Demolishes Wagon and Injuries Two Men.

RIG STRUCK TROLLEY CAR.

Covered a Distance of Two Miles Before It Was Finally Swerved Into a Tree and Stopped.

A saddle horse belonging to Rev. Father Bogan, of St. Mary's church, put to a wagon for exercise, yesterday afternoon, ran away soon after it was taken for a junket around town and left a trail of excitement for a couple of miles before it was caught. The vehicle was practically demolished, two young men in it were slightly hurt and another rig and a street car were slightly damaged through being struck. The runaway itself escaped with only a few scratches.

Policeman Cornelius McCarthy, a member of the night patrol force, volunteered to take the horse out for the junket and came from the church to the business district without any mishap. At East Second street and Park avenue he offered James Mahoney and John Caulfield a ride and they accepted. At Second and Church streets, a shaft of the vehicle became detached and, as it dropped, the horse made a sudden jump forward jerking the lines from McCarthy's hands. The next instant the animal was dashing along at top speed while the frightened young men behind sought in vain to stop it.

McCarthy advised his friends to jump to the street and Mahoney made the first attempt. He climbed out at the rear but his feet had barely struck the ground when he was hurled headlong to the sidewalk. McCarthy was the next to jump and executed a movement that shoved his forehead along the macadam, leaving a large part of the cuticle from his face behind him. Caulfield was the last to get out and landed safely.

At Richmond and Second streets, the runaway banged into a trolley car just turning the corner and a section of the wagon was ripped off. The car withstood the shock but a dented dashboard showed that it had been against it. With the remains of the rig, the horse turned up Richmond stret and went through it safely to Watchung avenue. It had just turned the corner there when it banged into a delivery wagon and some more wreckage followed. At Hillside and Watchung avenues, a young man managed to swerve the runaway into a tree and the long run was stopped. A pair of shafts was about all that remained of the wagon.

McCarthy's hurts were sufficient to keep him off duty last night and he will have a damaged face to show for several weeks to come. Mahoney's left hand was cut and torn by stones from the fingers to the elbow and he has bruises about the body that make walking difficult.

HORSE THROWN TO GROUND; NEWMAN STOPS RUNAWAY.

William Newman, a cab man, made a heroic stop of a cab horse runaway at the North Avenue station at noon today, when he dashed from the sidewalk and seizing the frightened animal's head, brought it to a standstill so suddenly as to throw it to the ground. The horse, which belonged to John Lynch, took fright at a cloud of smoke that came floating over the station, and bolted.

It dashed from a line of cabs and turning toward Watchung avenue, broke into a gallop. Narrowly grazing two private carriages, one of which contained a party of women, the animal had gone nearly fifty feet before the cabbies could rush to it. Newman ran out from the sidewalk near the end of the station platform and throwing himself directly in front of the galloping horse, seized the bridle and perked its head down. His pull on the bridle caused the horse to fall. By the time it again regained its feet, Newman had it quieted. There was no damage done to either horse or cab.

Donald Alexander Injured.

Donald Alexander, the eight-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Alexander, of 209 Liberty street, while playing about the Liberty street railroad bridge, last night, fell and striking his head, suffered a slight concussion. He was removed to the hospital in the ambulance and today was reported as being improved.

Drunk, Gets 10 Days.

James Newton Starlight, 67 years old, drank too much last night, and was found helplessly intoxicated on Somerset street by Marshal Lemuel Pope late last night. He was given his choice of $3 or ten days by Borough Recorder Dolliver at his hearing this morning. He had no money.

—Consignments of strawberries, asparagus, wax and string beans are received daily at Neuman Brothers.

HOLY CROSS CLUB NETS $75 BY DRAMATICS

Holy Cross parish house was filled to capacity accommodation last night when the boys' club presented two comedies, "The Obstinate Family" and "The Dentist's Clerk." As a result, about $75 has been netted by teh organization, and this money will be used for the purchase of uniforms and equipment for the baseball team.

"The Obstinate Family," the first play presented, gave an opportunity for some first-class acting on the part of Miss Helen Roberts and Percy Watson. The key phrase of the whole play is "Thank goodness, the table is ready," and this comes in time after time in amusing situations. Those who took part were William Little, Miss Henrietta Winn, Percy Watson, Miss Agnes Van Norden, Walter Knokilton and Miss Helen Roberts.

Russel Conroy, as "Julius," a colored assistant in a dentist's office, made the hit in the presentation of the second play, "The Dentist's Clerk." His acting was a feature of the presentation, which deals with the "treatment" of various "patients" in the office of Dr. Puff, a dentist, where Julius is left in charge during the doctor's absence. The unfortunate patients' parts were taken by Erl Moran, Fred Grey and Charles Kregar. Kregar's dancing was a feature of his acting which won much applause. Others who took part in this play were Ira Vail, William Taylor, who ably took a girl's part, and Fred Van Norden.

During the intermission between the plays, there was a piano duet by Rev. George A. Warner and Russel Conroy. There was also music before the entertainment began. Harry Little was business manager, and the ushers were Edward Mosher, Arthur Williams, William Bullock and Carl Nichols.

WOLFSKEIL ELECTED HEAD OF N.J. MASONS

The 121st annual communication of the Grand Lodge of New Jersey opened in Masonic Temple, Trenton, yesterday morning, with over 500 representatives from subordinate lodges of the State in attendance. The Grand Lodge was convened by Most Worshipful Grand Master Austen Hall McGregor, of Newark, assisted by Past Grand Masters Cannon, Wallis, Mann, Fortmeyer, Moore, Ewan, Apgar, Wilkins, Congdon, Wakefield and Chandler. Among the distinguished guests was brother John Franklin Fort, Governor of New Jersey.

The early part of the session was devoted to the passing of resolutions on the death of Right Worshipful Grand Pursivant Clark D. Haydon. Warrants were granted to organizations at Riverside and Morristown, which have been working under a dispensation.

The report of Grand Secretary Redway shows a total membership of 28,475. This is a marked increase, and the report all through shows the order has had a very substantial growth.

Grand Master McGregor is succeeded by Deputy Grand Master William D. Wolfskeil, of Elizabeth. Alton B. Sherman, of East Orange, grand senior warden, succeeds Wolfskeil, and Judge Charles Conover, of Freehold, at present junior grand warden, is advanced to the senior wardenship.

R. W. Bomeiser, of East Orange, at the early session, announced that Governor Fort had requested the "boys of the grand lodge" to call upon him at the executive chamber during the noon ecess, and the invitation was accepted.

A report presented by the committee who had the work for sending funds to the San Francisco sufferers showed that the fund was returned because it was not needed. Application was made for a dispensation for the organization of a German lodge in Passaic.

The reports of the Masonic Home at Burlington shows there are seventy-four now there.

BRYAN GETS FIFTH DIST.

Democratic Primary Returns in Union, Morris and Warren Shows Martine Wins.

HE'LL BE DELEGATE SURE.

Morris Solid for Bryan While Warren Delegates Are Also for Nebraskan.

Returns from the primaries held last night for the election of delegates to the conventions that will choose delegates to the Democratic National convention at Denver indicate that Bryan has captured the Fifth district Congressional convention, consisting of Union, Morris and Warren counties. If the Bryan men have proved to be successful, it means two delegates more for the Nebraskan, unless they are taken away from him under a unit rule in the State convention.

While Union county elected only probably eleven Bryan men, including nine from Plainfield, the home of James E. Martine, Morris has chosen a practically solid Bryan delegation —fifty-nine delegates in all.

There was no line-up in Warren county, but it is said that the county delegation will be practically a Bryan one. A conservative estimate places twenty out of the twenty-eight Warren delegates in the Bryan column. There will be 158 delegates in the district convention.

The primary in the Fifth district was allowed to go by default in favor of the Nebraskan. Only in Union was there a concentrated effort made to choose men opposed to him. In Morris county Bryan clubs had been formed for several weeks past, and they quickly worked up sentiment for their leader. The anti-Bryanites made no opposition wortay of the name.

The convention of the Fifth district Democrats will be held at Trenton next Tuesday morning just before the State convention will be called to order. In case it looks as if James E. Martine is unable to land one of the "big four," is it likely that the Bryan men will elect him as one of the delegates from the Fifth district.

MARRIED IN OCTOBER: FACT JUST MADE KNOWN.

Although the nuptial knot was tied last October, Miss Clara Smith, daughter of Mrs. Justine Smith, of Duer street, and William H. Daley, formerly of Summit avenue, announced to their friends today for the first time that they had been married. The ceremony was performed in the rectory of St. Joseph's church by Rev. Father Miller with only the necessary witnesses in attendance. For reasons not divulged the young people preferred to keep the wedding secret. They are at present residing with the bride's mother.

Both Mr. Daley and his bride are members of St. Joseph's church and have been identified with the work in the parish for a number of years. The former is an employe of J. A. Smith & Brother. Mrs. Daley was until recently a supervisor at the local telephone exchange.

DEMOCRATS TO PICK COLLINS FOR STATE COMMITEEMAN.

General D. F. Collins will be chosen by the Union county delegates to the Democratic State convention at a caucus at Elizabeth tomorrow night as State Committeeman to succeed Peter Egenolf. James E. Martine will make the nomination speech.

William E. Tuttle, Jr., of Westfield, will succeed Gen. Collins as Democratic county chairman.

Discussed Borough Sewers.

Mayor Samuel Townsend, of North Plainfield, and W. J. Buttfield, chairman of the borough sewer committee, had a joint meeting with Mayor Fisk and the city street and sewer committee in the Plainfield Council chambers last night. The time was spent in a discussion of rates and arrangements for a joint disposal bed for the city and borough. Mayor Townsend is actively interested in the proposition of sewers for the borough, and is investigating the advisability of joint disposal beds.

Booze and a Countryman.

Henry Sullivan, who lives at Trenton Junction, was found helplessly drunk on Somerset street late last night by Marshal Lemuel Pope. He took two days' imprisonment rather than the two dollar fine at his hearing this morning.

Princeton Grads to Hold Smoker.

Graduates in this city of Princeton University are planning to hold a smoker at the Casino on Tuesday night, May 26. Owen H. Fleming is the chairman of the committee in charge.

COUNTRY CLUB TO OPEN ON SATURDAY

The clubhouse of the Plainfield Country Club will be open for members on Saturday and from that time until snow flies there will be something doing every week. The restaurant will be open on Monday, April 27, and will be in charge of Dennis Hartz, an experienced steward. First-class service will be provided. Announcement of events for the season will be made next week by the golf and tennis committees, which are now arranging their schedules.

Members desiring to donate cups should communicate at once with Julius E. Erickson, of the Golf committee, and Thomas M. Day, of the Tennis committee. George Schoonmaker, the chairman of the Green committee, is working hard an the course, but asks players to be patient as he cannot put the putting greens in commission for a week or ten days, owing to the fact that they have been top-dressed and seeded, and time must be allowed for them to get a good start.

The officers and chairmen of committees for the season are as follows:

President, Leighton Calkins; vice-president, Thomas M. Day; secretary, J. P. Murray; treasurer, J. M. Shellabarger; chairman House committee, L. G. Timpson; Green committee, George F. Schoonmaker; Golf committee, Julius E. Erickson; Tennis committee, Thomas M. Day; Buildings and Grounds committee, Henry L. Hall, Frederick W. Butler, all of whom are trustees of the club.

AUTO PASSES OVER CHILD FELLED TO THE GROUND

Darting out from behind a wagon which he had tried to catch, Jeremiah Cash, Jr., the four-year-old son of Special Officer Jeremiah Cash, ran into an automobile driven by Dr. Fred A. Kinch, of Westfield, on South avenue, near Berckman street, yesterday. The machine was travelling at a moderate rate of speed but could not be stopped in time to avoid striking the child. He was knocked some distance ahead and while lying prostrate on the ground, the auto passed over him without even touching his clothing.

Dr. Kinch picked the little fellow up and carried him to his home nearby where an examination showed that he had been badly but not seriously hurt. He was severely bruised about the body and his head was cut but he will be all right within a short time. The auto is a heavy affair and had the wheels went over him the child's life would undoubtedly have been crushed out.

HITCH OVER PRESIDENCY

Deadlock Between Ackerman and Fisk for Head of Proposed Republican Club.

REST OF SLATE SETTLED UPON.

Depew, Newcorn, Vice Presidents; N. Smith, Secretary; Holt, Treasurer; F. Smith, Angleman, Tolles, Moy, Tracy, Higham, Governors.

If the slate agreed upon by the committee on organization last night meets with the approval of the voters at the Republican meeting on Saturday night at the Casino, the Independents will be in control of the proposed Plainfield Republican Club. Excepting the presidency, nominees for all offices were selected, the Colbyites having a majority. There was a dead-lock over the presidency, there being a tie vote between State Senator Ernest R. Ackerman and Mayor Charles J. Fisk.

All the members of the committee of eleven excepting George J. Tobin were present when the three hours' discussion began and at times the arguments were quite lively. R. Henry Depew, president of the New Jersey People's Lobby and the Colbyite candidate for the mayoralty nomination in the last campaign, was agreed upon for first vice president. William Newcorn, judge of the local District Court, and a regular organization man, was the choice for second vice president. The secretaryship went to N. Mansfield Smith, one of the most active New Idea men in the city, while the treasurership also went to a New Idea man, F. L. Holt being slated for the position.

The Board of Governors will consist of eleven members, including the five officers. The other six selected last night were county Chairman F. H. Smith, City Chairman W. S. Angleman and President of Common Council Ralph I. Tolles, all regulars, and Howard Tracy, chairman of the Central Committee, former Councilman J. Stephen Higham and George W. V. Moy, all New Idea men. Several names of prominent party workers were voted down when the choice for governors was being decided.

There was no little excitement when a resolution was introduced to the effect that a clause be placed in the constitution making the fight against bosses and bossism in the party here one of the chief aims of the club. After a lengthy debate it was decided to compromise the matter by having a clause inserted in the constitution placing the club on record as against any baneful influences in the party organization.

DISTRICT COURT ORDERS SUPPLEMENTARY PROCEEDINGS.

Under an order allowed by District Judge William Newcorn on application of Reed & Codington, representing the estate of Dora S. Clark, Mrs. Woldorf will be examined on supplementary proceedings in the District Court on Friday before Walter L. Hetfield, Jr., master in chancery.

These proceeding follow the entering of a judgment against Mrs. Woldorf in the District Court, in a suit brought by William Hepburn Clark and others as executors of the late Dorothea S. Clark. A judgment was rendered for $296.78. After the trial the defendant secured a rule to show cause why the judgment should not be set aside and a new trial granted. On argument, Judge Newcorn discharged the rule and allowed the judgment to stand. Execution was then issued, but was returned unsatisfied.

SEE BOXING BOUT UNDER CHURCH CLUB'S AUSPICES.

The bout was between two exponents of physical culture, and followed a fencing contest between the instructor and Cashier James Aikman, of the Union National Bank. John Hanz, one of the managers of the men's club, acted as referee. The scrap was a four-round affair and no decision was given.

SPORTS HERE AND THERE

GOLF.

Lieut. N. Pendleton Rogers, formerly of this city, but now of Fort Hancock, who was a prominent figure in golf, has decided to enter the competition this year for the Metropolitan Golf Association. He and his mother, also a well-known golfer, will identify themselves with the Deal Golf Club. Mrs. Rogers also expects to take an active part in golf tournaments this season.

Are golf team matches becoming less popular? The sport shows no indication of deteriorating in popularity, and indeed, so far as the metropolitan locality is concerned, many of the links are opening somewhat earlier than usual, and most of the leading clubs are hastening to announce long programs of members' handicaps and other matches. But among these announcements comparatively few team matches have been scheduled. Team golf is recognized as one of the best means of improving a player's calibre, as it combines a test of nerve as well as skill in all-around play.

There are, however, two drawbacks to successful team golf—the tendency to restrict team members to the best players and the amount of time involved, to say nothing of the expense, in traveling from one club to another. The desire to place the best men on a club team is a perfectly natural one, for while many of the mediocre players might show evidences of improved play if they had a chance to meet rival club teams more frequently, the desire to make a good showing for the honor of the club reigns paramount nine times out of ten, and unless the best members can play enthusiasm for team golf gradually wanes.

Team golf has been abandoned by two prominent local associations this season for the first time—the East Jersey Golf Association and the Women's Metropolitan Golf Association. In each case the difficulty of devoting the necessary time for a series of matches has been given as the reason for the failure to continue the series of championship games.

A new plan, that of sectional team matches, was proposed this season; but the same difficulties were encountered in this case, and the executive committee recently announced that team golf would be eliminated this summer. The college golfers, however, are always ready for team contests, and as several matches have been planned with university golfers on local links, the collegians will be depended on to fill the gap to a large extent. Other team matches, however, will be arranged from time to time, according to club convenience.

The tendency of members of one family to excel in one particular sport was unusually well illustrated in the women's golf championship of Ireland, which has just been finished on the Portrush links in Ireland. Over fifty women entered, including most of the leading players in the United Kingdom. The features, however, were the presence in the tournament of five members of the Hezlet family, Mrs. Hezlet and her four daughters, whose admirable golf has won admiration in more than one championship match.

Miss May Hezlet was the holder of the title, an honor that she had won in three previous years. In the preliminary medal play round she led the field with a score of 86, her sister, Miss Florence Hezlet, coming second with 87, while another sister, Miss Violet Hezlet, tied for fourth place. Mrs. and Miss Hezlet were defeated in the second match play round, but the three leading sisters survived for the semi-final round, when Miss Florence Hezlet beat Miss Violet Hezlet by one hole, and Miss May Hezlet won her match.

The final, therefore, brought Miss May and Miss Florence Hezlet together, and the former won the right to the Irish championship for the coming year, making her fifth victory for the title, by defeating her sister by 5 up and 4 to play. Mrs. Cuthell, who, previous to her marriage, was Miss Rhona Affair, the former English champion, and who visited this country three years ago, was among the players, but she was defeated in the fourth round.

The Hezlet family stands unique for the number of women golfers that it can furnish for notable competitions. In this country the most marked example is that of the Curtis sisters, Miss Margaret and Miss Harriet Curtis, of Boston. In the American women's championship last year they both survived to the final round, when Miss Margaret Curtis defeated her sister for the national title by 7 up and 6 to play.

The Oakland Golf Club has announced its season's schedule, extending fom May 16 to Thanksgiving Day. Most important is the club championship, which will begin with an eighteenhole medal play qualifying round on the morning of November 3. There will be some form of competition practically every Saturday.

It is expected that the Canoe Brook Country club will hold a one-day open tournament for East Jersey Golf League members on Saturday, May 2. Not long since twenty-eight members of the defunct Roseville Golf Club joined the Canoe Brook Club.

Those who have seen James A. Tyng on the links declare the veteran is playing stronger than any time in his career as a golfer, which has extended over a period of thirteen years. His 81 at Baltusrol last Saturday is regarded as by far the best that has been played there this season.

BASEBALL.

The Somerville baseball fans will have a meeting tonight to perfect plans for the season. Bogert Conklin is working very hard to get matters in shape and hopes to have a strong team.

Scotch Plains will open the season Saturday with Perth Amboy for their opponents. Johnston will occupy the box for the 'Plains.

Joe Lake signalized his first game in the box for the Highlanders by engaging in a bat-fest, his team defeating Washington by a score of 16 to 13.

Jack O'Brien, the young outfielder whom Manager Stallings of the Newarks got from the Giants, is making good. His batting last season created a sensation. McGraw tips the youngster as a comer, but there was no opening for him with the Giants this season.

Jack Thoney is making good with the Boston Americans and if he keeps up his present clip there is no danger of his returning to Eastern League company this seaosn, although Chief Stallings, Al Buckenberger and other managers have been reported as having their lines out for Thoney, in case he didn't make good with the Red Sox. In the double victory of the Red Sox over the Philadelphia Athletics yesterday, Thoney's batting and base running were big factors. In the two games he scored three runs and hit the ball safely three times. Thoney has made a big hit with the fans in the Hub and is known as "The Bullet."

Otto Hess is said to be slated to leave the Cleveland twirling staff to make room for aspiring youngsters. Hess, who has always been considered a high-class pitcher, is having trouble with his arm this spring.

Ned Hanlon left Baltimore yesterday for the West in quest of a new shortstop for the Orioles. According to this report Manager Jack Dunn evidently does not believe that young Danny Brouthers is fast enough for Eastern League company.

The Toronto club is trying to repurchase First Baseman Jack Flynn from the St. Louis National League club. Flynn refused to be farmed to Milwaukee by St. Louis and he will probably play first base again for the Maple Leaves, as President McCaffery has stated that Manager Mike Kelly will direct the champions from the bench.

The benefit game played recently between the St. Louis American and National League teams netted $4,359 for Chris Von der Ahe, the former boss president of the Browns.

N. J. INDUSTRIES' GREAT PROGRESS

The bureau of statistics of labor and industries of New Jersey has signalized its thirtieth anniversary by the issue of a volume of unusual interest, as its report for the year 1907. The book contains the statistics of manufactures, prefaced by an analytical introduction in which the misleading character of some features of the federal census reports are pointed out, particularly the manner in which the number of manufacturing establishments is swelled by the inclusion therein of every variety of small industry, many of which employ the labor of no one outside of the proprietor.

Data relating to manufactures, which are for the year 1906, show a remarkable condition of prosperity in all lines of industry throughout the State. As compared with the year 1905 the 2,120 standard factory establishments reporting show increases as follows: In capital invested, $58,611,147, or 11.3 per cent.; in value of stock or material used in manufacturing processes, $75,315,708, or 21.3 per cent.; in selling value of total products, $117,419,812, or 19.9 per cent.; in the average number of wage earners employed, 14,032, or 8.7 per cent.; and in the amount paid in wages to wage earners, $14,728,089, or 12.7 per cent.; in average yearly earnings per employe, $17.47, or 3.6 per cent.

The greatest number of wage earners reported as being employed at any time during the year was 277,564; of these 73.5 per cent. were males 16 years old and older, 29.9 per cent. were females 16 years old and older, and 2.6 per cent. were young persons of both sexes under 16 years old. The foregoing classification of labor shows an increase of 0.8 per cent. in the proportion of male employes and decreases of 0.7 and 0.1 per cent. respectively in the number of females and children employed.

Gigantic Strides Made.

The report also contains a comprehensive summary showing the growth of manufacturing industry in New Jersey since 1850. Some of the most striking totals for both periods are shown in the following table:

Capital invested, 1850.	$ 22,293,258
Capital invested, 1905.	715,060,174
Number of wage earners, 1850	37,830
Number of wage earners, 1905	266,330
Amount paid in wages, 1850	9,364,749
Amount paid in wages, 1905	128,168,801
Total value of year's product, 1850	39,851,250
Total value of year's product, 1905	774,369,025

In the value of annual products of manufactured goods the rank of the principal municipalities is at present as follows:

1—Newark.
2—Jersey City.
3—Bayonne.
4—Paterson.
5—Perth Amboy.
6—Camden.
7—Trenton.
8—Elizabeth.
9—Passaic.
10—Hoboken.
11—New Brunswick.
12—Harrison.
13—Phillipsburg.
14—Orange.
15—West Hoboken.
16—Bloomfield.
17—Kearny.
18—Millville.
19—Plainfield.
20—Union.
21—Bridgeton.
22—East Orange.
23—Hackensack.
24—Atlantic City.
25—Morristown.
26—Montclair.
27—Long Branch.

One of the most interesting chapters in the book is that in which the particulars relating to "accidents to workmen while on duty and the number of these that resulted in death" are given.

Figures show the total number injured in 1907 to have been 1,898, and the number of these in which death followed soon after was 425, or 22.4 per cent. of the total number. In 1906 the year's record of casualties among wage earners totaled up 1,274 accidents, which resulted in 269 deaths. The increase for 1907 compared with the record of 1906 shows, therefore, that 624, or 49 per cent. more workmen were injured during the year while following their customary vocations, and also that the number of fatalities which followed had increased from a small fraction above 21 per cent. in 1906 to 22.4 per cent. in 1907.

Railroad Men's Mishaps.

Railroad trainmen, yardmen and section men furnished by far the largest number of accidents, 440, and also the greatest number of deaths, 180. Among the trades the carpenters suffered most, the number of accidents being 120, to 22 for bricklayers, the next highest on the list. Quarrymen and tunnel laborers both show high percentages of accidents that terminated fatally; out of 18 quarrymen injured 9, or 50 per cent., died, and of 42 tunnel laborers injured 19, or 45 per cent., died.

These statistics of accidents are particularly opportune at this time, when the question of establishing statutory regulation of employers' liability as engaging the attention of Congress and many of the State legislatures. There is a growing sentiment in favor of compelling more effective protection to be given workmen. The story of the shockings maimings and killing of New Jersey working persons given in this report makes a grewsome and pathetic recital. It is felt that the State factory inspection department should be clothed with ample power to bring about safer conditions. It should also be made one of its most imperative duties to safeguard the lives of industrial employes.

Maintaining His Argument.

One night at Brooks' when Coke was present Fox, in allusion to something that had been said, made a very disparaging remark about government powder. Adam, attorney general to the Prince of Wales, who heard it, considered it a personal reflection and sent Fox a challenge. At the time appointed Fox went out and took his station, standing full face to his adversary. Fitzgerald pointed out to him that he ought to stand sideway. "What does it matter?" protested Fox; "I am as thick one way as the other!" The signal of fie was given. Adam fired, but Fox did not. His seconds, greatly excited, told him that he must fire. "I'll be —— if I do!" said Fox. "I have no quarel." Whereupon the two adversaries advanced to shake hands. "Adam," said Fox complacently, "you'd have killed me if it hadn't been for the badness of government powder."—London Bellman.

ASK FOR THE FISHER HOLDBACK

The old style holdback for blinds affords a roosting place for birds and causes ugly stains to disfigure the sides of the house under the blinds. Notice this carefully and then you will want

NEWS IN THE SUBURBS.

SOUTH PLAINFIELD.

The "Ladies' Minstrels" at Washington Hall last evening gave a first-class performance. Katherine L. Mansell is being warmly congratulated upon the efficiency displayed by the company under her direction. The members of the minstrels were all from New Market, Dunellen and Plainfield and the orchestra, which is directed by Mrs. Charles Day, was composed of Plainfield women. The local hits made a great deal of fun and were of a character to hurt no one's feelings. One of the best numbers was the cakewalk with which the performance closed.

The Climax Athletic Club entertainment and dance, to be given here on Friday, April 24, bids fair to outdo all their previous efforts. Every preperation is being made to wind up their dance season with a thorough success.

Miss Ethel Marlow and Miss Myrtle Steele, both of Little Falls, have just returned home, after visiting Mrs. David Bigley for a few days.

May Kinney is making a lengthened stay with her grandparents in Somerville.

THEATRE AND BALLROOM IN THE HOTEL ASTOR.

The enlarged Hotel Astor in New York will contain a theatre. The plans for the addition to the hotel, to be built on Forty-fourth and Forty-fifth streets, filed yesterday by Architects Clinton & Rusell, show a grand ballroom, with mezzanine floor and balcony which will make it available for theatricals.

The addition will cost $1,000,000. It will be similar in design to the main structure and will occupy the plot now covered by the ten old-fashioned dwellings at 207 to 215 West Forty-fourth street and 206 to 214 West Forty-fifth street. T his will give an increased frontage of 106 feet on each street, thus exactly doubling the area covered by the hotel. The enlarged building will occupy 42,500 square feet of ground.

The structure will be of brick, with limestone trimmings, and have an ornamented top story mansard decorated with rows of pillars with electric lights. The roof garden, part of which is to be inclosed in glass, will be extended over the entire building.

Building Supt. Murphy has issued to John Downey, representing the Astors, a permit to tear down the old houses.

LESLIE CARTER-PAYNE'S EFFECTS AUCTIONED OFF.

A coat-of-arms, which had had the distinction of being bought at the Stanford White sale by Mrs. Leslie Carter-Payne, was one of the interesting pieces among teh actress' effects at the bankruptcy sale in the Fifth Avenue Auction Rooms, at Fourth avenue and Twenty-eighth street, New York, yesterday afternoon, and sold for $6.50.

There was a crowd out to see what kind of furniture Mrs. Carter-Payne had used, but they were not all buyers. Among the higher prices $90 was paid for a pair of silver wine coolers and Empire design; a Carara marble group, "Love Wounded," by Romanelli, brought $200; a Vernis-Martin curio cabinet, $60, and a Louis XV. screen, $41. The average prices were low.

HOUSEWIFE SUGGESTIONS.

Keep a pair of mittens made from heavy white cotton flannel to slip on when hanging out clothes.

To polish a looking glass first rub it with a duster wrung out of cold water and dipped in whiting, and then polish with a dry cloth.

Turnips boiled in their jackets like beets are much better than when pared. Adding a little sugar to the water will correct any bitterness.

Heat a lemon thoroughly before squeezing and you will obtain nearly double the quantity of juice that you would if it had not been heated.

As soon as a salt ham or tongue is cooked remove it from the boiling water to a pan of cold water for a few seconds. This will loosen the skin, which may be easily peeled off.

Sprinkle mint with granulated sugar when preparing mint sauce and it will chop more easily. Try adding a few mint leaves to the dish of baked beans. An epicure also recommends serving mint sauce with spinach.

Insect Contrivance.

As Dr. Darwin was walking one day in his garden he perceived a wasp upon the gravel walk with a large fly nearly as big as itself which it had caught. Kneeling down, he distinctly saw it cut off the head and abdomen and then, taking up with its feet the trunk or middle portion of the body, to which the wings remained attached, fly away. But a breeze of wind, acting on the wings of the fly, turned round the wasp with its burden and impeded its progress. Upon this it alighted again on the gravel walk, deliberately sawed off first one wing and then the other and, having thus removed the cause of its embarrassment, flew off with its booty.

YOUNG WIFE GONE, HUBBY TRIES SUICIDE

Made desperate by brooding over the elopement of his young wife, Martin Anderson, 28 years old, attempted to commit suicide last night at 146 Maple street, Kearny.

Until ten days ago Anderson lived at 231 Jersey street, Harrison. He left that address after finding a note from his wife, which read:

"It is no use us living together longer. I do not love you and I am going away with Joe. You will never see me again. LENA."

The "Joe" referred to was Joseph Pawlawsky, their "star boarder." With the letter was Mrs. Anderson's wedding ring, broken into three pieces.

Anderson went to the police, but no trace of the missing pair could be found, and finally he gave up the search, vacated the house and went to board with a friend, Alexander Grant, of the Maple street address in Kearny.

Last night Anderson entered the kitchen where Grant and his wife and some friends were sitting. He carried a .32-calibre revolver.

Closing the door behind him he said: "Well, here goes." Then he raised the gun.

Grant jumped from his chair and struck up Anderson's arm as he fired. The shot went wild, but Anderson fired again and again. These two shots also missed their mark.

Then Anderson, shaking off Grant, rushed through the kitchen and into the back yard. There he attempted to reload, but in his haste he caused the cartridge ejector to jam and when he pulled the trigger the hammer failed to resuond.

Grant had followed at his friend's heels, and perceiving that the gun was out of commission threw himself upon the man. He called for assistance, and others came from the house. They, too, helped to restrain Anderson.

The shots in the kitchen had frightened the two women there, and they could not be induced to go for help for some time. Finally they called the police. Anderson was then arrested and locked up at headquarters in Kearny, charged with attempted suicide.

—John McIntyre, of North avenue, is making extensive improvements to his store property on the avenue and the first floor will be divided into several offices.

GOVERNOR LEADS AT TRENTON CHARITY BALL.

A society charity ball was given Tuesday night at Trenton by the Trenton Batallion of the Second Regiment, National Guards of New Jersey. Gov. Fort led the grand march with Mrs. William S. Stryker. Distinguished persons, including General Nelson A. Miles, U. S. A., retired; Colonel John C. Calhoun, grandson of a former vice president of the United States, and John Marshall, great-grandson of the great United States chief justice, were among those present.

Mr. and Mrs. Barker Gummere entertained these distinguished guests over night, and Governor Fort and Mrs. Fort were the guests of Mrs. Stryker. The scene was made picturesque by members of the Essex troop and the staffs of General Collins, Governor Fort and Colonel Nelson Y. Dungan.

Six thousand persons attended the ball, the society men dancing with the factory girls in shirt waists and men in ordinary attire dancing with society dames. The ball will be followed by a charity fair next week, the first evening being set down for Saturday. The proceeds go to the three hospitals of Trenton.

Among those present were Mayor Fisk, of Plainfield, and Mr. and Mrs. William Ralston Sweeny, of Trenton.

ASSAULT CONDUCTOR AND ROB HIM ON CAR.

Elizabeth, April 23.—Several thugs Tuesday night at Aldene assaulted and robbed the conductor of a trolley car that runs from the Jersey Central Railroad Station at Elizabethport to Aldene. The conductor was struck on the back of the head with a blackjack and knocked senseless.

Then the highwaymen went through his pockets and took what money he had. The thieves, however, did not get much, as the conductor several hours previously had turned in his cash at the trolley office.

The conductor sustained a scalp wound from the blow dealt him and had to go to a hospital to have the injury dressed. So quickly was the robbery performed that the motorman knew nothing of the affair until it was all over and the robbers had disapepared. There were no passengers in the car at the time.

PITNEY AND STOKES TESTIFY.

Appear as Witnesses in Prosecutor Huston's Libel Suit.

Chancellor Pitney and former Governor Stokes were witnesses, yesterday at Trenton in the case of Henry D. Huston, prosecutor of the pleas, against William D. Ackerson, a suit for damages for libel, based on an affidavit which was used in an effort to prevent Huston's reappointment for prosecutor.

Chancellor Pitney was in charge of the Supreme Court circuit at Newton, and testified that the affidavit was submitted to him by Mr. Ackerson, and that he turned it over to then Governor Stokes. The ex-Governor testified to receiving the affidavit.

WOMAN HIGHWAYMAN.

Holds Up Girl in Bayonne and Robs Her of $2.

Mrs. Sarah Reilly, of Bayonne, yesterday gave her 10-year-old daughter, Margaret, a $2 bill to go to the grocer's. A block away a woman, dressed all in black, stopped the child and demanded her money.

Margaret started to run, when the woman grabbed her, and, forcing the $2 from her hand, ran away. No trace of her has been gained.

How Indians Tan Deerskin.

The skin dressing of the Indians, both buffalo and deer skins, is generally very beautiful and soft. They stretch the skin either on a frame or on the ground, and after it has remained there for three or four days, with the brains spread over the fleshy side, they grain it with a sort of adz or chisel. After the process of graining, though the skin is apparently beautifully finished, it passes through another process—that of smoking. For this they hang the skin on a frame in a smoke proof house or tent. The fire is made at the bottom of the rotten wood, which produces a strong and peculiar smell. The fire must be smothered to make the smoke. The grained skins must be kept in the smoke for three or four days, and after this the skins will always remain the same, even after being wet, which does not belong to the dressed skins in civilized countries.—"Life Among the Indians."

Accused of Violating New Law.

Jersey City, April 23.—Police Captain Edward Coughlin, of the Communipaw avenue station, in the Second Criminal Court yesterday, made complaint against William Latterman, of 477 Jackson avenue, charging him with violating the new theatre act, which makes it a misdemeanor, punishable by three years' imprisonment, to permit a child under the age of sixteen years, unless accompanied by a parent or guardian, to enter a theatre. The arraignment of Letterman will be the first prosecution under the law and it is proposed to push the case as a deterrent to other managers of amusement places.

W. V. Mundy, of Duer street, who recently had his leg amputated, continues to improve and regain his strength.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Prayer Meeting Topic For the Week Beginning April 25, 1908.

By REV. S. H. DOYLE.

Topic.—Foreign missions—Paton and missions in the islands.—Acts xxviii, 1-10.

The experiences of Paul on the island of Melita after his shipwreck while on the way to Rome do not in any way correspond with those of John G. Paton, missionary to the New Hebrides. The inhabitants of Melita are called a "barbarous people" notwithstanding they "showed no little kindness" to the apostle and those with him. When God protected the apostle from the sting of a viper they looked upon him as a god. He was entertained in the home of Publius, the chief of the barbarians, whose father he healed of the fever. He also healed others, and when he departed they laded him with such things as he needed.

But how different the experience of Paton among the barbarians, to whom he went with the definite purpose of carrying them the gospel. They showed him no kindness; they loaded him not with good things. But for Christ's sake he stood at his post, "enduring hardness as a good soldier of Christ," and was rewarded by being able to do a great work for Christ even among barbarians whose barbarianism extended to cannabalism.

The story of Paton and his work is a remarkable one, and as told by himself in an autobiography consisting of two volumes it should be read by every one interested in foreign missions. The opening words of the first chapter of his thrilling story illustrate the spirit of the man. He begins: "What I write here is for the glory of God. For more than twenty years I have been urged to record my story as a missionary of the cross, but always till now, in my sixty-fourth year, my heart has shrunk from the task as savoring of self."

Paton was born near Dumfries, in the south of Scotland, May 24, 1824. His father was a stocking manufacturer in a small way, but a man of religious disposition and character and one who exercised a strong influence upon his son. Though working for his father, the son found time to study Latin and Greek. His first missionary work was city missions in Glasgow. In 1858 he went as a missionary to the New Hebrides and labored there until his death, Jan. 28, 1907, almost fifty years. To tell of his trials and hardships among the cannibals would be impossible in a very limited space. A few years ago he visited the United States to interest our government in the suppression of the liquor and opium trade among his people. The Presbyterian C. E. Manual thus sums up his experiences:

He first spent four years on the small island of Tanna, where he had the most terrible experiences among the most bloodthirsty cannibals on earth.

His wife and child died. His fellow missionaries, the Gordons, were killed on a neighboring island. Another missionary fell at his side. Still he continued to preach faithfully against wife beating, widow strangling and the eating of human flesh.

Iniquitous traders introduced measles to kill off the natives, and one-third of them died. Confounding all white men, they set about murdering Paton. After a thousand hairbreadth escapes he succeeded in getting away.

Next he went to the nearby island of Aniwa, which by persevering labors he transformed into a beautiful Christian community. He won their favor at first by the unheard of feat of digging a well, bringing up water from below.

This result, however, was not brought about without heroic toil and fearful sufferings, brightened by the discovery of rare qualities among the redeemed natives. Now, very largely through Dr. Paton's inspiring example and leadership, missionaries have quite won to Christ the whole of the southern portion of the New Hebrides.

BIBLE READINGS.

Isa. xxxv, 1-10; lii, 7-10; Ps. ii, 1-12; lxxii; Matt. x, 16-28; xxviii, 19, 20; Acts i, 8; xiii, 1-12; Rom. x, 14, 15; Rev. xxi, 23-26.

The Endeavor Standard.

There is no occasion for framing new excuses. The world, the flesh and the devil are all busy at this task. The only Endeavor standard is what "Christ would have me to do." Let us never lower this, but ever cultivate a more heroic, courageous, conscientious type of Christianity, for this is what the world most needs today.—Rev. Francis E. Clark, D. D., in Irish Endeavorer.

"Until a Little While."*

[The Brazilians have an expression which I heard a thousand times, which, being literally translated, means "until a little while." It may be many years before I return to Brazil, if ever; but, measured in the years of eternity, it will be only "until a little while" that we meet again. Then "Ate logo," dear friends, "Ate logo," "until a little while."—Dr. Francis E. Clark.]

The Lord of light shall give His peace
"Until a little while,"
His watchful love shall never cease
Nor lessened be His smile.

CHORUS.
"Until a little while,"
"Until a little while,"
The Lord keep watch in tender love
"Until a little while."

The Lord of light shall guardian be
"Until a little while,"
Keep watch in love o'er thee and me,
Though sundered paths beguile.

The Lord of light with mighty arm
"Until a little while"
Shall keep from every dire alarm
And safeguard life's long mile.

Through varied scenes to heaven's gate
Our pilgrim band shall file
To where the "loved and lost" ones wait
"Until a little while."

STANDING TREAT.

Woman Is Said to Be Handicapped by Her Home-Training.

A man says that a great deal of unintentional entertaining takes place among women. Women—when they are by themselves—it appears, lack independence of action. They cannot shake off one they have met a moment or two ago with a nod when they want to lunch by themselves. The spirit of domestic hospitality is too strong. In a weak moment—for it is painfully weak—they insist on paying for the company and the food of an acquaintance they had merely meant to be civil to.

Of course this sort of thing seems almost incomprehensible to a man. Invariations in men's clubs, say, have to be backed by a pretty sound reason. The pleasant sort of fellow who waited about for some sensitive man on whom to insinuate his appetite would soon find himself living a hungry life.

This is certainly a strange and disturbing insight into the manners and customs of women. It goes against one's observation too. Women usually appear to be quite conscious that they are doing an independent thing in an independent thing in an independent spirit.

They Were Good Eaters.

One day Dr. Norman McLeod, who was a large and healthy man, and one of his burly elders went to pay a visit to a certain Mrs. MacLaren of the congregation who lived over the Scotch hills. She was a frugal woman, but since she knew that a call from these two meant that they would stay to supper, too, she determined that they should have the best in the house. So she piled the table with jellies and jam and preserves and shortbread and all the delicacies of the season, and, the journey having been long, they partook unsparingly, and after the meal the elder said to her:

"Mrs. MacLaren, were you at the kirk Sunday?"

"Oh, aye," she said, "I was."

"And what did you think of the treatment of the miracle?" The sermon had been on the loaves and fishes.

"I thought it was good," said Mrs. MacLaren.

"And what is your idea on the subject, Mrs. MacLaren?" persisted the minister.

"Losh," said their hostess suddenly, "I'm thinkin' that if you and the elder had bin in the congregation there wadna bin twelve baskets of fragments for the disciples to gather up!"

The Partitions of Poland.

There have been three partitions of Poland. The first was in 1772, when Prussia took the palatinates of Malberg, Pomeria and Warmia, a part of Culm and a part of Great Poland. Austria took Red Russia, or Galicia; a part of Podolia, Sandomir and Crocow, and Russia took White Russia, with all the part beyond the Dnieper. The second portion was in 1793, by which Prussia acquired the remainder of Great and a portion of Little Poland and the Russian boundary was advanced to the center of Lithuania and Volhynia. In the third and final partition, in 1795, Austria had Crocow, with the country between the Pilica and the Vistula. Prussia had the capital, with the territory as far as the Niemen, while the rest went to Russia.—New York American.

The Sausage.

The sausage dates back to the year 891. It has been asserted that the Greeks in the days of Homer manufactured sausages, but this prehistoric mixture had nothing in common with our modern product. The ancient so called sausage was composed of the same materials which enter into the makeup of the boudin of the French market and the blood pudding of the French Canadian. The ancient sausage was enveloped in the stomachs of goats. It was not until the tenth century that sausage made of hashed pork became known. It was in or near the year 1500 that, thanks to the introduction into Germany of cinnamon and saffron, the sausages of Frankfort and Strassburg acquired a universal reputation.

A Dramatic Author.

Like most actor managers, Macready was pestered by would be dramatic authors. An ambitious young fellow brought him a five act tragedy one morning to Drury Lane.

"My piece," modestly explained the author, "is a chef d'oeuvre. I will answer for its success, for I have consulted the sanguinary taste of the public. My tragedy is so tragic that all the characters are killed off at the end of the third act."

"With whom, then," asked the manager, "do you carry on the action of the last two acts?"

"With the ghosts of those who died in the third."—Cornhill Magazine.

Gray Versus Brown Camels.

The length of a stage varies throughout Persia, depending on the character of the country, and is reckoned in farsaks, the old Greek parasang. The farsak is a most elastic and uncertain measure, and as animals are paid for per farsak as many as the credulity of the traveler will allow are crowded into each stage. "How far," I once asked an old Kurdish muleteer, "is a farsak?" "As far as one can distinguish a gray from a brown camel," was the discreet answer. The average about four miles and the stage about six farsaks, or twenty-five miles.—Atlantic.

Having strong faith in the deal's success and having no equally strong incentive to keep faith with his partners, Gibbs had sought to swell his own profits by secretly buying up quantities of the stock for himself until every penny of his capital was involved. His troubled mind could not now determine whether or not Wainwright suspected him. Gibbs, while possessing all the ambition, selfishness and lack of conscience that go toward the making of a great financier, lacked the one chief essentials for the part—namely, a cold and unshaken nerve. It was this defect that now threatened to expose him.

"Fall through!" cried Gibbs, dismayed.

"Well," resumed Wainwright, as though dismissing the topic, "you should have made it your business to know who is doing this private buying. That's what we brought you into the deal for. Anyhow, the mysterious purchaser is liable to find himself in hot water before long."

"Why?" queried Gibbs in a voice he tried to make indifferent.

"Only because the deal will probably fall through."

"Fall through!" cried Gibbs, dismayed. "What do you— Why, you told me Mr. Horrigan could win over a fourteenth alderman, and that with his solid thirteen"—

"Yes," drawled Horrigan, who had been unobtrusively eying Gibbs from the moment of his entrance, "we had some such notion, as you say. But my 'solid thirteen' didn't happen to be as solid as he looked. He's bolted."

"Bolted! Then we—we will lose! We"—

"Say, Mr. Gibbs," observed Horrigan, "you seem to take this thing pretty hard for a man with only 20 per cent at stake. Mr. Wainwright stands to lose some millions. I'm interested to the extent of almost a million. Yet you don't see us getting pale and shaky, do you? If a man can't pay for the chips he has no right in a poker game. Brace up and act like a man, can't you? We haven't lost yet. I've sent after the fellow that bolted, and I think I can land the fourteenth alderman too."

"Good!" exclaimed Gibbs in wild relief. "And you'll do your very best to pull the deal through, won't you?"

"No!" snarled Horrigan in elephantine sarcasm. "I'm going to spend the time playing pingpong and diabolo with the kids or taking a course of lessons in fancy knitting. Oh, buck up, can't you, and quit acting like a baby! Judge Newman's out there on the other side of the ballroom. Chase over and tell him to come here."

Too confused to resent the boss' words, Gibbs meekly set out on his errand.

"That chap's got a streak of yellow a yard wide," commented Horrigan, gazing after him.

"Not as bad as that," replied Wainwright. "He's young and not used to reverses. You'll find he is game, all right, when it comes to a pinch. What did you want of Newman?"

"You'll see. Here he comes."

"You wished to speak to me, Mr. Horrigan?" piped the little judge, hurrying into the foyer. "Good evening, Mr. Wainwright. What a success the ball is! My daughters have been dancing all evening. And Mrs. Newman is so"—

"Never mind Mrs. Newman just now," broke in Horrigan. "There's something important I want you to do for me."

He spoke, as he always did to Newman, in the manner of one addressing an incompetent servant. The judge, for all his pomposity, deemed it wise to ignore the politician's mode of address.

"I want you to hunt up Bennett," went on the boss, "and persuade him to stop fighting the Borough franchise bill. Tell him"—

"Oh," gasped the judge in genuine alarm, "I really don't think I could presume to"—

"Yes, you can," contradicted Horrigan. "You can do it, and, what's more, you will. You don't feel shy about asking favors of me, and when it's the other way around you've got to come down or"—

"I know! I know!" protested the frightened little judge soothingly. "But you don't understand how"—

"I got you the nomination last fall. Are you going to be a white man or a welcher?"

"But I'm sure that Mrs. Newman"—

"To blazes with Mrs. Newman! Now listen to me. Go to Bennett and do what you can to make him keep his hands off our Borough bill. If he's difficult offer him, in my name, the nomination for governor next year. If you can get him—well, there's a vacancy next year in the supreme court and"—

"I'll do what I can," assented the judge. "I'm sure you are right, Mr. Horrigan, even if your way of putting matters is just a little ragged. I'll see Mr. Bennett tonight and use all the persuasion in my power. I'm quite sure civic welfare will be best served if he will cease his unseemly opposition to the Borough bill. Thank you, Mr. Horrigan. I'm very sure that Mrs. Newman"—

"I'm sure, too," cut in Horrigan. "Now run on. We're busy. Remember, now—the very next supreme court vacancy"—

"Do you really think he has any influence with Bennett?" asked Wainwright as the judge vanished.

"Can't do any harm to try. They're neighbors in the country and in the same crowd in society and all that. If it fails, I've another card that's even stronger. Roberts ought to be here by now. You found out about those notes of his?"

"Yes; both of them. One for $7,000, one for $15,000. Both secured by mortgaging his factory. Roberts can't meet them. They've been extended twice, though the security must have been fairly good or the Sturtevant Trust company wouldn't have lent"—

"Williams said you wanted to speak to me, Mr. Horrigan," said a nervous voice from the door, and a pale, middle aged man came forward. He wore worry's stamp between his perplexed eyes, and care had bent his narrow shoulders.

"Yes." Good evening, Roberts," replied Horrigan cordially. "See you later, Wainwright."

The financier took the hint and walked toward the ballroom, on his way out nearly colliding with Phelan, who was entering the foyer. At sight of Horrigan and Roberts together Phelan's eyebrows went upward, with a jerk, and he tiptoed out in the opposite direction as fast as his stout legs could carry him in search of Bennett. Meantime Horrigan had come directly to the point, as usual, in his appeal to Roberts.

"Look here, alderman," said he, "you've been trying for years to get through a park bill for your ward. Still want it?"

"Yes," returned Roberts. "My constituents are at me all the time about that park. They"—

"It would make your ward's property values go up 50 per cent, and it would make you solid there forever, hey?"

"Yes, but"—

"Introduce that bill again, and I'll guarantee it will go through."

"Are you in earnest?"

"There's my hand on it. Only, of course, it's understood that your park bill won't come up until after the Borough Street railway franchise is passed. Understand?"

"I'm afraid I do," said Roberts after a pause, "but I voted against that bill, and"—

"You voted against the bill in its original form," Horrigan interrupted reassuringly, "and you were right, too. It had a lot of clauses that you thought weren't square. But all those have been cut out."

"But I still"—

"But you'll be doing what's best for your own constituents by looking after their interests in the matter of the park. You'll be their hero for that. Of course if I wanted to put it another way I could remind you that your business is in a bad way and that a friend of mine has bought up your notes at the Sturtevant Trust company and means to send them to you tomorrow. But that has nothing to do with the case. So I just"—

"I'm honest, Mr. Horrigan," faltered Roberts. "I"—

"Sure you're honest! That's why you'll have the courage to vote for the bill when you see it's been amended so as to be a good thing for the city. That's being honest, isn't it?"

"I—I suppose so. And the notes—the"—

"They'll be sent you by registered mail tomorrow if you want them. Do you?"

"Y-yes. That is, I"—

"That's settled, then. You've got a level head. Good night."

The boss strode out, a grim smile of victory on his big face, leaving Roberts standing confused, doubtful, his brain awhirl. How long the tempted alderman stood thus—oblivious to the music, his surroundings and all else—he could never remember, but a voice at his elbow brought him to his senses with a start that was followed by a thrill of fear as he wheeled and recognized the speaker.

D., nineteen hundred and eight, at which time and place prior to the adoption of said ordinance, said ordinance will be considered by the Common Council, and all persons interested may be heard before the Common Council with reference to the proposed ordinance.

By order of the Common Council.

J. T. MacMURRAY, City Clerk.

Plainfield, N. J., April 13, 1908.

AN ORDINANCE

For the Permanent Improvement of Certain Streets and Portions of Streets of the City of Plainfield, with Permanent and Durable Macadam Pavement, and to Provide the Necessary Funds in Advance of the Collection of Assessments for Benefits.

The Inhabitants of the City of Plainfield, by their Common Council, do enact as follows:

Section 1. North Avenue, from the northeasterly curb line of Berckman Street to the southwesterly curb line of Terrill Road;

Leland Avenue, from the present macadam on East Front street to the present macadam on South Avenue;

Netherwood Avenue, from the present macadam on East Front Street to the northwesterly curb line of East Second Street;

Monroe Avenue, from the present macadam on West Seventh Street to the present macadam on West Eighth Street;

West Eighth Street, from the present macadam on Monroe Avenue to the City Line;

West Third Street, from the present macadam at Monroe Avenue to the present macadam at Clinton Avenue;

Clinton Avenue, from the present macadam at West Third Street to the City Line.

Section 2. That said streets and portions of streets described in Section 1 shall be macadamized for a width of sixteen feet and for a depth running from six inches at the center to four inches at the sides, excepting on West Third Street, where slag foundation has been laid, where the thickness of stone shall be two and one-half inches, and the macadamizing preparation shall be laid down to the grades already established by ordinance for said streets or portions of streets, respectively.

Sec. 3. That for the purpose of obtaining money by the sale of bonds hereinafter specified for the permanent improvement of said streets and parts of streets as aforesaid, in advance of the collection of assessments for benefits, the Common Council of the City do hereby, pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, authorize the issuing of seventeen coupon municipal bonds of the City of Plainfield, of One Thousand Dollars each, amounting in all to Seventeen Thousand Dollars, which bonds shall bear interest at the rate of five per centum per annum, payable semi-annually, and be payable three years from said date of issue with the option of the city to redeem or pay off the said bonds, or any one or more of them at any time after one year from date of issue, and before three years from said date of issue, on giving personal notice to the said holders of said bonds or thirty days' notice by advertisement in the official newspapers of the City, of the intention to make such redemption or payment, which bonds may severally or collectively be sold for an amount not less than par value, and the interest on said bonds shall be raised annually by taxation and the principal be paid by the City at maturity, and the money derived from the assessments upon the property benefited, shall, when collected, be held as a fund toward the payment of said bonds.

Sec. 4. That after said improvements shall have been completed, the Common Council shall, pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, apply to the Court of Common Pleas of the County of Union for the appointment of Commissioners to estimate and assess benefits upon the owners of the lots or parcels of land and real estate peculiarly benefited by such improvements, in proportion, as near as may be, to an amount equal to the amount of benefits actually acquired by the lands and real estate bordering on said streets or portions thereof respectively, by reason of such improvements respectively; and in case the costs and expenses aforesaid shall exceed the amount of said benefits, the excess thereof shall be paid by the City at large and raised by general tax; no property or owner thereof to be in any case assessed beyond the amount of benefit actually derived from said improvements.

LOCAL AMUSEMENTS

The wonderful actual talking pictures which come to the New Plainfield theatre next Monday afternoon and night appeal especially to those who are lovers of good music and singing and also to those who are fond of a good laugh. A laugh that is caused by clean legitimate comedy, something that is really worth laughing at, and not the suggestive, vulgarisms or immodest reference to things that appeal to those of low intellect, but an absolutely clean wholesome entertainment, to which you can safely take those you love and respect the most without fear of having the most delicate feelings shocked or offended, an entertainment which especially appeals to the ladies and children as well as the sterner sex interesting, instructive, amusing and one long to be remembered as something entirely different from anything you have ever witnessed before.

While Mayor Hibbard, of Boston, was watching "The Man of the Hour," President Roosevelt was seeing the play in Washington. At the end of the third act, the President joined in the storm of applause, half arose from his seat and bowed to the company. Out in Springfield, the same night, the Governor of Illinois, was showing his approval of the play as it was given by still another company. Brady and Grismer have four organizations presenting this vital American drama, which comes to the New Plainfield theatre next Tuesday night, and they are all of equal merit. There was never a play where the personality of the actor was of so little consequence. It is the play that grips one, and not who plays it. Not merely every playgoer, but every citizen who believes in honest municipal government should see it. It is the big play of the moment, and it reaches a larger audience than any editorial writer in America.

BEST STATE IN UNION SAYS GOVERNOR FORT

Governor Fort was hailed as the Vice Presidential candidate at the reception tendered him last night in the rooms of the Union League Club, Orange, where the Republicans of the Oranges turned out in goodly numbers to greet him. It was rather a smoky time, plenty of cigars and church warden pipes being provided. Governor Fort was not forgotten, as President John A. Ackerman of the club presented him with a meerschaum pipe.

In accepting the pipe the Governor said: "I have done most everything in my life, but I have never smoked a pipe."

Previous to an entertainment by professional talent, the Governor made a brief address, dwelling on the growing tendency of the people to place more dependence in the chief executive.

"I believe," he said, "that the people are looking more and more to the executive, and would place more responsibility on him. In some ways this works for good, in other ways it remains to be found out. The idea is growing that the executive should be held more responsible for good government, and not too responsible for good laws. President Roosevelt has found out; my neighbor, Governor Hughes, has found out, and some think that I have found out, that the chief executive can't always do what he wants with the Legislature. But the point I wish to make is this: The executive can safely go back to the people and ask them to help him in the next Legislature, and if he is right, the next Legislature will be behind him.

"It is an honor to be Governor of the great little State of New Jersey," he concluded. "Our penal and reformatory institutions are unsurpassed. With the exception, perhaps, of Massachusetts, our roads and schools are pre-eminent, and in intelligence, wealth and character, all that goes to make up good citizenship, New Jersey stands at the head."

Colonel Austen Colgate made a brief address in a humorous vein and Joseph F. McHugh read a poem. President John A. Ackerman presided.

Martha Washington Council, No. 23, Daughters of America, will initiate several candidates at its meeting Saturday night at 7:30 o'clock, and it is expected that a delegation will be present from Mt. Bethel.

DOUBLE PLAYS BY SNYDER.

Local School-boys Played Good Ball After First Inning, When Murphey Was Wild.

The Plainfield High School added another victory to their season's unbroken list of wins yesterday when they triumphed over the Bayonne High School nine at Crescent Oval by a score of 9-5. Each team had a batting rally in the first session, but the local boys scored five runs to their opponents' four. Jacks, who started in the box for the Bayonne boys, was touched for five clean hits in the inning, and his place was taken by Daly, who was generally effective. Murphey, who was on the slab for the locals, had an off day and couldn't find the plate. He gave seven passes, fanning but three; Bayonne's four singles, however, were kept well scattered.

After the first inning, both teams played fairly good ball. The visitors made eight costly errors, on one occasion a muffed third strike proving just as effective as a three-bagger. Double plays in the fourth and ninth were features of the local school's playing. These were made by Snyder, at second base, and the one in the last inning finished the game in a hilgh-class manner. In each case there was a man on first and the ball was hit on the ground to Snyder, who touched the middle bag and shot the sphere to Dey at first, scoring the second out in plenty of time. The official score:

Police Horse Takes a Jaunt.

"Sam," the police patrol horse, led Patrolman George Dobson a long chase this morning, when he escaped from the stable at police headquarters and took a morning jaunt. The horse wore no harness and ran around to Crescent avenue before it could be headed off. Turning the other way, "Sam" trotted down to North avenue, and a circle of cabmen and pedestrians tried to effect his capture there without success. Finally Dobson came along on his wheel and rode into the Plainfield Cab Company's stables. On seeing the uniform, "Sam" pricked up his ears and trotted in after Dobson. Once inside, the capture was easy.

DUER STREET RESIDENTS HAVE MAD DOG SCARE.

A real mad dog scare roused Duer street to a high state of excitement this morning, when a black dog belonging to J. Sklarew developed an attack of the rabies and kept the residents near Linden avenue in a state of excitement until Chief Weiss shot the animal.

The excitement started when the dog had a fit, shortly before 10 o'clock. Telephone calls from several of the residents near Sklarew's house brought Chief Marshal Weiss to the spot from police headquarters. The dog had finished its fit by that time and was rushing around, foaming at the mouth, through the entire neighborhood. Children were called in from the streets and all doors fastened until the dog was cornered under the piazza of Sklarew's house. Chief Weiss did not want to shoot it there, so worried it out with a spade and killed it instantly as it darted out and ran across the yard.

The president of Brazil has formally opened 432 kilometers of new railroad, forming part of a large scheme of state owned railroad properties in that country.

The annual report of the insurance departmen of the Pennsylvania Railroad company shows that in a year lighted cigars, cigarettes and matches cost the company $49,000 in fires.

Caring for the Nose.

"It's a funny thing," said a doctor, "that the average man pays less attention to the most prominent feature of his face than to any other part of his countenance. Yes, it's the nose I'm speaking of. We clamp it with eyeglasses that pinch too much or impose upon it spectacles that are altogether too heavy. Then we wonder why it increases in size or perhaps in redness.

"But this lack of care for the nose is not restricted to those whose vision is defective. I venture to say that not one man out of ten washes his nose in the way that he should. Every other part of the face comes in for a vigorous scrubbing, but the nose, which needs it most of all, is apt to be passed over gently—probably because it is being used to breathe through during the ablutions. The result is that the nose gives more and more evidence of being neglected. The tissues become flabby, and the pores are filled up. A little massage would work wonders in such cases, but it is rarely given.

"Notice the men you see in half an hour's time, and then tell me if my comments are not justified. Then see what you can do for your own nose."—New York Press.

To Keep Roses.

Roses may be kept fresh for a week by exercising a little judgment in the care of them.

When they first come in from the florist arrange them in a good sized deep vase to provide plenty of space and moisture.

Freshen the stems every day by cutting off an inch or two with a knife. Never use scissors for this purpose, as they compress the wood eclls and leave them so tightly pinched together that they cannot absorb the water in the vase.

If the room becomes overheated, remove the roses to a cooler place.

At night fill a fresh basin with cold water and throw the flowers into it.

The Iceland Bride.

In Iceland, where various interesting and fantastic superstitions abound, there is an ancient custom that every bride must invite all her friends to a dinner in her home, and every article of food must be prepared by the bride herself. If she succeeds in pleasing her critical guests, she achieves not only praise for her own skill, but she helps along her own younger sisters, who are then assumed to be equally well instructed in the intricacies of the culinary art and consequently have their chances of marriage more than doubled.

Big Sale for Elks' Show.

The sale of seats for the local Elks' big minstrel show began at the New Plainfield theatre box office at 9 o'clock this morning and within an hour three-fourths of the orchestra chairs had been disposed of. Treasurer Sam Cunningham declared the rush to be the greatest he has ever seen at the theatre.

Miss Lucy Hooker a Bride.

Miss Lucy Hooker, daughter of Albert Hooker, of Plainfield avenue, and James D. Goode, son of Daniel Goode, of Fillmore avenue, were married last night by Rev. G. W. Bailey at the home of the bride's father. Mrs. Bertha Brown and Mrs. Marandie Goode attended the couple.

Historical Sketches Published.

Gen. J. Madison Drake, of Elizabeth, has had issued his "Historical Sketches of the Revolutionary and Civil Wars," in book form. The sketches describe the most daring deeds performed by American heroes in both wars, including countless personal experiences.

Trojan Club Dance.

The Trojan Athletic Club, of Elizabeth, will hold its first annual masquarade dance at Proctor's Hall, Elizabeth, tomorrow night. Several features have been promised for the affair.

George Stelle, of Kansas City, Mo., spent Sunday in town with friends.

Mrs. A. B. Darby and Mrs. E. A. Parse, of Grove street, left today for Atlantic City, where they will register at Hotel de Ville, Kentucky avenue.

POLICEMAN'S PLUCKY ACT

Seeks to Stop Runaway Horse and Narrowly Escapes Getting Killed.

DRAGGED 100 FEET BY LINES.

Patrolman Dobson Has Uniform Torn to Shreds and Receives a Fractured Elbow and Other Injuires.

In an effort to stop a runaway horse at Watchung avenue and East Fifth street at 6.30 last evening, Patrolman George Dobson, of the local police force, narrowly escaped losing his life. He was jerked off his feet by a trailing rein and after one wheel had passed over him he was dragged 100 feet before the frightened animal was swung into a tree by the prostrate officer's efforts. Dobson's uniform was stripped from his body and an examination by a physician later showed that he had a fractured elbow, a badly sprained back and a score of cuts and bruises.

The horse belongs to Page Finney, an ash-carter, and ran away from the Martine dump on Watchung avenue. Jasper Johnson, an employe of Finney, was sitting on the driver's seat at the time, but finding that the animal was beyond his control he wrapped the lines around the whip socket and jumped to safety. The runaway continued down Watchung avenue at top speed and was seen by Dobson as it approached Fifth street.

The officer braced himself for a jump and as the horse came abreast he made a leap for the bride. At almost the same instant the trailing lines tripped him up and he fell face downward. The right front wheel of the wagon went over his chest and then as the reins reached the end of the slack the loop at the buckle caught in his shoe. In this position he was dragged over the rough pavement while a score of people expected his brains would be dashed out or his neck broken.

Seseval men rushed to the street to stop the runaway but before any of them reached it, Dobson's attempts to kick himself clear caused the animal to swing into the sidewalk and collide with a tree. As it was brought to a stop, the officer got up unaided and afterward made his way to police headquarters two blocks away. Dr. C. B. Lufburrow was called to attend him, his injuries requiring an hour's time to dress. It was necessary to procure another suit of clothing for him before he could be taken home, his uniform having been torn to shreds. He will be unfit for duty for several weeks. He is the second member of the department to be disabled by a runaway within two days, Patrolman Cornelius McCarthy having been thrown from a rig Wednesday afternoon.

The runaway rig was taken charge of by Johnson. The horse was uninjured but the wagon was somewhat damaged.

"NIP," BOROUGH FIRE HORSE, SHOT AFTER FATAL INJURY.

"Nip," one of the grey horses of the North Plainfield chemical engine team, is no more. A bullet from Chief Marshal Weiss' revolver ended his life in his stall at fire headquarters last night, after an examination by Dr. L. S. Pocock showed that his left hing leg was broken. No one knows how the fatal injury was inflicted. The horse was found standing on three legs in his stall Thursday morning, but his case was not diagnosed as a broken leg until yesterday. It is thought that he kicked himself or struck against the stall.

"Nip" had been the "off" horse of the team for the past year and a half. He was valued at $275, and though a slow acting horse and the heavier of the team, was a good worker.

The receiver's accounts for the Powers Pharmacy Company, insolvent, shows the total amount of unsecured claims to be $4,373.91, and the balance remaining after the payment of the expenses and preferred claims is $1,020.41. This results in a dividend of approximately 23 cents on the dollar. Elston M. French is the receiver. There are about seventy-five creditors.

The Powers Pharmacy Company was a drug firm on Somerset street, founded by J. P. Powers two years ago. It went into the hands of the receiver several months ago.

He, his wife and son, Frank H., Jr., leave on Tuesday for a trip around the world.

Mr. Smith said that effects were being made to settle his claim, but that he had thus far refused to settle under the terms offered.

In the party at the dinner last night were Mr. Smith, his wife and son, Mr. and Mrs. Joshua Leonard, of Newark; Abram G. Nelson and wife, of New Market; Miss Carrie Smith, daughter of William B. Smith, of Caldwell; Mrs. Frank Leonard and Elmer Leffler, also of Caldwell; Lorenzo Castles and wife, of Kingsland; William H. Castles and wife, of Kingsland, and N. L. Kahn and wife, of Newark.

PARK CLUB HOLDS ITS EASTER DANCE

The annual Easter dance attracted a large number of society people from the city and borough to the Park Club, last night. Under the direction of the steward, Henry Johnson, the clubhouse was elaborately decorated for the occasion with palms, potted plants and flowers, the arrangement about the platform being especially effective. Music for the dancing was furnished by Muller, of Brooklyn.

The affair was given under the auspices of the entertainment committee, of which Harry L. McGee is the chairman, and the patronesses included Mrs. Samuel Townsend, Mrs. George D. Hallock, Mrs. Henry A. McGee, Mrs. J. H. Howell and Mrs. Walter McGee.

The dancing began about 9 o'clock and was continued until an early hour this morning. At midnight there was an intermission for refreshments. The affair marked the resumption of social activities at the club, which will be continued until the summer season.

REV. AND MRS. KEMBLE GREETED BY CONGREGATION

The congregation of the Monroe Avenue church tendered a welcoming reception to Rev. Charles S. Kemble, the recently appointed pastor, last night. The affair was in charge of the Laides' Aid Society and the Epworth League and was attended by a large number of people. Beautiful floral decorations were a feature.

Walter McGee presided during the evening and Mr. and Mrs. Kemble were assisted in receiving by Mr. and Mrs. J. Stephen Higham and Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Beekman. The new pastor was welcomed by Rev. A. C. McCrea, of the First M. E. church, in an opening address, and he was followed by Rev. O. J. Shoop, of Grace M. E. church; Rev. L. R. Howard, of Hope chapel, and Rev. Mr. Randolph, of this city, all of whom extended greetings. Mr. Kemble replied in an address of acknowledgement. Between the addresses solos were rendered by Miss Martin and Miss Bayard and selections given by a harpist. Refreshments were served in conclusion.

The arrangements for the reception were directly in charge of N. Mansfield Smith, who arranged the program.

McGee, next week. They were seven tables and at the conclusion of play Miss Howell, Mrs. George Harold Bates, of Cranford, and Mrs. Frank W. French were announced as the prize winners. This afternoon Mrs. Josephus H. Howell, mother of the bride-elect, gave a luncheon for the women members of the bridal party. Tomorrow afternoon and evening from 4 to 7 o'clock, the Misses McCutcheon, of Plainfield avenue, will give a tea and reception for the entire bridal party.

MUST FIND A PRESIDENT

Both Mayor and Senator Decline to Head the Plainfield Republican Club.

ORGANIZE TOMORROW NIGHT.

Big Crowd Expected at the Casino when the Formal Organization of the Club Is Effected.

Both Mayor Charles J. Fisk and State Senator Ernest R. Ackerman absolutely refuse to allow their names to be used in connection with the nomination for the presidency of the Plainfield Republican Club. Each received five votes at a meeting of the committee on organization on Wednesday night, the regulars casting their ballots for Mr. Fisk while the New Idea men supported Mr. Ackerman. Under the circumstances, the organization committee, which holds a session tomorrow night just before the mass meeting of Republican voters convenes at the Casino will have to agree on some other prominent party worker. Several names have already been mentioned among them former Mayor Alexander Gilbert.

"Kindly say for me," said Mr. Ackerman today, "that I am not a candidate for the presidency of the club. I appreciate the compliment but must insist that I be allowed to work in the ranks. The club is a good thing and I shall certainly identify myself with it." Mayor Fisk went to Atlantic City for a brief rest early this morning but one of his close personal friends said for him: "Mr. Fisk is not a candidate and will not accept the office. You can make that just as strong as you like."

A great crowd is exepected at the meeting tomorrow night. The proposed club is in no sense a factional organization: it is intended for party solidification and effective work. That it will be a big success, local party leaders are sanguine.

OCTOGENARIAN DIES AFTER BRIEF ILLNESS

Stephen McIntyre, one of the oldest residents in the city, died last night at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Mary Lappin, of West Fourth street, after a brief illness. Death was due to a general breaking-up of the system because of his advanced age, although he was able to be around as usual until a short time ago.

Mr. McIntyre was born in Ireland eighty-four years ago but came to this country when a young man. He had lived here over fifty years, most of the time in the West End. He was a landscape gardner and laid out many of the residential properties in the city and borough. He retired from active work a long tome ago. Beside Mrs. Lappin, he is survived by another daughter, Miss Emma McIntyre; of New York, and three sons. They are John, traveling in the West; Frank, of Bayonne, and Stephen, of Garwood.

The funeral will be in St. Mary's church, of which he had been a member since its organization, Monday morning at 9 o'clock. The costly bell in St. Mary's belfry was donated the church as a memorial by the late Frank McIntyre, brother of Stephen McIntyre.

Teacher Entertains Bible Class.

The young women's Bible Class of Trinity Reformed church Sunday-school, known as No. 2, was entertained last night at the home of the teacher, Philip Vroom, of No. 10 Stone street. There were about thirty members and friends of the class present and all spent a delightful evening. There were cornet and vocal solos by Edmund D. Young, accompanied by Miss Fanny Mundy on the piano. There were also vocal selections by Miss Alice Vroom, and during the social hour refreshments were served. The class was reported to be in an excellent financial and spiritual condition, the average attendance being eighteen for some time past.

To Attend Session Grand Council.

William R. Townsend as a representative of Plainfield Council, No. 711, Royal Arcanum, and Armstrong Mulford, as a Grand Council representative, accompanied by their wives, will attend the annual session of the Grand Council, Royal Arcanum, to be held at Lakewood, Monday and Tuesday, May 4 and 5.

Reunion of Old Co. K.

There will be reunion of the old Co. K, Second Regiment, U. S. Vols., at Montclair on Tuesday night, May 5, and William R. Townsend, of this city, has been chosen toastmaster for the occasion. The guest of honor and principal speaker will be Col Edward Hine.

FISK MENTIONED AS AN EXCISE PROBER

A yarn to the effect that Governor Fort had abandoned his intention of appointing a State excise investigating commission brought statements from Republican leaders close to the Governor that, so far as they were aware, the Chief Executive was firm in his intention to have an excise probe conducted this year and a report of the results made to the next Legislature. It was hinted, too, that a Union county man would likely be named to the commission. The yarn has it that the name of Charles J. Fisk is being considered.

County Chairman Frank H. Smith was asked if there was anything in the story that the Governor would not appoint the commission.

"Not so far as I know," said Mr. Smith. "In fact I have the best reasons for knowing that the Governor has not given up his idea."

"Will a Union county man be named to the commission?"

"Discussions of excise conditions have been livelier in Union than in most counties in the State. The appointments are strictly up to the Governor but it wouldn't suprise anybody if a Union man was named."

"Is the Governor considering the name of any Union man?"

"I'd prefer that you'd ask the Governor."

Mr. Smith ducked one or two other questions. It was evident that he knew more about the situation than he cared to tell. Mr. Smith had made reference to the work of the Grand Jury of which Mayor Charles J. Fisk was foreman, and which stirred up such a rumpus in Elizabeth a few months ago.

"It is probable that Mr. Fisk will be the Governor's selection in Union county, isn't it?" was suggested.

"Now you've cross-examined me to death," he replied. "You'll have to quit."

"Will you deny that the Governor is going to name Fisk?"

"No, sir; but I won't affirm it, either," he added quickly.

HYPNOTIC PROFESSOR MYSTIFIES AN AUDIENCE

Professor Banyan, the exponent of hypnotism and telepathic communication, made a decided impression on a large audience at the New Plainfield theatre, last night. He succeeded in putting five young men "to sleep" and had them doing all manner of ludicrous acts, much to the mystification of the spectators. One volunteer subject, "Fat" Schnell, could not be influenced owing to the fact that calls from his friends in the gallery prevented him keeping his mind fixed on the professor, a matter that makes hypnotism very difficult.

Yesterday afternoon the professor created much comment by riding a horse through the business district while he was blindfolded and using nothing to guide the animal by but a wave of either hand. As a further evidence of his power to subject a mind to the control of his own, he will put a young man in a hypnotic sleep this afternoon and have him placed in a Front street store window until tomorrow afternoon, when he will be removed to the theatre and awakened.

The professor's engagement is for the remainder of the week and is an additional attraction to Salisbury's pictures and vaudeville. The bill tomorrow afternoon and night will comprise eight headline acts.

BALLROOM BELLE JAILED FOR FLOURISHING KNIFE

Attired in ball room regalia as is dictated by the local colored 400, Emma Epps, a negress, was arraigned before Judge Runyon this morning on a charge of carrying a concealed weapon. She attended a dance in a Front street hall last night and was observed by Special Officer John King to be acting in a disorderly manner. She twitted several of her girl friends about their dusky escorts and when one of them objected, Miss Epps drew a wicked-looking knife from somewhere in her costume, flourishing it about her head. In just amout ten seconds the entire northeast portion of the dance floor was her's and her's alone.

King came up behind Emma as she was declaring she would slice Ethel Tims into chipped beef and quickly disarmed her. She was then placed under arrest and taken to a cell without giving her a chance to get a change of attire. She pleaded guilty when arraigned for carrying the knife and said that she did it because the Tims girl had given out before the dance that she was "going to do her up." The judge sent her to jail for forty days.

Miss Tims, whose name is mentioned in the affair, is the self-same young woman whose face was slapped by Mrs. Bertram Sherman a few nights ago because she winked at Mr. Sherman.

PARTY LEADERS SPEAK AT BIG G.O.P. BANQUET

Governor, U. S. Senator, Congressman and State Senator Address Union Co. Republicans.

JOHN KEAN AS TOASTMASTER.

Feast Held Under Auspices of Downtown Republican Club of Elizabeth Attended By 500 Party Workers.

There was a great outpouring of Republicans from all parts of Union county, and a large representation of State officials at the dollar dinner given in Turn Hall, Elizabeth, last night, by the Downtown Republican Club. The affair marked the opening of the campaign in this part of the State and local Republicans had the assistance of Governor J. Franklin Fort, United States Senator John Kean, Congressman Charles N. Fowler, State Senator Ernest R. Ackerman, as well as other prominent members of the Legislature, in giving it a rousing start. The affair was largely under the direction of County Chairman F. H. Smith, and the able leader saw to it that there was no hitch in the program.

When the Governor reached the hall at 9:30 he was given an ovation he will not soon forget. It lasted for the best part of five minutes.

Senator Kean, who was introduced as the toastmaster by James White, made a few remarks congratulating the party on having such a loyal band of followers, and he presented as the first speaker, Congressman Charles N. Fowler, who just previous to that had joined heartily in drinking a toast to President Roosevelt. The representative of the Fifth District, after paying his compliments to the President and his sterling qualities, adding that he was not always able to travel his gait, gave a brief review of his opinions on the money question, contrasting the advantages of gold reserve as against fiat currency. He paid his compliments to Senator Aldrich, saying that now that his currency measure is in the hands of his committee, he was privileged to speak of it. He declared that there were only three representatives who had spoke in favor of the bill to the committee, while thousands of communications were received against it. He said that the United States Senate had the reputation of being a historic body, but on the money question he considered in an "ancient historic body."

In the meantime, Governor Fort arrived, but in order to give him a chance to collect his thoughts, the toastmaster called on State Senator Thomas J. Hillery, of Morris county. The chief thought of his talk was that he hoped the time had arrived or would soon come when all troubles between capital and labor would be settled peacefully.

There was loud and continued applause when the Governor was introduced and what he had to say was very much to the point. He displayed no enthusiasm when he was heralded as the next vice president by Senator Kean as well as the crowd, but directed his attention to speaking of State affairs, taking care to explain that while he might not have obtained all he desired from the Legislature, the same might be said to be true of Governor Hughes, of New York, and even President Roosevelt. In speaking of the President, he was not quite sure but that Congress might be found in the wrong and Roosevelt right in the many important controversies now engaging the attention of National affairs. He declared emphatically that a person could not point to one dishonest act on the part of State office-holders since January 1 last, and to the best of his knowledge every office is being filled by a capable and honest person.

Frank B. Jess, Speaker of the Assembly, spoke briefly. He referred to a banner against on the wall bearing portraits of Roosevelt and Fort, and requested that it be preserved for it might only be necessary to change one face, that of Roosevelt for Taft. This brought forth cries of "No." Every mention of Roosevelt brought forth prolonged cheers.

Following Mr. Jess, State Senator Ernest R. Ackerman, of this city, was introduced. His speech dealt with national affairs, in which he also referred to platform pledges. He said:

PHYSICIANS DISCUSS NEW THEORY

Cooper's Views of Human Stomach Noted by Medical Men.

A recent article in the New Orleans Item gives an account of the effect upon the medical profession of that city with regard to L. T. Cooper's theory that the human stomach is responsible for most ill health. The article is as follows:

"The astonishing sale of Cooper's preparation in this city has now reached such immense figures that the medical fraternity have been forced into open discussion of the man's theories and medicines.

"The physicians seem to be divided with regard to the young man's success in New Orleans—some being willing to credit him for what he has accomplished, while others assert that the interest he has aroused is but a passing fad that will die out as quickly as it has sprung up.

"In a statement recently obtained from a well-known physician of this city, the position of those in favor of Cooper is well voiced. The doctor said: 'I am not a believer in proprietary medicines, but I must admit that some of the facts recently brought to my attention concerning this Cooper medicine have gone far toward removing the prejudice I had formed against them when I first heard of Cooper's new ideas and medicines.

"'Numbers of my patients whom I have treated for chronic liver, kidney and stomach troubles have met me and stated that Cooper's medicine has accomplished wonderful results for them. I notice particularly in cases of stomach trouble that the man has relieved several cases that were of years' standing and proved very obstinate to treatment.

"'I do not [illegible] to stand in the way of something that may be for the public good, simply through professional prejudice, and I am inclined to think Cooper and his preparations credit are deserving to some extent of the popular demonstration that has been accorded them in this city.'"

We sell the Cooper remedies. They are proving remarkably successful throughout the entire United States. —T. S. Arm[illegible]

We may be able to help you out. At any rate if you'll inform us of your needs, we'll try. The winter months just past have raised the expenses of the average householder to their highest point and many of us have been unable to meet all of our obligations as promptly as we would like to and consequently find ourselves in debt.

SUPPOSE we were to advance you sufficient funds to meet your obligations. Do you not think you would be more satisfied to have only one payment to look after on pay day?

There is no place where money will be advanced you more willingly or where you will receive more courteous treatment than from us. It's worth investigating.

The possession of household goods, horses and wagons is sufficient evidence of your ability to pay. Call, write or 'phone.

SPORTS HERE AND THERE

GOLF.

Circumstances have arisen which will necessitate some changes in the officials of the East Jersey Golf League. At the annual meeting in New York last winter F. A. Wright, of the Canoe Brook Country Club, was elected president and J. D. Gorwon, of the South Orange Field Club, vice-president, while F. H. Thompson, of New York, was chosen secretary.

The latter, however, has resigned from the Forest Hill Field Club, and, as he is no longer a member of any club holding membership in the league, it will be impossible for him to serve. President Wright has selected F. W. Baldwin, of Glen Ridge, to serve in Thompson's stead. Wright has also asked Paul Heller, of Forest Hill, to act as vice-president of the league.

Arrangements have practically been completed for a one-day tournament open to East Jersey League golfers on Saturday, May 2, over the links of the Canoe Brook Country Club. The conditions will undoubtedly call for a medal play, handicap. The dates for the league's two-day tournament to be held at Forest Hill will also be settled shortly. It had been expected to run this event off June 19 and 20, but President Wright said yesterday that the following week might be selected instead. The New Brunswick Golf Club has joined the league.

Golfers who gather at the Country Club of Lakewood today will find team matches claiming chief attention. In the morning the home team will be opposed to a delegation from the Nassau Country Club, and in the afternoon the former will try conclusions with the Princeton team. This will be Princeton's first appearance in a match this season.

That veteran golfer, James A. Tyng, was never in such form as at present. Ten years ago Tyng was considered one of the best in this country, but even then he could not score in anything like the low figures that have marked his recent efforts. When Tyng made his eighty-one at Balutsrol on Saturday his drives easily averaged 200 yards and his putting was deadly.

The Nassau Country Club will hold a tournament open to all Metropolitan Golf Association players on June 19 and 20.

While the season for making tournament arrangements is well under way yet no club has come forward for the Metropolitan Golf Association open championship, although only one-half the expense need now be borne. Secretary Leighton Calkins says that the dates held for it, September 24, 25 and 26, are in demand for other tournaments and will not be reserved much longer. No decision has been made in regard to the course for the Lesley cup intercity team matches. The Englewood Golf Club made a bid for the matches, but what will be done probably will be to ask the opinion of six or eight of the clubs on the course that should be used.

BASEBALL.

The Clinton Avenue team will play its first regular game of the season tomorrow afternoon on Crescent Oval, when the Plainfield High School aggregation will be their opponents. It will be the first real test for the school team. Randolph and Murphey will do the box work.

"Lou" Wiltse was never in better condition and the way he is throwing them over is a promise that he will deliver the goods at the proper time.

A little safe and sane coaching would do a world of good for the P. H. S. team. While they have been successful in winning games they are guilty of making inexcusable errors in every contest.

The Clinton Avenue team gives promise of furnishing plenty of good baseball this season, especially if games are scheduled with Somerville, High Bridge and Flemington.

Jack Torpey, who was known as Jack Norton, and who formerly caught for Somerville, has signed with Allentown for the season.

"Christy" Mathewson's many friends here are glad to see him pitching in his old-time form. His work thus far this season has been gilt-edge.

The Junior baseball team did not make such a good showing in its last game with the Highland A. C., and if they want to book strong teams, the players will have to put up better ball.

Everyone is anxiously awaiting the opening of the State Y. M. C. A. League. Judging by the teams represented a high-class article of ball should be furnished local fans. The association and Clinton Avenue teams will alternate in the use of Crescent Oval.

—In the contract case of Ferguson against Koch, which was tried in the district court a week ago, a verdict has been given the plaintiff for the full amount. Robert N. Crane represented the plaintiff and W. G. De Meza the defendant.

MARITAL MIXUP IS MIXED STILL WORSE.

Justice of the Peace Edward A. Ransom, Jr., performed a double marriage ceremony in Jersey City yesterday, the contracting parties being Herbert Hazel Newton, of No. 93 Milton street, Brooklyn, and Mary A. L. Nally Goring, of No. 36 Mott street, Newark, and Charles Goring, of No. 416 Prospect street, Brooklyn, and Mrs. Josephine Nally, a widow, of No. 36 Mott street, Newark. Mrs. Nally, the widow, is a sister of Newton and a sister-in-law of Mary A. L. Nally Gording, and the latter is the divorced wife of Charles Goring. All four came to Jersey City together and formed a happy group. Goring's former wife brought with her papers showing that she had obtained a divorce from Goring on statutory grounds. The final decree was issued out of the New York Supreme Court on Wednesday.

Goring and Mrs. Josephine Newton Nally were first married by Justice Ransom, Goring's former wife and the bride's brother acting as witnesses. Then Newton and Mrs. Mary A. L. Nally were married, the bride's former husband acting as best man and the bridegroom's sister as bridesmaid.

Story of the mixed relationship was not disclosed to the Justice until after he had pronounced each couple husband and wife. Goring is a mariner. He had been away three years and on his return his first wife got a divorce from him. Goring and Mrs. Herbert Hazel Newton were apparently on the best of terms and wished each other happiness in their new matrimonial venture. The happy couples departed together.

HOOKS FISH, NEARLY DROWNS.

Hoboken Man Pulled from Passaic River While Friend Lands Monster Carp.

Caldwell, N. J., April 24.—Samuel Steinert, of Hoboken, and several friends went fishing for carp in the Passaic river, near Singac, on the line of the Greenwood Lake branch of the Erie Railroad, yesterday. Several fish were caught, and when the men were about to return home Steinert got a bite. The fish put up a hard fight, which nearly ended in a drowning.

In his efforts to get the fish into the boat Steinert was pulled overboard and would have drowned but for his companions, two of whom pulled him out of the water, while a third landed the fish. It proved to be one of the largest carp taken out of the river in years. Steinert took his prize to Hoboken, where it was placed on exhibition yesterday. The fish will be eaten by Steinert and his friends today.

ASTRONOMICAL EVENTS:
Tonight and Tomorrow Morning.

Sun sets 6:44, rises 5:02; moon rises 2:39 a. m.; 10:30 p. m., two of Jupiter's four bright satellites missing; 12 midnight, Jupiter at quadrature with the sun, being 90 degrees east of that body; 7:12 a. m., moon at perigee, nearest approach to earth.

Governor Fort says he never smoked a pipe. That explains why he only smiles when his name is mentioned in connection with the Vice-Presidency.

Thanks to him, Mayor Townsend "took the bull by the horns," when he found that the P. S. C. schemed to cut down expenses by curtailing its trolley service within the domain of North Plainfield. He lost no time in impressing upon the officials of that corporation that it is its duty to maintain proper service within the borough and as a result the fifteen minute schedule has been restored. Here in Plainfield, the company resorted to the same tactics, curtailing its service by introducing the half hour schedule after 10:30 at night. Popular clamor, however, compelled the concern to restore the regular schedule on the Somerset street, the Fourth street line being necessarily benefitted, but as for the Netherwood and Arlington avenue lines, the new order of wretched service still exists. If you want to "go home in the dark," provided it is past 11:30 and that you live in the East or South end, you will have to walk nowadays. Are these the "improvements" promised by the same S. P. C., which made us imagine that we were to have new cars by January 1 last?

Every Republican voter in the city should make it his duty to attend the meeting at the Casino tomorrow night when the organization of the proposed party club will be effected. It is not the purpose of the leaders in the movement to make the association a "big stick" in the interests of any single individual or candidate. The sole idea is to concentrate the party strength so that the most effective service may be rendered in campaign times. Without organization nothing can be accomplished and the best means of insuring continual victory at the polls is by maintaining a strong club in which every member is an active worker. Camden, Trenton, Jersey City and many other places have influential associations of the kinds and the election returns in each succeeding year amply demonstrate their usefulness. Elizabeth has its Downtown Republican Club but should the voters of Plainfield do their fully duty that association would be insignificant in comparison so far as Union county is concerned. It is not any exaggeration to say that the flower of Republicanism in this county is and always has been in Plainfield. But be as it may, the local party worker owes it to himself and to the political principles he espouses to do all in his power to further the ends of the proposed club. Let every voter, irrespective of so-called factional affiliations, turn out tomorrow night.

PARTY LEADERS SPEAK

"To represent Union county in any capacity is a great honor. Territorially small yet its population is only exceeded by three or four other counties, and it has the additional distinction of being so situated next to the great metropolis that an excellent baseball player like Governor Fort could almost throw a ball into greater New York. Union county is also honored by being the home of the Senior United States Senator. Consult the Congressional Record and you will find that the questions asked by him in debate have been fruitful of good results. In gatherings of citizens like this lies the hope of the Republic. Fortunate indeed is the city, the county and the State that can number on its roster of activities such associations of men who amid all the vicissitudes of political life, grow and extend their influence beyond the city, beyond the county, yes, and beyond the boundaries of the State, even to the boundaries of the nation and beyond them, judging by the distinguished character of this brilliant gathering.

"Movements like this are the framework and backbone of success. From them radiate the enthusiasm, the determination to overcome obstacles, the desirable contagion that infuses others and makes movements popular and successful. It is evident that there are no drones among the diners here assembled. Every man takes or has taken his turn at the wheel. Adversity does not discourage you and an essential of life is ability to prosper amid disappointments and hostile political surroundings. It seems to me that it is not impossible to unite rugged strength with artistic appreciation; versatility with consistent action. The Republican organization in Union county is not one that quails before a wintry blast. You have known how to withstand assaults of political opponents in the past and to make temporary defeats stepping stones to success.

"Our country has grown and prospered since Lincoln's time. We have had great statesmen in Grant, Garfield, McKinley and Roosevelt, but none greater than the immortal Lincoln. Should we not stand today as Lincoln stood in 1863 with the same full measure of devotion for that 'government of the people, by the people and for the people?' We hear it suggested that hysteria is in the air and that a panacea is needed. The only thing that is needed is confidence. Are the conditions more dangerous than they were in 1863 when Lincoln delivered that famous address? It seems to me not. We have no great armies to disband. We have foe threatens us. We have no fear of our currency being debased. Bountiful crops have been our portion. Labor has been well employed. Then what are the dangers that require so much devotion to prevent government for the people from perishing? To me it seems that the greatest danger to the Republic at the present time is the tendency to centralization—that centralization which in its administration would reduce legislative authority and finally destroy local self government. Home rule is a good thing. Trust the people in their respective localities, be it borough, township, city, county or State.

"As a nation grows and becomes more populous it is important that the checks, balances and visions of authority, so carefully worked out by the early statesmen of the country and which have stood the severe test of time and experience, shall be jealously guarded, protected from invasion, prevented from being destroyed. Our platform must not consist of capitivating platitudes to simply hypnotize the credulous voter—rather they should reflect the will and voice the sentiments of the expectatnt multitudes who, in good faith, await their legislative enactment.

"Is not a platform pledge a solemn contract between the representatives of a party in convention assembled and the people? and like a man's word it should be as good as a bond. If necessary every concession to one's personal conviction short of trespassing upon conscience, should be made in order to keep faith with the people.

"Progress should ever be the keynote of our action and we should strive to improve our condition, otherwise the nation would stagnate and all hope for the future would be lost.

"While it has been of late years a popular craze to unreasonably assail the railroads, yet one of the greatest blessings to our free institutions has been the means of communication as represented by the railroad, the telephone and the telegraph, uniting the widely separated parts of our country so that whatever affects one part favorably or adversely usually affects all. It is doubtful if the American Union during the Civil War could have been preserved without the use of the railroad.

"Of course the railroads must furnish safe, sufficient and adequate service; there must be no rebates, no discrimination, and supervision of public utilities conserves capital, helps the investor and protects labor.

"But investigation should precede supervision. Find the mischief, says Blackstone, before seeking the remedy.

"Passion and prejudice and party or factional advantage should not be allowed to so influence our legislation as to lose sight of economic laws which can only be violated at our peril. New laws, particularly those affecting business conditions, should be carefully considered before being enacted so as not to check the proper business expansion commensurate with our growth. Laws, if made, ought to be thought out in all their multitudinous details so as to be sure of doing good and not harm.

"A great Southern authority has recently said that during the past year 14,000 new laws have been enacted in the various States of the Union, and that these laws would cover 17,000 pages in fine print. Just think of it! Were they all judiciously considered before being passed? To read them all would require two months, reading a page a minute and reading 5 hours a day, and yet we hear more than whispers for the initiative and referendum! How many of my auditors realize that since 1845 18,737 separate laws have passed in New Jersey alone?

"If the counsels of wise and cautious statesmanship prevail peace and prosperity will be the good fortune of the country. In all things the common good should first be considered in the interest of 'government of the people, by the people and for the people.'"

Among the other speakers were Assemblymen Carlton B. Pierce, of Cranford; Kirstein, of Rahway, and John R. Moxon, of Elizabeth, and Austin Colgate, Governor Fort's aide.

Those present from Plainfield were the following: Senator E. R. Ackerman, County Chairman F. H. Smith, Walter L. Hetfield, Jr., Judge William Newcomb, Winfield S. Angleman, Andrew McCardell, Councilmen Frank Randolph, Herbert Buxton, F. L. Montgomery, W. L. Gloak, G. W. V. Moy, Frederick R. Phillips, Howard C. Tracy, Dr. Marcus L. Clawson, Asa F. MISSIONARY SOCIETIES HOLD ANNUAL SESSION

The anniversary meeting of the Women's Missionary societies of the First Baptist church was held yesterday afternoon in the lecture room. Following the devotional service led by Mrs. J. A. Chambliss, the secretary of the Women's Foreign Missionary Society, Mrs. B. J. Shreve, made the thirty-fifth annual report, briefly recounting the year's work and future aims of the society. The treasurer, Miss Ida Yerkes, reported the receipts for the year $523.11.

The secretary of the Young Women's Society, Miss Pauline Denton, gave a pleasant story of the year's endeavor and Miss Ada Fountain read the report of the treasurer, Miss Carrie Combs, showing the receipts for the year $191.63.

Mrs. George H. Robbins, secretary of the Women's Home Missionary Society, gave a report full of interest, the society having carried on its work for thirty years. The treasurer, Mrs. Frank Jones, reported the year's receipt $759.90.

Very pleasing recitations were given between the reports by Miss Rachel Smith and Miss Elizabeth Wynn. Miss Druse, of the First Baptist choir, sang very effectively two solos, "Redemption" and "O, Saviour Dear, Immanuel."

Mrs. Knox, president of the Women's Home Missionary Society and the presiding officer of the day, explained the plan of raising $300 for building and furnishing a room in the new training school edifice at Chicago. She was followed by Mrs. A. W. Palmer, of East Orange, vice-president of the Women's Home Missionary Society of New Jersey, who gave a most interesting address on the necessity for the new building of the training school. She prefaced her statements with the thought that the work of the missionary societies instead of being regarded as a tax and a burden should be looked upon as helpful and necessary to our spiritual good. The training school she regarded as the most important factor in the work of the society. She outlined briefly the sphere of the Women's society in the home of the people, especially the foreign population of the country. Many of the students are foreigners, who after preparation go to the people of their own nationality, understanding their language and national sympathies. These women are taught in the school how to organize and conduct meetings, the care of the sick, the care of homes and adaptability to many emergencies in their work. Believing that if the homes are purified the nation is purified, their motto is "Christ in Every Home."

Landlord and Tenant Case.

Judge Newcorn gave a decision in favor of the plaintiff in the landlord and tenant case of P. J. Reeves, agent for Mrs. P. J. Reeves, against William Lindsey, Jr., tried in the district court, yesterday, but requested W. S. Angleman, counsel for the defendant, to present further proof of his claim within the next three days. The defendant contended that inasmuch as the plaintiff had held a check dated April 1 for three weeks without attempting to cash it, entitled him to a non-suit. This check was payment in full for the amount due, less the sum deducted for repairs. The case will be appealed.

SOME STATE NEWS BRIEFS

The South Jersey Schoolmasters' Association will meet in spring conference at Vineland, tomorrow.

Rev. G. M. Kane, of Princeton, who has been supplying the Swedesboro Presbyterian church, has accepted a call to the South Amboy church.

Under the new law providing for the appointment of county detectives, Prosecutor Atkinson, of Burlington county, last night appointed Ellis H. Parker, of Mt. Holly, for Burlington county. The position will pay $1,000 a year.

Richard Selover, of Green Creek, caught in his net yesterday on the bay shore a fifty-pound drum, the first fish of this variety caught in these waters this year. Weakfish and kingcrabs have also appeared in the bay and are being caught daily.

The Burlington County W. C. T. U. has invited Governor Fort to deliver an address before its annual convention in Pemberton, the Governor's birthplace, on May 30. Professor Francis Green, of the West Chester (Pa.) State Normal School, will be the evening speaker.

Robert W. Dickson, of Beverly, who for years was an employe at the Broad Street Station, Philadelphia, died late last night of paralysis. Several years ago he left the Methodist church to join the Christian Scientists, and was attending a meeting of that faith when he was stricken.

After a stormy session the Coach and Cab Drivers' Union of Paterson has put the ban on Sunday funerals. Hereafter there will be no funerals held in Paterson on Sunday—that is, none with union drivers for the coaches. Weddings and christenings are not under the ban, however.

Fishermen are catching a short distance off Cape May menhaden for bait for off-shore fishing. During the predatory activity of the fishing steamers menhaden were not seen along this shore for years and fishermen bought bait from the steamers. The steamers have done but little work for a year and the effect is immediately apparent in the appearance thus early of the menhaden, which are always followed by the food fish of various kinds.

POLICE PAYROLL HELD UP.

Mayor Wittpenn, of Jersey City, refused to sign the police payroll for the latter half of April yesterday unless Detective Sergeant Frank Bennett's name was taken off. Frank Van Winkle, clerk of the Police Board, took the payroll back to the Commissioners' rooms and so informed them. The Board will meet tonight.

It is predicted in the City Hall that the resolution adopted a few weeks ago reinstating Bennett will be recalled. Bennett resigned last summer voluntarily. The Mayor has said his reinstatement was illegal and that Bennett could return to the force only as a new man. Reinstatement gives Bennett credit for his fourteen years of service and makes his retirement on half pay, due in six years, possible.

Would Abate Paper Nuisance.

New Brunswick, April 24.—The street commissioner has been authorized by Common Council to take steps to abate the nuisance caused by paper waste from the ruins of the Janeway & Carender wallpaper factory, at Schuyler and Paterson streets. The factory was destroyed by fire March 13, 1906. The ruins smoked for over a year, and though the fire has been finally extinguished hundreds of thousands of charred rolls of wallpaper are piled in the ruins. Fragments of the paper are blown about and litter the streets, defying every effort of property owners to keep sidewalks or streets clean. Common Council has put it up to the street commissioner to find some way to abate the nuisance. He will confer with the owners of the property in an effort to devise a satisfactory method.

Table Decorations.

Remember when decorating the tables for the wedding breakfast or supper to bear in mind the comfort of the guests. If you use tall flowers with long stems, put them in high vases so that the guests can see underneath; but if you use short-stemmed flowers, then mass them in a low bowl, or on a flat plateau, so that conversation over them will not be interfered with.

Good Chance to "Rubber."

Tommy—Billy, do you think dere are any fairies dese days?'

Billy—I don't know, but if dere are what would be your wish?

Tommy—Well, if I was standin' outside de baseball grounds and der wan't no knotholes I'd wish a fairy would come along an' give me a neck like a giraffe.

Not Necessary.

"Have you given the goldfish any fresh water this morning, Mary?"

"No, mum; they ain't drunk all I give 'em yesterday yet."—The Tatler.

Camel Post Service.

In the new postal service across the Sahara the messengers are mounted on camels.

The Ladies' Auxiliary of Trinity Commandery, No. 17, K. T., is completing details for a musicale to be given in Masonic Hall soon. Joseph McIntyre, the pianist, will play and have charge of the program.

A Most Astounding Offer in

Men's Negligee Shirts

for Saturday.

Some time ago a most prominent shirtmaker (whose name must remain unknown) brought us some samples of goods which he usually makes up into $1.50 and $2.00 shirts. Owing to the poor season which most manufacturers have felt thus far, he was left with an unusually large amount of these high priced goods on hand. He made us an offer which we snapped up in a minute! To us it seems next to impossible for him to fulfil it, but he, in pursuance of his implied contract, has delivered to us

1,200 Negligee Shirts

made of fine madras, neat checks, figures, stripes, and light and dark colors, separate cuffs with each shirt. These shirts are absolutely perfect in every detail and are ASTOUNDING values. A word to a wise man is said to be sufficient, and there's enough said here to convince one not wise. Made to sell ordinarily for $1.50 and $2.00. Very, very special

POINTED PARAGRAPH.

Even a single taste of defeat is hard to swallow.

Even the spring chicken doesn't know the date of its fall.

A sensible man attracts less attention than one who hasn't any sense.

There is a lot of extravagant language in some brands of free speech.

If it wasn't for Sunday-school picnics ants and bugs wouldn't have much fun.

Smiles Keep Affection.

No matter what the novelists say against her, the smiling wife is an improvement on her stern browed sister, and the smiling mother is the one who gathers her babies most tenderly in her arms. Children read more in looks than in speech.

"She talked kind, but she looked cross," said a little boy of a new teacher as a reason for his refusal to go to school. And big people are affected much more than they realize by the expressions of the faces that they meet in the street. "She was so pleasant" is the inscription on a moss mottled stone in a country churchyard. "She was so pleasant" is not a bad epitaph for any one when the book of life is finished.

The smile is as much the sign of good humor as an open fire is a sign of warmth and cheer.

Shutting Her Up.

By placing the speaking likeness of a woman in a locket it can be shut up.—Chicago News.

A NEW COOKBOOK.

Ask Your Friends for Signed Copy of Their Favorite Recipe.

A gift suitable to any time of the year, original, homemade, is described in the Woman's Home Companion. Have you ever thought of making an autograph cookbook? It only requires a little care and patience to have a cookbook filled full of original recipes of dishes fit for a king.

First make a list of your intimate friends. Those noted for their good cooking an dhousewifely virtues of course should head the list. Write to each of them a personal note asking them to write out and send to you their favorite recipe. In each not inclose a stamped envelope with a sheet of paper of uniform size for the written recipe. Then wait.

Presently in will come whole flocks of white envelopes, each inclosing the recipe which is the particular pride of the particular housewife who donates it. And before long what a collection you will have! When all the names have been accounted for, you must get to work and bind the sheets into a book. Vellum makes a good cover, and if a more serviceable one is desired ooze leather, purchased at a leather shop, may be used. Red leather, lettered in gold or black, loks well, and the initials of the lucky recipient should be added in one corner. Just see what delight this gift will bring, and you will then feel amply repaid.

SEWING SUGGESTIONS.

To prevent knots in cotton while sewing always thread your needle before cutting the cotton from the spool. This will prevent both knots and twisting.

Baby's bibs are prettily embroidered in the cross stitch with coarse embroidery cotton. The designs used are pictures of animals, birds and other things that appeal to the infant mind, and as the cross stitch is one of the easiest methods of embroidery baby's belongings can always be decorated in this way.

What the circular skirt was a few years ago we now see the godet pattern. The skirt portion is fitted smoothly over the hips, and the front is cut in a decided point. To this is attached the plaited flounce, which is short in front and high in the back. For a linen skirt the pattern is graceful and stylish.

For the baby is made a lovely little coat of white handkerchief linen lined with washable white china silk. A circular collar is trimmed with a lace ruffle, and the little sleeves and all edges are trimmed in like fashion. The pattern is first embroidered with small blue forgetmenots, and the coatee is tied with blue ribbons.

Odd Feature of a Trial.

A murder trial now in progress in St. Charles, Mo., has an odd interstate feature. Daniel Dempsey, village marshal of Grafton, Ill., is accused of killing one Claude Allemang. It appears that Dempsey followed Allemang from Grafton across the river into St. Charles county and had him arrested. The prisoner agreed to return without requisition papers and fater starting back tried to escape, whereupon Dempsey shot him. It is contended that Dempsey had no authority to shoot Allemang, being an Illinois officer in Missouri territory. On the other hand, it is maintained by Dempsey that Allemang lived until he reached Grafton, Ill. The question at issue is in which state the dead man's heart stopped beating.

How to Boil Fish.

In boiling any fish you should put enough water in a large pot to enable a fish to swim in if it were alive. Add to this water half a cup of vinegar, a teaspoonful of salt, one whole onion, one dozen whole black peppers, one blade of mace. Take any fish and sew it up in a new piece of cheesecloth fitted to the shape of the fish. Put in the water and heat slowly for thirty minutes; then let it boil hard and fast for about ten minutes. Unwrap and serve with drawn butter made from the liquor in which the fish was cooked and add to it the juice of half a lemon.

A Graceful Act.

After one of the many charitable performances which Mme. Yvette Guilbert has given the priest of the village where it had been held entertained all the company at lunch. Mme. Yvette found an egg on her plate, broke it and ten gold pieces fell out.

"You don't know my tastes quite well yet, M. le Cure," she said. "I adore boiled eggs, but I eat only the white. I never touch the yolk, and I must leave it to you for your poor people."

Dogs' Toilet Club.

There has recently been opened in one of London's fashionable streets a toilet club for dogs. There the pets of the smart set can have their hair dressed and their coats trimmed to immaculate perfection. For three shillings (about 75 cents) they can be bathed. If their teeth are imperfect they can be filled or extracted, and if their claws protrude too far they can be daintily manicured.

Out of Date.

Fair Patient—I suffer greatly from insomnia, doctor.

Doctor—You should eat something just before retiring.

"But you once told me never to eat anything before going to bed."

"Oh, that was a year ago. Science has made rapid strides since then."—Tit-Bits.

CHURCH AND CLERGY.

Bishop Potter says he "believes in the new woman."

Since the death of Cardinal Richard the distinction of being the oldest member of the French episcopate has fallen to Mgr. Monnier, titular bishop of Lydda, who became a priest in 1843.

Rev. Peter Chang, the first Chinese Catholic priest to visit this country, is twenty-seven years old. He wears his hair in a long cue down his back. He speaks German fluently, but does not know a word of English.

F. L. Marston, who is known in England as the Staffordshire Spurgeon and is only nineteen, is one of the most successful Baptist evangelists of that country, this being his eighth year of Christian work in behalf of others.

Daffodil Toast.

Daffodil toast is the name by which a popular luncheon dish is known to one family in the spring of the year. In the fall and winter it goes by the title of "goldenrod" toast—so much is there in a name.

It's not a novel dish, but it deserves wider acquaintance than it has. Eggs are boiled hard, the shells are removed, and the yolks are taken out. Then the whites are cut into small cubes and mixed with hot white sauce.

Hot toast is arranged on a platter, over it is poured the white sauce, and the egg yolks are pressed through a sieve so that they fleck its entire surface. If there is chicken gravy in the house, it is used to moisten the toast before the sauce is turned over it, says the New York Evening Sun. For a change a teaspoonful of the powdered egg yolk is sometimes put into the centre of each piece of toast after the phite sauce is turned over it. The white sauce may be seasoned with onion juce or minced parsley or with both. This toast may be served in individual egg shirrers.

Two Good Recipes.

Apple Pudding.—Four cupfuls of stale bread crumbs, three-fourths cupful of melted butter, four cupfuls of sliced apple, sugar, lemon juice and two-thirds cupful of cold water. Add the melted butter to the breadcrumbs, strring it with a fork. Butter a baking dish, add a layer of crumbs, then a layer of apple. Sprinkle the apple with sugar and a few drops of lemon juice. Repeat until crumbs and apple are used, having crumbs on top. Add the water and bake forone hour. Serve hot with cream.

Porcupine Apples.—Blanch almonds and cut them into thirds lengthwise. Pare, core and bake the apples with a little butter, sugar and nutmeg and when they are done stick the almond quills all over them. Arrange them in a mound and serve with a custard sauce.

The Strongest Wood.

The strongest wood in the world is yate, and it grows in Western Australia, the home of many valuable hard woods. The official tests of yate show it to have an average tensile strength of 14,000 pounds to the square inch, equaling that of good cast iron. Many specimens are far stronger than this. One was tested up to seventeen and one-half tons to the square inch, which is equal to the tensile stregnth of wrought iron. The sawed timber of yate probably is the strongest in the world. The tree grows to a maximum height of 100 feet and sometimes has a diameter of two and one-half and even three feet.

To Preserve the Silks.

Many complaints are heard over the counter to the effect that silk garments, some of which have been worn very little seem to split. The very worst thing for silk is heat, and ofttimes a wardrobe is built where a chimney runs right back of it, or a radiator is too near, so the silk crumbles. Many wholesalers have holes drilled in the walls for ventilation in winter, if their silks are near any excessive heat, and manufacturers that have a heavy stock in summer always place it in cold storage. Certain colors are more perishable than others, but it is well to take precaution for the protection of all.

Environment and Height.

The difficult question of the influence of environment on the height of the human body has been taken up by Pittard, Karmin and Kappeyne in the Swiss cantons, where a homogeneous population lives under greatly varied conditions. Their results all contradict previous beliefs, as they find that the tallest men live at the greatest altitude in the mountains; also that height is greater in regions less exposed to sunlight and greater on primitive or igneous rock than on limestone.

Works Like a Pencil Sharpener.

Holland has a perennial necessity for wooden piles. In Rotterdam harbor works of all kinds demand them, and the drainage of the Zuyder Zee as it steadily proceeds throws out its wooden ramparts in all directions. A Lancashire contracting firm has built for the purpose of sharpening the driving ends of piles a machine which resembles a gigantic pencil sharpener. Piles up to twenty-eight inches in diameter are sharpened to a five inch point in fifteen minutes.

No Brother Needed.

"But I shall always be a brother to you," he murmured.

"If I had any use for a brother," she replied sweetly, "I could reach under the sofa and get one right now."—Philadelphia Ledger.

How to Boil Fish.

In boiling any fish you should put enough water in a large pot to enable a fish to swim in if it were alive. Add to this water half a cup of vinegar, a teaspoonful of salt, one whole onion, one dozen whole black peppers, one blade of mace. Take any fish and sew it up in a new piece of cheesecloth fitted to the shape of the fish. Put in the water and heat slowly for thirty minutes; then let it boil hard and fast for about ten minutes. Unwrap and serve with drawn butter made from the liquor in which the fish was cooked and add to it the juice of half a lemon.

A Friday Recipe.

Eggs and Mushrooms.—Drain one can of mushrooms and wash them well in cold water. Put them in a stewing pan with two ounces of butter, one-half of a teaspoonful of salt and a little white pepper. Stand them over the fire until thoroughly heated, then turn into a shallow baking dish and break over them sufficient eggs to cover, being careful to keep the yolks whole. Sprinkle over the top stale bread-crumbs, dust with salt and pepper and bake in a quick oven for five minutes. Serve with buttered toast.

The New Woman.

The perfect woman is to be trained at a university founded by a French-woman, Mme. de Brisson. This universite des Annales, as it is called, has classes on poetic dressmaking and on the art of designing picturesque frocks. Physical culture is taught from the beauty standpoint solely, and there are lectures on how to charm and make the most of oneself generally.

An Excellent Lotion.

Now that strawberries can be had for fairly reasonable prices the woman who likes vegetable washes for her complexion should make strawberry vinegar, which, diluted in water, is said to make the skin firm and smooth.

Hull a box of fresh strawberries and dissolve them in a pint and a quarter of white wine vinegar. Let it steep seven days, then strain and bottle tightly.

If a few tablespoonfuls of rosewater are added to this lotion it agrees better with some skins.

The New Shape.

When the young man in the new spring derby passed down the boulevard Larry and Denny rested on their picks.

"What kind av a hat do yez call that?" asked Larry.

"Shure, awn he calls ut a lid," replied Denny.

Larry took another look at the hat.

"A lid, is ut?" he chuckled. "Faith, ut looks to me loike a tackittle without th' lid."—Chicago News.

Attendant—Why not?

Mr. McGuire—Well, you see, my name it Patrick.—Judge.

LOCAL AMUSEMENTS

When Messrs. Cullison and Mitchell present their unique and startling exhibition of Actual Talking Pictures at the New Plainfield theatre next Monday afternoon and night. The patrons will have a chance of seeing one of the most novel and unique entertainments of the present age, an entertainment that is entirely different from any other ever offered to the general public and one that is not only vouched for by the owners but an exhibition that is guaranteed by every manager of every theatre where they have played. Surely this assurance of worth and merit from all sources, is an indication of something good to come, and when they appear here they should be greeted by an immense crowd as the chance may never again be offered of witnessing these wonderful Talking Pictures that live, breathe, talk, sing, dance and act.

Senator La Follette, of Wisconsin, is one of the many public men who discover significance in the staging of "The Man of the Hour," which comes to the New Plainfield theatre next Tuesday night. Not long ago in New York he went to see it, not once but twice. After the second visit he declared publicly in the lobby of the Knickerbocker Hotel:

"It is a play that does credit to its producers and proves that the stage can be made as great an educator as the pulpit or press. I will go further and add that it should be seen by every woman who feels a pride in having her husband, brother or sweetheart do his duty as a citizen of these United States."

It is a curious fact that when Joseph R. Grismer, who shares ownership of the play with William A. Brady, was acting with Lawrence Barrett in Wisconsin he introduced La Follette, then quite a young fellow anxious to go on the stage. The tragedian was very pleasant but told the aspirant he was too small. "Fortunately," says the Senator, "I then decided to study law and I have never regretted it. But it was a long time before I got the theatrical bee out of my old slough hat."

CAN'T AGREE ON SCREEN LAW.

Elizabeth Officials Seem Strangely Dense in Interpreting the "Bishops'" Measure.

Elizabeth, April 24.—The city officials here seem to have become hopelessly muddled in their attempts to get at the true meaning of the screen law. Some weeks ago it was said that nothing could be done in the matter of the prosecution of offending liquor dealers now ready for trial until decisions on appeals to the higher courts had been rendered.

The decisions have been given and the only results thus far have been the announcement made by the city attorney to the members of the Excise Board that the violation of the excise law has become notorious. This astounded the board. Chief of Police Tenney didn't like it because it was understood that he was holding the lid down tight on Sundays, and it was said yesterday that he had a warm session with the city attorney.

Another dispute was reported yesterday from the city hall. It was asserted that at a conference with the Mayor and chief of police the city attorney and the excise inspector had mixed things up in a little dispute over instructions which the city attorney claimed he had never given the inspector. The latter, it was said, produced the instructions given him in writing. Now the inspector wants some more decisions from the higher courts concerning the furnishings of the ten rooms for lodgers to be provided by exempts from the provisions of the screen law.

BANKERS WIN TAX CASE.

Highest State Court Declares Non-Taxable Securities Must Be Deducted by Assessors.

Trenton, April 24.—By an opinion yesterday the Court of Errors and Appeals settled definitely the contention of the State Bankers' Association that non-taxable securities must be deducted from the full returns made on all bank stock before assessors can fix the value of this stock for purposes of assessment. The principle is affirmed by the opinion in the case of Hulings Lippincott, president of the National State Bank of Camden, against Isaac Lippincott, collector of the township of Chester. This decision reverses that of the Supreme Court.

It is held in the opinion that to tax the non-taxable securities would be to double taxation. The Frelinghuysen bill, making provisions for this reduction, was recently vetoed by the Governor, who thought the opinion would bring a remedy. The decision may take in the neighborhood of $20,000,000 net of the State ratables.

Oil for County Roads.

The Road Committee of the Board of Chosen Freeholders and Director King yesterday afternoon made an inspection of the oil treatment of roads in Orange with a view toward ascertaining the most effective method of doing that work on Union county roads, a number of which are to be improved in that way. The work of oiling Rahway avenue beyond the Elizabeth city line began yesterday morning.

S. S. A. L. WRESTLING AND SWIMMING MEETS

Athletes of the Sunday-school Athletic League will compete on the mats next week at the Y. M. C. A. gymnasium, when wrestling matches will be held for all classes of contestants. Wrestling is a new departure of gymnasium sports here and there is much material to draw from for the seven class events. The weight limits will be 105, 115, 125, 135, 145 and 158 pounds and there will also be a heavy-weight class. The preliminaries will be held Friday night, May 1, while the finals will be decided on the mats the following night.

A good sized list of entries in the various classes has already been received and contestants are entered from Hope chapel, Warren chapel, First Baptist, First Presbyterian and Congregational churches. The interest is supreme in the heavy-weight class, where future Hackenschmidts are training for the "gruelling encounter." Badges will be awarded to winners of first, second and third honors in each class of the events.

Another athletic feature of the Sunday-school Athletic League will be a swimming meet between the churches, comprising two classes of events, to be held at the association pool Friday night, May 8. The events include swimming races, fancy diving and under-water swimming, and there will be two classes of entires, —senior and junior. The junior events, open to the members of the contesting Sunday-schools weighing 110 pounds and under, will include the 25-yard swim, 50-yard swim and fancy diving. The senior events, over 110 pounds, will comprise the 125-yard swim, 50-yard swim, 75-yard swim, fancy dive and under-water swim for distance. The association pool is small, but the swimming races will be by time, so that the pool will not be crowded. Prize ribbons will be awarded to winners of first and second places.

Mountain A. C. Win.

The Mountain A. C. defeated the Harrison A. C. yesterday morning by a score of 23 to 12. The Harrison A. C. had a lead of five runs when Mountain A. C. came to the bat and hamered out 23 runs. Eleven innings were played. The lineup—Mountain A. C.: T. Carty, pitcher; K. Mair, catcher; J. Blumetta, third base; C. Bloom, centre field; G. Cary, right field; F. Mowrey, short-stop; B. Naylor, second base; F. Stevenson, left field; G. Hartfelder, first base. Harrison A. C.: J. Hoagland, pitcher; P. Deihl, catcher; G. Stagar, third base; J. Allen, centre field; M. Grader, right field; B. Matthews, short-stop; G. Neal, second base; L. Young, left field; G. Benson, first base.

P. H. S. vs. Clinton Avenue.

The Plainfield High School nine and the Clinton Avenues will cross bats in a game on Crescent Oval tomorrow afternoon. This will be the opening game of the season for the Clinton Avenue coterie and "Clif" Randolph will be in charge of the curve department. Van Zandt will probably be the big end of the battery for the schoolboys, who have not lost a regular game yet this season, and have trimmed several strong metropolitan schoolboy nines.

Good Scores Made.

A bunch of good scores were made in last night's tourney games at Johnny Campbell's alleys. Although Ed. Britton was the only roller to go over the double century mark, all the agregate tallies with one exception were beyond 800. Britton made 217 and 233.

The winners for the series were Somersets, two games, Arlingtons one game and Prospects two losses.

Mountain Avenues Won.

The baseball team of the Mountain Avenue A. C. defeated the Tigers by a score of 19-10 on the Belmont Avenue field this morning. The battery for the Mountain Avenues was Joseph Flack and Charles Blume, and Bergen Naylor and William Hand were the points for the Tigers.

Juniors vs. Monos.

The Junior O. U. A. M. nine will meet the Mono A. C. team on Hope Common tomorrow afternoon. The game is called for 3:30 o'clock. The following Saturday the Juniors will play the Clinton Avenue nine at Crescent Oval.

CHAPTER X.

ROBERTS' eyes rested on the grinning, complacent features of Alderman Phelan. At the latter's side was Bennett.

"I was saying," remarked Phelan blandly, "that it's a fine ball, isn't it, now, Roberts?"

"Yes," said Roberts hastily, preparing to move away. But Phelan buttonholed him.

"Stay an' swap talk awhile with his honor and me, Roberts," he begged.

"I'm in a hurry," began Roberts, "and"—

"Alderman Phelan has been trying to cheer me up a bit," said Bennett. "He knows I'm worried about the Borough bill's outcome. I wish Friday was past."

"Same here," chimed in Phelan. "An' you, Roberts?"

"I?" muttered the uncomfortable man. "Why?"

"It's Friday that the Borough bill comes up again," explained Bennett, as though imparting new information. "You will vote against it, of course, Mr. Roberts?"

"I'm not sure. You see, it's been altered so as to"—

"The alterations don't affect the main issue, and they can't change any honest man's views. So I can count on you to continue opposing it, can't I?"

"I object to this catechizing!" flared up poor Roberts. "I won't stand for it. I'm my own master and"—

"Somebody's going to prison before this matter's ended."

"Are you sure you're your own master?" demanded Bennett. "If so, why should you be afraid to say how you are going to vote?"

"Do you accuse me o"—

"I accuse you of having changed your mind about the bill for some reason that won't bear the light. And I warn you to go carefully. Somebody's going to prison before this matter's ended."

"I'm not answerable to any one but my constituents," said Roberts, with a pitiful attempt at cold dignity, "and they"—

"And they shall demand an answer from you," warned Bennett. "I'll see to it that they do. Now, you can go if you want to," turning his back on the confused Roberts, who eagerly took the opportunity to escape.

"I'm afraid friend Roberts ain't havin' the happiest time of his life tonight," remarked Phelan, going to the doorway and looking after the departing alderman. "There's not much of what the poet geezer calls 'whoop up the dance, fer joy be unrefined' about him. Poor fool! He never was cut out to be a crook. He makes a punk job of it in spite of the trimmings Horrigan's dec'rated him with. If I hadn't the sense to be crooked without makin' a monkey of myself, I'm blest if I don't believe I'd turn honest. Hey! Here's a couple of folks, though, that's gettin' more fun out of the ball than ever I had at a dog fight!"

As he spoke Perry Wainwright piloted Cynthia in from the conservatory at top speed, his jolly young face alight with a joy that reflected itself in Miss Garrison's own very flushed countenance.

"Alwyn," shouted young Wainwright, not seeing Phelan in his excitement, "guess what's happened! I'll give you three guesses and"—

"And I can't possibly guess if you gave me a thousand," retorted Bennett, with vast gravity, "so I won't try. I'll just congratulate you with all my heart, old chap, and wish Miss Garrison every happiness that"—

"Gee! How'd you know? We haven't told a soul. It only happened about four minutes ago. I was telling Cynthia what a daisy little girl she was, and she said she thought I waspretty nice, too, and so I got brave and said, 'Then why don't you' "—

"Perry!" reproved Cynthia sernly, jerking his arm to show that Phelan as well as Alwyn was recipient of the highly intimate tidings.

"Oh, don't mind me, children," put in Phelan. "I'm used to it. I was young myself once, so I've been told, though I don't clearly remember it myself. Can I butt in with a line of congratulations?"

He extended his big hand with an honest cordiality that quite won Cynthia.

"Thanks, alderman," grinned Perry effusively. "Now, Alwyn, we've got to go and break it to your mother if we can find her. Come along and back us up."

Dragging Bennett between them, the two youngsters started off on their quest. Phelan was about to return to his beloved bar when he was checked by seeing in the opposite doorway a man who stood as though petrified watching Cynthia Garrison's departing form. The intruder was about to withdraw when Phelan hailed him.

"Good evening," called the Alderman.

"Good evening, sir," said the newcomer respectfully, pausing on the point of leaving the foyer.

"I've met you before, I think," went on Phelan.

"Some days ago in the mayor's office," assented the other. "I am Thompson, Mr. Wainwright's private secretary."

"I'm Alderman Phelan of the Eighth, and I've seen you before we met at his honor's."

"So you said then, sir. But you were mistaken. Good evening."

He turned again toward the door, but Phelan resumed, without seeking to stop him:

"A mistake, was it? I'm not a man who makes many mistakes, Mr. Garrison."

The retreating secretary halted as though struck.

"That is another mistake, sir," he said in a muffled voice. "My name is Thompson."

"Is it, though?" inquired Phelan innocently. "It's queer how I could get mixed up so. When I was chief of police there was a bank president named Garrison who shot himself after bein' swindled an' whipsawed by a financier who was his dearest friend. He left a little daughter, Miss Cynthia, who you was lookin' at so keen just now, an' a son, who disappeared. That was nine years ago, an' I only saw the boy once, so maybe I've overplayed my hand in pipin' you off for him. But," added Phelan, laying a strong, detaining hand on Thompson's shoulder, "here comes some one who can clear it up easy enough."

The secretary twisted in the iron grasp and sought vainly to break away as Cynthia and Perry entered.

"Cynthia's lost her fan," explained Perry at sight of the alderman. "She's had me looking all over for the measly thing. Wait here a minute," he added to her, "and I'll chase into the conservatory and see if we left it there."

And, depositing the girl in a chair, he bolted away in search of the missing article.

"Now then, young man," said Phelan, "if your name's Thompson, as you say, there's no reason why you should object to my introducin' you to this young lady. Step up, son."

Still holding the reluctant, struggling secretary by the shoulder, Phelan turned to Cynthia.

"Miss Garrison," said he, "here's a gentleman I think you know. Would you mind lookin' him over?"

Wondering at the odd request, Cynthia raised her eyes to the stranger. But the latter persistently kept his face averted.

"I don't think I know him," she answered doubtfully. "There is something familiar about"—

MISS HALL'S WORK NOW ON EXHIBITION

Some very interesting work by Miss Caroline Minturn Hall, daughter of Mrs. Florence Howe Hall, is to be seen at the rooms of the Municipal League, on Madison Square, New York. During the exhibition many Plainfield friends of Miss Hall visited the gallery and admired her work.

There are several reasons why Miss Hall should paint well—and she does paint well. She is the granddaughter of Julia Ward Howe, author of "The Battle Hymn of the Republic," one of the most gifted and potent-souled women America has produced. She has had all the inspiring influences of membership in the American Brahmin caste, of very thorough instruction abroad under great artists, of residence in the world's most betutiful places and among the world's most gifted people. Into the bargain, she possesses an original personality, and imagination.

Her pictures reveal the influences. They are various, and sometimes in low keys and sometimes in higher keys (generally in low, because Miss Hall's temperament is that of the introspective poet and dreamer; they are almost wholly landscapes. The majority were painted in Brittany and depict the rocks, oaks, moors and barrens over which the spirit of the ancient Druids seems to brood. Several of these Brittany pictures, such as "The Chaos, Huelgoat," "Oaks, Huelgoat," "Golden Clouds" and "The Torrent," are full of imagination and sentiment, and beautifully suggest the mystic atmosphere which overspreads the essentially religious, because beautiful anw mysterious landscapes of Brittany.

There are also a number of New England pictures, painted in a somewhat more joyful and declaratory mood—an excellent view of Ascutney mountain, which Miss Hall has perversely locaed in New Hampshire instead of Vermont; of several romantic valleys (these, too, not un-Druid like in their way), on the island of Aquidneck, near Newport; and a sweet and absolutely true sketch of Mount Hope, King Phillip's home, in Bristol, R. I.

PERSONALITIES.

Andrew Lang, the great student of folklore, celebrated the other day his sixty-fourth birthday anniversary.

Charles Evans Hughes, Jr., son of the Governor of New York, has been elected business manager of the Brown Daily Herald, which is published by Brown University.

Lady Ernestine Hunt, eldest daughter of the Marquis of Allesbury, owns and operates a horse ranch at Calgary, Alberta, on a stretch of land nearly 40,000 acres in extent.

W. H. Santelmann, the leader of the United States Marine Band, is 43 years old and one of the best bandmasters in the country. He is also a versatile composer of band music, and has had printed many sterling compositions.

Mrs. Annie McElroy Brett, Western Texas woman promoter, is the telephone queen of the Southwest. She is president of the Southern Independent Telephone and Telegraph Company, and president and general manager of the Brett Construction, Telephone and Telegraph Company. These companies, represeting more than $500,000, were organized by her.

SALUTE TO POLICE URGED.

Chicago Woman Wants Children Taught to Honor Officers.

Some school children in Chicago the other day put into practice a novel plan advocated by a clubwoman, saluting all policemen on the street as a mark of respect for the authority they represent. The giant, good natured officers generally returned the salutation. Many of them can do it with military smartness as the result of recent drills.

"We think too little of our policemen," said Mrs. Edward Roby, of Chicago, at a recent luncheon of the Chicago Colony of New England Women at the Woman's Athletic Club. "They protect our homes and often endanger their lives in our behalf. Their calling should stir our patriotism, and every child should be taught to salute the star which the policeman wears."

Pride Sets the Pace.

We are a great people because we make such a hullabaloo about the things to do, because we accomplish them to the music of the band. Our pride has set the pace, and it's our pride that keeps us up till we drop.

PROSPERITY AS A TRANCE

Undue Expansion of Commercial Credit Created Panic Says Mr. Gilbert.

TO STATE BANKERS' ASS'N.

Governor J. F. Fort Suggests a Commission to Propose Law to Settle Bank Taxation.

"During the last ten years we have been living in a prosperity trance," said Alexander Gilbert, president of the New York Clearing House Association, before the New Jersey Bankers' Association convention at Atlantic City yesterday. "We have been enveloped in a cloud of delusion; we have been under great business pressure; we have seen the country develop by leaps and bounds; great corporations have come into existence largely controlling and dominating the business situation. A dozen Aldrich bills, or other currency reform measures, could never avert or tide over a panic. Scarcity of currency does not create panics. It is undue expansion of commercial credit. The banker wants a larger reserve, not currency. Seven-eighths of the business of the country is done on credit."

Governor Fort made the principal address at the annual dinner last night.

Governor Fort, in his introduction, referred to the fact that he had been president of one bank and director and trustee of others, and said that outside of being a lawyer he knew of nothing quite as delightful as being a banker. He added: "Through the troublous times we have been passing our banking institutions in New Jersey have all stood the test, not one of the 262 having faltered or delayed in payment."

He then turned to the problem of taxation, declared that the tax act of 1903 was "admirable," but said it does not cover railroad taxation, and it cannot be said to cover the taxation of bank stock." He reverted to his action to vetoing Senate bill No. 158, relating to the taxation of bank stock, and said: "I apprehend you will tonight admit the wisdom of that veto in view of the decision of (the Supreme Court) yesterday." He added: "I took a chance on the decision, and it proves that a prophet is not always a fakir."

After declaring that the burden of taxation is largely municipal and explaining the State's revenue from railroads he said that the problem is how to help the locality, and added: "All taxation should be equitable and just. The burden should be borne by all classes of property alike."

He said he was not satisfied with the present method of taxing bank capital, even as established by the court's decision, and that, as in the case of railroads, the banking institutions of the State should be set apart in a class by themselves for taxation on a uniform basis at a fixed rate.

He suggested for consideration a law to tax bank capital, at the bank as against all shareholders, within or without the State at the par or paid in value of the capital stock, upon assessment by the State Board of Assessors, without regard to surplus or undivided profits, and let the bank pay the tax directly to the State, returning with it a list of stockholders, the State to return the tax to the localities in which the stockholders reside, who are residents of the State and to where the bank is located as to non-resident stockholders. He added:

"The bank building, of course, to be assessed in the locality where it is situate as heretofore, and its value to be deducted from the surplus of the bank, if any, and if the surplus were not sufficient to cover the bank building to be deducted from the capital stock. This would work great benefit to shareholders in banks. The present method of taxing such shares is excessive; the dividends being paid, as we all know, on par, and the tax being upon the market value, which may be three times its par.

"Would it not be wise to have some commission appointed to suggest a law which would settle the question of bank taxation for all time, remove it from legislative consideration, and establish a fair, equitable and just method of the taxation of this class of property, having first separated it from other property for the purpose of taxation?

"If I can be of assistance to the banking institutions of New Jersey in reaching such a just result as this, under wise legislation, it will be a pleasure to be able to do so."

EXPLAINS RATE RAISE IN FORESTERS ORDER

Court Plainfield, No. 1144, Independent Order Foresters, received six applications for membership last night when Deputy Supreme Chief Ranger W. T. Bingham was present in the absence of Judge Howell, of Newark, to explain what had brought about the contemplated raise in rates for the older members of the order. He said that it was the action of the Insurance Commissioners of the Canadian Government and not the officers of the Supreme Court, as many members had thought.

Mr. Bingham explained to what extent the change would affect various members, but nothing definite he said could be stated until after the meeting of the Supreme Court early in June at Toronto. There will be a special session to settle this question. A great many questions were answered by Mr. Bingham.

Delegations were present from Courts Watchung, Dunellen, South Plainfield, Bayonne, Bound Brook, Cranford and Westfield. About 125 members of the local courts will be affected by the change, but al agreed to await the outcome of the Supreme Court meeting. Following the regular session the Foresters enjoyed a smoker.

GRACE M. E. WELCOMES REV. AND MRS. SHOOP

Rev. Ora J. Shoop was welcomed to his pastorate at Grace M. E. church, last night, when a large number of the parishioners attended a reception given him and Mrs. Shoop in the church parlors. There were about a hundred present to meet the new pastor, who assumed charged of the church several weeks ago. Mr. and Mrs. Shoop were assisted in receiving by Dr. and Mrs. H. K. Carroll.

The formal welcome to the parish and his new duties in North Plainfield was extended to Mr. Shoop by Dr. Carroll, who spoke informally on the two factors constituting the relations between a pastor and his flock. The first of these, he said, is the religious and social relation inside the church, and the second is a personal element of relationship in the community. Both are necessary for the maintainance of an aggressive, united parish.

Rev. Mr. Shoop responded simply to the speech of welcome, expressing his gratification as to the reception accorded him since he assumed his new duties. He stated that his prime object in the church would be expressed through his sermons, and he felt gratified to realize that the parsonage so near the church would allow him much time for working out his thoughts with quiet, persistent study for the best interests of the church community. He also expressed gratification over the fact that the church is free from debt and besought a continuation of the spirit of hearty co-operation which has marked his short stay in the parish.

Later in the evening, Rev. A. C. McCrea, pastor of the First Methodist church, and Rev. Charles S. Kemble, of the Monroe Avenue church, both personal friends of Rev. Mr. Shoop before he came to the borough, dropped in for the formal welcome. Mr. McCrea spoke of the necessity for aggressive labor in the local field, emphasizing not only the opportunity for pastoral work, but the opportunity for unrequired work in the community. He said that there were advantages to be gained from such work which were in many ways over and above those of the required duties. Mr. Kemble spoke of his personal friendship for Mr. Shoop in the Greek course which the two have been working in for several months past. His remarks were in appreciation of the man.

During the evening, Miss Winifred Carroll sang two contralto solos, "The Gipsy Trail," by Gallaway, and "A Prayer," by Starr. The piano accompaniment was played by Miss Alice Carroll. Refreshments, consisting of ice cream, cake and coffee, were served by a committee of members of the Ladies' Aid Society, Mrs. Andrew Lutkins and Mrs. George Nelson being in charge.

Dolbier Property Sold.

Nelson Runyon, as special master, sold the Dolbier property on Terrill road, Fanwood, on Tuesday, to Lemuel A. Tunison, of Martinsville, for $1,700, subject to a mortgage of $350 and interest, which he assumes. There were two tracts, the sale being Chancery proceedings in the matter between Martha E. Force, complainant, and John T. Dolbier, et als., defendants.

INDICTMENTS FOR GAMBLING.

Larceny and Disorderly House Complaints Predominate—Judge Schenck Presides.

The defendants indicted by the Somerset county Grand Jury were arraigned to plead in the Somerset county courts at Somerville before Judge Schenck yesterday.

George Daniels, charged with keeping a disorderly house at Raritan, pleaded not guilty and gave $300 bail to appear May 11 for trial.

Andrew Stahile, of Raritan, on a like charge, made the same plea and was also held in $300 bail for trial May 11. John Helfen, of Raritan, pleaded not guilty on a disorderly-house charge and was held in $300 bail for trial May 11. Theodore Van Anled, who was indicted for stealing money from the person of George Vosseller in Somerville, entered a plea of not guilty and was remanded for trial May 11.

Joseph Fiorette, charged with stealing a domestic fowl, the property of Mrs. Fannie Van Dyke, near Rocky Hill, said he wasn't guilty and gave surety in $100 for trial May 11. Charles and George Ianson, of Somerville, were arraigned on two charges—keeping a disorderly house and gambling. To both they pleaded not guilty. They gave $300 bail on each and their trial was set down for May 11. James Shaw and Howard Cramer each pleaded guilty to carrying a concealed weapon and sentence on the former was deferred until Friday, while the latter was placed in charge of the probation officer for one year and fined $25.

William Honan, of Raritan, pleaded guilty to an indictment for keeping a disorderly house. Counsel for him made a strong plea for a suspension of sentence, for various reasons, and it was granted. Patrick Grogan, of Raritan, who was indicted on a charge of atrocious assault and battery, two counts, on John Sweeney, of that place, entered a plea of guilty to assault and battery, which the prosecutor decided to accept. The prisoner was held in $200 bail for sentence Friday.

Frank Delasander, of Bound Brook, on three charges of resisting an officer with intent to kill, atrocious assault and battery and with assault with intent to kill, pleaded not guilty. Bail $300; trial May 11. Louis Curcio, of Raritan, and Frank Kalbeck, of Bound Brook, had each been indicted for keeping a disorderly house. The former pleaded guilty and gave $300 bail for sentence Friday. The latter pleaded not guilty and gave $300 bail for trial May 11. John R. Dailey, for obtaining money under false pretenses, entered a plea of guilty and was remanded for sentence Friday. Lawrence Wells, of Bound Brook, on a charge of keeping a disorderly house, also pleaded guilty. He gave $300 surety to appear for sentence next Friday.

WENT TO SLEEP WHILE DEATH LURKED OVER HIM.

James Bryant, a native of Scotland, who was hoofing it from Philadelphia to Providence, R. I., yesterday, stopped off in this city for a little liquid refreshment. Two drinks made him sleepy and he sought a small pace between lumber piles in the McDonough Brothers yard just off Central avenue. The position was a perilous one and when employes discovered him they hastened to get a cop to have him brought out. The lumber was stacked up in such a way that it would have been an easy matter for him to have dislodged a support and tumbled the whole business on top of him.

Patrolman Saffron hauled Bryant to safety and locked him up. This morning he related a tale of hard luck and no work that induced Judge Runyon to let him go on suspended sentence. The magistrate informed him of the dangerous place he had selected to take a nap and before going out, Bryant offered profuse thanks to the arresting officer for saving his life.

Bridge Work Progressing.

The contractors who are installing new bridges in this city for the New Jersey Central have completed one-half of the structure at Madison avenue, New street, Liberty street and Plainfield avenues, and work was started yesterday on the eastbound side of the tracks. It is expected that all of the bridge work will be completed by the last of May.

MR. FISK MAY BE NAMED ON EXCISE COMMISSION

Mayor Charles J. Fisk is slated for appointment on the excise commission to be appointed by Governor Fort, as intimated in this paper yesterday afternoon. No indication has yet been given as to who the other members of the commission will be.

Mr. Fisk, as foreman of the Grand Jury that investigated excise conditions in Union county recently, is considered to have special qualifications for the work to be undertaken by the State investigating body. He has not been in favor of local option. Before the Methodist conference in Plainfield a few weeks ago he made known his views on that point.

LEAP YEAR FEATURES AT YOUNG PEOPLE'S DANCE.

A highly successful leap year dance, at which the girls took the initiative during the whole affair, was held at Truell Hall last night, when about a hundred young people, including many pupils of the Plainfield High School and out-of-town guests, made merry until an early hour this morning. The dance was arranged by Miss Florence Dickerson, Miss Edna Martin and Miss Autumn De Laney, and leap-year features were plentiful.

There were twenty dances, including several barn dances, and the cards were made out by the girls, who scheduled dances for their partners. The men in the affair had little to do but enjoy themselves. Each was "asked to go" by "a certain girl" and in many cases carriages were sent for them, or their carfare paid. The ball-room was tastefully decorated with cut flowers and palms, predominating colors being red and green. Signs were posted conspicuously, requesting the men not to walk across the dance floor unaccompanied by a girl, not to ask for dances, and to be sure of a girl escort before going to the punch bowl. Music was furnished by Suhr's Imperial Orchestra. Out-of-town guests came from Dunellen, Dover, Summit, New York, Brooklyn, Jersey City and Westfield. A "return dance," of the good old-fashioned style, where man is boss, is being arranged for the near future.

Nugent, of Newark, and Walter I. McCoy, of South Orange, respectively.

The General Conference will be in session for one month. In June, Mr. McCrea will attend the 125th anniversary exercises of Dickinson College, Parlisle, Pa., of which he is an alumnus.

"A Sunday-school Program," will be demonstrated by members of Trinity Reformed church Sunday-school at the meeting of the Plainfield Sunday-school Teachers' Association at the Y. M. C. A. Monday night at 8 o'clock. Superintendent F. E. Smith will be in charge. It was expected that Rev. Dr. J. A. Chambliss would teach the lesson, but being unable to do so, his place will be taken by Rev. J. W. Musson, of Faith chapel. All Sunday-school workers are invited.

MISS DUYCKINCK A BRIDE

Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Duyckinck Becomes Mrs. H. R. Conger.

CEREMONY AT GRACE CHURCH.

Rev. Dr. William M. Hughes and Rev. E. Vicars Stevenson Officiate—Society Witness Nuptials.

Miss Harriet Dennison Duyckinck, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Whitehead Cornell Duyckinck, of Crescent avenue, and Henry Rutgers Conger, of Morristown, were married at Grace Episcopal church this afternoon at 3:30 o'clock, in the presence of a large assemblage of relatives and friends from New York, Brooklyn, Morristown and this city. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Dr. William M. Hughes, rector of the Church of the Redeemer, Morristown, and a life-long friend of the bride and groom. He was assisted by Rev. E. Vicars Stevenson, rector of Grace church.

The bride was gowned in white satin and point lace and wore a veil. Her bouquet was of white orchids and lilies-of-the-valley. She was attended by Mrs. Edward Kirkpatrick Mills, of Morristown, who was the matron of honor. Her gown was of pink chiffon, trimmed with French lace, of a pink shade, and she carried pink roses. The bridesmaids were Miss Margaret Conger, of Morristown, sister of the groom; Miss Carolyn Shields, of Chicago; Miss Helen Sanger, of New York, and Miss Anne Scott, of Brooklyn. They were gowned in white chiffon, trimmed with white satin, and they wore tulle hats, trimmed with white and pink roses. They carried pink roses.

William E. MacClymont, organist of the church, was at the organ, and prior to the ceremony rendered several selections. The Lohengrin Wedding March was played as the bridal party entered the church. The ushers led the way, followed by the matron of honor, bridesmands and the bride, accompanied by her father, who gave her in marriage. At the chancel they were met by the officiating clergymen, the groom and his best man, William McMurtrie Rutter, of Philadelphia. As the bridal party left the church, the wedding march from Mendelssohn was played.

The groom, his best man and all the ushers, with the exception of Butler Duyckinck, were classmates at Williams College, Class '99. The ushers were John S. Oakman, Joseph Howe and Lorenzo Armstrong, of New York, and Butler Duyckinck, brother of the bride.

After the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents on Crescent avenue, where congratulations were offered and the large and handsome collection of gifts received by the bride were admired. Later in the afternoon the bride and groom left the city to enjoy an extended honeymoon. Upon their return they will reside in New York, where the groom is a practicing lawyer, with offices at 40 Wall street.

The bride and her parents were former residents of Brooklyn, later removing to Morristown, from which place they came to Plainfield about a year ago. They have since been prominent in society circles here.

Prior to the wedding there were several entertainments for the bride and the members of the bridal party. Thursday night Mr. Conger gave his bachelor dinner at the Hotel Lafayette, New York. Yesterday afternoon a brilliant luncheon was given by Mrs. Sydney Williams, of East Ninth street, for the bride and her attendants. Last evening before the rehearsal at the church Mr. and Mrs. L. H. Van Buren, of Central avenue, entertained the groom, best man and ushers at dinner, and after the rehearsal, Mrs. Daniel T. Van Buren, of Central avenue, gave a dinner for the entire bridal party.

Attractive Program Arranged.

An attractive program has been arranged for the entertainment to be given at Trinity Reformed church, Tuesday night, April 29, by the quartet choir of the church, assisted by Miss Justine Roberts, of Brooklyn, whose dramatic recitations and readings have delighted Plainfielders on several occasions. The quartet, composed of Miss S. Etta Raybert, soprano; Miss Winifred Carroll, contralto; Fred S. Cutter, bass, and Edmund D. Young, tenor, will give a well-selected program.

Patrolman Dobson Recovering.

Patrolman George Dobson, who was hurt in stopping a runaway horse Thursday night, is able to be about today but will be unfit for duty for several weeks. The city will provide him with a new uniform in place of the one ripped to pieces when he was dragged over the macadam.

YOUNG BICYCLE RIDER COLLIDES WITH TROLLEY

In trying to avoid a collision with a dog which sprang out at him as he was riding his bicycle along Somerset street near Craig place, 12-year-old Clarence Higgins, son of John Higgins, of Stone street, steered the wheel directly into the front of a north-bound trolley car and was painfully injured about the face and head by his fall. The car struck the bike a glancing blow with its fender, breaking the forks at the head and crown. The accident happened at about 10:30 this morning, and the lad's escape is considered miraculous.

Seeing the collision, Chief Marshal Weiss, of the borough police force, ran to the lad's assistance and carried him to Champlin's drug store. A hasty examination showed his injuries to be slight, consisting mainly of painful cuts and abraision about the head and face. The injuries were solely due to the fall, for the young fellow was not struck by the car, the force of the collision throwing him to one side. His hurts were bandaged up at the drug store and he was able to walk home with the Chief. The wheel was taken to a local repair shop.

"FLORADORA" GAVOTTE FEATURE OF ELKS SHOW

When the local Elks present their minstrel show at the New Plainfield theatre next Thursday night, one of the feature numbers will be a dancing specialty that is counted upon to make a big "hit." Eight members of the troupe will appear in it and they have been hard at work for the past three weeks getting it down pat. Dr. Rivers, of New York, who stages all of Gus Hill's musical shows and many of Klaw & Erlanger's, is the instructor and last night expressed himself as being highly pleased with the aptitude of his pupils.

The dance is a gavotte and is a take-off on the famous Floradora sextette which Dr. Rivers assisted in arranging. The "boys," who sing a song, "Has your mother any more like you?" will be Harry Blimm, Horace J. Martin, Jr., Fred Miller and Joseph C. Martin, while the "girls" will be Elmer Cutting, Harry Messersmith, Tom Muir and John V. Todd. The "girls" costumes have been designed by Eiselmann, of West Twenty-ninth street, New York, and will be elaborate affairs. They will be matched by parasols and the proper way to carry them has got the four "guessing" more than the steps.

Another "feature" dance number will be given in the first part by End Man "Bill" Counihan, who will execute some fancy waltz-clog steps while the chorus hums, "There goes McManus, the swell of the day."

CHILDEN'S PARTY FOR MISS MARTINE WEEKS.

Mrs. Frank A. Weeks, of West Seventh street, gave a delightful Easter children's party at her home yesterday afternoon from 3 to 6 o'clock, for her daughter, Miss Martine Weeks. There were about forty guests, including several from Fanwood. The decorations were novel, especially in the dining room. The table was arranged to represent a duck pond, and the idea was carried out perfectly. Each guest received as a favor, a box of candy, tied with satin ribbon.

The young people were first entertained by H. Warren Rankin, who gave a clever performance of sleight-of-hand, after which games were played. The prize winners were Miss Anna Yerkes, Miss Amy Winant and Miss Marie Sullivan. Among the games played were hunting the eggs and the young people had a merry time searching for them. Following the entertainment and games, all adjourned to the dining room, where several surprises awaited them and refreshments were served.

"Mike" Says They're Great.

Manager "Mike" Shannon, of the Majestic theatre, Perth Amboy, 'phoned over last night that the "talking pictures," which will be shown at the New Plainfield theatre next Monday afternoon and night, are the best ever. "Tell the high brows for me," gurgled Mike's voice over the wire, "that they're the rave of the town here, cross mah heart, honest to goodness, hope to die if they aint." Treasurer Sam Cunningham promised that the message would be delivered and has been busy since spreading the glad tidings. It is needless to state that Mike never praises except when he means it.

DISTRICT DELEGATE FIGHT.

Tuttle, Anti-Bryanite, Named As Delegate—Collins Chosen As State Committeeman After Warm Debate.

Not in years has there been such a stormy scene at a Democratic meeting in Union as that characterizing the caucus of the Union county delegation to the State and Congressional conventions at the Democratic Club headquarters in Broad street, Elizabeth, last night, when many members bolted in the midst of the proceedings. It was a red-hot session all through and intimations of "you're a liar" were not infrequent during the heated debates over choices of district delegate and State committee members.

In the midst of it all was James E. Martine, "the farmer-orator," who had cast his fortunes with Brig. Gen. D. F. Collins, anti-Bryanite, for State committeeman, only to find that the friends of the latter were lined up for William E. Tuttle, of Westfield, another anti-Bryanite, for district delegate. Seventeen of the seventy-one delegates present walked out of the meeting, climaxing the excitement. Points of order had been raised thick and fast and the debate was not at all friendly.

After former Mayor Baldwin, of Summit, had named John J. Lane, of the same place, for State committeeman, James E. Martine, of this city, as a proxy for an Elizabeth delegate, placed General Dennis F. Collins, of the latter city, in nomination for the same honor. Mr. Lane jumped to his feet and declared that Martine had assured hi mof his support and there was a high old time at once. The upshot of it all was that General Collins won hands down.

It was not until an effort was made by Elizabeth delegates to enforce the unit rule in endorsing a candidate for district delegate that the real fun began. Collins' friends boomed Mr. Tuttle but when the unit gag rule was sprung seventeen members of the committee bolted. This number included the nine Plainfield members. After the walk-out, Tuttle's selection was an easy task.

During the discussion on district delegate, Charles H. Moore, of Elizabeth, made a bitter attack on Bryan. The friends of the Nebraskan were angry all through over his tirade and today they swear that they will "get even" with him for his so-called uncalled for remarks.

The circuses are beginning to bill this section of the Sate for their annual spring appearances. Ringling Brothers's show, considered the world's greatest, will give its first performances in Plainfield on Saturday, May 23, pitching tents on the lot at Park avenue and Randolph road. The Ringling Brothers are the owners of the Barnum & Bailey circus and are runing the two jointly. The Barnum show will appear at New Brunswick on May 14.

Leon Washburn, the Bound Brook show man, is getting his outfit in shape for the season which opens at Bound Brook on May 2. The show will travel by wagon this year and performances for the week after the opening will be as follows: May 4, Somerville; 5, Plainfield; 6, Westfield; 7, Cranford; 8-9, Elizabeth. It is reported that the Hagenback-Wallace circus, the biggest rivals of the Ringling and Barnum aggregations, will visit Plainfield late in the summer.

EX-PRESIDENT IS SLIGHTLY BETTER.

Lakewood, April 25.—Reports from the Lakewood Hotel, where former President Grover Cleveland is now confined by an attack of rheumatic gout, say that he is resting comfortably and was slightly improved today. The hotel authorities were more reticent about giving out any statements today than they have been heretofore, and barring the fact that it was stated that Mr. Cleveland was getting better each day nothing new could be learned about his condition.

There is absolutely no truth in the story published in a Philadelphia newspaper this morning that there are two nurses and a physician constantly at the bedside of the former President. One nurse came to Lakewood with him from Princeton, and she has remained here since then. She and Mrs. Cleveland are the only persons who are attending him. Dr. Joseph Bryant, the family physician, arrived at the hotel last night.

It was learned this morning that Dr. Bryant said yesterday that aside from old age, which undoubtedly has had its effect on Mr. Cleveland, there had been nothing to cause a breakdown such as has been mentioned in some newspapers. Mrs. Cleveland would not say anything today, although she stated yesterday that she would probably issue a statement some time today. Manager Berry, of the hotel, was also very reticent.

Lavatory Without Faucets.

Leo E. Kenney, of Watchung avenue, is the inventor of a new style lavatory. The novel feature of it is that no faucets are used, thus leaving the entire top without any obstruction. The water is supplied to the bowl through a duct in the porcelain itself, and is a labor-saver because there are no faucets to be cleaned. Mr. Kenney has called it the Kenney Faucetless Lavatory.

DOGS SAVE LOOT.

Thieves, Chased to River, Leave It on the Bank.

Lincoln Park, April 25.—William Conroy, awakened by a noise in his dining-room, sprang out of bed, saw two men running away across the fields toward the Pequannock River and fired at them. The shots aroused neighbors, who started in pursuit of the men.

Artemus Zealand let loose his two bloodhounds and several bulldogs, which tracked the fugitives to the bank of the river. The thieves had packed loot from the Conroy home valued at $2,000, in sacks. Impeded by their booty, they were overtaken by the dogs at the river bank. The bags were found on the bank and the men disappeared in a boat around the bend.

SPORTS HERE AND THERE

GOLF.

The regular golf season will begin at the Plainfield Country Club today, although the commencement of play for the scheduled events will not be started until next Saturday. The program is said to be one of the best in the history of the organization. It will be announced next week. The clubhouse will be opened on Monday, when the new steward will take charge.

Although no announcement has been made yet for the opening of the Park Golf Club, it is expected that the event will take place soon. The course is in fine condition and everything is practically in readiness.

Within the next ten days or two weeks the members of the Plainfield Country Club will be able to use the regular putting greens. A top-dressing has just been placed on them and it will require that much time to put them in shape.

"Marty" O'Loughlin, the professional at the Plainfield Country Club, is rapidly recovering from the injury to his arm and he hopes to be able to resume play in a short time.

The Westfield Golf Club is preparing an attractive schedule of events for the coming season, and it is expected that there will be several club matches during the summer. A large force of men is now engaged putting the course in condition.

Lieut. N. Pendleton Rogers will take part in the play for the Metropolitan championship, and is now getting in condition for the event.

Medal and match play competitions have been fairly evenly divided in the golf schedule of the South Orange Field Club for the coming season. A start will be made on May 2, and from then till Thanksgiving Day the fun will be continuous. The club championship will start on October 31, the best eight to qualify. Entries to all competitions must be handed to the steward before play.

Although the club's nine-hole course will not be formally opened until May 2, there will be more or less play from now on despite the fact that the turf is still soft in spots. The committee finds it no difficult matter to sustain the enthusiasts, especially among the youngsters, who are displaying more interest than ever this season. Here is the schedule:

Until recently golfers belonging to the Royal Portrush Club, in Ireland, were concerned for the future, as the lease held from the Earl of Antrim shortly expires. The fact that the clubhouse is situated close to the railroad station and that the first, second, seventeenth and eighteenth holes run close to the two main roads makes this portion of the property come within the zone of building ground. A settlement has at last been negotiated, however, whereby the Royal Portrush Club will be able to retain the clubhouse and practically the old course, so familiar to crowds of English, Scotch and American tourists. At a rent of $2,500 a lease of thirty-five years will shortly be secured.

BASEBALL.

Now that Somerville is to have a first-class baseball team this season, nothing stands in the way of arranging a schedule of games with Plainfield, High Bridge and Flemington.

Clinton Avenue will play P. H. S. at Crescent Oval this afternoon and the contest should be a good one. The betting favors Clinton Avenue.

Perth Amboy will play Scotch Plains at the latter place, this afternoon, it being the opening game of the season.

"Phil." Smith has not yet secured a berth with a team for Saturday games. He is in good condition and is capable of pitching good ball.

The Union League will open the season at Elizabeth, this afternoon, the initial game being with Philadelphia. The grounds are on South Broad street within easy reach. Manager Nubeck has a very strong team to represent Elizabeth and will make a bid for championship honors. The league is composed of teams from Elizabeth, Philadelphia, Baltimore, Wilmington, Reading and Brooklyn.

MacQuillen, who will be remembered as Mack in the Eastern League where he pitched for Jersey City, is now considered one of the strongest twirlers on the Philadelphia Nationals' staff. He has been successful in nearly every game he pitched this season.

Watch The Daily Press bulletin every night for the final scores of the National and American League games. By special arrangement these scores are received soon after the completion of the contests.

The Giants are playing championship baseball, which is remarkable for this time of the year. The club seems to be in particularly good form, hitting and fielding the ball in a way that wins games.

Governor Fort told the members of the State committee at their meeting in the Strauss building in Newark, yesterday afternoon, that while he had declared that he expected to serve out his term as head of the State government, and desired to do so, he would feel called upon to accept if the national Republican convention. Chicago nominated him for Vice-President. That, at least, was the interpretation put in his speech by the committee.

The Information Contained In This Citizen's Statement Is Priceless.

The hale, the hearty, the strong can afford to toss this paper to one side impatiently when they read the following, but any sufferer in Plainfield who has suffered hours of torture caused by kidney complaint will stand in his own light if he does not follow the valuable advice offered here.

John W. Snedeker, of 244 East Third street, Plainfield, N. J., says: "While suffering from kidney troubles, I used ot feel in the morning that my sleep had not done me a bit of good, and all during the day I would suffer from a dull backache. Matters ran along in this way for some time, and I began to be bothered more and more with that tired, languid feeling of weakness and depression. My mother advised me to try Doan's Kidney Pills, and I did so with very encouraging results, as I am now well and entirely free from backache and that feeling of weakness. I sleep well at night and feel that my rest is beneficial."

ELIZABETH CROSSING HAS A NEW VICTIM.

Pennsylvania Train Hits Man at Dark Crossing—Will Probably Die.

Elizabeth, April 25.—Christian Rhein, Jr., thirty-five years old, who conducts a livery stable at No. 72 South Park street, this city, while driving in a carriage over the Dark lane grade crossing of the Pennsylvania Railroad at Linden, before 8 o'clock Thursday night, was struck by an east-bound passenger train. He was tossed in the air and picked up unconscious alongside the railroad embankment, having sustained a compound fracture of both legs, a broken arm and internal injuries that will probably result in his death.

This accident is one of many that have occurred at the Dark lane grade crossing within the last two years. At the same spot where Rhein was struck Thursday night a funeral coach was struck last January. The driver, John Bumstead, was killed and the five occupants of the coach were injured. The funeral coach fatality led the Union county Grand Jury to censure the railroad company for what it termed culpable negligence.

Dark lane grade crossing is known as the most dangerous railroad grade crossing in the State. The railroad company is at the present time, as a result of the Grand Jury's action, having gates placed at the crossing.

Mrs. John Emmons, of Jersey City, who has been visiting relatives here, has returned home.

ROUND UP YOUNG JACK SHEPPARDS

New Brunswick, April 25.—John and Frank Koch, 15 and 12 years old, who escaped from the New Jersey State Home for Boys at Jamesburg eight months ago, and who have since been living in a cave in the woods near this city, were recaptured by the local police Thursday night. They escaped again, but were caught yesterday morning and sent back to Jamesburg.

No less than twenty burglaries have been committed by the boys in this city since they escaped from Jamesburg. Thursday night Policeman Thomas Dwyer caught them breaking into a plumbing shop. Frank Koch escaped, but John was taken to the city lockup and placed in a cell. During the night Frank Koch forced in an outer door leading to the lockup and liberated his brother. When the escape was discovered the entire force of fifteen policemen was started after the boys and they were rounded up and sent handcuffed to Jamesburg.

The boys were arrested in May, 1907, for breaking into a vacant house in this city and sentenced to the home. While in the county jail here awaiting transportation they broke a gate and escaped. Two days later they robbed the Middlebush station of the Pennsylvania Railroad and were recaptured. Two weeks after they reached Jamesburg they broke out of the State Home. Since then they have been hanging around here, but always succeeded in eluding the police. Their parents, the police declare, furnished them with food and clothing. The boys are small for their age, and have always managed to fool the officers when arrested by weeping copiously until vigilance was relaxed.

MONTCLAIR AUTO FETE.

Big Parade Will Be Held Afternoon and Evening, June 13.

A novel automobile fete will take place in Montclair on the afternoon and evening of Saturday, June 13, next. The affair is to aid one of the churches in that town in the purchase of a plot of ground on which to erect a gymnasium, and will be participated in by almost all the local automobiles.

A circuit of five miles will be covered ten times from 3 o'clock until 9 p. m. The route will be through the principal streets of Montclair, and many residences along the line will be decorated. After dark these will be illuminated with Japanese lanterns.

The automobiles will cover the circuit about ten times, changing passengers at each of the five main stations. An identification number will be furnished to each car, so that all of the passengers may know the make and horsepower by referring to the guide book. It is hoped to raise a large sum in this manner, each passenger contributing a small sum for the fifty-mile circuit. It is expected that considerable money will also be raised from the sale of refreshments.

The committee in charge of the entertainment is composed of Charles C. West, 100 Upper Montclair avenue; William G. Frost, 80 Upper Mountain avenue, and Emerson Brooks, 2 Clinton avenue, all of Montclair.

SORE TOOTH CAUSES HIATUS.

Breaks for a Day Honeymoon of Colonel Roebling.

Trenton, April 25.—Colonel Washington A. Roebling, who on Tuesday of this week was married to Mrs. Cornelia Wetzell Farrow at Dalton, Mass., returned to Trenton today alone. To his friends he explained that he had a very sore tooth and he was not willing that anyone save his favorite dentist should treat the offending molar. He will rejoin his bride tomorrow and they will remain away until about May 1, when they will take possession of the colonel's palatial home in this city.

The colonel today declined to tell where he and his bride have been spending the first few days of their honeymoon. It is understood, however, that before returning to Trenton they will make a trip South to visit Mrs. Roebling's former home in Charleston, S. C. When they return to Trenton a reception will be tendered the new Mrs. Roebling.

6,000 ACRES FOR ONIONS.

Land Reclaimers Say Will Be Result of Dredging Pequest.

Trenton, April 25.—The New Jersey Land Reclamation and Drainage Association at a meeting here yesterday elected Isaac F. Roe, of Newark; Henry H. Isham, of Elizabeth, and Walter Heritage, of Glassboro, delegates to the national drainage convention at Washington, D. C., on May 12. Addresses were made by Governor Fort, State Entomologist Smith and C. J. Blanchard, of the United State reclamation service.

The association passed resolutions advocating an appropriation of $50,000 next year to continue the anti-mosquito crusade and $2,000 for the dredging of the Pequest river. The drainage canals dug for ridding the seacoast of mosquitoes have already reclaimed 15,000 acres of swamp and meadow land. The dredging of the Pequest will make 6,000 acres of land available which is especially adapted to the raising of onions.

ASTRONOMICAL EVENTS:
Tonight and Tomorrow Morning.
Sun sets 6:45, rises 5:01; moon rises 3:14 a. m.

Already there is serious discussion in the Republican camp concerning the probable choice of a successor to J. Franklin Fort as Governor when his term ends. Many names have been mentioned and among the number are several good ones. None, however, sizes up so well as Joseph S. Frelinghuysen. The Senator from Somerset is so well known here that it is needless to paint out his undoubted qualifications for the office. As Governor of this great State he would reflect credit on himself and on his constituents just as he has as State Senator of Somerset county.

Referring to the brilliant, vigorous and loyal man of Somerset, the New Jersey political writer for the New York Herald said but a day or two ago:

"There were some interesting personalities in this year's Senate. The most picturesque figure in that body was Senator Joseph S. Frelinghuysen, of Somerset. He is a descendant of one of the oldest and most distinguished families in New Jersey. His great-grandfather was Theodore Frelinghuysen, who served in the United States Senate, three quarters of a century ago, while Frederick, twice United States Senator and Secretary of State under President Arthur, was his uncle. But Senator Frelinghuysen does not travel under the hats of these distinguished ancestors. "Joe" Frelinghuysen is one of the most democratic men in the New Jersey Senate. He is one of the most popular men in the Legislature. He is brainy and energetic and has, during his term as Senator, been the author of many important and fruitful measures. Mr. Frelinghuysen is very seriously talked of as the next Republican Governor."

Thomas F. Ryan admits that ninety-five per cent. of the stock of all our steam railroads represents water. That proportion, he declares, with much frankness, does not represent a single dollar paid in. As Mr. Ryan will be generally credited with knowing whereof he speaks, many investors will not be surprised to learn that they have exploiting in navigation schemes.

Reliable report has it that Governor Fort seriously contemplates appointing a State excise investigating commission and that if he does so, Charles J. Fisk will be named as one of the members. That there is need for such an investigation is certain and that Mr. Fisk is splendidly equipped for membership on such a body no one will gainsay.

An exchange refers to the Republican dollar dinner as "a howling success." It certainly was especially when Mr. Fowler "threw it into" Mr. Kean. Where would the Congressman have landed in his last campaign had it not been for the "grease" furnished by the Keans?

Mayor Townsend has set the example, without any hemming and hawing, in insisting that the P. S. C. give proper trolley service. It is now up to Plainfield to put an end to all dilly-dallying and compel that corporation to restore its regular schedule on all lines.

The Essex delegation to the Democratic State convention has agreed upon James Smith, Jr., as a candidate for delegate-at-large. Thought the Senator said he was out of politics?

NEWARK M. E. CONFERENCE PRAISES LOCAL HOSPITALITY.

At its recent annual session in this city, the Newark Conference of the M. E. church passed this resolution thanking Plainfield for its hospitality:

"Resolved, That we have never been more royally entertained than in this beautiful city of Plainfield, and that we have had an unusually pleasant session. No complaints, no appeals, has been the invariable rule. The town seems to have been ours and the hospitality as broad as the automobiles of generous citizens could carry us.

"That we express our appreciation of the courtesy extended by the First Baptist church, in the proffer of their edifice for our use; and we tender to the genial and polished pastor of the First Methodist Episcopal church of Plainfield, who seems to have the whole town at his beck and call; and to the trustees and people; to the entertainment committee, the choir, and all our hospitable hosts of this and the Monroe Avenue and Grace churches; to the Board of Trade for its kindness in providing free automobile rides for all, and to all that have so generously contributed to our pleasure, our unfeigned thanks."

200 YEARS AGO IN N. J.

For twenty years New Jersey remained divided into nine counties. In the year 1714 Hunterdon came into being, so entitled in honor of Robert Hunter, then Governor of New Jersey. Hunter was a Scotchman who, apprenticed to an apothecary, ran away from his master, entered the British army, became brigadier general and from 1710 to 1719 served as Governor of New Jersey. Following Governors Cornbury and Ingoldsby, both of whom had been cordially hated by the colonists, and had seldom if ever been in agreement with the Assembly. Hunter made many friends and was exceedingly popular during the first few years of his administration, which, despite subsequent troubles, was generally regarded, even in those days, as a successful one. When he was at the height of his popularity the Assembly honored their Governor by giving his name to the new county, the tenth in the colony's history.—Newark Call.

NEWS IN THE SUBURBS.

DUNELLEN AND VICINITY.

As member of the Republican Executive Committee, Dr. P. W. Brakeley has issued the formal call for party primaries, to be held in the borough hall next Tuesday night. The polls will be open from 7:30 to 9 o'clock, and one delegate will be elected to the State convention, where four delegates-at-large to the National convention are to be elected; also one delegate to the Congressional convention, where two district delegates to the National convention are to be elected. The same person may be elected to attend both conventions. The Congressional district convention will be held at the Republican Club rooms, Trenton, May 5, at 10 o'clock in the morning, and will be immediately followed by the State convention, to be held at Taylor's Opera House at noon.

The Ladies' Minstrels, to be given at Jr. O. U. A. M. Hall tonight, will be repeated at the New Market school Monday night for the benefit of the school. There has been a big advance sale of tickets for the show tonight, and many of those who were in the audience at the presentation in New Market this week, will again witness the performance tonight. The production is under the direction of Mrs. Katherine L. Mansell, of New York city.

Rev. G. H. Gardner, pastor of the New Market Baptist church, will begin a course of special sermons at the evening service tomorrow. His topic for the first one will be "How Shall I Put On My Coat?" and the sermons are to deal with twentieth century truths of the Bible. At the morning service tomorrow, the pastor will preach on the topic, "The Winter Is Past."

Officers will be elected and reports for the year presented at the annual meeting of the Sunday-school of the New Market Baptist church to be held in connection with the Sunday-school session tomorrow morning. The nominating committee is comprised of Rev. George H. Gardner, the pastor; George Hadley, Mrs. A. R. Tappen and Mrs. W. J. Nelson.

W. W. Kimball, whose resignation as principal of the township public school was accepted at the recent meeting of the Piscataway Board of Education, has secured a position in a New York school and will commence his duties at once. His successor, George Snyder, of Bound Brook, will take charge of the local school this week.

Rev. E. C. Dutcher will preach on the topic, "Thoughts of the Spring Time" at the morning service in the Methodist church tomorrow, and W. W. Giddes will assist. In the evening, Mr. Giddes will be the speaker, and his subject will be "The Tragedy of the Seven Sons of Souls," or "The Innocent for the Guilty."

About fifty couples, including guests from New York and Jersey City, attended the masquerade given under the auspices of the New Market Field Club at Friendship Hall last night. Some of the costumes were unusualy clever, and the affair proved a great social success.

Miss Helen Dunham entertained the members of the Young Ladies' Sewing Society of the Presbyterian church at her home yesterday afternoon.

SOUTH PLAINFIELD.

At the regular monthly meeting of the Good Government Club, which was held last night in Temperance Hall, the committee on public school matters was discharged, and a new committee was formed for the purpose of attending the May meeting of the Township Committee as a delegation to urge the committee to appropriate the sum of one thousand dollars towards the equipment of the fire company. Apart from these two matters nothing was done except the passing of bills payable.

South Plainfield would be pleased to know who George Sutton is who was recently reported in a local paper as having been dangerously wounded by contact with a "Merry Widow" hat as he does not seem to be known in this district.

The Rev. C. W. F. Attlee will occupy the pulpit of the Baptist church as usual on Sunday and will take for his theme in the morning, "Self Respect," and in the evening, "The Importunate Widow."

Mrs. Attlee will lead the Christian Endeavor meeting tomorrow evening and will take for her topic, "Paton and Missions in the Oslands."

HE RECEIVED DIPLOMA FROM NASSAU IN 1832

If Dr. James Curtis Hepburn, of Orange, attends commencement at Princeton this June, he will celebrate the seventy-sixth anniversary of his graduation from college. He received his diploma in 1832, was graduated in medicine at the University of Pennsylvania in 1836 and is Princeton's oldest alumnus. He recently passed his ninety-third birthday.

Of the 1,287 men graduated from Princeton University between the years 1832 and 1852, the twenty oldest classes represented by surviving alumni, only 151 are still living. The classes of 1833, 1836, 1837 and 1838 have no survivors. Of these 151 graduates only eight are classed in the records as business men. The fact that this proportion is two-thirds less than it should be according to recently published statistics, indicates that the lives of the business men in the twenty classes concerned have been shorter than those of their contemporaries who entered professions.

The statistics referred to, show moreover that a larger proportion of modern graduates go into business than into the profession. If this proportion shall remain as it is, or shall increase, and if the mortality of such graduates shall prove to be as high as that of the former generation, the chances for a busines man to reach a ripe old age, not to speak of his celebrating the seventy-sixth anniversary of his graduation from college, are exceedingly slim.

Ranked by their relative compatibility with longevity, according to the statistics of Princeton classes the professions are in the following order: law, the ministry and medicine.

RAVAGES OF WHITE DEATH SHOWN IN STATISTICS.

In a foreign medical journal there are some figures on the ravages in Europe from tuberculosis. Every year at least 150,000 consumptives die in France; recent statistics prove that 200,000 is nearer the mark. For each tuberculosis person dead there are three living. Of these 600,000, it is estimated that one-half are needy.

While tuberculosis is increasing in France, it is decreasing in England and Germany. Out of 1,000,000, there were two years ago in Russia over 4,000 deaths; in France, 3,000; in Germany 2,000 and in England and Scotland 2,000. These are from pulmonary consumption alone.

Germany has 82 sanatoriums, which hold over 20,000 poor consumptives; the cost of each sanatorium is about $100,000.

KIMBALL RE-ELECTED.

Again Placed at Head of Public Library Commission.

Trenton, April 25.—The Public Library Commission, at its annual meeting yesterday, re-elected W. C. Kimball, of Passaic, chairman, and Henry C. Buchanan secretary. Mr. Kimball will also represent the commission at the meeting of the American Library Association at Minnetonka in July.

The commission discussed the work of the year and made plans for the betterment of traveling libraries. There are now 169 of these in the State and 26 prison libraries, having a total of 10,000 volumes. After the meeting Governor Fort dined with the commission at the Hotel Sterling.

THERE ARE 228,234 DOCTORS IN THE WORLD.

According to an ingenious statistician who writes in Woche, a German periodical, there are at present 228,234 medical doctors in the world. Of these there are in Europe 162,333, distributed as follows: In England, 34,967; in Germany, 22,518; in Russia, 21,489; in France, 20,348, and in Italy, 18,245. In England the proportion of doctors is 78 to 100,000 of the population; in France it is 51, and in Turkey, 18. In Brussels the proportion is 241 to 100,000 of the population; in Madrid, 209; in Budapest, 198; in Christiania, 181; in Vienna, 140; in Berlin, 132; in London, 128; in Athens, 123; in Paris, 111; in New York, 74, and in Constantinople, 35.

A Scene from "The Girl Behind the Counter," at the Herald Square Theatre, New York.

N. Y. AMUSEMENTS.

Despite the fact that Otis Skinner is nearing the end of the third month of his engagement in "The Honor of the Family" at the Hudson theatre, this attraction remains one of the most successful in the metropolis. Mr. Skinner's characterization of Philippe Bridau has been conceded by all important dramatic writers as one of the very best in the history of the stage. He is supported by an exceptionally fine company, at the head of which is Miss Percy Harwell, who, by the way, has scored an emphatic hit as the termagent mistress of the Bridau Household. As all dates have been cancelled at the Hudson for the remainder of the season, it is probable that Mr. Skinner will remain at this play-house far into the summer.

Sam Bernard continues to manufacture laughs at the Casino, New York, in "Nearly a Hero," surrounded by a company which is fully capable of supporting him in an unusually interesting medley of mirth and music. Since the prdouction opened its metropolitan season the stage director, scenic artists, electricians and others who have to do with the making of a show after it has left the hands of the author, have joined their efforts in building it up to its present point of excellence. Several new songs have been introduced and other individual and ensemble numbers are now in rehearsal. There is no prospect that "Nearly a Hero" will be able to get away from the Casino this summer and it is good for a strong run next season at that same historic playhouse. Ethel Levey left the cast April 20 to go into vaudeville for a few weeks before taking a trip abroad. Her place was taken by Nora Bayes who left another big Broadway production to join the Shubert forces.

George M. Cohan was seen in his new play, "The Yankee Prince," at the Knickerbocker theatre Monday evening, surrounded by "his royal family," and a large company of players. His "royal family" is composed of his father, mother and sister, Jerry J., Helen F. and Josephine Cohan, who, with George M., formerly made up the family of players known as "The Four Cohans." This is the first time they have appeared together since "The Governor's Son" was presented at the Savoy theatre seven years ago. Young Mr. Cohan is responsible for the book, lyrics, music and staging of "The Yankee Prince," and the new piece is regarded as the best of his many plays. It is a satire on international marriages—the union of foreign titled idlers with foolish, but rich, American girls. Mr. Cohan plays the role of an immensely rich young American in London sightseeing, who meets an American girl, daughter of a Chicago pork packer, who is being courted by Lord Weymouth. The pork packer has social ambitions but his wife has none, which adds to the complications of the story.

The metropolis has really gone "Servant-in-the-House-mad," and the Savoy is being besieged by audiences of a size and quality never experienced there before—and this is not forgetting that "The Man of the Hour" had its phenomenal run at that house. History heretofore has been that the attendance at theatres in New York falls fifty per cent. below the normal during Holy Week, but in the case of "The Servant in the House" it was twenty-five per cent. above the best previous week. The reason for this seeming anomaly is that, after a season notable mainly for musical successes and dramatic failures, the people were ready for a drama presenting great human truths in a great human manner. The New York Sun paid "The Servant in the House" this remarkable tribute a few days ago: "Here is a drama so great, so compelling, so reverent, so akin to all the beautiful and permanent things of life that it is more than a play, more than a novel, more than a mere book. It is a page from life itself, revealing the brotherhood of man as a real, breathing thing; showing how the possible has become possible."

FORGETS OWN TARDINESS.

Judge, an Hour Late Opening Court, Fines Juror, Who Is Seven Minutes Behind.

New Brunswick, April 25.—Judge Lloyd, who was an hour late in opening court Wednesday because his train from Camden was delayed, yesterday publicly reprimanded a juryman who was seven minutes late and directed that he should be fined a day's pay.

Wednesday Judge Lloyd announced that court would begin at 9:45 o'clock yesterday morning. George D. Runyon, of Perth Amboy, one of the jury panel, was absent when court opened, but came in seven minutes later.

"Stand up, Mr. Runyon," commanded Judge Lloyd. "Will you please explain why, when the hour of opening court has been fixed, you cannot arrive in time, but must delay the proceedings?"

"Because," replied the juror, "I did not reach home last night until 7 o'clock. I had some business matters to which I had to attend, and the delay was unavoidable. I could not get here earlier."

"Then I am to understand that you place your private business above your duties as a juryman?" continued the court. "You may sit down."

Judge Lloyd then directed the clerk of the court to enter an order that Mr. Runyon should receive no pay for yesterday's services as a juror.

CATCHES TREED CAT BY LURE OF TOP STRING.

Montclair, April 25.—Willie Davenport, seven years old, showed his elders how to catch cats here yesterday. A white cat climbed fifty feet up a large tree in front of the residence of Cyrus C. Corby in Orange road, and refused to descend when called by its anxious mistress.

Various expedients were adopted to induce the cat to come down. Mr. Corby placed a ladder against the side of the tree and, climbing to the top, coaxed pussy. When the cat declined to move Mr. Corby retired from the perch and the cat's mistress made a spectacular ascent with the same end in view. The cat was cold also to the appeals of the woman, who gave up in despair.

Then wise Willie Davenport emerged in the limelight. He climbed to the top-most branches of the tree and there, in a secure position, took out his top. Placing it at the fork of two branches, he began preparations to spin it. The cat, attracted by the sight of the string and the top, approached to join in the play, and Willie captured it. When the boy and the cat descended to the ground the former got a silver coin and a kiss from the delighted owner of the cat.

Plainfield Council, No. 294, Jr. O. U. A. M., will initiate several candidates Monday night.

Winfield Scott Post, No. 73, G. A. R., will meet at Reform Hall Tuesday night to complete arrangements for the Memorial Day observance.

LOCAL AMUSEMENTS

Those who have never seen the Actual Talking Pictures and a very few have had that pleasure, will naturally come to the conclusion that it is but a mediocre sort of an attraction, voices sounding like the old style "tin-horn phonograph," but such is not the case with these pictures. To witness one of the exhibitions given by the Actual Talking Pictures is a revelation, and as the New York World of January 15, 1908, said: "You will sit up and wonder and you will probably pay more than one visit to the picture before you are satisfied." The machines are fireproof and have been declared so by the New York Board of Fire Underwriters, the hardest board of the kind to pass in the United States. They will come to the New Plainfield theatre next Monday afternoon and night.

George Broadhurst was offered $75,000 by Brady and Grismer for his authorship rights in "The Man of the Hour," which will come here Tuesday night, in lieu of royalties and very promptly declined. The four companies are sending him an average of $4,000 weekly. His fortunes have changed since he came to America. When Broadhurst was a school boy of sixteen in England he won a prize for passing a perfect examination in the prayer book. His parents decided then and there that he should enter the church. The bishop of the diocese who later became an archbishop asked the lad to dinner. At the appointed hour he was driven to the Episcopal residence in a carriage without riders and was given the distinguished honor of sitting at table at the right of the lord bishop. The awful solemnity of the social function so appalled him that he ran away from home the next day and came to America in the steerage. Upon landing he took train at once for Chicago where he had distant relatives, but he was full of independence and did not propose to be a burden upon them. He reached Chicago on a Saturday, found an advertisement in the Sunday papers for a boy to fill a messenger's position at the Board of Trade and on Monday morning secured the place and went to work. The jocular members of the board took a fancy to him and hazed him in a good natural way. They called him "'Appy, 'Appy, 'Appy," and when he got angry picked him up and passed him along to have his red English cheeks pinched. Four years later he was sent to Baltimore as an expert accountant and discovered a large shortage in the box office of a local theatre. Since then he has been identified with stage affairs as author or manager. Broadhurst is slight, slender, boyish with a clerical gravity. He only needs the ministerial garb to make him look like the clergyman he narrowly escaped becoming.

EIGHT BOYS FOUND DRUNK IN A WOODS.

Red Bank, April 25.—Eight boys, ranging in age from thirteen to eighteen years, were found intoxicated yesterday afternoon in a woods near the Central Railroad freight station. Several were lying in a drunken stupor on the ground, while others were shooting crap. Chief of Police G. Henry Lewis arrested the boys and they had a hearing.

The boys said that Henry Hightower, Warren Johnson and Jesse Miller stole a dozen bottle of whisky from a freight car and gave them some of the liquor. Most of the boys declared that the men threatened to hurt them unless they drank the stuff. One boy said that three of the men held him while the others poured rum and whisky down his throat.

During the drunken carousal which followed the drinking of the liquor a fight took place between the men and the boys. Charles Stewart, one of the boys, got a gun and discharged it three times, but failed to hit anybody. One of the men slashed him over the ear with a razor.

The boys and the men were taken to the county jail at Freehold today to await the action of the grand jury.

The inauguration of a through Pullman parlor car between New York and Richmond, Va., via the New Jersey Central, Philadelphia and Reading and Baltimore and Ohio R. R., (Royal Blue Line) marks the inception of the first step in the development of through car facilities to points South of Washington, by way of this popular route. The Richmond Pullman is attached to train 501 leaving New York, Liberty street 10:00 a. m., West Twenty-third street 9:50 a. m., and arriving at Washing at 3:50 p. m., Richmond 9:00 p. m. Similar service in reverse direction leaving Richmond 12:01 a. m., arriving New York 8:00 p. m.

Eight-Mile Light on Fire Island.

New York, April 25.—The United States Government, having installed a searchlight at the Fire Island Station a week ago, and having since made a thorough experimental test of its efficiency, it has been decided that every station on the Long Island coast shall be thus equipped. The light is generated by the use of carbon. By the test at Fire Island the light was thrown about eight miles at sea, and passing ships were plainly discernible at that distance. The light also illuminated the surf shore from one station to another, and it can now be dtermined whether a vessel is on or dangerously near the beach fully eight miles away.

The secretary shifted restlessly, unconsciously bringing his profile into her range of vision. With a gasp, Cynthia sprang to her feet, her face white, her eyes wide and incredulous.

"It's not—it's—oh, Harry!" she cried in an ecstasy of recognition, flinging her arms about the secretary's neck. "Harry! Brother! Back from the dead! Don't you know me? It's Cynthia! Don't"—

"I am afraid you've made a very strange blunder, Miss Garrison," returned the secretary, his voice hoarse and tremulous. "My name is"—

"Your name's Harry Garrison!" Phelan shouted. "What's the use of lyin' to your own sister? I give you credit for havin' good reasons for callin' yourself Thompson, an' I think I begin to see what them reasons are, but when it comes to denyin' your own sister you're playin' it down low, whatever your game may be, and I've a good mind to"—

"Harry," the girl was pleading, "you do know me! After all these nine lonely years have you no greeting for me? Every night I've prayed that God would bring you back to me, and now"—

The secretary's pallid, expressionless mask of a face broke in a flash into a look of infinite love and yearning. With a single gesture he gathered Cynthia's fragile body in his arms and crushed her against his breast.

He gathered Cynthia's fragile body in his arms.

"Oh, my little sister!" he murmured, a great sob choking his words. "My little, little sister!"

Phelan cleared his throat and coughed savagely to express his contempt for the mist that sprang into his own hard old eyes. The sound recalled the secretary to himself.

"You've trapped me into this," he exclaimed, with a laugh that was half a groan, "and you must both promise not to betray my secret. It won't be much longer now, thank God! But you'll both promise, won't you?"

"Sure!" assented Phelan.

"And you, too, Cynthia?" pleaded her brother. "You can trust me, can't you?"

"Of course I can. If you insist, I won't tell any one. I"—

"I'm happier this minute than I've ever been in all my whole life!" smiled the secretary, again clasping his sister in his arms. "If you only knew, little girl, how I've longed for this!"

"Here's the fan!" announced Perry, hurrying around the corner of the doorway. "Found it under a"—

He stopped short, open mouthed, dumb and motionless. Thompson and his sister stood in close embrace before him, with Phelan looking on like some obese caricature of a benevolent fairy.

The fan slipped from young Wainwright's nerveless grip and fell with a clatter to the polished floor, its ivory sticks snapping like icicles.

CHAPTER XI.

AT sound of the breaking fan all three participants in the strange reunion turned. For a second or more they faced the crimson faced, dumfounded Perry without a word. Here was an element in the affair on which neither Phelan nor Cynthia had counted when giving Thompson their promise not to reveal his identity. They gradually realized this, and it left even the ready witted Phelan speechless.

Perry himself was first to break the spell.

"Well," he observed, with an assumption of airy scorn that was meant to be annihilating, "you all seem quite happy. Don't mind me! I'm sorry to butt in on this cute little love fest, but I left a fiancee here. Perhaps one of you can explain what's happened to her since I"—

"Oh, Perry," exclaimed Cynthia, "don't be silly! I'll tell you all about it some time. It is"—

"Some time!" squealed Perry, rage battering down his attempt at sarcasm. "Some time! Maybe it might be just as well if you did condescend to explain. Here you promise to marry me, and ten minutes later I find you in a catch-as-catch-can hug with this ugly little shrimp and Phelan looking on as happy as if he'd eaten a canary! And then you've got the gall to tell me you'll explain 'some time!'"

He glared at Cynthia in all the majesty of outraged devotion, only to surprise on that young lady's face a look that indicated a violent struggle with the desire to laugh.

"This is funny all right, I guess not!" he snapped. "Cynthia, you've mauled and smashed a loving heart, and I'll make a hit with myself by forgiving you, but as for you," wheeling about and thrusting his furious face to within three inches of Thompson's immobile countenance—"as for you, I'm going to do all sorts of things to you the moment Miss Garrison will have the kindness to shassay out of the room. Your sorrowful relatives will have all manner of fun sorting you out when I've finished with you! Steal my sweetheart, would you, not ten minutes after I'd"—

"There!" interposed Phelan, shoving his powerful hulk good naturedly between the two younger men and linking his arm in Perry's. "Now you've got quite a bunch of hot words off your chest, an' you'll be in better shape to hear sense. Ain't you just a little bit ashamed?"

"Ashamed?" sputtered Perry. "Who? I? Well, that"—

"Yes, you, youngster, and if you holler like that in comp'ny I'll sure be forced to wind up by spankin' you. Now, stand off there—no, over there where you can see Miss Garrison—an' listen to me. So! Now, first of all, did you happen to be in love with this young lady?"

"It's none of your measly business, but I did."

"Why'd you ask her to hitch up with you for keeps?"

"Because I loved her and"—

"Because you had a lot of faith in her, too, hey?" persisted the alderman.

"Yes, and a nice way she's"—

"Pretty girl, too," mused Phelan as if to himself. "In my young days if I could 'a' got a little beauty like that to sign articles with me I'd 'a' thought I was the original Lucky Jim. I'd"—

"So did I!" interrupted Perry hotly. "I"—

But Phelan was continuing in the same abstract monologue:

"An' if I could 'a' seen from her eyes (like any dough head could see from Miss Garrison's) that she had a heart as big as a watermelon an' as true as a Bible text an' as warm as a happy man's hearth fire—well, if I'd seen all that an' got wise to the gorgeous news that that same heart was just chock-a-block full of love for my own ornery, cheap skate self I'd 'a' flopped down on both knees an' sent up a bunch of prayers to be allowed to go on dreamin' an' never, never wake up."

Phelan paused. This time Perry did not break in, and the half audible monologue continued:

"I'd have had the sense to know that a girl with eyes like those couldn't be a flirt an' couldn't double cross the man she loved if her life depended on her doin' it. I'd 'a' licked any guy that said she could, an' if I'd seen her kissin' another man I'd 'a' punched myself on the jaw an' called myself a liar. That's what Jimmy Phelan of the Eighth would 'a' done. An'"—

"Say," broke in Perry in a curiously subdued voice. "These eyes of mine do funny things sometimes. I'll bet $9 they played a joke on me just now. And even if they didn't I don't believe 'em. Cynthia, I'm dead stuck on you! You're all right even if you did happen to be acting a trifle eccentric a few minutes ago. You can explain or not, as you like. If you'll just say you love me, that's ace high with yours truly."

He slipped an arm about her waist as he spoke, awkwardly seeking to atone for his recent anger. The secretary looked at them for an instant, then said briefly:

"You can tell him, Cynthia. He's a good fellow. Come on, alderman. I think you and I still have something to say to each other."

Cynthia and Perry drifted away toward the conservatory again, quite oblivious of the others, while Phelan and the secretary made their way to a deserted alcove off the ballroom.

* * * * * * *

"I've been looking all over for you, Mr. Bennett," called Judge Newman, hurrying out through the chain of anterooms as Alwyn wandered out of the ballroom into the foyer a few moments later.

"Anything important?" asked Bennett, pausing in his stroll and greeting the older man cordially. He had known the judge as long as he could remember and had always had a decided liking for the pompous henpecked little dignitary. Surrounded as he was by political intrigue, heartache and association with rogues, the harassed young man rather welcomed the variety promised by a chat with his old friend of his boyhood.

"Anything important, judge?" he repeated. "Or are you just taking pity on a lonely chap and giving him a chance to chat with you over old times?"

"Well," began the judge, his customary air of pompous nervousness tinged by an almost conciliatory manner, "I would like to have a little business talk with you if you don't mind discussing work at a ball."

He slipped an arm about her waist as he spoke.

"Not at all. I've had the honor of dancing with three of your daughters this evening, and the least I can do is to repay such pleasure by"—

"Did you, really?" beamed the judge, on whom the unmarried state of his four fast aging girls rested heavily. "I'm sure Mrs. Newman will be pleased. But this business matter. You—you won't misunderstand me"—

"Of course not," replied Alwyn heartily. "You and I are too old friends, judge, to"—

"I hope so; I hope so," conceded Newman, with growing anxiety in his tone. "You see"—

"I see you have some trouble coming to the point," said Alwyn, pitying the judge's evident discomfiture, "and I'm sorry you feel so. You were my father's friend, and I like to think of you as one of my own best friends. There surely should be no hesitation in asking anything in my power to grant."

Thus emboldened Newman blurted out:

"I—we—that is, seems to me you have been a little hard upon this Borough franchise bill, if you don't mind my saying so, Bennett. Couldn't you let up on them now?"

"Why, no, judge, I can't," replied Bennett, still failing to connect Newman with the Wainwright-Horrigan clique and attributing the judge's interest in the matter to an amateur's love of dabbling in politics. "I can't let up on that fight," he continued. "All perpetual franchises are wrong, and this particular franchise bill is rotten to the core. In sheer justice to my oath of office I must fight it."

"My boy," said the judge in a fatherly manner that he had often found successful in argument, "I was in politics long before you were born, and I'm speaking for your own good when I say I deeply regret the stand you've taken in this matter. You objected to the bill in its original form. Almost every change you demanded has been made in it. As the gentlemen who asked me to speak to you said"—

He checked himself a minute too late. The narrowing of Bennett's eyes and the vanishing of the friendly light in the young man's face warned Newman he had made a fatal error.

"So you come to me as an emissary, not as a friend," said Bennett slowly, "and the 'gentlemen' you come from"—

"Are the men who represent all that can make or break your career—capital and political organization."

"In other words, Wainwright and Horrigan?"

"Yes. All they ask is that you remain neutral; that you"—

"That I look the other way while they rob the city?"

"I am an old man, Bennett," evaded the judge, trying another tack, "and I've seen one rash step wreck many a bright career, just as this will wreck yours. Never antagonize wealth and the organization. The public for whom you sacrifice yourself will forget you in a month. Capital and politics never forget."

"I am not catering to the public. I am acting as my own conscience"—

"But this is stubbornness, not conscience. All you have to do is to remain neutral. If you do this I am authorized to promise you—now, listen—to promise you the nomination for governor when your term as"—

"That's the bait, is it?" cried Alwyn angrily. "If I consent to betray my trust I'll get the governorship. The bribe is golden, and I don't wonder at Horrigan for offering it. The only thing that surprises me is that he should have chosen such a man as you for his lackey and go-between."

"'Lackey!' 'Bribe!' 'Go-between!'" echoed the judge in real indignation. "How dare you, sir? This"—

"Isn't it a bribe," insisted Alwyn, "and weren't you the man chosen to offer it? It will do you no good to bluster or grow indignant. In your heart you know the words I used were deserved. The governorship offer was a bribe, pure and simple, and worthy the modern highwaymen who made it, but that you, a judge—a former friend of my own blameless father—that you should come to me on such a vile errand turns me sick. Heaven help justice and right when our judges can be controlled by a political boss and a roll of bills! That's all! I don't care to go further into the subject!"

Bennett walked away, leaving the little judge to stare after him, pink with wrath, speechless with amazement. In all his sixty years no man had thus laid bare to Newman his own heart, stripped of its garments of respectability and self deception. And, as usual in such cases, now that the truth had been driven home to him, Newman wrathfully denounced it, even to himself, as a lie.

Still flushed and incoherent, he wheeled to face a trio who were just returning from the supper room. They were Dallas, Gibbs and Wainwright.

"Hello!" exclaimed Wainwright in surprise. "What's the matter with you, judge? Are you ill?"

"If—if Mrs. Newman should come to know of this," sputtered the judge, glaring from one to the other, "she"—

"To know of what?" queried Gibbs. "What has happened?"

"Happened?" fumed Newman. "I have been insulted—grossly, vulgarly insulted!"

"Insulted, judge?" repeated Dallas. "By whom?"

"By Alwyn Bennett!" snapped the judge. "Outrageously"—

"Impossible!" exclaimed Dallas. "There must be a mistake somewhere. Mr. Bennett is too well bred to insult any man, much less a man so much older than"—

"A gentleman, is he? I should not have believed it. He has insulted me most"—

"I'm not surprised," observed Wainwright.

"I am," announced Dallas.

"Naturally," sneered Wainwright. "If you can remain on speaking terms with him after his abominable treatment of me you can easily overlook any other brutality of his."

"Tell us about it, judge," interposed Gibbs, seeking to avert any further clash between uncle and niece.

"I went to him," began Newman, "bearing a request from—from"——

The judge paused. It was not wholly easy to present matters to this honest eyed young girl in such a way as to bring her in his way of thinking. But Wainwright felt no difficulty. His shrewd brain caught at a means of turning the affair to account.

"You see, Dallas," the financier broke in, with a warning glance to Newman, "I begged the judge to intercede for me with Bennett, to ask him to bury the hatchet and let us be friends again for the sake of old times. I thought Judge Newman's age and his high office would compel a certain respect even with a man of Bennett's character. But I was wrong, and I am sorry, judge, for the unjust humiliation I caused you."

"I don't understand," said Dallas, looking in bewilderment from one to the other. "Judge, my uncle sent you to make overtures of peace? And Mr. Bennett refused to"—

"He not only refused, but called Mr. Wainwright a highwayman and"—

"But why?" demanded Dallas.

"He pretended to misunderstand what I said about the conditions."

"Oh, it was a conditional offer, then? I thought"—

"Certainly there were conditions," cut in Wainwright, again coming to the emissary's rescue. "I asked that he take a position of neutrality in regard to this Borough bill. Simply neutral, mind you. Not to change his attitude in its favor, or"—

"That was a splendidly fair offer," cried Gibbs enthusiastically.

"So it seemed to me," agreed Newman, "but Bennett would not listen when I tried to point out his proper line of duty. He called me a go-between and"—

"Even after you told him we were granting practically all the concessions he had asked in the bill?" queried Gibbs.

"Yes," said Newman. "He must have some motive behind it all. I can't"—

"Nonsense!" exclaimed Dallas. "What ulterior motive could he have?"

"That is more than I know positively," returned the judge mysteriously.

"But I do," declared Wainwright, pointing at Dallas. "There are the reasons!"

"I?" exclaimed Dallas, incredulous. "Explain, please."

"Willingly," replied her uncle, "if you'll give me a fair hearing. Bennett is in love with you. He knows Gibbs also wishes to marry you. He knows, too, that Gibbs' fortune depends on the success of the Borough franchise. If the bill is beaten, Gibbs will be practically ruined and thus in no position to marry. We've known all along of this reason of Bennett's for fighting our bill, but Gibbs forbade me to tell you. He was afraid you might think he"—

'How dare you, sir?' said the judge.

"I don't believe one word of it!" cried Dallas, her big eyes ablaze. "Alwyn Bennett could not stoop to such a thing."

"No?" said Wainwright. "Then you probably will refuse to believe what I am about to tell you now. I considered Borough stock a safe investment, and I put all your money and Perry's in it. Bennett knows this, and in spite of the knowledge he is trying to kill the franchise even on the certainty of beggaring you and Perry along with Gibbs. If only he can ruin Gibbs he cares nothing about making you and Perry paupers too. That is the sort of man you are defending against your own uncle. I have just learned besides that he has secretly, through his brokers, sold large blocks of Borough stock short. Thus his veto that ruins us will make him a very rich man."

"It isn't true!" affirmed Dallas in dogged certainty. "Mr. Gibbs, do you confirm this story of my uncle's?"

"Please leave me out of this, Miss Wainwright," answered Gibbs gently. "I prefer to say nothing to prejudice you. When I fight I fight fair."

"Even at the cost of all your money," amended Wainwright. "Gibbs, this is carrying your sense of honor to an absurd point. And Bennett will"—

"Pardon me," broke in Alwyn, entering the foyer and going up to Dallas. "I'm a little late for our dance. I was detained by"—

"Alwyn!" exclaimed Dallas in relief. "I'm so glad you came here just when you did. Now we can clear this up in a word."

"Clear what up?" queried Bennett, glancing about in suspicion at the three silent men.

UPSALA COLLEGE WINS FROM N.P.H.S., 12-5

The Upsala College nine visited Plainfield yesterday and avenged their defeat by the city High School team last week by trimming the North Plainfield High School ball tossers by a score of 12-5 on Hope Common. Heavy hitting did the business, and the visitors piled up a total of seventeen hits, of which three were two-baggers. "Jake" Jacobson, whom the city schoolboys had such fun with at Kenilworth, was on the slab and held the boroughites to two hits. These were a two-bagger and a single by Byron McClintock. "Jake" fanned eight and gave four passes to first. Smith, for the North Plainfielders, struck out twelve men, giving six bases on balls.

The Swedes started the run getting in the first inning, when Lundgren, who hit safely, came home on "Swan" Swansen's two-bagger. They scored again in the second, and Conroy scored the first run for the boroughites on McClintock's hit.

The fourth, fifth and sixth innings were gloomy periods for the N. P. H. S. rooters. The Upsalians touched up Smith for seven singles and a two-bagger, scoring a total of eight runs. In the eight again, a two-bagger and a single neted two more runs for the Kenilworth players. The North Plainfielders scored again in the sixth, when McClintock's two-bagger and some errors gave them four runs.

The score did not keep account of the errors, but there were lots of them, and the local team seemed to have had the majority. Several of the most expensive ones were due to interference of the crowd, which pressed close to the base lines. The score and lineups:

PROPERTY OWNERS KILL BOROUGH RINK SCHEME.

Because the property owners in the vicinity would not give consent, a scheme for a roller skating rink at Debele Hall has fallen through, and Mayor Townsend has refused to grant them the borough's permission to have the rink. The application to conduct such an enterprise in the old Warren chapel building was made by James H. McLean, of Morristown, who with Albert Vernam, Jr., and Theodore Randolph, of the same place, were to form a company.

Their application for license to do so came to Mayor Townsend several days ago, and they had previously made arrangements with William G. Debele, who owns the building. In order to find out the feeling of the property owners near the hall, the Mayor sent Chief Marshal Weiss to see the residents of the district. In no case was there anyone particularly enthusiastic about the new rink, and the majority of the property owners came out strongly against it.

Rahway Band Disband.

The Rahway Band is closing up its affairs and going out of business. The uniforms are to be sold and equipments disposed of, and the money on hand divided among the members. Of the original organizers of the association those still in membership are E. C. Miller, treasurer for twenty-five years, H. H. Voorhies, C. C. Jeffries, H. C. Springer and George Crane. The last dividend gave to each recipient about nine dollars. This time it will probably be more.

Tornado Kills 200.

New Orleans, April 25.—The dead more than 200, the injured at least 500. These were the grim facts which came to light early today when a little of the wreckage of yesterday's tornado in Louisiana, Mississippi, and Alabama had been cleared away. The tornado lasted altogether about twelve hours, striking promiscuously one town after the other from before daylight on Friday until the middle of the afternoon.

Young Cash Slightly Injured.

Jeremiah Cash, Jr., of South avenue, who was knocked down by an automobile at South avenue and Berckman street, Wednesday morning, was not seriously injured. The machine was being driven by the owner, Dr. Kinch, of Westfield, and he gave the lad prompt attention after taking him to his home.

BIG FUND TO AID SCHOOLS OF STATE

Trenton, April 25.—The cost of maintaining the schools of this State for 1908 will be about $10,000,000, and of this amount the State will pay to the various counties a total of $9,745,303.92. Last year half the cost was raised by local taxation. This means that very little money will have to be raised locally, and in many districts the money received from the State will be sufficient. State Superintendent of Public Instruction Baxter recently sent a letter to school boards suggesting that they postpone the making of the annual appropriations in March in order to arrange their school maintenance on the basis of the State money. This has been done in most instances, and it will result in a substantial reduction in the local taxes for school purposes.

The State money is solely for the support of the schools and cannot be used for the erection of buildings or repairs. The amounts are: State school tax, $4,051,360.32; State school fund, $200,000; State appropriation in reduction of State school tax, $1,012,840.08; railroad tax for 1908, $2,264,509.10; railroad tax for 1907, $2,226,594.42; total, $9,745,303.92.

The apportionment by counties is as follows: Atlantic, $337,748.09; Bergen, $409,381.15; Burlington, $170,785.78; Camden, $382,550.17; Cape May, $111,234.98; Cumberland, $126,657.13; Essex, $2,373,396.97; Gloucester, $112,232.97; Hudson, $2,301,387.64; Hunterdon, $111,501.96; Mercer, $465,777.98; Middlesex, $282,052.42; Monmouth, $455,495.27; Morris, $239,721.92; Ocean, $83,632.77; Passaic, $739,901.26; Salem, $89,498.14; Somerset, $128,466.76; Sussex, $81,942.62; Union, $610,641.12; Warren, $131,296.91.

STATE G. O. P. LEADERS FORCING FORT'S HAND.

The contest among the Republican leaders of New Jersey for places on the "Big Four" to the national convention has been productive of a great deal of friction, one result of the discord being the bringing forth of the name of former Governor Franklin Murphy, chairman of the State Republican Committee, as a possible candidate for the Republican nomination for Vice President.

Both Governor Fort and Mr. Murphy live in Essex county, and the two want to be delegates-at-large. Leaders in other sections of the State objected to this and declared that one or the other should withdraw. It was with the object of settling this controversy that a meeting of the State committee was held yesterday, but nothing resulted.

The talk among the leaders yesterday was that if Governor Fort would become a candidate for Vice-President he would receive the united support of the State, provided he withdrew from the contest for delegate-at-large. If, however, he insisted on being a delegate-at-large, the leaders declared that they would support Murphy for Vice-President. Some persons believe Mr. Murphy's candidacy is merely a plan to force Governor Fort to either formally announce his candidacy for the Vice-Presidential nomination or to hasten his final renunciation of his desire to go to Chicago as a delegate-at-large.

PRINCE GREETS ANNA GOULD.

Affectionate Meeting of the Two at Naples.

Naples, April 25.—The steamship Frederich der Grosse, with Madame Anna Gould on board, arrived yesterday. Prince Helie de Sagan boarded the ship and met Madame Gould, whose hand he kissed. Then he repeatedly kissed the children and thanked the American detective who had accompanied Madame Gould and her party on the voyage. Afterward he had a long conversation with Madame Gould in the ladies' cabin.

The party landed at noon and put up at the Hotel Bartolini. They are likely to remain in Naples several days. On the steamship Madame Gould and her children never mixed with the other passengers.

PET DOG BITES GIRL.

Doctors Say Her Leg Will Have to Be Amputated.

Elizabeth, April 25.—While playing with a pet bulldog near her home, at 310 Morris avenue, here last night, Bessie Berglund, the 8-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gustave Berglund, was bitten on the right thigh, and as a result will probably have her leg amputated to save her life.

So vicious was the dog that it was necessary for Frank Scheer, a neighbor of the Berglunds, to shoot him before he would release his grip. The dog was owned by a family named McDonald, neighbors of the Berglunds, and was a general favorite with the children of the neighborhood.

Snubbing a "Snob."

Snubbing a snob is a bracing exercise when you can do it as well as M. Guitry, the actor. A well-known novelist and playwright called on him and offered him a new piece. The actor was delighted, and said, "Come and lunch and read it to me." The distinguished writer's pet foible is snobbishness, which sometimes breaks out in his conversation as well as in his writings. He brought forth an engagement book and read: "Monday I lunch with the Princess Murat; Tuesday, with Count de Clermont-Tonnerre; Wednesday, with Prince de Beauveau; Thursday, with the Duke d'Haussonville; Friday, with the German Ambassador; Saturday, with the Count de Gontaut-Biron, and Sunday with Count Primoli. Shall we say the week after?" The actor blandly replied: "Let me see," and took out his engagement book. "Monday week I lunch with my milkman, Tuesday with my butcher, Wednesday with my baker, Thursday with my candlestick maker, Friday with my oil and color man, Saturday with my bootmaker, and Sunday with my pedicure. Shall we say the week after that?" The lunch is off, and the play is still waiting to be read.—London Telegraph.

Small Johnny—"No, sir."

Minister—"Why, only last week he told me he had a job."

Small Johnny—"Yes, sir; but the man he was working died."

Little Margie's father had raised a full beard during a month's absence from home. Upon his return he attempted to kiss Margie as usual, but she wouldn't have it. "I don't kiss strange men," she said.

"But you kiss your papa," he protested. "Is it possible you don't know me?"

"You're not my papa," replied Margie. "My papa is bald-headed on his face."—Chicago News.

FOURTH IN SERMON SERIES

Rev. Dr. C. E. Herring Preaches on the Virgin Birth of the Savior.

EXCEPTION TAKEN TO CREED.

Assertion to Christ's Miraculous Entrance to the World Held by Some Scholars to Be Not True.

The fourth sermon in the series on "The Apostles Creed," was delivered at the First Presbyterian church, last night, by the pastor, Rev. Dr. C. E. Herring. His theme was "Conceived by the Holy Ghost, Born of the Virgin Mary," and he treated it in a masterly way. While many take exception to the miraculous manner in which Christ came into the world, Dr. Herring presented much evidence to prove the truth of the Virgin birth of the Saviour.

Dr. Herring spoke as follows:

"We have come to that part of the Creed that tells us of the earthly life of our Lord, who considered His equality with the Father not a thing to be retained but emptied Himself of that glory and took the form of a man, being born of the Virgin Mary. To Paul, Christ was not simply a great man; great in His holiness and His wisdom. He was the Son of God, of equal glory with God the Father, and was born a man.

"The Creed speaks of His miraculous entrance into the world. 'He was conceived by the Holy Ghost, born of the Virgin Mary.' At the present moment this part of the Creed is under fire. There are a great many genuine Christian scholars who hold that this is not true but that the entrance of our Lord into the world was as the entrance of any man. There is an equal number of genuine Christian scholars, who believe in the Virgin birth of our Lord. With all due respect to the scholars who do not believe in the Virgin Birth, we must confess that there is nothing better substantiated than the narrative of the Virgin Birth. Matthew and Luke, the only two evangelists who speak of the birth of Christ, speak of the Virgin Birth. The words relating to the Virgin Birth are genuine parts of the Gospels. The Baptismal Confession of the Early Church which is the basis of the Apostles Creed speaks of Christ as "born of the Holy Ghost and the Virgin Mary,' and Harnack says this dates from 140 A. D. The church Fathers have given their testimony as to their unquestioned faith in the Virgin Birth. Mark does not speak of it. He says nothing at all about the birth of our Lord. His brief Gospel starts with the ministry of Christ and John's Gospel simply presupposes the other Gospels. He begins his Gospel with the account of the heavenly origin of Christ. Yet John does make a reference to the miraculous birth of Christ. In the first chapter he speaks of bloods, not of the will of the not of bloods, not of the will of the flesh but of God.' His own birth is made to typify the birth of believers.

"There are three things that are perfectly unique in the birth of Christ into the world.

"The first unique thing is this that Christ's entrance into the world as a man was not exactly the same as the birth of any man; for this reason: His birth in Bethlehem was not the beginning of His personality,—He who was born a babe was the world's Creator. He, the Son of God, was born into the conditions of human life.

"I have an article before me by the Rev. Professor Oussani of Dunwoodie, Catholic ponitoivf

Catholic point of view. He says, 'Do not we inevitably associate with the ordinary process of generation the production of a new personality? Must not the denial of the Virgin Birth involve the position that Jesus was simply a new human person in whatever specially intimate relations with God.'

"There is something about Christ that is like us, and something that is wonderfully unlike us. He is one of us and yet not one of us. We see that in His prayer—He says 'My Father and your Father'—God is His Father in a sense He is not your Father. Jesus is a prophet but more than a prophet. They proclaimed the truth. He said 'I am the truth.' He Himself was the embodiment of truth.

"Jesus was not created. His entrance into the world was not the creation of a new personality, but the Eternal Son of God entering into new conditions of life.

"The second unique thing about our Lord's earthly life is this. His life was a sinless life and sinless from the start; if sinless, what about the necessity for a special act of God in the production of His body.

"May I quote again from Dr. Oussani: 'Christ was a new departure in human life,—a marvellous phenomenon which becomes still more

HELD IN $200 BAIL ON EMBEZZLEMENT CHARGE

Joseph Pike, son of Noah W. Pike, of East Front street, was arrested at his boarding house on West Second street by Detective-Sergeant Flynn, yesterday, on a warrant charging him with embezzlement. The complainant is Isaac McDowell, of the New York and Suburban Real Estate Company, who charges that Pike collected $90 from S. N. Reese, of this city, and failed to turn it over to the concern. The prisoner was arraigned before Mayor Fisk this morning and was held in $200 bail for trial Thursday. Up to noon time he had failed to procure the amount.

Pike declared in his defense at the hearing that he acted as agent for the real estate company and that he sold a piece of property to Reese. His commission was $90, he said, and this amount he had deducted from the purchase price paid to him. McDowell asserts that the money was not a commission and was given to Pike as the company's representative with the understanding that it would be credited to Reese. The defendant failed to give a satisfactory explanation when the amount was called for and the embezzlement charge was preferred.

MAYOR CHAS. J. FISK LOCAL OPTION'S FRIEND

Mayor Charles J. Fisk today declared that he had no knowledge except what he had read in newspapers concerning Governor Fort's alleged intention to name him as one of the members of the proposed commission for the investigation of excise conditions in New Jersey. That he would accept such a position is said to be certain by his friends because the Mayor has made the question a study for years.

In discussing the liquor question today, Mr. Fisk said: "I have been incorrectly quoted as opposed to local option. Such is not the case. I was opposed to the local option bill in the Legislature and have no fault to find with the disposition made with that bill but as to the broad question I certainly do believe that local option is a fundamental principle of our government.

"My idea is that Plainfield has the model excise ordinances and that the State can not do better than to copy them so far as regulation goes. It is my opinion that there should be a law allowing the people of a given district to vote at the regular election once in so many years whether they desire strict regulation or absolute prohibition. Special elections are costly and serve no good end for they can be called so frequently that it only means great expense. We have local option here and every other town should have. Our people have put themselves on record for high license and strict regulation after a fair trial given to prohibition."

A. S. DENISE INJURED WHEN RUNAWAY UPSETS HIS RIG.

Alfred DeNise, proprietor of the Manhattan Hotel on Somerset street, was painfully injured in a runaway accident yesterday afternoon, when the runabout in which he was driving was overturned and he sustained severe bruises on the hip and shoulders. The accident happened near Stonewall Jackson's stables on Somerset street.

DeNise was alone in the rig and was driving toward the mountain, when in some way the shafts came loose and fell about the horse's heels, frightening it so that it bolted. The runabout overturned, throwing its occupant heavily. The runabout turned in at Jackson's stables and was easily caught. Some of the stable men saw the upset and ran to DeNise's assistance. It was at first thought that his back was badly strained, but examination by a physician showed his injuries to be slight, and he is able to be about today.

These Are Malicious Thieves.

Charles Emmons, the contractor for the storage vault being constructed on Johnson's drive for the Plainfield Gesang and Turn Verein, has had his job delayed by the malicious work of petty thieves, who periodically break into the shed where he keeps his cement, empty it outdoors and carry away the bags to sell. Emmons said today that he will sleuth around the place nights and prefer charges against anyone he catches or recognizes.

N. P. H. S. Nine Won.

The borough High School baseball nine defeated the Holy Cross club team on the Cricket Field Saturday. The final score was 4-3 in favor of the schoolboys. Day and Fred McClintock were the points for the winners, and Blazier and Trembath were the battery for the church club.

MUSICAL CLUBS' SUCCESS

Plainfield High School Entertainment Shows Musical and Dramatic Talent.

GIRLS PRESENT A FARCE.

"My Aunt From California" with a Cast of Seven Young Women Makes the Hit of the Evening.

A musical and dramatic entertainment under the auspices of the musical clubs of the Plainfield High School Saturday night gave the public an opportunity to see what is being done by the pupil musicians,—soloists, glee club and orchestra, and further proved the dramatic talent at the school by the presentation of a one-act farce, "My Aunt From California," given by seven girl pupils. About $35 was netted for the use of the clubs; although the entertainment was not very well attended, each number on the program was fully appreciated and the acting in the farce caused round after round of applause.

The program was in two parts, the first consisting of vocal and instrumental numbers by the clubs and soloists, and the second comprising the presentation of "My Aunt From California." The opening number was a piano solo—from Opus 72 of Tschaikowsky, rendered by Miss Elsie Knowlton, and this was followed by three glees and choruses by the school glee club of forty-five boy and girl pupils. The best work in this number was on the third selection, "Jabberwocky," where some difficult music was capably rendered.

Percy Mygrant rendered the Flora Waltz as a cornet solo, and was encored for "O Happy Be Thy Dreams." His work was of the usual high order, and he was accompanied by his sister, Miss S. Louise Mygrant. Benjamin Sturman played a violin solo, "Selections from Faust" so effectively that he was forced to give an encore. His accompanist was Miss Lillian Sturman. The school orchestra of a dozen pieces played two selections and the first part of the program concluded with a piano duett, "Forest Spirits," rendered by Miss Muriel Collins and Miss Frances Rittenhouse.

The proverbial Plainfield High School dramatic ability was demonstrated among the girls of the school by the presentation of the one-act farce, "My Aunt From California," and the work of the entire cast showed careful training and some clever interpretations. The farce plot hinges upon the mistaken identity of one "Mrs. Merry Muntoburn," a rich aunt of Sally, Felicia and Rosalie Needy. Miss Barbara Fleming took the part of the aunt, and Miss Louise S. Andrews played as "Sally Needy," the leading character of the play. As the liveliest of the three sisters, with a sense of humor which appeals most satisfactorily to her aunt, she makes her two sisters, whose parts were taken by Miss Bessie Alpaugh and Miss Marian E. Snyder, believe her to be the aunt from California, and when the real Mrs. Muntoburn appears, forces her to appear to her sisters as a dress maker.

Miss Andrews injected so much jollity and stage business into her part that her acting alone assured the success of the play. But she was not a "lone star" in the production, for her "sisters" portrayed their individual characters with great success. Miss Fleming did some good acting, and Miss Harriet Knox, as "Mrs. Needy," the girls' mother, took a minor part with success. Miss Kathleen Phillips, wearing a two-by three "Merry Widow Hat," took the part of a dress-maker, and Miss Margaret V. Leggett, as the girls' maid, was typical.

The success of the entertainment was in a large measure due to the coaching of S. B. Howe, Jr., as faculty director of the management. Albert Hardcastle acted as business manager, George H. Fisher, Jr., stage director; Miss Mary French, property manager; F. Clyde Doane, assistant property manager, and Miss Margaret Leggett, prompter.

Somrville Votes Against a Team.

The West End Athletic Association, of Somerville, met Saturday night, and decided as an association not to put a ball team in the field this season. While this news will be received with regrets by many of the fans, there is still a chance that Somerville will have a good nine. The action on Saturday night was largely the result of last year's experience in hiring fancy-priced players to compete against High Bridge and Flemington and in consequence the association dropped some money.

—Charles E. Vail, the Park avenue jeweler, is moving today from Orchard place to Norwood avenue, where he will occup the property which he purchased some time ago.

WM. F. ARNOLD HONORED

City National Bank Cashier Made Treasurer of State Bankers' Association.

EXECUTIVE COMMITTEEMAN.

At Closing Session in Atlantic City, W. C. Heppenheimer is Chosen as the President.

William F. Arnold, cashier and a director of the City National Bank, received a high honor at the closing session of the New Jersey State Bankers Association's annual convention at Atlantic City on Saturday. The Plainfielder was unanimously chosen treasurer of the body, which he had ably served in the capacity of an executive committeeman for five years. His term as a committeeman expired with the convention and it was an agreeable surprise to him and his friends when he was named for the treasuryship.

These are officers: W. C. Heppenheimer, of Jersey Cty, president; E. L. Howe, of Princeton, vice-president, and Mr. Arnold, treasurer. W. J. Field, of Jersey City, will be re-elected secretary by the executive committee.

A committee was appointed to consider the advisability of establishing four clearing houses in different parts of the State. Henry G. Parker, the retiring president, was given a vote of thanks for his services. Mr. Heppenheimer's election was made by acclamation.

AUTO POLICEMAN'S DRIVER FINED $25 FOR SPEEDING

Presiding over the city court this morning in the absence of Judge Runyon, who has an attack of grip, Mayor Charles J. Fisk expressed his emphatic disapproval of automobile speeding by fining Charles Smith, chauffeur for J. P. Stevens, $25 for the offense. The Mayor informed the defendant that he would accept no excuse in extenuation as he had been in Plainfield long enough to fully acquaint himself with the provisions of the ordinance he violated. The fine was paid.

Smith was arrested by Patrolman Andrew Saffron, yesterday afternoon, at South avenue and Richmond street. The officer declares that the auto was hitting up a Briarcliff schedule and that the speed limit had been left so far behind it would have taken a couple of hours for it to catch up. He waved to the driver to stop and took him to police headquarters.

An amusing fact in connection with Smith's arrest is that his employer is one of the auto police, appointed by Mayor Fisk to enforce the city ordinance governing the use of motor vehicles.

KIRMESS REHEARSALS PROCEEDING SMOOTHLY

Excellent progress is being made with the rehearsals for the kirmess to be given at the New Plainfield Theatre, May 11 to 16, for the benefit of Muhlenberg Hospital. Miss Florence, of Elizabeth, who has the general direction of the affair, is meeting with decided success and judging by the enthusiasm shown by those in the dances it will be one of the best ever given for the hospital.

According to the plans there will be a dress rehearsal on Monday night, May 11, and from May 12th to the 16, the public will be expected to patronize the entertainment liberally. There will be one matinee performance on Saturday afternoon, and there will be a change of program each night.

One of the prettiest dances will be that of the "Rosebuds," which will be chaperoned by Mrs. John M. Whiton, assisted by Mrs. Gilbert T. Rhoads and Mrs. J. V. Beekman. Those who are to give this dance are the Misses Ruth Fuller, Elizabeth Martin, Constance Veysey, Adelaide Parker, Marion Frost, Dorothy Lynn, Elizabeth Hammond and Lucy Douglass. The substitutes are Miss Margaret Travell and Miss Mabel Douglass. Miss Parker has been assigned the solo part in this dance, and she will give the fancy figures.

In Appreciation of Dr. Yerkes.

Rev. Dr. J. A. Chambers, pastor of the First Baptist church, referring in his sermon yesterday morning to the beautiful bronze tablet of the late pastor, Rev. Dr. David J. Yerkes, paid a high tribute to the excellence of his character and the lasting influence of his life. The tablet was set permanently in place last week in the front wall of the church.

READY FOR THE REVIEW

Mayor Fisk Announces Plans for Inspection of Police and Firemen May 9.

DRILL ON THE MAYOR'S LAWN.

Members of the Two Departments Will Parade City Streets, Headed by La Vere's Band.

Mayor Charles J. Fisk today announced the arrangements for the annual inspection of the police and fire departments on Saturday, May 9, and from all indications it will be the most pretentious the city has ever had. It will comprise a street parade, a review by the chief executive and Common Council and a drill by the bluecoats and fire fighters on the spacious lawn in front of the Mayor's residence.

The members of the two departments will assemble in full uniform on North avenue at 3 o'clock in the afternoon, right resting on Park avenue. Thence, headed by Ben LaVere's band of eighteen pieces, the line will march down Park avenue to West Seventh street and the Mayor's home. The police will take position on the grounds while the firemen will remain in West Seventh street until after the inspection. After the inspection, Mayor Fisk will address the men as has been the custom of the city's chief official every year. The drill will be given in conclusion.

Following the program at the Mayor's home, the line will reassemble and proceed over the following route: West Seventh to Liberty street, to Fifth street, to Central avenue, to West Front street, to East Front, to Watchung avenue, to Second street and disband.

Heretofore the inspection of the department has been a mere formality and consisted practically of nothing more than a drill in some hall by the policemen and the lining up of the firemen in their respective houses. The Mayor conceived the idea that some display should be given the event in order that the citizens might see the full strength of the two forces and he accordingly arranged the coming affair. All the regular men of both departments will attend the inspection, special officers and call men substituting for the time being.

WHITEHOUSE MAN A SUICIDE WHILE WIFE IS AT CHURCH.

While his wife and one of his daughters were attending services in the Reformed church at Whitehouse Station yesterday morning, John B. Davis, seventy years old, one of the leading men of that place, committed suicide by hanging himself in his wagonhouse. He was reclining on the lounge when his wife started for church and nothing unusual was noticed in his condition. Before the services were ended she was summoned home by the sad intelligence of her husband's death. Mr. Davis had gone to the wagonhouse, secured a tie rope, fastened it to the rafters and about his neck and jumped from an arm chair. Because he had been in poor health for more than a year is believed to be the reason why he took his own life.

Deceased was a justice of the peace for a number of years and for a long time had conducted a general store. He leaves a widow and five children, one of whom, Miss Ella Davis, is traveling abroad.

Runaway Horse Fatally Injured.

A valuable draught horse belonging to Street Commissioner John Y. Barrett, of North Plainfield, was fatally injured in a runaway on East Front street Saturday afternoon and subsequently shot by Detective-Sergeant John Flynn. The horse was one of a team at work with a wagon in charge of Edward Prentiss on an East Front street building excavation. The animals became frightened and bolted toward Watchung avenue. Near the corner, one of the team fell and its leg was broken. The animal was valued at $200.

Public Schols Re-opened Today.

City and borough public schools resumed sessions today after a ten days Easter vacation. In connection with the opening exercises at the Plainfield High School, there were informal addresses by Superintendent Henry M. Maxson and Principal Ira W. Travell. S. B. Howe, Jr., of the school history department gave an illustrated lecture on the French revolution, outlining the military career of Napoleon Bonaparte.

Cup Bearers Netted $200.

The Cup Bearers' Circle of The King's Daughters netted $200 at the play and sale given at the Casino last week and this sum will go toward meeting the circle's pledge for the support of the city nurse.

VAN HORN AND MRS. DODGE ARRAIGNED ON INDICTMENT

J. Irving Van Horn, of Hope, formerly of this city, and Mrs. Sadie M. Dodge, of New Brunswick, at one time a borough resident, were arraigned Saturday before Judge Ten Eyck in the Quarter Sessions Court, at Newark, and held in $5,000 and $2,500 bail, respectively, on the indictment returned by the grand jury, charging complicity in the death of Miss Marietta Vliet, of Blairstown, who died in the City Hospital after having been removed from the home of Mrs. Cornelius Zahn, of 41 Chadwick avenue. Investigation led the authorities to believe that the young woman's death was the result of an illegal operation.

Van Horn, who was engaged to the dead girl, is the principal in the case, and Mrs. Dodge is held for bringing the girl to the Zahn house. Mrs. Zahn and Dr. Herman Glatzmayer were held in bond several days ago.

Van Horn was visibly affected when he was arraigned, and as he left the court room he kissed the hand of his aunt, Mrs. Caroline Fries, who went his bail, and then burst into tears. Mrs. Dodge also lost her composure and had to be assisted to an ante-room.

The date of the trial was set for May 26.

TEA AND RECEPTION IN MISS HOWELL'S HONOR

One of the most delightful social functions of a series for Miss Sarah Mae Howell, whose marriage to Harry L. McGee takes place on Wednesday, was a tea and reception given Saturday afternoon and evening from 4 to 7 o'clock by the Misses Verna and Marion McCutcheon at their home on Plainfield avenue. All of the members of the bridal party were present and the bride-elect, matrons of honor and bridesmaids and Miss Valiant, Miss Elizabeth McGee, Miss Helen Joy, Miss Margaret Drayton, Miss Eleanor Waring, of this city, and Miss Laura Conrad, of Wayne, Pa.; Miss Gladys Clark and Miss Polly Curtis, of New York, and Miss Margaret Ashbrook, of Philadelphia, comprised the receiving party with the Misses McCutcheon.

The house was elaborately decorated for the occasion, green and white being the prevailing colors. About 150 guests attended the reception and afterward the bridal party and many of the guests enjoyed the informal dance given at the Park Club.

Miss Howell and Mr. McGee will be married at the First M. E. church Wednesday evening. Rev. Dr. Herbert Welch, president of Ohio Wesleyan University, an uncle of the groom, will officiate. Following the ceremony a reception will be held at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Josephus H. Howell, on Myrtle avenue.

Post Honors Dead Veteran.

A detail of thirty-six members of Winfield Scott Post, No. 73, G. A. R., was in charge of the burial service of Lewis Willett, a Civil War veteran, held at the North Plainfield cemetery yesterday afternoon. Captain William Smith was officer of the day, Dr. J. F. Berg, commander, and N. C. Pennington, chaplain. A salute was fired over the grave by four members of the Post. Previous to the ceremonies at the grave was a service at the Christian church on Grove street, where Rev. Phil. A. Parsons, the pastor, made a brief address. There were many flowers, including a handsome tribute from the Post. The pall bearers were A. B. King, P. V. Stryker, Job Coddington, James Clarkson, George Townley and Christopher Hardin, the last two from Westfield.

Mayor Lectured 'Em.

James Tyman and Edward Duffy had sentence suspended when arraigned before Mayor Fisk in the city court, this morning, on charges of drunkenness. They were arrested at 12:30 yesterday morning on complaint of their boarding mistress, Mrs. Bremmer, of Prescott place, who said they came home with sportive jags and started to make life miserable for everybody in the house. The Mayor gave them a straight-from-the shoulder lecture before letting them go.

Auto and Car Collide.

Former Mayor William L. Saunders' auto, driven by his chaffeur, and a main trolley car bumped together at Front street and Central avenue at 5:30 yesterday afternoon. A lamp on the machine was smashed and one side was banged in a bit, otherwise there was no damage. The collision was due to the auto and car both trying to cross ahead of each other at right angles.

Dr. J. Hervey Buchanan, of Duer street, is able to be about again after an attack of the grip.

DANIEL CLUB PRESIDENT

Former Head of Common Council Chosen Executive of Local Republican Club.

PARTY WORKERS ENTHUSIASTIC

Mayor Fisk Presides and Full Set of Officers is Chosen—Constitution Is Adopted.

Leslie M. Daniel, former president of the Common Council, was chosen president of the new Republican Club at a largely attended and enthusiastic meeting of Republicans at the Casino, Saturday night. All previous differences had been disposed of and when Mayor Charles J. Fisk called the meeting to order, everyone was in harmony for prompt organization. All present signed the roll and it was decided to enroll members up to May 15. After that date names must be presented by the proper committee for membership. The dues were fixed at $1 a year.

Organization was effected by the election of these officers:

President, Leslie M. Daniel; first vice president, Richard Henry Depew; second vice-president, William Newcorn; secretary, Mansfield Smith; treasurer, F. G. Holt. Directors—Frank H. Smith, Walter L. Hetfield, Jr., G. W. V. Moy, J. Stephen Higham, R. I. Tolles and Howard C. Tracy.

Now that the club is well organized, the constitution and by-laws having been adopted, an active campaign will be started at once. The club will hold its regular meetings on the first Thursday in each month, but a lot of work has been planned in preparation for the primaries to be held tomorrow night and other details relative to next fall's campaign. There is great satisfaction expressed over the decision of the New Idea members to identify themselves with the regulars and it is believed that the club will be ont of the strongest in the State.

TALKING PICTURES MAKE BIG HIT EVERYWHERE.

The Cameraphone talking pictures, which are to be presented at the New Plainfield theatre this afternoon and tonight, have made a great impression in Perth Amboy, New Brunswick and other places, where they were shown last week. In each city, dates were immediately arranged for return appearances.

Jacob Lieberman, who is well known to Plainfielders as the manager of Yorke and Adams during their winter seasons, is managing the tour of the pictures and is enthusiastic over the "hit" they have made. The arrangement is worked somewhat on the style of the "Spook Minstrels," an act that created a furore in vaudevill two years ago and which was made the headliner at Hammerstein's, Keith & Proctor's and other New York houses. The "spook minstrels" are given complete in Mr. Lieberman's program and is a big number in itself.

Dinner for Bride-to-Be.

Miss May Hazelwood, of Brooklyn, gave a dinner and heart party Friday evening for Miss Lou F. Randolph, of West Seventh street, in honor of her engagement to Clifford Manning. Miss Randolph received the first prize, and Miss Dora Bitman, of Brooklyn, second prize. There were guests from this city, New York and Brooklyn.

Cyrus Thornton, the three-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel M. Thornton, colored, of West Third street, died Saturday after a short illness with malarial fever. The funeral will be from his parents' residence tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock and burial will follow at the methodist cemetery.

Funeral of Miss Welsh.

The funeral of Miss Florence Welsh was held yestreday afternoon at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Welsh, on McKinley place. Rev. J. O. McKelvey, pastor of Warren chapel, was in charge. The burial was in Hillside cemetery.

Bryan and Prosperity.

Patrick E. McCabe, Democratic leader at Albany, tells the story:

"One of my district workers named Pat," he said, "asked a chum named Mike who he was going to vote for this fall.

"'Fer Bryan,' said Mike.

"'An why?' asked Pat.

"'Oh, well, I voted fer 'im twelve years ago and again eight years ago, an' we've had good times ever since.'"

Bully Idea.

Pat (planning a burglar)—Sure now, Mick, an' how shall we know if we're both there at the right toime?

Mick—Be aisy, Pat. Oi've the viry jewel av an idea. If you git there first put a chalk mark on the gate; and if Oi git there first Oi'll rub it out.—The Sktech.

Mrs. C. W. Burgess and family, of Syracuse, N. Y., are visiting Mr. and Mrs. Francis E. Bodin, of Watchung.

THESE THEORISTS.

Senator Platt, seated on the porch of his hotel at Manhattan Beach, condemned certain new trends in politics.

"Theories, theories," he said with a wave of his hand. "Theories and theorists—they are apt to err, very apt to err."

Looking out at the white beach and the sunlit blue sea, he shook his head and chuckled:

"Theorists go mad," he said, "over their theories. "You know the theory that Bull wrote 'God Save the Queen?' William Chappell and Joshua Maidwin were the most ardent supporters of this theory, but one day they found an inconvenient entry in a rare old Tudor manuscript that threw the gravest doubt upon their claim.

"In this case what did they do? They clubbed together, bought the manuscript, and burned it with great secrecy, solemnly ejaculating:

"'Thank goodness, we have now got rid of that objection to our theory.'"—Philadelphia Inquirer.

Of More Importance.

"I see by this paper," remarked the typewriter boarder, "that a society woman in St. Louis has started a conversation class for the purpose of teaching young men how to talk."

"A class for the purpose of teaching young women how to listen would be of far more importance," growled the fussy bachelor at the pedal extremity of the mahogany.—Chicago News.

A Bad Model.

"I must say I'm s'prised at our minister," said Deacon Longface. "He sez all Christians should take pattern o' the bee as a model of industry."

"W'at's the matter o' that?" demanded his wife.

"Why, the bee works on the Sabbath same's any other day."—The Catholic Standard and Times.

Looked That Way.

"Come, Willie," said his mother, "don't be so selfish. Let your little brother play with your marbles a while."

"But," protested Willie, "he means to keep them always."

"O, I guess not."

"I guess yes! 'Cause he's swallered two o' them already."—Philadelphia Press.

LOCAL AMUSEMENTS

So numerous have been the requests for The Actual Talking Pictures from managers all over the United States and Canada, that Messrs. Cullison and Mitchell were compelled to put on tour a number two company, which gave its initial performance one week after the opening of the number one company and at the present time there is an added force of office assistants employed in their New York offices for the sole purpose of answering and classifying their mail which has increased in size since managers have heard of the second company instead of diminishing as was anticipated by the producers, but owing to the number of machines being limited the two companies now touring will be all that will be allowed on the road this season, and only those who buy their tickets early will be assured of witnessing this wonderful exhibition which comes to the New Plainfield theatre this afternoon and tonight.

"The Man of the Hour," coming to the New Plainfield theatre tomorrow night, is a great play. It is the real thing as a vivid American drama. It portrays actual types. It depicts actual conditions. It ran for 600 nights in New York, all summer in Chicago and is in its fourth month in Boston. One moment it has the people applauding enthusiastically, then a comedy situation or a clever epigram creates roars of laughter. It is a man's play, a woman's play and a young folks' play, and everybody is talking about it, and everybody is going to see it. The engagement will be one of the most brilliant played in any local theatre within the past ten years. Messrs. Brady and Grismer are sending the admirable New York company. Every player fits the part.

Joe Hortiz, who appears at the New Plainfield theatre next Saturday afternoon and night, is known to be a very clever actor of dialect comedy roles, and also a singer and yodler of more than usual worth. He will be remembered by local theatre-goers as the former star of "Our Friend Fritz." He has this spring a new comedy-drama, by Crane Wilbur, in four acts, entitled "Fritz the Wandering Musician." The action of the play takes place in the beautiful State of Kentucky. The first act represents the garden of Colonel Reddington's estate near Frankfort, Ky. The second act shows Satan's pass by moonlight; a rocky defile in the Kentucky Mountains, a very picturesque scene. The third act shows a scene of Fritz Schiller's musical studio in Louisville, Ky., which is something new and novel in the way of a stage setting. The last act represents the drawing room of the Reddington mansion which is said to be very beautiful for an interior setting. Mr. Hortiz will sing several new songs, among them being a lullaby, a love song, a sweet flower song and a lighting bug song.

WONDERFUL DISPLAY OF SUMMER FURNITURE

IN THIS—AMERICA'S GREATEST FURNITURE STORE.

You have never seen such a presentation of styles in Summer Furniture as is being made here just now. The display occupies a great space in our big Furniture Store—probably 50 ft. x 200, and in this exhibit is shown practically every good style that the makers produce.

Included are rockers, arm chairs, side chairs, settees, couches, tabourettes, tables, stools, canvas reclining chairs, porch swings, lawn swings, and rustic cabins; some of reed; some of rattan; others of old hickory, silver birch, split cane, prairie grass, and many pieces in willow, stained in various colors and finishes; some upholstered with loose cushions, suitable for cottages, bungalows, roof gardens, mountain lodges, verandas, lawns, dens, snuggeries and golf and field clubs.

City folks, too, find many of these pieces admirable for furnishing the city home in Summertime, as they make the house so cheerful and cool.

A few of the many things seen here are told below:

EXTRA SPECIAL! PORCH ROCKERS—This is the most popular type of porch rocker made, and we sell thousands of them. It has been a prime favorite for many seasons because of its dependable construction and great comfort. It is made of round reeds; side and back are continuous; it has comfortable, flat arms and high posts. Tuesday we will sell 150 of these rockers at the little price of.... $1.25

JUMBO ROCKERS—These are the heaviest rockers we sell, and are immensely liked for porch use; extra strong posts of clear maple, 3 inches thick; seat and back of closely woven split cane; made in either light or green finish, $5.50

SETTEES—Porch or Lawn Folding Settees, made of hardwood; 3½ ft. in length; back and seat held by screws countersunk—not nailed as in the cheap ones; all joints securely riveted, sides strongly braced; finished in natural green, at $1.25

ARMCHAIR—Chairs with seat and back woven with inner growth of hickory bark plaited by hand, making them particularly strong frame of young hickory saplings with bark on, just the thing for porch or lawn; price only.. $2.85

ARMCHAIR—Very large armchairs, made of reed; pocket for magazines on one side; shellacked finish or green stain; substantially built, extremely comfortable; price.... $9.75

REED TABLES—These are with round top 22 inches in diameter, 24 inches high with shelf underneath. May be had in shellacked, natural color or green stain, at.... $3

SOME STATE NEWS BRIEFS

Edward, the eighteen-months-old child of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Engelhardt, of 22 Seeley street, Paterson, was playing with a pet dog yesterday afternoon, when the animal turned on the child and sank its teeth into his arm. The wounds were cleaned and cauterized by the physicians at the General Hospital.

The big shad net at the Washington Park fishery, Gloucester City, Saturday became fast an a large anchor on the river bottom, and, after much trouble, the anchor was taken ashore. The anchor is thought to have been lost from a steamship during the winter, and has been tearing the net since the season opened. Good hauls of shad were made Saturday.

Mayor Nichols, of Clayton, made a raid on a resort known as "Rumdums' Retreat," there, Thursday night, and landed more prisoners than the lockup would hold. With two or three men to a cell the prisoners soon started a fight, and the Mayor gave them a hearing at once and fined each $15.75. All of the prisoners paid except Eugene Bennett and Wilbur Stewart, who were taken to Woodbury jail to serve sixty days.

A trolley car of the Public Service Railway struck a farm wagon at Seventeenth and Federal streets, Camden, Saturday. Henry Laconey, driver of the vehicle, sustained lacerations of the head, and E. A. Allen, motorman of the colliding trolley car, was slightly injured about the face. One of the horses was killed and asparagus was scattered all over the street. The team belonged to David Guenther, a farmer on the Marlton turnpike, East Camden.

A jury in the United States Circuit Court at Trenton late Saturday afternoon gave a verdict of $18,750 against the J. Whilden Moore Glass Company, of Bridgeton, in favor of Clyde Byrd, of Baltimore, who proved he had a contract calling for commissions at five per cent. on a three-year order of glass bottles for the Emerson Drug Company, Baltimore. The glass company never filled the order, and disputed the payment of commissions.

In a wrangle over the possession of a baseball in Camden, yesterday, Mrs. Emma Murphy, of 697 Central avenue, alleges that she was struck over the head with a broom and drenched with buckets of water by Mrs. Mamie Popkthela, of 695 Central avenue. The latter was held in $300 bail by Justice of the Peace Rouh, on a charge of assault and battery. The ball was tossed in the complainant's yard by the defendant's son, while he was practising baseball in the rear yard of his home, and Mrs. Murphy refused to return it.

CAR LOSES WHEEL; WRECKED.

Rahway, April 27.—At Perth Amboy Junction, on the Pennsylvania Railroad, yesterday afternoon, one of the wheels of an oil tank car on a fast-going eastbound freight was thrown from the axle and ran diagonally across several other tracks, doing much damage, but luckily no train was passing. The car was partially wrecked, and the main line from Tower DX was shut off for several hours, until cleared by the Jersey City wrecker. All east bound passenger trains were switched over to track number 2.

Miss Helen Y. Hughes, of Watchung, is visiting relatives in Jersey City.

Mrs. Arthur D. Stout, of Warrenville, has recovered from an operation for appendicitis and has left the hospital.

The Misses Ella and Anna Schenck, of South Plainfield, have been spending a week with their grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. William Gordon, of Watchung.

SPORTS HERE AND THERE

GOLF.

The formal opening of the golf season took place at the Plainfield Country Club, Saturday, when a large number of members took advantage of the opportunity to follow the game over the course. It will be impossible to use the regular putting greens for the present, but with good weather, they will not be out of service very long. Altogether the course is in fine condition and some record-breaking scores may be looked for this season. It is expected that the regular schedule of events will begin Saturday. There will be the usual weekly competitions for Class A and B members, together with a number of special events.

"Marty" O'Loughlin was able to remove the splints from his arm on Saturday and play a little golf. The bones have knitted well and he does not anticipate any further trouble.

Mrs. N. Pendleton Rogers, who is now living at Fort Hancock, will not be able to visit the course of the Plainfield Country Club to any extent this summer, although she will follow the game at Deal, a point that can be reached more easily.

The Cranford Golf Club will soon issue its annual program of events, which promises to be the best ever.

With a compact schedule comprising events from May 2 to election day, the Suburban Club of Elizabeth is now practically ready to begin its golf season. Something of a novelty is to be tried by the committee in the way of prizes. For instance, entries for all competitions will be fifty cents except for the monthly cups and on holidays. In the special competitions the club will add $5 to $10 and the winners will have the privilege of purchasing any prize they please to the value of the stakes.

This, according to the committee, will relieve the monotony of cups and transfers the worries of selection from the committee to the individuals who win. The committee consists of R. K. Zezin, chairman; H. K. McCann and S. F. Jones. The schedule follows:

Opening Day, May 2—The golf course will be formally opened for play on May 2. All members are cordially invited to bring their friends, who will be the guests of the club for the day. A cold luncheon will be served in the clubhouse and will be at the disposal of all. In the afternoon there will be an 18-hole medal play handicap, open to members and guests; prizes.

May Cup Contest—For Saturday afternoons in May at 18 holes medal play, the members returning the three lowest net scores to receive three, two and one points, respectively. The winner of the greatest number of points during the month to receive the cup.

BASEBALL.

"Phil" Smith has not signed with any team for this season, as reported by another paper, and is open for Saturday and holiday games.

Bender, the star twirler for the Philadelphia Athletics, proved himself to be a shade better than Glade, of the Highlanders, in the contest between these teams in the Quaker City. The game went twelve innings before the Athletics could claim victory by a score of 3 to 2.

Fred Dixon, one of the local ardent fans, witnessed the game between the Giants and Brooklyn on Saturday, and cheered for the Giants.

The Plainfield High School baseball team is greatly in need of a first-class coach. With the services of such person there would be great improvement in inside play.

There will be a meeting this week of representatives of Plainfield, Somerville, Flemington and High Bridge teams to arrange a schedule of games. There will probably be a series of three games with each team, and possibly four.

Clifford Randolph, the pitcher for the Clinton Avenues, can be depended upon to hold his own this season with any team in his class. He was good last year, but those who have seen him work out this year, claim that he is much better.

Gillman will be a fixture in the outfield for Clinton Avenue this season. He is not only fast as a fielder, but he is right there with the stick and can run the bases some.

The Yankees again defeated the Mountain A. C., Saturday, by a score of 5 to 1. The batteries were: Yankees, Toense and Naylor; Mountain A. C., Stein, Carle and Mair. The Yankees would like to schedule games with any team averaging 15 to 16 years. Address Frank Toense, 63 Westervelt avenue.

BALL GAME IN BRUNSWICK.

Pastors Protested but Police Did Not Interfere.

New Brunswick, April 27.—The first Sunday baseball game of the season was played yesterday afternoon before 2,500 people. Although the Pastor's Union had called upon the authorities to prevent the game, there was no police interference. Complaints are expected today, the pastors having decided to fight against Sunday games. Manager Shine, of the Brunswicks, says he will continue Sunday games. The Rev. J. F. Shaw preached against Sunday baseball last night at the First M. E. Church. Yesterday's game was between the Brunswicks and the All-Collegiates of New York. The score was 9 to 8 in favor of the Collegiates.

DENOUNCES NICKELDROMES.

Orange Pastor Warns Parents to Keep Children From Them.

Advising his parishioners not to permit their children to attend entertainments which are not known to their parents, the Rev. Father John F. Boylan, in Our Lady of the Valley Church, Orange, yesterday denounced moving picture entertainments and nickeldromes.

"This class of entertainment is generally bad on children. Pictures of an undesirable character are frequently shown and they get a fast hold on the brains of little folk. These shows in various cities have been denounced by the religious and secular press, and I advise you not to allow your children to go to the so-called entertainments. There are moving picture shows on the main street of the city."

NUGENT DINNER SPEAKERS.

Secretary of State Whalen, of New York, Among Them.

Secretary of State, John Whalen, of New York State, has been secured by the speakers committee to respond to a toast at the testimonial banquet to City Counsel James R. Nugent to be given in Kreuger Auditorium, Newark, tomorrow night. Mr. Whalen will come down from Albany tomorrow afternoon and be entertained by the committee prior to the dinner.

The other speakers for the banquet include former Mayor Frank S. Katzenbach, jr., of Trenton, Democratic nominee for Governor last fall; Assemblyman Joseph P. Tumulty, of Hudson County; former State Chairman William B. Gourley, of Paterson, and Samuel Kalisch, of Newark.

The Men's Club of Warren chapel will meet at the chapel Friday night.

Rev. Dr. A. H. Lewis, of this city, continues to occupy the pulpit of the Congregational church at Bound Brook on Sundays, where he preaches to large congregations.

J. W. A. Bauersachs, of the borough, has returned from Camden, where he attended a meeting of the finance committee of the Grand Lodge, A. O. U. W., of which he is a member.

N. Y. AMUSEMENTS.

Under the management of L. S. Sire, the favorite comedian Henry E. Dixey, will make his first appearance in the powerful comedy drama, "Papa Lebonnard," at the Bijou theatre tomorrow evening, April 28, playing there for the first time the title role in which Sig. Novelli scored a great success with his Italian version of the piece. Mr. Dixey's version has been translated and adapted from the original French manuscript by Kate Jordan, Iva Merlyn and C. A. De Lima, who have preserved the value of the play in its integrity, as originally written for the elder Coquelin, and played through France and Italy for several seasons. Mr. Dixey has in the character of the lovely old clockmaker a part well calculated to test the ability of any actor, and one from all accounts exceedingly well suited to his remarkably versatile talent. His supporting company includes Eugene Ormonde, Frank E. Aiken, James Spottswood, Scott Siggins, Helen Tracy, Edna Conroy, Pauline Duffield and Marie Nordstrom. More than ordinary interest is centered in this coming engagement which is looked upon as one of the dramatic novelties of the season.

Councilman Charles L. Nichols, of Willow avenue, the borough, will leave the last of the week on a business trip to Nebraska.

marvellous, more impenetrable, altogether unintelligible were we to ascribe to Him the same process of generation as to other mortals.'

"Jesus was no ordinary man, but the unique Son of God, free from the least taint of sin. The Virgin Birth then is just what we should expect for Jesus was sinless from the very beginning. If you say that that involves a miracle we can answer; so does the whole work of Christ; so does the very foundation of the Christain faith—the resurrection.

"Jesus differed from men in that He never repented, never prayed for pardon. The holiest men of earth are the men who have felt their great sinfulness. It seems that a consciousness of sin is an evidence of holiness, but there is nothing like that in Jesus—His moral experience is a problem to us. In His sinlessness He stands apart from all men. Men start in the world handicapped by sinful heredity. Christ is sinless throughout. Why? Prof. Orr has given this answer:

"A supernatural conception which does not expel the natural but completely pervades and transforms it."

"The third unique thing about Christ's earthly life.

"He was a perfect man. Men are divided by race, circumstances, and time. None of these races represent man in his perfection. We wonder at Christ's character, we see His wisdom, His justice, His love all in proper balance. The difficulty in our lives is to keep our virtues in proper balance. He is of the stock of Israel, but there is nothing Jewish about His teachings. We do not think of Him as belonging to that race, He belongs to all people, to all times and because He is not of a particular race, He is an inspiration to all men and to all time.

"In that humanity He has consecrated every part of our nature. He is gentle with the womanly virtues, but stern in His demand for truth and righteousness, emphasizing the manly thing of life. Ordinary nature never produced this perfect embodiment of humanity, I say perfect, because we shall never get beyond that ideal humanity as wefind it in Christ. His ideals are dominating the thought of the world today."

HAD TO BE MORE EXPLICIT.

"Dear Grandpa" Conveyed Little to Post Office Officials.

A member of the Yale basketball team which played here a night or two ago received a check—a present in three figures—from his grandfather who lives in a New Jersey town. The check, as a matter of fact, was a fake prepared by William L. Lush, the Yale coach, formerly left fielder on the Cleveland baseball team, who was here with the team. But fake or no fake the recipient of the check got mighty excited.

He raced right across the Hollenden lobby to the telegraph desk, the minute he saw the size of the check, and wrote out a telegram as follows: "Dear Grandpa, ———, New Jersey. Thanks very much for check. This is a receipt. Your grandson." He wrote it just that way.

Then he hustled into the writing room to thank grandpa more fully by letter.

While he was preparing the letter a bellboy brought him back his telegram, along with the 30 cents—he had paid to send it—30 in pennies—and this was written across the message: "Can't find anybody named dear grandpa." Then the Yale boy came to.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

WHY BE CRABBED ABOUT AGE?

One Instance, at Least, in Which It Brought No Good.

At the dinner that the Chicago Press club gave in Edward Payson Weston's honor, the veteran pedestrian said of old age:

"Age is no crime, but you would think so from the way some people try to conceal it. We can give the lie to age by being gay, vigorous, bouyant, and it is foolish of us to resent our burden of years in any other manner.

"The aged Ben Davies of St. Joseph resented his years in a foolish, crusty, surly way.

"'Hello, old man Davies!' an elderly St. Joseph lawyer said to him one morning.

"'Old!' Davies snarled. 'Old, hey? Well, how about yourself? I'm no older than you are. What's your earliest recollection?'

"The lawyer grinned at old man Davies and replied:

"'Well, let me see. Yes, I think that's it. My earliest recollection is hearing folks say: 'There goes old man Davies.'"

Messenger Pigeons.

In taking its observations the messenger pigeon rises to the height varying between 200 and 700 feet, according to the climatic or other local conditions. But, whether the height be 200 or 700 feet, the pigeon flies in a series of circles, but always returns to a central position immediately above the spot from which it has been released. As soon as it has accurately determined its direction it darts off for home. The speed varies according to atmospheric conditions. With a strong wind behind them, they will fly at a velocity of 1,500 or 1,600 yards a minute.

Every Canadian a Villager.

Perhaps every Canadian does not know that he is a "villager," says the London News. For the country owes its name to a curious misconception on the part of M. Jacques Cartier, who is credited with the discovery of the St. Lawrence. He could make but little out of the conversation of the natives, and, hearing them frequently use the word "Kanata," their name for a village, he fell into the mistake of supposing that it was the name of their country. Thus, in more than one sense, has Canada grown from a little village to a great state.

An Unlucky Coin.

"The quarter-dollar," said a numismatist, "should be a very unlucky coin. It is nothing but one mass of thirteens. There are 13 stars on it. There are 13 letters in the scroll that the eagle holds in its claws, there are 13 feathers in the eagle's tail, and there are 13 feathers in its wing. On the shield there are 13 parallel lines, 13 horizontal stripes and 13 arrowheads. Finally, in the word 'quarter-dollar' there are just 13 letters."

But Yet a Man!

"I suppose I have about the most thoughtful, kind and considerate husband in the world," she was saying, sadly. "When he comes home at about two of the morning, turns all the lights on and wakes me out of a sound sleep, he always says in the most polite way imaginable:

"'Don't let me disturb you, dear, but will you please help me to unfasten this collar button?'"

Australian Rolling Stones.

Round gray stones which are real rolling stones are plentiful in Australia. They are of no value save as curiosities. When laid on a table these stones begin to quiver. Then they begin to roll, first with a slow, then with a faster gait toward the table's center. In a few minutes they will all be together in a tight bunch. The magnetic iron ore which they contain accounts for their motions.

On the Wrong Wire.

An uptown doctor who is noted for incisiveness of language was sitting in his office the other day when the telephone bell rang.

"Hello," answered the doctor.

"Hello," came a voice, "Is this the undertaker's office?"

"No," replied the doctor, "you've missed it a little," and hung up the 'phone.

LAUGHTER NOT ALWAYS GOOD.

Evidences of Merriment Sometimes by No Means Satisfying.

"Of course, you have heard," said the man with a sensitive ear, "a laugh that jarred. I don't mean," he continued, "so much a laugh at an inopportune time—I imagine we have all heard such laughs—as a laugh the quality of which is unpleasant. There is something contagious in laughter of the right kind, even though you may be the object of it. It bubbles from the well of good humor; there is no hidden thought, or 'arriere pensee,' as the French say, behind it. It is the essence of frankness; it is spontaneous and wholesouled, and it cleanses the system of the laughter, and, too, of the hearer, like a spiritual bath.

"But there are other kinds of laughter. The sneering laugh is perhaps the most familiar. Then there is a quiet laugh—a sibilant secretive sort of laugh that is quite as certain to mean mischief. Another laugh, disagreeable in its nature, is the high-pitched, nervous cachination that comes either from embarrassment or is a mere vocal habit. The worst laugh of all, however, to my mind, is that mirthless sound provoked by the distress or embarrassment of others, and it rasps, naturally, most of all, the object calling it forth. A person laughed at and hurt never forgets the experience."

GIGANTIC IN SIZE AND WEIGHT.

Biggest Man That Ever Lived Claimed by North Carolina.

"I'll bet none of you folks know that the largest man that ever lived was born and raised in North Carolina," said a Tar Heel. "His existence and dimensions are vouched for in the American encyclopedia.

"His name was Miles Darden. He was seven feet six inches high, and in 1845 weighed 871 pounds. He was born in North Carolina in 1798 and died in Tennessee January 23, 1857. Until 1853 he was able to go about his work in an active manner, but his weight increased so fast that after that year when he wanted to move about he had to be hauled in a two-horse wagon. In 1839 it is chronicled that his coat was buttoned around three men, each weighing more than 200 pounds, who walked together in it down the streets in Lexington, N. C. At his death he is said to have weighed not less than 1,000 pounds. His coffin was 8 feet long, 35 inches deep, 32 inches across the breast, 18 across the head and 14 across the feet. These measurements were taken at the time and are matters of historical record."

More Than He Wanted.

"Sometimes ladies thank me when I give up my seat to them," the young man said, "and sometimes they do not, and then occasionally something unusual happens. This morning when I gave up my seat to a lady she thanked me effusively.

"'Thank you very much,' she said; 'very acceptable, I assure you.' This speech attracted the attention of all around, and really I think I would prefer not to be thanked at all rather than to be thanked so generously.

"If it would be polite for me to indicate just how I'd like to be thanked for giving up my seat I should say that just a little smile with a slight inclination of the head, would be the acknowledgment that would please me best of all."

Greek Gives Fortune to Public.

A remarkable case of patriotic public spirit is recorded at Athens, Greece, where a wealthy Greek named Sevastopulos has left a large fortune of $1,000,000 for various public objects. One hundred thousand dollars is left for the Greek Royal Agricultural society, $60,000 for founding a technical school for work people, and $800,000 for various philanthropic institutions in Athens and Constantinople.

Too Public.

"Hello! Hello!" explaimed Percy, through the telephone. "Is that Miss Peachreen?"

"Yes."

"At last! This is Percy Plum. Do you know, Miss Peachreen, I have been trying for nearly an hour to get you!"

"La, me!" fluttered the voice at the other end of the wire. "You shouldn't do that over the telephone, Mr. Plum!"

Unlucky Thirteen.

It is pointed out by a London paper that Lord Chesham, who was recently killed in the hunting field, was born December 13, 1850, and married on November 13, 1877; that his elder son, who was killed in the South African war, was born on September 13, 1878, and his second son, the present holder of the title, on June 13, 1894, becoming fourth baron at the age of 13.

The Retort Venomous.

"So this is your widely advertised dollar table d'hote dinner, is it?" said the indignant would-be diner, as he pushed aside an entree which he could not masticate. "Why, this is the last place in the world I would recommend to friends."

"Don't blame you, sir," said the sad-faced waiter. "Send your enemies here."

A Hard World.

"It's a hard world! A hard, hard world!"

"What's happened now?"

"I stepped on a banana skin to-day and bumped it."—Houston Post.

NEWS IN THE SUBURBS.

DUNELLEN AND VICINITY.

For the purpose of arousing interest in the Modern Woodmen of America, a mass meeting of all those interested in the formation of a Dunellen Camp of the order will be held at Edward C. Lane's real estate office Wednesday night. Mr. Lane has recently been appointed assistant deputy head counsel of the fraternal organization and will have a delegation of state lodge officers to address the meeting. Considerable interest is being shown in the formation of the new lodge, for the Woodmen have lodges at Bound Brook and Elizabeth.

Already the founder of Lincoln, Lorraine and Dewey Park, Silas Dewey Drake, who announced recently that he had retired from the real estate field, has now founded Greater Beechwood Heights. This was done at a meeting of the residents of the little burg just west of Lincoln held last week. A New York realty firm is booming the town, and arrangements are being made for a Jersey Central depot there.

The Holy Jumpers are to have a zarapheth in Tax Collector Isaac Stites new blacksmith shop. They have arranged to lay a floor on the second story beams and will have an up-stairs meeting room, where the "bang-bang" of the hammer on the anvil will furnish dance music for their jumping.

Easter music was repeated at the morning service at Holy Innocents Church yesterday when the full vested choir again rendered the program of last Sunday. Miss Rita G. Brokaw was at the organ.

The Ladies Minstrels gave a highly successful presentation of their burnt-cork minstrel show at Jr. O. U. A. M. Hall Saturday night, and after the entertainment there was a reception and dance.

Rev. A. H. Lewis, corresponding secretary of the American Tract Society, spoke at the morning service of the Seventh Day Baptist church last Sabbath in the interests of the society.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Beck, of Elizabeth, have taken up their residence in town. Mrs. Beck was formerly Miss Mary Baldwin.

PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

Starting the ball rolling.—It was a good game for the first of the season—Baldwin had the honor of the first hit for 1908, a clean single over second. H. Albert found the sphere for two hits at the right time. Flannery covered great ground in left field, pulling down one of the longest hits that will be made this season; it looked good for home run. Freutz put up a good game for a cripple. Every one played the game and but two errors were charged against them.

Invitations for the marriage of Mary Elizabeth Westcott, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Frank W. Westcott, of the borough, to Mr. George Smith Ranner, of Westfield, are out. The marriage will take place at the Baptist church Saturday evening, May 9 at 6 o'clock.

The Evangelistic Meetings, which have been held in the Baptist church during the past two weeks, will be continued every night this week, Rev. H. S. Atkinson being in charge.

The Republican Primary to elect delegates to the county and Congressional Convention, will be held in Excelsior Hall tomorrow night at 8 o'clock.

Victor Todd led the weekly meeting of the B. Y. P. U. held in the parlors of the church last night. Subject was Japan.

The members of the Epworth League held an interesting meeting last night in the class room of the church.

Robert Jahn, of Perth Amboy, was the guest over Sunday of his mother, Mrs. Robert Jahn, of Park avenue.

The Irvingtons of Irvington, N. J., will be the attraction for Saturday afternoon of this week.

KNEW BETTER THAN TO INSIST.

Conductor Willing to Miss Fare Under the Circumstances.

There was a determined-looking woman on the far end of the seat of the car, and as the conductor began to pass along the running board to collect his fares the colonel got out his own nickel and asked the woman if he should pass hers.

"He'll get no nickel from me," was her brusque reply.

"Excuse me, but I thought you had to pay."

"Well, you watch out and see whether I have to or not. If I do then there'll be such a row on this car as you haven't seen for a year."

The conductor came along and the colonel handed over his fare and watched. The man stood for a moment looking the woman in the face, and she returned the look without flinching. Then he seemed to sigh as he passed on.

"Didn't I tell you so!" chuckled the woman.

"He must have suspected that you were ready for a row," answered the colonel.

"You bet he did. I told him last night what to expect."

"Oh, then you know him?"

"Know him? He's my own husband and he wanted his own wife to pay fare so that he could knock it down. Not any for Mary!"

POINT HE DIDN'T UNDERSTAND.

Purchaser of Windmill Really Was Not Badly "Jeeted."

"Dey jeeted me on der vindmill," complained Big George in the booze bazar at the Fairmont.

"What's the matter now, George?" inquired a new arrival, slapping 50 cents in real money down on the mahogany.

"O, no-ding," smiled George.

"But you were saying when I came in that some one cheated you on a windmill."

"Vell, dey did. Every Sunday I go up to my ranch by Sonoma county to see der new machine if it vork, and dree Sundays I go up dere alreaty and it don't vork, and I von't bay for it; it ain't goot."

"But how do you know it isn't a good one?"

"Vell, didn't I sday dere two hours dree Sundays in der hot sun and fan myself all der time and vatch it and it nefer moved?"

"Maybe there was no breeze, George."

"Of course der vas no breeze. Vould I fan myself if dere vas a vind?"—San Francisco Chronicle.

Destructive Music.

A member of the board of directors of the New York Metropolitan opera house tells a story that he had from one of the musicians attached to the orchestra there.

It appears that a friend of the wife of the musician had, during a call on the latter, inquired as to the husband's taste in musical matters. Among other things she wanted to know what operas the musician liked best to play.

"I don't know much about dot," said the better half, who was at the time busily engaged in darning an old shirt, "but I do know sometings. Voteffer he likes I like not dos Wagner operas. Dey sounds vell enough, but dose clothes—ach! He neffer yet comes home from dot Wagner opera dot he haf not torn a place in his poor old shirts. I brefer the Italian operas."

Rushing a Boy.

In Virginia a boy climbed an apple tree to fill his pockets with the fruit. The farmer's hired man discovered him, and came running. In his hurry to get down, the boy lost his hold and fell and broke his leg. His father is now suing the hired man for damages.

It is not contended that the boy had any legal right up the tree, and it is not denied that the hired man had a legal right to drive him away; but the point the father wants to make is that the boy should have been given time to get safely down. If the court sustains him, then it will be in order to tell a robber to please go away before shooting at him.

Pick-a-Back in Mexico.

The queerest mode of travel I saw in all Mexico was that adopted by a woman who was on her way to the doctor, seated complacently in a chair borne upon the back of a man. Some Mexican women are afraid even of the mule cars, while they look upon the rapidly spinning trolley with such trembling of knees they cannot be persuaded to put foot upon it. Unable to pay coach hire, they employ the human carrier at a few cents for each trip.—Travel Magazine.

Bursting Shells.

"Ut's a poor soldier yez are," bantered Larry.

"Phoy should yez say thot?" replied Denny in injured tones. "During th' great battle wasn't Oi where th' shells wor thickest?"

"Yez wor thot! Oi hurr-rud th' corporal say ye got so scared yez wint into a barn awn stuck yez head into an egg crate, bedad!"

Fountain Built 800 Years Ago.

Among the old fountains in the Temple Area at Jerusalem one of the finest is known as Bab Silsflea.

The inscription, which is well preserved, states that it was erected about 800 years ago, and for centuries, as at the present time, it has been fed with water brought in pipes from Solomon's Pools, nine miles away.

WHEN THE SCORCHER'S SINGED.

If you're very gaily speeding down the street
In a car that's very nifty and complete,
If it's very proud and chesty that you feel
As you sit there with your gauntlets at the wheel,
Don't forget,
Don't forget,
There'll be something doing yet—
You bet!

If a pluteer sounds behind you as you speed,
It were better that you give a little heed.
If you've speed to cut her loose and run away
You will maybe live to scorch another day.
If you've not,
Oh, it's naught!
You will certinly be caught—
Oh, what!

If you're thus caught with the goods
you'd beter stop,
It's a waste of time to argue with the cop,
For his little game is nothing but a cinch;
It's a sure thing that you'll lose out in a pinch.
Don't repine,
Like a shine,
But just fall right into line—
Oh, fine!
—Indianapolis News.

THE SEVEN AGES OF WHEELS.

A wicker carriage we provide

With kilts, a yellow cart arrives—
A doubtfully billy-goat he drives.

In knickerbockers, down the pike
He circusses upon his bike.

The age of love and gasoline
Demands a sixty-horse machine.

The years advance; he rides afar
In his palatial private car.

Old, feeble, if the day be fair,
His valet wheels him in his chair.

Then one last trip he takes on wheels,
His head no higher than his heels.
—Puck.

Teutonic Prowess.

"Dose Irish make me sick, alvays talking about vat great fighders dey are," said a Teutonic resident of Hoboken with great contempt "Vhy at Minna's vedding der odder nighd dot drunken Mike O'Hooligan butted in, und me and mein bruder and mein cousin Fritz und mein freint Louie Hartmann—vhy, ve pretty near kicked him oudt of der house!'"—Everybody's Magazine.

WOULD TRY IT ON THE CAT.

Irishman Had Cheaper Form of Analysis in His Mind.

Expert testimony may be valuable from a scientific point of view, but there are often cheaper ways of establishing a certainty, as the hero of the following anecdote decided at the last moment. An Irish laborer entered a drug store, and drawing a paper bag from his pocket, poured on the counter a number of very sticky and unattractive looking lozenges.

"Can ye examine this candy?" he asked.

"It looks queer. What is the matter with it?" asked the druggist.

"Pizen, Oi'm thinkin'. Did ye iver see such stuff? Dinnis Daly give them to me b'y, and Dinnis is no frind of mine."

"Well, I can make an analysis."

"All right. Oi'll come in to-morrow on me way from worrnk."

The Irishman had reached the door, but he suddenly stopped with his hand on the latch.

"And how much will thot 'nalysis be costing me?" he inquired.

"Five dollars," was the answer.

The man walked over to the counter and swept the lozenges into the bag, which he replaced in his pocket.

"Niver moind," he said. "Oi'll feed wan to the cat."

FABLE BROUGHT UP TO DATE.

A Little Allowance for the Imagination Requisite Here.

Once upon a Time a Brave Youth risked his Life in saving a Beautiful Girl from a Watery Grave at a Fashionable Seaside Resort.

The Grateful Father seized the Rescuer of his Daughter by the Hand, and in a Voice slopping over with Emotion, spake thusly: "Noble Youth, to You I am Indebted for everything that makes Life Worth While. Which Reward will you Take—Two Hundred Thousand Plunks or the Hand of My Child?"

"It's Me to the Digit of the Rescued Maid," answered the Brave Youth, who Figured on Copping both the Beauty and the Coin.

"Young Man, you have Chosen Wisely," replied the Grateful Parent, "for I couldn't have given you the Two Hundred Thousand Plunks at the Present Writing, as I am only a Poor Village Editor and haven't begun to Save it up yet, but my Offspring is Yours for Life, Bless you, my Children."

Moral—Fiction is Stranger than Truth. Otherwise a Poor Village Editor would not have been doing a Stunt at a Fashionable Seaside Resort.—Chicago Daily News.

She Saw Her.

"The late Clara Bloodgood," said a theatrical manager of Chicago, "was witty as she was talented and beautiful. Sometimes, indeed, her keen wit carried her rather far.

"I remember once, at a tea at the Auditorium, a remark that the brilliant actress made to a society woman.

"'You were at Bar Harbor, I believe, in the summer?' said the society woman.

"'Yes,' said the actress.

"'And did you see much of my daughter there?'

"'Rather,' was the answer. 'She wore a bathing suit in the morning, riding bloomers in the afternoon and low neck at night."

Don't Be Left Handed.

It has been estimated that about one boy out of 15 is left-handed when he reaches the age of ten. This is his mother's fault in not making him use his right hand more during his babyhood. In Germany there are schools where the boy is taught to be right-handed. Nearly all tools are made for right-handed men, and the boy who grows up left-handed will be awkward.

If one can use both hands alike he has an advantage in some things; but it seems as if nature intended the right arm to do most of the work.

Grain as a Weight.

The name "grain" as a weight originated in a curious way. The old English pound was equivalent to "the weight of 7,680 grains of wheat, taken from the middle of the ear." This gives 480 to each of the 16 ounces of which the pound was composed. Although the standard is now entirely different, the fact that there are still 480 grains to the ounce Troy and the ounce apothecaries' weight carries us back to the time of the Conquest, and shows us how the name grain originated.

Stilt Skating.

"They skate on stilts in Sweden," said a traveler. "It is an odd and pretty sight to see. Here a girl skims along, elevated two feet above the ice. There goes an expert upon stilts five feet high.

"Stilt skating is very, very difficult. Nevertheless, the Swedes do the outer and inner edge, cut rings backward, even make the grapevine.

"But when they fall! A fall from five-foot stilts often makes a hole in the ice."

Knew How to Treat a Lady.

The woman had been accused of murder, the evidence sustaining the charge, but the jury brought in a verdict of "not guilty."

"How did you reach such a monstrous conclusion?" asked the judge, severely.

"Your honor," returned the foreman, "do we look like 12 jays that don't know how to treat a lady?"

"You know Mr. Gibbs is favored in the Borough Street railway affair," began Dallas. "He told you so at your office that day we were there. Well"—

"Yes, but don't let's discuss business to-night," replied Bennett. "This is our dance, and"—

"Wait, please. You knew his fortune was largely tied up in Borough stock, Charles Wainwright.

but here is something you didn't know. My uncle says my money and Perry's is all invested in that stock and that if you defeat the bill we will be dependent on Mr. Wainwright's charity. If that is true, you didn't know it, did you?"

Her voice was almost tremulous in its eager, confident appeal, but Bennett forced himself to answer:

"Yes; it is true, and I knew it."

The eager glow died from her eyes, leaving a look of dawning horror.

"And, knowing this—knowing Perry and I shall be made paupers by your action—you still insist on"—

"On opposing the bill? Yes. I am sorry, but it is my duty."

"Duty!" sneered Wainwright. "Your 'duty' was done when you vetoed the bill. That act made your position clear and showed the public how you regarded the measure, so why go on fighting it after"—

"I won't discuss this with you, Mr. Wainwright," interrupted Bennett. "We already understand one another, you and I."

"My uncle says," pursued Dallas, "that you made your broker secretly sell Borough stock short, knowing the deal would enrich you. Won't you even deny this?"

"No."

"You realize what all this foolish stubbornness must mean to me—to all of us," continued Dallas, "and you still persist in your opposition?"

"I must," said Bennett. "I can't turn back. Oh, Dallas," he added, dropping his voice till none but she could hear, "can't you trust me—only till Friday? I'll come to you on Saturday morning and tell you the whole miserable story. I only ask you to wait until then. Please"—

"I see no need of waiting for an explanation," retorted Dallas aloud. "I understand everything."

"But you don't understand!" insisted Alwyn. "I"—

"I understand only too well," repeated Dallas. Checking his reply and ignoring the anguished appeal in his eyes, she turned to Gibbs.

"I have kept you waiting long for your answer, Mr. Gibbs," she said, speaking in a level, firm, emotionless voice. "I am prepared to give it to you now—publicly. You have often asked me if I would be your wife. My reply is, 'Yes.'"

"Dallas!" gasped Bennett in horrified surprise.

CHAPTER XII.

ALWYN BENNETT sat in his own study at home in the big Bennett house that remained as almost the last landmark of that solid middle nineteenth century wealth and fashion which had once dominated a neighborhood now given over to office buildings and apartment houses.

The hour was late. An hour and more had passed since the young mayor and his mother had returned from the administration ball. The house was silent, and even the usually busy streets outside were wrapped in the hush that never falls until after midnight and is dispersed by the gray of dawn. Late as it was Alwyn h made no move to discard his evening clothes. Alone he sat, his head resting between his crossed arms on the desk before him.

Motionless, inert, hopeless, he had remained there ever since his arrival from the ball. But if his body was moveless, his brain was awhirl. Try as he would he could see no light in the tangle of events into which his own sense of right had plunged him. He saw the future stretching out before him dreary and barren as a rainy sea.

Through all of his months of battling he had ever struggled forward through increasing difficulties toward one bright goal—Dallas' love. And now that love was snatched from his grasp, through no fault of his own, and bestowed on a man unworthy to kiss the hem of her garment.

At each step in the long climb Alwyn had asked himself, "Would she approve?" And now through trying to be worthy that approval he had forever lost it, for Dallas, he knew, had not only rejected him and engaged herself to Gibbs, but had done so with the belief that Bennett was a heartless, unscrupulous intriguer, undeserving of a good woman's regard.

A rap at the door aroused Bennett from his bitter thoughts. He lifted his head wearily and gave word to enter. A drowsy servant came in with a card.

"He says it's important business, sir," said the footman. "And he wishes to see you at once, if possible."

"Show him up," answered Bennett, dropping his voice so as not to disturb his mother, who slept on the same floor. "I will see him here."

A minute later Horrigan's bulky form blocked the threshold.

"Queer time of night for a call," he observed casually, as he entered uninvited, closed the door behind him and took a chair, "but my business wouldn't wait."

"Then state it as briefly as you can," directed Bennett, making no move to rise or welcome his unbidden guest. "It is very late, and I am tired."

"I've come to see you about our Borough bill."

"So I supposed."

"You won't call off your fight against us?"

"That question is hardly worth answering. No."

"I thought not. Well, Mr. Alwyn Bennett, I've got you! I've got you! Do you understand me?"

"Perfectly. Is that all?"

"No, it ain't all," mimicked the boss. "And I'm in earnest. I've got you where I want you."

"That doesn't interest me. If you've nothing else to say"—

"But I have," chuckled Horrigan. "When it came to a showdown between us two I put a staff of men to looking up your record."

"You found nothing you could use. Is that"—

"No; it isn't even the beginning. Then I remembered about your father."

"About my father?"

It grated on Bennett that his dead father's honored name should be spoken by this low politician, but before he could protest more forcibly Horrigan went on:

"What d'you think if I said your father was a grafter—one of the worst of his time?"

"I'd say you lied," answered Bennett calmly, "and I'd drive the foul lie down your throat with my fist. You'll have to think of some better scheme than that."

"Do you think I'd be idiot enough to come here with the story if I didn't have full proof of it?" asked Horrigan in contempt.

And, despite himself, Alwyn saw the man was speaking what he believed to be the truth. He paused in his impulsive forward move, reseated himself and asked coldly:

"What so called 'proofs' have you been fooled by your heelers into thinking"—

"Don't believe me, hey? Well, you will fast enough before I'm done. Unless you're afraid of what I've got to say."

"I'm not afraid of anything you can say. The highest tribute to my father's memory is the fact that a cur like you cannot defile it. Go on. I'll listen to you."

"Very good," said Horrigan, quite unmoved. "I'll make it as short as I can. I remembered your father got rich pretty quick. He was a member of the organization, and his firm got the jobs of building the aqueduct and the new library. That gave me my clew. I looked up the specifications for both jobs, and I turned them over to the old engineering firm of Morris & Cherrington. You know the firm, perhaps. If you don't, you can look them up. They don't belong to the organization; they're the best experts in their line, and they can't be juggled with."

"I know them. Go on."

"I paid them a fancy sum to go over those specifications and then examine the library and the aqueduct and see if they were up to the mark or if the city 'd been cheated by the Bennett Contracting company. I had a strong idea I was right, but I wouldn't speak till I had the proof. When I got home after the ball tonight I found the Morris & Cherrington report waiting for me. I brought a copy of it along with me."

"Well," asked Bennett indifferently, "what then?"

"Here's the copy of the report. Look it over for yourself. The crookedest job ever pulled off in this city! Third rate material, when the material called for in the specifications was used at all. Granite shell filled with mortar instead of solid granite; foundations barely half the depth called for; inferior tiles in place of fireproof ones; cheap, crumbly iron and steel instead of first quality—oh, there's fifty such substitutions and frauds! It's the rawest, bummest job I ever heard of. If any of the organization tried it nowadays the men who did it would be wearing stripes in a week. Graft, hey? Why, your father was the boss grafter of the century, the star graft getter of the bunch! He"—

"Hush! For God's sake, hush!" pouted Alwyn. "My mother sleeps only a few rooms beyond. I"—

"What do I care?" roared Horrigan in triumph. "Let everybody hear! The whole world is going to hear it unless that Borough franchise bill goes through. Beat that bill and every paper in the country will have that report to publish. Stop your fight against us and the report is buried. That goes! See? Now, do as you please about the bill. You're a fine man to preach about graft, you are! The very roof over your head, the clothes on your back, were bought with graft money!"

"The clothes on your back were bought with graft money!"

Bennett scarcely heeded the coarse insult, nor did he note Horrigan's grunt of good-by and the clump of his departing feet on the stairs. The young man sat, lost, hopeless, horror gripped, his eyes running mechanically over the closely typewritten pages of the engineer's report. Outsider as he was in matters of practical business, Alwyn could see that Horrigan had in no way exaggerated the document's contents. He knew, too, that the firm of engineers who had drawn up the report were the foremost of their sort and above all shadow of suspicion.

Little by little the numbness lifted from his brain, and in its place crept a horrible conviction of the truth. His father—the gallant young soldier who had won a nation's applause in the civil war—the man who, poor and unaided, had built up a fortune against keenest competition and had earned a repute for sterling probity which had ever been the delight and model of his son—this was the man whom a low blackguard like Horrigan now had the right to revile—a man apparently no better than the boss himself—than any dishonest heeler in the organization!

And, as if it were not enough that the idol of a lifetime were hurled, crushed and defiled, from its bright pedestal, the family name must next be dragged through the mire of political filth and ill repute and the dead man's memory forever blasted. Either that or his son must withdraw from the gallant fight he was waging against civic corruption, for that Horrigan would carry out his threat and blazon forth to the world the story and proofs of the elder Bennett's shame Alwyn had no doubt. With all his faults the boss was a man of his word.

"Stop your fight against us," Horrigan had said, "and the report is burned."

Yes, the boss was a man of his word. Even Bennett admitted that. He would fulfill his promise in either event.

Listlessly Alwyn began to review the case. On the one side a perhaps Quixotic fight for an abstract principle—a fight whose reward was political death, loss of the woman he adored, family shame that might crush his fragile old mother to the very grave. On the other wealth, honor, love, the governorship, a future happy and glorious.

Was he not a fool to hesitate? Had he not salved his conscience sufficiently by vetoing the Borough franchise bill? Had he the right to bring this new shame upon his mother's gray head? Where lay his highest duty?

The soft rustling of silk and a hand laid in light caress upon his head aroused the miserable man from his reflections.

Bennett looked up to see his mother standing beside him. She had thrown on a wrapper and in slippered feet had stolen noiselessly into the study.

"I was awakened by voices," she explained. "I thought I heard some one talking excitedly in here. Is anything the matter?"

"Nothing, nothing dear," he answered gently, drawing the little old lady affectionately down to a seat on his knee and smiling manfully into her sleep flushed face; "nothing is the matter. Only a business call."

"A business call at 2 o'clock in the morning!" she exclaimed. "Dear boy, you are working too hard. Your father never brought his business worries and work home. He always left them at the office. Can't you do the same? You'll wear yourself out."

"My father"— began Bennett, but the name choked him.

"You are growing to be so much like him," went on Mrs. Bennett fondly. "And it makes me so happy that you are. Your splendid fight against that infamous Borough bill, for instance. How proud he would have been of that! It is just the sort of thing he himself would have done in your place. He was surrounded with wicked and dishonest men just as you are. But through it all he remained true, honorable, incorruptible. What a grand heritage for my son! He— Alwyn!" she broke off, alarmed, "why do you look at me that way? I never saw such a look in your eyes before. Are you ill? Has something happened that you are keeping from me?"

"No, no," evaded Bennett. "I only"—

"You had a caller here before I came in," pursued the mother, refusing to abandon the clew to which her womanly intuition had led her. "He brought you bad news? Tell me, dear! I'm your mother, and I love you."

"You are making my course more difficult for me by asking such questions, mother," he answered wretchedly, "and I"—

"Yes," said the suffragist on the platform, "women have been wronged for ages. They have suffered in a thousand ways."

"There is one way in which they never suffered," said a meek-looking man standing up in the rear of the hall.

"What way is that?" demanded the suffragist.

"They have never suffered in silence."—Tit-Bits.

CLINTON AVE. TEAM WON

West End Nine Walloped P. H. S. Boys By Score of 23-5.

FIRST GAME OF THE SEASON.

Clinton Avenue Got Fifteen Hits, While "Clif" Randolph Kept the Schoolboys Scared.

The Clinton avenue baseball team opened the season at Crescent Oval Saturday afternoon by rolling up a score of twenty-three runs in a practise game with the Plainfield High School nine. Out-classed and outplayed in every department of the game, the schoolboys could score but five runs in the entire contest, four in the second inning, when they made two of their four hits, and one in the ninth.

"Clif" Randolph was the direct cause of the High School's defeat. He had all kinds of speed with him, and slipped over a good assortment of bends, striking out ten of the schoolboy batsmen. The High School team developed a bad case of the "rattles" in the early innings, and put up such a sad exhibition of the national game that even "Mother Nature" wept from time to time at the sight of so many errors and strikeouts. There were fifteen errors scored against the schoolboys, who played as if they had gone into the game with the idea of losing.

The West End nine made a most favorible impression before the crowd of fans who braved threatening weather to see the season start. They made good both with the stick and in the field, using up two schoolboy pitchers for a total of thirteen hits, and making but two misplays. There was lots of speed in handling the ball, but "Clif" Randolph did so much at the plate that there wasn't much chance to see fielding. Moffett and Brit Martin made the best showing with the stick, the former hitting safely three times and the latter twice. Aside from pitching a rattling good game, Randolph got two singles. He gave but one base on balls, and "Jack" Martin, who took his place late in the game, fanned one and passed one to first. For the High School, Dey, Lidgate, Snyder and Rubenstein were the only ones who could straighten out "Clif's" curves for safe hits.

JUNIORS SHUT OUT MONO A. C. NINE, 7-0

The Jr. O. U. A. M. team shut out the Mono A. C. nine in a well-played game on Hope Common Saturday afternoon, winning out by a score of 7-0. Van Arsdale was a puzzle to the Monos, fanning ten batsmen, and allowing but two hits. The Juniors did a lot of heavy hitting, and a three-bagger by Hann, with two-baggers by Vanderbilt and Hewitt helped in the run getting.

The lodgemen's nine started the run getting in a very first session, scoring a tally in the first and two more in the second. In the seventh they netted four runs, when they landed on Conover for some long hits. The Juniors played a snappy game in the field, and only two errors were scored against them. The official summaries:

Three base hits, Hann; two base hits, Vanderbilt and Hewitt. Struck out, by Van Arsdale, 10; by Conover, 4. Hit by pitched ball, Emmons. Umpire, Earl Smith. Scorer, Muir.

Among the American tourists who enrolled their names the last of the week at the Paris office of the New York Herald, were Mr. and Mrs. William C. Harris, of Westfield, and George W. Chandler of this city.

'PLAINS TEAM WINS FIRST GAME OF SEASON

Scotch Plains opened the baseball season on Saturday afternoon by defeating the strong Perth Amboy team by the score of 7 to 3. The contest was of the mid-summer variety, the local team putting up a fine game both in the field and at the bat. The visitors made a stiff fight until the sixth inning, when the Plains boys started a batting rally and pounded Hornby for three hits after he had walked a man. This together with two errors netted the home aggregation four runs, which together with three tallies made earlier in the game made a total of seven.

Frentz was in the box for seven innings, pitched a good game, allowing his opponents five hits. After the game was cinched, Manager Albert relieved Frentz and was equally effective. Not a hit was made off his delivery and in the ninth inning he retired the side on strikes. Judging by the initial contest Manager Albert has a fast aggregation of players that will make any team in its class rustle. The lineup and score:

Fairviews Defeat Jacksons.

The Fairview A. C. defeated the Jackson A. C. Saturday by a score of 22 to 21. The contest was marked by continuous objection to the decisions of the umpire. James Smith, pitcher for the Fairview A. C. walked twelve men, while LaPorte of the opposing team walked nine men. With the score 22 to 12 in favor of the Fairviews in the ninth inning, the Jacksons had a batting rally and scored nine runs. LaPorte, Hebert and V. LaPorte did the best work with the stick. The lineup: Fairview A. C.—A. Buner, c; C. Smith, p; F. McDonough, 1b; R. Conroy, 2b; W. Birch, 3b; V. Goldsmith, ss; M. TENTH ANNUAL DIRECTORY MAKES ITS APPEARANCE.

The 1908 edition of Wand's City Directory has made its appearance and is being distributed today. It marks Mr. Wand's tenth anniversary as the local publisher. The book is much the same as last year, containing a list of the inhabitants of city and borough, with Westfield, Mountainside, Dunellen, Fanwood and Scotch Plains. It is a neatly printed publication, substantially bound in red boards.

Mr. Wand compiled his first Plainfield directory ten years ago, when the book contained but 200 pages. This year's edition consists of nearly 500 pages and in addition to the names, contains the street locations, business directory and appendix found in the previous issue, but brought strictly up-to-date. Mr. Wand considers it the most complete book of the kind he has ever put out and already has orders for a record-breaking number.

Tip to Local Contemporary.

What an astonishing lot of strange things happen in the hamlet of South Plainfield that find their way into one Plainfield paper and then into its exchanges? That latest yarn about a South Plainfield man named James Sutton being in a "critical condition" from a wound inflicted "near the jugular" by a "Merry Widow" hat is timely, but we don't believe it is true. A strange thing about these remarkable things that happen to South Plainfield people is that nobody but the ingenious reporter who unearths them can ever find the victim. Some hard-working reporter, who is more enterprising than exact, should be reminded that newspaper fakes went out of style at least ten years ago and that fakers are tabooed in reputable newspaper offices.—New Brunswick Home News.

Will Receive Bids for New School.

Bids for the new school building to be erected at Darrow avenue and Essex street, will be received at the meeting of the Board of Education tonight. It is understood that there will be a number of bids presented by contractors in and out of the city.

PROPERTY IMPROVEMENT WILL EXTEND ELM PLACE

Andrew Wilson and Allan Coddington, who recently purchased the Loizeaux property at Chatham street and Westervelt avenue, and which extends back to Manning avenue, have completed plans for the improvement of the tract, the survey of which was completed today by H. C. VanEmburg, civil engineer.

It is the purpose of the new owners to open up a street through the tract extending from Elm place to Manning avenue. The old homestead, now n the centre of the property will be moved to Brook avenue, and when the thoroughfare is opened several handsome dwellings will be built on either side. There will be sufficient room for twenty-five houses, but that number will not be built at one time. The property has a good frontage, extending from Westervelt avenue to the North Plainfield Cemetery line. Before building operations begin considerable filling will be done to bring the property up to the right grade.

PERSONAL.

Mrs. Wells, of Newton Centre, formerly of Washington avenue, is visiting friends in town.

Postmaster and Mrs. Elias H. Bird, of Sandford avenue, are home from a sojourn at Atlantic City.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert M. Clark, of Brooklyn, were week-end guests at the home of Mr. Clark's father, Robert Clark, Jr., of Jackson avenue.

RELIEF FOR NORTH AVE.

$1,000 Appropriated to Overcome Dust Nuisance on the Thoroughfare.

MERCHANTS PETITIONED FOR IT

City Council Transacts Routine Business at Adjourned Session Held Last Night.

Granting the request of the property-owners and merchants on North avenue, the Common Council at an adjourned meeting, last night, voted to approprite $1,000 for the purpose of treating the macadam of that thoroughfare with oil or some other composition as a remedy against dust. The request was made through a petition signed by practically all of the interested parties on North avenue. The work will be done under the direction of the street committee.

The petition from J. Fred MacDonald for permission to move a frame stable from one location to another on the property at 186 East Front street, was referred to the fire and buildings committee with power.

According to the annual custom the request of Winfield Scott Post, No. 73, G. A. R., for an appropriation of $100 for the observance of Memorial Day, was granted. The clerk presented several papers referring to the purchase of the property at East Fourth street and Sycamore street for a new police headquarters' building, stating that the same had been recorded in the register's office, and they were filed. A petition from the New York & New Jersey Telephone Company for permission to erect two poles on the property of the fire department on East Second street, was referred to the fire and buildings committee.

The petition of L. E. Hart and others asking for permission to vacate an unknown street, extending from Elmwood place to Plainfield avenue, accompanied by a favorable opinion from Corporation Counsel Marsh, was reported back. Mr. Gloak, chairman of the street committee, then introduced an ordinance to vacate the street. It was adopted on first and second readings and ordered advertised.

On motion of chairman Hibbard of the fire and buildings committee, the resignation of John J. Neylon, as a regular member of the fire department, was accepted.

The petition of Yost Brothers for permission to erect an iron awning at Somerset and Front streets, was on motion of chairman Hibbard of the fire and building committee, refused. Louis Levine was given permission to move a building on his property on motion of Mr. Hibbard.

On motion of Mr. Hibbard the fire and buildings committee was authorized to purchase 300 bushels of oats for the fire department at a price not to exceed $1.50 per bag. Another motion by Mr. Hibbard and adopted, authorized his committee to purchase one mile of insulated copper wire, No. 10, at a price not to exceed $50 for use in the department. The committee was further authorized on motion of Mr. Hibbard which was adopted, to purchase one barrel of carbolene at a price not exceeding 90 cents a gallon. This preparation is used as a disinfectant at the various fire houses.

"WILLIE" MULLEN GETS A SIXTY DAYS SENTENCE

Patience ceased to be a virtue with Judge Runyon in the city court today, when "Willie" Mullen was brought before him to plead to his seventh charge of drunkenness and disorderly conduct within fourteen months. On the six previous occasions, with one exception, the magistrate let him go on his promise to do better but he has never kept his word in a single instance. The only time he was punished was when a $5 fine was imposed but today the judge sent him to jail for sixty days.

Though not yet of age, Mullen's record in the local police court is worse than those checked up against the city's oldest rummies. His arrests have always been for intoxication and fighting, yet Judge Runyon and Chief Kiely have sought in every way to make a man of him. His appearance today was brought about by patrolman MacDonald, who discovered him at 7:30 this morning on Somerset street, throwing stones at Peter Blumetta and Matthew Foxton, drivers of an ice wagon. When the officer sought to catch him he fled over the bridge to the borough but ventured back a little later. MacDonald had anticipated such a move and from a position in an alley watched him return.

With the calling of his case in court a couple of hours later, "Willie" staggered from a cell and dropped in a heap on the court table beneath the judge's desk, so bad was his intoxication. As he was propped to his feet, Judge Runyon exclaimed with genuine pity:

"Willie, you've reached the end of your rope with me. A glance at your record card here shows that it is foolish to try and make a man of you and my only recourse is to send you to jail. I'm sorry it had to come but you have no one but yourself to blame."

PUPILS REHEARSING FOR P.H.S. SENIOR PLAY

A new departure in local amateur theatricals is the presentation of the senior class play of the Plainfield High School at the New Plainfield theatre Saturday evening, May 9. It has for some years been a custom of the pupils of the graduating class to give a dramatic presentation in the spring, but this is the first time the senior play has ever been given in the theatre.

The play this year is to be "She Stoops to Conquer," by Dr. Oliver Goldsmith, and the cast is making excellent progress in rehearsals, which are being regularly held under the supervision of Miss Elsie Goddard, as dramatic coach. "She Stoops to Conquer" was presented at the Casino by the class of 1904 as a senior play four years ago, but the production this year will be on a far more elaborate scale. The costuming is especially worthy of mention, for all the clothes have been secured from a New York costumer.

Orlando H. Lounsbury will play "Marlowe," and Miss Esther B. Crampton will take the part of "Miss Hardcastle." The other principal characters in the production will be as follows: "Hastings," Donald C. Mortimer; "Old Mr. Hardcastle," Percy L. Mygrant; "Tony Lumpkin," Chauncey R. Murphey; "Diggory," Arthur L. Titsworth; "Sir Charles Marlowe," Sallo M. Kahn; "Miss Nevil," Miss Elsa Cook; "Mrs. Hardcastle," Miss Sara L. Sanderson; a maid, Miss Katherine Grey.

The sale of tickets has been unusually large and they will be exchanged for seats in the theatre Saturday morning at 9 o'clock, when the box office will be opened for the sale. Walter B. Caldwell, 1908, and William V. Rafferty, 1907, are the associate managers of the play from the school.

Must Remove Telegraph Poles.

Preparatory to undertaking the work of widening and macadamizing the Washington Valley road, leading from Watchung to a point beyond Warrenville, County Engineer Doughty, of Somerville, accompanied by a representative of the Western Union Telegraph Company, went over that road yesterday and decided that all of the telegraph poles must be removed back to permit the work to be done. An effort will be made to place the poles all on one side of the road. The improvement will call for at least eight new bridges, both large and small.

Trolley Kills Valuable Dog.

A valuable Ayerdale terrier, belonging to Detective-Sergeant John Flynn, was killed by a Front street trolley car Sunday. The animal was pedigreed and had appeared at a number of bench shows. It was the pet of the children in the neighborhood and met its death while romping back and forth with several of them.

COPS LOSE A PRISONER

Notorious Jersey City Burglar Gets Away from Bluecoat by Clever Dodge.

BESTED PATROLMAN KELLEY.

Cornered in a House, Hurls Rocking Chair Against the Officer and Tangles Him Up.

Though the information was not given out at police headquarters, it became known today that Robert Scott, a notorious negro burglar, who is wanted in Jersey City, was trapped in this city, Saturday night but escaped through a clever move while Patrolman John Kelley stood waiting for him to put on an overcoat. He fled from the home of Pearl Webster, located in the middle of the Boulevard just back of Sachar's grocery store, and disappeared after a chase down West Third street. All the bluecoats in the city were immediately put on the jump in an effort to find him but not a trace of him has been discovered since.

Scott committed a robbery in Jersey City recently and secured a diamond ring worth $450 and a diamond-studded watch valued at $200. Two detectives were detailed to look after the case and they finally traced him to this city. They learned through sleuthing on the part of Detective-Sergeant John Flynn that he was putting up at Pearl Webster's place and plans were made to nab him Saturday night. When the Jersey City men and the local cops got into the house, they found that he had gone out but was expected to return. Several women in the place were arrested and all the officers with the exception of Kelley started back to headquarters with the prisoners.

It was the understanding that Kelley should remain in the house until they returned and if Scott showed up in the meantime he was to grab him as he entered the door. The patrolman seated himself in a rocking chair and prepared to wait. He had barely gotten himself comfortably fixed when footfalls sounded on the porch and the negro sought for entered the room. Before he had his bearings the officer cut off his escape.

"You've got me" was the only comment the prisoner made, "but give me time to put on my overcoat."

Kelley saw nothing out of the way in the request and gave his consent. The negro started toward a rear room as if to take a coat from a hook but there was none to be found. He then retraced his steps to the front room, mumbling that "it was queer where he had put that coat." Kelley kept close behind him but as Scott worked himself back to the door he had entered, hesuddenly made a quick turn, grabbed up the rocking chair the policeman had been sitting in and hurled it against his knees. The onslaught was so sudden that Kelley got tangled in the rockers and by the time he worked himself clear, Scott was on the front porch. He had all the advantage necessary and with seven-league-boot strides only hit the high places in his flight to safety. Kelley followed as quickly as possible but hardly got more than a glimpse of his quarry as he was swallowed up in the darkness.

It would be hard to find a more chagrined pair of sleuths than the Jersey City men when they learned that Scott had slipped through their fingers and they went back home saying unkind things about the Plainfield cops.

MRS THEODORE FRENCH DIES AFTER OPERATION.

Mrs. Melissa French, wife of Theodore F. French, of East Front street, died in Muhlenberg hospital at 11:45 this morning after a brief illness, caused by meningitis. She was taken to the institution last Friday and an operation was performed but she became unconscious soon afterward, remaining in that condition until death ensued.

Mrs. French had been a resident of the city for a long time and was very well known, especially in the Netherwood section where she made her home. She was a member of the First M. E. church and was active in its work. Her husband, Theodore French, is associated with his brother Elston M. French, in the real estate business. She leaves no children.

Sprained Wrist in Fall.

MANY BIDS FOR SCHOOL

Lowest Figures in Each Class Make Total Cost of Darrow Avenue School $87,754.

BUILDING TO BE LESS ORNATE.

Estimates for Less Expensive West End School Submitted by Many Contractors—Tobin's Low Bids.

More than double the number of contracting firms which submitted bids for the new Darrow avenue school last September, presented their bids for the same building last night, in response to a call issued by the Plainfield Board of Education for a less expensive structure in the West End. The lowest bid for construction on the general contract was that of J. W. Lanning, of Trenton, whose estimate was $73,979. For the heating and ventilating contract, George J. Tobin, of this city, had a bid of $9,754, the lowest of the ten submitted. The same contractor also bid the lowest for the plumbing contract, his figures being $2,371. Doe and Powers, of New York, had the lowest bid for the electrical work by their estimate of $575, and the same firm underbid all others for the wiring contract, where their bid was $1,075.

The advertising of new bids was due to the fact that the figures submitted last fall were too high,—the Board wishing to keep down the cost of the new building with a view to the necessity of erecting a second west end school north of the railroad. The bids were opened last night at a special meeting of the board, and the building committee of which Charles F. Abbott is chairman, is now looking up the responsibility of the low bidders before formally awarding the contracts to the lowest bidders. No date for the formal award of the contract has been set but the meeting will probably be held next week.

In advertising the bids the second time, the board made several changes in the proposed building with a view to lessening the cost. In general, these consist in making the building less ornamental. The auditorium is to be less ornate than first planned, the halls are to be square ceiled instead of arched as provided in the first plans and the foundation stone has been changed from brick to concrete. The lowest bid for the general contract, that of J. W. Lanning, is about $9,000 less than that of John Abbott & Son, of this city, who had the lowest figures under the first set of plans.

There were but six bidders on the general contract the last time the bids were advertised, as contrasted with fifteen submitted last night. Generally speaking the bids are figured closer than last time. This is attributed to the fact that the large concerns are not over-rushed with work now, and are looking out for contracts more eagerly. There was but a single bid for the plumbing then, and five firms submitted estimates at last night's meeting. For the heating and ventilating, there were but four bidders for the last contract and ten last night. For the other contracts, there were more than three times the number of bidders.

The complete list of bids submitted at last night's meeting follows:

General contract: J. W. Lanning, Trenton, $73,979; Doe & Ferguson, New York, $76,000; Rimer, Apgar and Cuzen, Plainfield, $75,300; Cramp & Co., Philadelphia, $78,342; William H. Connolly, Newark, $78,600; Alexander Milne, Plainfield, $79,000; M. Byrnes Building Co., $79,212; H. Wales Lines Co., $79,743; John H. Parker Co., $79,753; John Abbott & Son, Plainfield, $81,724; E. M. Waldron & Co. $82,575; J. E. and A. L. Pennock, $82,847; Herman Probst, $91,200; Ira N. West, Plainfield, $91,690; Concrete Steel Co., New York, (except floor system), $95,798. Aside from these bids, Doe & Ferguson, the lowest bidders, submitted a bid of $74,900 for the work, substituting the Merritt system, and Cramp & Co. also put in an alternate bid, using blue stone, in which their figures were $76,942. Neither of these bids will be considered.

Heating and ventilating contract: George J. Tobin, Plainfield, $9,754 with thermostat, $9,050 without; John J. Hess, $10,385 with, $9,960 without; Den. J. Galbraith, $10,484 with, $9,898 without; J. A. Suter & Co., $10,510 with, $9,860 without; Robert Leinau, $10,578 with, $9,878 without; Walter & Chambers, $10,975 with, $10,350 without; Mutual Engineering Co., $11,757 with, $11,086 without; Etna Heating Co., $11,836 with, $10,900 without; W. J. Baldwin Jr. Heating Co, $12,875 with, $12,225 without; Burton P. Hall, $12,958 with, $12,146 without.

25 SAVED FROM DEATH

Hurled from Trucks, Car Hits Big Pole and Poises on Steep Enbankment.

WRECK AT SOUTH ELIZABETH.

Pole Held Fast at Right Time—50,000 Jersey Commuters Delayed—Brakeman May Die.

Twenty-five persons, one of whom will probably die, were injured as the result of the sidewiping of an eastbound passenger train by a heavy freight on the Pennsylvania Railroad this morning at South Elizabeth. The stoutness of a telegraph pole, which prevented a car containing twenty-five persons tumbling down a 20-foot embankment, was the only thing that stood between the passengers and probable death; and the fact that the passenger train was running at moderate speed was also a fortunate circumstance. Traffic on the road, both east and west, was tied up four hours.

The accident, which took place on the South street bridge, was due to the breaking of an axle on the fifth car of a freight train that was also bound eastward and was running alonside the psasenger train of five cars—which, filled with New York commuters, was going at ten miles an hour just after pulling out of the South Elizabeth station.

As the axle broke the freight car was thrown off the track and smashed into the first car of the passenger train, throwing the latter off its trucks and tumbling it on its side. The car, with twenty-two commuters, all in a heap, was rolling straight toward the embankment at the side of the track, when it struck the telegraph pole, and poised on the brink. As soon as it stopped those within began to crawl out of windows and doors.

Blood flowed from cuts due to broken glass, while many were so bruised they had to be dragged out of the car. As soon as ambulance arrived, the surgeons got to work, and found that none of the twenty-five passengers in the car had received serious injuries, although several were severely cut and apd all were suffering from the shock. When they saw how the car hung over the embankment they shuddered at what might have ben had the telegraph pole failed to hold.

Robert G. Wible, brakeman on the freight car which sidewiped the coach, was caught between the two cars and so seriously hurt it is feared he will die. Both legs were broken, and one will have to be amptated. In addition he received severe internal injuries.

The locomotive and the other cars of the passenger train remained on the rails, but all the passengers were severely jolted, and there was great excitement among them for a time. The freight train was almost entirely derailed and the tracks for a long distance were piled up with the wreckage. This tied up all trains in both directions. It is estimated that 50,000 commuters bound for New York were delayed and compelled to go over to the Jersey Central road.

Further Delay of Brick Pave.

It having been determined that the sidewalk in front of the Babcock building is not true to grade, a force of men is now employed there raising the flagging to the grade as established by City Engineer Gavett. It is particularly unfortunate that this has to be done at this time as it only serves to delay the brick pavement work. Mr. Gavett insists that one side of East Front street be completed before the concrete work is started on the other, and in consequence there is further delay.

Commencement Appointments.

Miss Esther Barton Crampton has been announced as the validictorian of the class of 1908, Plainfield High School, and Roy Clifton Whitall is to be the salutatorian. To be validictorian of the class means that Miss Crampton has a higher average in her school work for the four years' course than any of her classmates. Salutatorian is the second scholarship honor, this year awarded to Whitall. The two will make addresses from the commencement platform at the graduation exercises in June.

Dr. Hughes Again School Physician.

Dr. Fred. J. Hughes was re-elected as borough school physician for the 1908-1909 schol term, at a meeting of the North Plainfield Board of Education held at the Somerset street school last night. Bills amounting to about $300 were ordered paid.

JAILED FOR DESERTION; HE HAS AN "AFFINITY"

Charged with the non-support of his wife, who says he deerted her for another woman six months ago, Matthias J. Backer, whose home is on Cedar street, North Plainfield, has been committed indefinitely to jail in lieu of being able to raise $5 a week for the maintenance of Mrs. Backer and her four young children. The ruling was made by Justice Clark Mundy at a session of his court held at borough police headquarters last night.

The case is a typical "affinity" affair, involving Miss Annie Becker, a domestic formerly employed by a Plainfield family. She came to this city last summer, and has only lived in this country about three years, coming here from Germany. Mrs. Backer complained to Overseer of the Poor Fred Becker last winter, claiming that her husband had left her and the children and had gone to New York. A warrant for his arrest on charges on non-support was issued, but when he turned up, his wife consented to withdraw her charges if Backer would return home.

Shortly after his return to the borough, Backer, who it is alleged, spent much of the time with Miss Becker, left his family again, saying that he was going to New York for work. He was captured on a police warrant and his wife appeared to make charges of non-support against him at Mundy's court last night. Miss Becker was also present. The two women know each other, for Miss Becker is said to have been a frequent visitor at the North Plainfield house.

CONSUMERS' COMPANY GETS SCHOOL CONTRACT

The Consumers' Coal Company submitted the lowest bid for the winter's contract of coal for the city schools, when the bids were opened last night at the meeting of the Plainfield Board of Education at the High School. The contract price submitted was $3,233.30. The other bidders were Boice, Runyon & Co., $3,298.25 and Clark T. Rogers, New Market, $3,370.15.

These bids are for providing a total of 690 tons of coal of various sized to the city schools, and will be formally awarded to the lowest bidder at a special meeting of the Board of Education to be held at the school next week. The bids called for 265 tons of chestnut coal, 170 tons of egg, 130 tons of pea, and 125 tons of buckwheat. The lowest bidder quoted the following prices per ton: $5.45 for chestnut, egg and stove, $4.25 for pea and $3 for buckwheat.

Missing Boy Located.

Chief Kiely received word from the New York Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children today that Patrick Loughlin, Jr., of Washington street, who disapepared on April 23, was being held in custody in the society's rooms. It was stated that the boy had been picked up by the police at Liberty street and Broadway and had told a disconnected story about being abandoned by his uncle. Loughlin's father was informed and went after him.

ANTI-BRYAN MEN RULE DEMOCRATIC CONVENTION

Smith, Katzenbach, Davis add Hinchcliffe Named as Delegates-at-Large.

MARTINE GETS BOOBY PRIZE.

Farmer Orator Made Alternate—Tuttle District Delegate—Bolt in Congressional Caucus.

The Democratic Congressional convention was called promptly at 10 o'clock this morning at the Taylor Opera House, Trenton, when the district delegates were chosen to attend the National Convention to be held at Denver, July 7. John J. Lane, of Summit, was chosen chairman of the convention. The Democrats were not long in getting down to business and the district delegates were selected as follows:

First district—W. J. Thompson, of Camden; E. E. Grosscup, of Salem. Second district—Clarence Cole, of Atlantic; Mulford Ludlam, of Cumberland. Third district—J. N. Pidcock, of Hunterdon; C. H. Gallagher, of Mercer. Fourth district—W. Packer Runyon, of Middlesex; Melvin A. Wright, of Monmouth. Fifth district—W. E. Tuttle, of Union; Willard Cutler, of Morris. Sixth district—Frank Vannort, of Passaic; D. F. Platt, of Bergen. Seventh district—J. R. Hardin and J. F. Finnoch, of Essex. Eighth district—James Nugent and W. A. McCoy, of Essex. Ninth district—Eugent Kinkead and Otto Wittpenn, of Hudson. Tenth district—James Hammill and John Mahon, of Hudson.

H. C. Carroll, of Camden, was chosen as a successor to William Gourley, as a member of the National Democratic Committee.

The State convention was held at the same place this afternoon. Former Mayor George A. Viehman, of New Brunswick, presiding. Former Senator James Smith was in complete control, directing the choice of delegates-at-large and the alternaets. The delegates-at-large chosen are James Smith, of Newark; Frank Katzenbach, of Trenton; Senator John Hinchliffe, of Passaic, and Robert Davis, of Hudson.

It was then decided as a compliment to elect James E. Martine as one of the alternates, which was considered as rather shabby treatment for one who has done so much for the party.

In this connection there was a lively bout last night between Mr. Martine and James Nugent, who is James Smith's right-hand man. The two men met at the Trenton House, when Mr. Martine, addressing the man from Essex, said that he proposed to be a delegate-at-large to the National convention, and that

Suitable recognition of the handsome tablet in the First Baptist church in memory of Rev. Dr. D. J. Yerkes, for nearly fifty years its pastor, was taken on Sunday by Rev. Dr. J. A. Chambliss pastor, who recalled to loving memory the long and faithful service.

The tablet, a handsome bronze affair, was made by the Hinman Bronze Company, of this city, and is mounted on a marble slab of appropriate color. It occupies a prominent place just inside of the edifice, and directly overhead is an incandescent lamp, which is illuminated during the services. The tablet was procured by a committee of which Alexander Gilbert was the chairman, and its value is about $600, which amount is to be raised by the members of the church.

The tablet bears the following inscription: "In Loving memory of David Johns Yerkes, D. D., pastor of this church 1868—1905. To live in hearts we leave behind is not to die."

LOCAL AMUSEMENTS

"The Man of the Hour," which is to be at the New Plainfield theatre tonight, has received more space in weeklies and monthlies than any half dozen American plays ever produced. An example of how deep an impression it has made is shown by the fact that Current Literature, in many respects the most conservative magazine in the United States, made it the leading feature of its May number. "The Man of the Hour" in serial form recently ran through many issues of a New York evening newspaper and is condensed into a story of a dozen pages in the February number of Smith's Magazine.

Considerable interest has been excited by the announcement of the production of a new play at the New Plainfield theatre next Saturday afternoon and night, entitled "Fritz the Wandering Musician." The star of the new play is Joe Hortiz, the well-known tenor-singer, who has before pleased the patrons of the above theatre, in his past success, "Our Friend Fritz." The new play, which eminates from the fertile brain of Crane Wilbur, a playwright of much experience and success, will be an innovation to the theatre-going public in this city. Indeed, this fourthcoming production carries with it more customary interest. The tour of Mr. Hortiz in "Fritz the Wandering Musician," is limited this spring to but a few stops, so Manager Counihan is more than pleased to think that his theatre is included in the list of Mr. Hortiz's stops. Mr. Hortiz, as is well known, is a great favorite among the ladies and children and for their benefit has composed several new songs, which he will render, among them being a new lullaby, a love song and a new and novel flower song, which is said to be very inspiring and affecting.

Political Advice.

According to a newspaper, unfriendly to Bryan, he needs only sixty-three more delegates to ensure him the necessary two-thirds vote to give him the presidential nomination in the Democratic convention. Under these circumstances the anti-Bryan jig is probably up, and the Democrats of New Jersey might as well send Jim Martine to Denver as a delegate-at-large.—Elizabeth Journal.

Miss Margaret Ashbrook, of Philadelphia, is a guest of her uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Henry A. McGee, of the borough.

Former Councilman Oscar F. Neidt of Trenton, was severely scalded about the face, neck and breast by the explosion of a steam pipe in his place of manufacture, Saturday night. JUDGE VAIL ON BENCH AT SOMERSET'S COURT

Judge Vail, of Elizabeth, began his duties at the April term of the Somerset county courts in Somerville yesterday, when he started the trial of the Supreme and Circuit court cases. Case No. 1 on the Supreme list was taken up and as the plaintiff's evidence was not all in last night it will probably not go to the jury until late this afternoon or tomorrow morning.

It is the suit of Frederick Prout et al, partners, of Newark, against the Bernards Land and Sand Company. The firm was about to buy a large amountof land in Bernard's township and employed the Prouts, lawyers, to search the records of the same. This they did and rendered their bill, which the company claims is too much. Suit is to recover.

There are an unusually large number of cases ready for trial and Judge Vail will probably be busy in Somerville for two weeks.

BOROUGHITES TO VOTE ON SCHOOL BUDGET MAY 19

A special meeting of North Plainfield voters will be held at the Somerset street school Tuesday night, May 19, for the purpose of voting the school budget for the coming year. The budget was prepared by the various committees of the board in time to be voted upon at the regular school elections held March 17, but no action could be taken at that time because of pending legislation effecting the Perkins law, apportioning $10,700 to the borough schools from the railroad tax.

The Legislature ended its session without passing any bills to change the apportionment by this main stem railway tax, and the date of the meeting was announced at a meeting of the North Plainfield Board of Education last night. The year's budget is made up as follows: Current expenses, $11,500; manual training department, $1,700; repairs, $1,000. The total of $14,200 is $10,700 less than the amount asked for last year, the difference being made up by the Perkins law money. The railroad tax money is the apportionment for two years, and is only about eighty per cent. of the amount expected.

At last night's meeting, it was decided to urge the North Plainfield Council to install a fire alarm box at Watchung and Mountain avenues, at the Watchung school. The Board feels that the nearest fire box, 1,000 feet away at Westervelt and Mountain avenues, is not near enough to insure the safety of the pupils, and will present the recommendation for the box at the school at the meeting of the Council next week.

DUNELLEN AND VICINITY.

The Ladies Minstrels gave a performance at the New Market school last night, when about $50 was netted for the school piano fund. Despite the fact that this was the third time the minstrel women have been seen in their entertainment in this vicinity within about a week, the hall was well filled and the musical numbers and quips received enthusiastic applause. Miss Iva Dayton was again the interlocutor, the only performer whose face was clear of the burnt cork. Miss Anna R. Wilcox, of Plainfield, and Mrs. Walter G. Clawson were the bones; Mrs. Katherine L. Russell, of New York and Mrs. Ernest L. Feld were the tambos and in the chorus semi-circle were Miss Elizabeth Dufford, of Plainfield, Miss Bertha L. Nelson, Miss Ethel L. Garretson, Mrs. Charles S. Day, Miss Mabel Cole, Miss Sarah Cole, Miss Marjorie Burke, Miss Maud Rupell, Miss Lillian B. Garretson and Miss Lucy Clawson. Miss Irene Day was accompanist, and members of the Euterpean Orchestra assisted with the music.

The Epworth League of the Methodist church will hold a social at the parsonage tonight. Miss Kennedy will sing soprano in the church choir, beginning Sunday.

John Dineen, Jesse L. Ayers and Abner S. Coriell have been appointed a committee to arrange for an outdoor field meet by the Dunellen A. C. The meet will be held May 16, and the list of entries will include practically all of the club members. This is to be the first of a series of meets.

DRYDEN TO BE CHAIRMAN

SLAP AT THE NEW IDEA.

Governor Fort's Desire to Head Convention Not to Be Granted So the Story Goes.

That the New Jersey State Republican Committee will end its part of the battle with Gov. Fort by refusing to name him Chairman of the State convention at Trenton a week from today, and that ex-United States Senator John F. Dryden will be chosen for the seat of honor was the informal announcement made by Newark Republicans yesterday.

While no one of the State Committeemen would admit that this action had been decided upon, it was said that Mr. Dryden would make an excellent chairman.

The naming of Mr. Dryden, however, will have the effect of slapping not only Gov. Fort, but will also be something of a blow to Senator Colby and the New Idea Republicans. His selection, however, will not be unpopular, since he is a stanch Taft supporter, and it is thought that his influence will go a long way toward sending a unified instructed delegation for the Secreary of War to Chicago.

PRESIDENT SENDS MESSAGE

Special Document to Congress Urges Enactment of Certain Measures.

"CLASS CONSCIOUSNESS" EVIL.

Government. Not States. Should Control Large Corporations.

POSTAL BANKS ADVOCATED.

Contempt For Honesty While Seeking Profit Is Scored—Limit Should Be Placed on Labor Injunctions—The Strengthening of Antitrust Law Demanded—States Cannot Control National Commerce—Legitimate Combinations Should Be Permitted—Interest of Both Decent Corporations and Lawabiding Labor Unions at Heart—Exemptions of Unions From Operations of Incorporation Law Declared Unconstitutional — The "Boston Agreement."

Washington, April 27.—The president sent the following message to congress today:

To the Senate and House of Representatives:

In my message to the congress of March 25, 1908, I outlined certain measures which I believe the majority of our countrymen desire to have enacted into law at this time. These measures do not represent by any means all that I would like to see done if I thought it possible, but they do represent what I believe can now be done if an earnest effort toward this end is made.

Employers' Liability Act.

Since I wrote this message an employers' liability law has been enacted which, it is true, comes short of what ought to have been done, but which does represent a real advance. Apparently there is good ground to hope that there will be further legislation providing for recompensing all employees who suffer injury while engaged in the public service; that there will be a child labor law enacted for the District of Columbia; that the waterways commission will be continued with sufficient financial support to increase the effectiveness of its preparatory work; that steps will be taken to provide for such investigation into tariff conditions by the appropriate committee of the house of representatives and by government experts in the executive service as will secure the full information necessary for immediate action in revising the tariff at the hands of the congress elected next fall, and, finally, that financial legislation will be enacted providing for temporary measures for meeting any trouble that may arise in the next year or two, and for a commission of experts who shall thoroughly investigate the whole matter, both here and in the great commercial countries abroad, so as to be able to recommend legislation which will put our financial system on an efficient and permanent basis. It is much to be wished that one feature of the financial legislation of this session should be the establishment of postal savings banks. Ample appropriations should be made to enable the interstate commerce commission to carry out the very important feature of the Hepburn law which gives to the commission supervision and control over the accounting systems of the railways.

Benefit to Corrupt Railways.

Failure to provide means which will enable the commission to examine the books of the railways would amount to an attack on the law at its most vital point, and would benefit, as nothing else could benefit, those railways which are corruptly or incompetently managed. Forest reserves should be established throughout the Appalachian mountain region wherever it can be shown that they will have direct and real connection with the conservation and improvement of navigable rivers.

There seems, however, much doubt about two of the measures I have recommended. The measure to do away with abuse of the power of injunction and the measure or group of measures to strengthen and render both more efficient and more wise the control by the national government over the great corporations doing an interstate business.

First, as to the power of injunction and of punishment for contempt. In contempt cases, save where immediate action is imperative, the trial should be before another judge. As regards injunctions, some such legislation as that I have previously recommended should be enacted. They are blind who fail to realize the extreme bitterness caused among large bodies of worthy citizens by the use that has been repeatedly made of the power of injunction in labor disputes.

Limiting Labor Injunctions.

Those in whose judgment we have most right to trust are of the opinion that while much of the complaint against the use of the injunction is unwarranted, yet that it is unquestionably true that in a number of cases this power has been used to the grave injury of the rights of laboring men. I ask that it be limited in some such way as that I have already pointed out in my previous messages, for the very reason that I do not wish to see an embittered effort made to destroy it. It is unwise stubbornly to refuse to provide against a repetition of the abuses which have caused the present unrest. In a democracy like ours it is idle to expect permanently to thwart the determination of the great body of our citizens. It may be and often is the highest duty of a court, a legislature or an executive to resist and defy a gust of popular passion, and most certainly no public servant, whatever may be the consequences to himself, should yield to what he thinks wrong. But in a question which is emphatically one of public policy, the policy which the public demands is sure in the end to be adopted, and a persistent refusal to grant to a large portion of our people what is right is only too apt in the end to result in causing such irritation that when the right is obtained it is obtained in the course of a movement so ill considered and violent as to be accompanied by much that is wrong.

The process of injunction in labor disputes as well as where state laws are involved should be used sparingly and only when there is the clearest necessity for it. But it is one so necessary to the efficient performance of duty by the court on behalf of the nation that it is in the highest degree to be regretted that it should be liable to reckless use, for this reckless use tends to make honest men desire so to hamper its execution as to destroy its usefulness.

"Class Consciousness" Evil.

Every farsighted patriot should protest first of all against the growth in this country of that evil thing which is called "class consciousness." The demagogue, the sinister or foolish Socialist visionary who strives to arouse this feeling of class consciousness in our working people does a foul and evil thing, for he is no true American, he is no self respecting citizen of this republic. He forfeits his right to stand with manly self reliance on a footing of entire equality with all other citizens, who bows to envy and greed, who erects the doctrine of class hatred into a shibboleth, who substitutes loyalty to men of a particular status, whether rich or poor, for loyalty to those eternal and immutable principles of righteousness which bid us treat each man on his worth as a man without regard to his wealth or his poverty.

But evil though the influence of these demagogues and visionaries is, it is no worse in its consequences than the influence exercised by the man of great wealth or the man of power and position in the industrial world who by his lack of sympathy with and lack of understanding of, still more by any exhibition of uncompromising hostility to, the millions of our working people, tends to unite them against their fellow Americans who are better off in this world's goods. It is a bad thing to teach our working people that men of means, that men who have the largest proportion of the substantial comforts of life, are necessarily greedy, grasping and cold hearted and that they unjustly demand and appropriate more than their share of the substance of the many. Stern condemnation should be visited upon demagogue and visionary who teach this untruth, and even sterner upon those capitalists who are in truth grasping and greedy and brutally disregardful of the rights of others and who by their actions teach the dreadful lesson far more effectively than any mere preacher of unrest. A "class grievance" left too long without remedy breeds "class consciousness" and therefore class resentment.

Strengthening of Antitrust Law.

The strengthening of the antitrust law is demanded upon both moral and economic grounds. Our purpose in strengthening it is to secure more effective control by the national government over the business use of the vast masses of individual, and especially of corporate wealth, which at the present time monopolize most of the interstate business of the country, and we believe the control can best be exercised by preventing the growth of abuses rather than merely by trying to destroy them when they have already grown. In the highest sense of the word this movement for thorough control of the business use of this great wealth is conservative. We are trying to steer a safe middle course, which alone can save us from a plutocratic class government on the one hand or a socialistic class government on the other, either of which would be fraught with disaster to our free institutions, state and national. We are trying to avoid alike the evils which would flow from government ownership of the public utilities, by which interstate commerce is chiefly carried on, and the evils which flow from the riot and chaos of unrestricted individualism. There is grave danger to our free institutions in the corrupting influence exercised by great wealth suddenly concentrated in the hands of the few. We should in sane manner try to remedy this danger in spite of the sullen opposition of these few very powerful men and with the full purpose to protect them in all their rights at the very time that we require them to deal rightfully with others. When with steam and electricity modern business conditions went through the astounding revolution which in this country began over half a century ago, there was at first much hesitation as to what particular governmental agency should be used to grapple with the new conditions. At almost the same time, about twenty years since, the effort was made to control combinations by regulating them through the interstate commerce commission and to abolish them by means of the antitrust act, the two remedies therefore being in part mutually incompatible. The interstate commerce law has produced admirable results, especially since it was strengthened by the Hepburn law two years ago. The antitrust law, though it worked some good, because anything is better than anarchy and complete absence of regulation, nevertheless has proved in many respects not merely inadequate, but mischievous. Twenty years ago the misuse of corporate power had produced almost every conceivable form of abuse and had worked the gravest injury to business morality and the public conscience. For a long time federal regulation of interstate commerce had been purely negative, the national judiciary merely acting in isolated cases to restrain the state from exercising a power which it was clearly unconstitutional as well as unwise for them to exercise, but which nevertheless the national government itself failed to exercise. Thus the corporations monopolizing commerce made the law for themselves, state power and common law being inadequate to accomplish any effective regulation and the national power not yet having been put forth. The result was mischievous in the extreme and only shortsighted and utter failure to appreciate the grossness of the evils to which the lack of regulation gave rise can excuse the well meaning persons who now desire to abolish the antitrust law outright or to amend it by simply condemning "unreasonable" combinations.

To Permit Combinations.

Power should unquestionably be lodged somewhere in the executive branch of the government to permit combinations which will further the public interest, but it must always be remembered that as regards the great and wealthy combinations through which most of the interstate business of today is done the burden of proof should be on them to show that they have a right to exist No judicial tribunal has the knowledge or the experience to determine in the first place whether a given combination is advisable or necessary in the interest of the public. Somebody, whether a commission or a bureau under the department of commerce and labor, should be given this power. My personal belief is that ultimately we shall have to adopt a national incorporation law, though I am well aware that this may be impossible at present. Over the actions of the executive body in which the power is placed the courts should possess merely a power of review analogous to that obtaining in connection with the work of the interstate commerce commission at present. To confer this power would not be a leap in the dark. It would merely be to carry still further the theory of effective governmental control of corporations which was responsible for the creation of the interstate commerce commission and for the enlargement of its powers and for the creation of the bureau of corporations.

The interstate commerce legislation has worked admirably. It has benefited the public. It has benefited honestly managed and wisely conducted railroads, and in spite of the fact that the business of the country has enormously increased, the value of this federal legislation has been shown by the way in which it has enabled the federal government to correct the most pronounced of the great and varied abuses which existed in the business world twenty years ago, while the many abuses that still remain emphasize the need of further and more thorough going legislation. Similarly the bureau of corporations has amply justified its creation. In other words, it is clear that the principles employed to remedy the great evils in the business world have worked well, and they can now be employed to correct the evils that further commercial growth has brought more prominently to the surface. The powers and scope of the interstate commerce commission and of any similar body, such as the bureau of corporations, which has to deal with the matter in hand, should be greatly enlarged so as to meet the requirements of the present day.

States and National Commerce.

The decisions of the supreme court in the Minnesota and North Carolina cases illustrates how impossible is a dual control of national commerce. The states cannot control it. All they can do is to control interstate commerce, and this now forms but a small fraction of the commerce carried by the railroads through each state. Actual experience has shown that the effort at state control is sure to be nullified in one way or another sooner or later. The nation alone can act with effectiveness and wisdom. It should have the control both of the business and of the agent by which the business is done, for any attempt to separate this control must result in grotesque absurdity. This means that we must rely upon national legislation to prevent the commercial abuses that now exist and the others that are sure to arise unless some efficient governmental body has adequate power of control over them. At present the failure of the congress to utilize and exercise the great powers conferred upon it as regards interstate commerce leaves this commerce to be regulated not by the state nor yet by the congress, but by the occasional and necessarily inadequate and one sided action of the federal judiciary. However upright and able a court is it cannot act constructively. It can only act negatively or destructively as an agency of government. And this means that the courts are and must always be unable to deal effectively with a problem like the present, which requires constructive action. A court can decide what is faulty, but it has no power to make better what it thus finds to be faulty. There should be an efficient executive body created with power enough to correct abuses and scope enough to work the complex problems that this great country has developed. It is not sufficient objection to say that such a body may be guilty of unwisdom or of abuses. Any governmental body, whether a court or a commission, whether executive, legislative or judicial, if given power enough to enable it to do effective work for good must also inevitably receive enough power to make it possibly effective for evil.

Therefore it is clear that (unless a national incorporation law can be forthwith enacted) some body or bodies in the executive service should be given power to pass upon any combination or agreement in relation to interstate commerce, and every such combination or agreement not thus approved should be treated as in violation of law and prosecuted accordingly. The issuance of the securities of any combination doing interstate business should be under the supervision of the national government.

Question of Constitutionality.

A strong effort has been made to have labor organizations completely exempted from any of the operations of this law, whether or not their acts are in restraint of trade. Such exception would in all probability make the bill unconstitutional, and the legislature has no more right to pass a bill without regard to whether it is constitutional than the courts have lightly to declare unconstitutional a law which the legislature has solemnly enacted. The responsibility is as great on the one side as the other, and an abuse of power by the legislature in one direction is equally to be condemned with an abuse of power by the courts in the other direction. It is not possible wholly to except labor organizations from the workings of this law, and they who insist upon totally excepting them are merely providing that their status shall be kept wholly unchanged and that they shall continue to be exposed to the action which they now dread. Obviously an organization not formed for profit should not be required to furnish statistics in any way as complete as those furnished by organizations for profit. Moreover, so far as labor is engaged in production only, its claims to be exempted from the antitrust law are sound. This would substantially cover the rights of laborers to combine, to strike peaceably and to enter into trade agreements with the employers. But when labor undertakes in a wrongful manner to prevent the distribution and sale of the products of labor, as by certain forms of the boycott, it has left the field of production, and its action may plainly be in restraint of interstate trade and must necessarily be subject to inquiry, exactly as in the case of any other combination for the same purpose, so as to determine whether such action is contrary to sound public policy. The heartiest encouragement should be given to the wage workers to form labor unions and to enter into agreements with their employers, and their right to strike so long as they act peaceably must be preserved. But we should sanction neither a boycott nor a blacklist, which would be illegal at common law.

Measures of Double Interest.

The measures I advocate are in the interest both of decent corporations and of lawabiding labor unions. They are moreover pre-eminently in the interest of the public, for in my judgment the American people have definitely made up their minds that the days of the reign of the great law defying and law evading corporations are over and that from this time on the mighty organizations of capital necessary for the transaction of business under modern conditions, while encouraged so long as they act honestly and in the interest of the general public, are to be subjected to careful supervision and regulation of a kind so effective as to insure their acting in the interest of the people as a whole.

Allegations are often made to the effect that there is no real need for these laws looking to the more effective control of the great corporations upon the ground that they will do their work well without such control. I call your attention to the accompanying copy of a report just submitted by Mr. Nathan Matthews, chairman of the finance commission, to the mayor and city council of Boston, relating to certain evil practices of various corporations which have been bidders for furnishing to the city iron and steel. This report shows that there have been extensive combinations formed among the various corporations which have business with the city of Boston, including, for instance, a carefully planned combination embracing practically all the firms and corporations engaged in structural steel work in New England. This combination included substantially all the local concerns and many of the largest corporations in the United States engaged in manufacturing or furnishing structural steel for use in any part of New England. It affected the states, the cities and towns, the railroads and street railways, and generally all persons having occasion to use iron or steel for any purpose in that section of the country. As regards the city of Boston, the combination resulted in parceling out the work by collusive bids, plainly dishonest and supported by false affirmations. In its conclusion the commission recommends as follows:

The commission believes that an example should be made of these men and that the members of the "Boston agreement," or at least all those who in October and November, 1905, entered in the fraudulent competitions for the Cove street draw span and the Brookline street bridge should be brought before a federal grand jury for violation of the act of congress of July 2, 1890. The three years' limitation for participation in these transactions has not yet elapsed, and the evidence obtained by the commission is so complete that there should be no difficulty in the government's securing a conviction in this case. To this end I have submitted this report to the department of justice for thorough investigation and for action, if action shall prove practicable.

Surely such a state of affairs as that above set forth emphasizes the need of further federal legislation not merely because of the material benefits such legislation will secure, but, above all, because this federal action should be part, and a large part, of the campaign to waken our people as a whole to a lively and effective condemnation of the low standard of morality implied in such conduct on the part of great business concerns. The first duty of every man is to provide a livelihood for himself and for those dependent upon him. It is from every standpoint desirable that each of our citizens should endeavor by hard work and honorable methods to secure for him and his such a competence as will carry with it the opportunity to enjoy in a reasonable fashion the comforts and refinements of life, and furthermore, the man of great business ability who obtains a fortune in upright fashion inevitably in so doing confers a benefit upon the community as a whole and is entitled to reward, to respect and to admiration.

Moral Meaning of Methods.

Comment on the moral meaning of these methods and transactions would seem superfluous, but as they were defended at the public hearings of the commission and asserted to be common and entirely proper incidents of business life, and as these practices have been freely resorted to by some of the largest industrial corporations that the world has ever known, the commission deems it proper to record its own opinion.

The "Boston Agreement."

The commission dislikes to believe that these practices are, as alleged, established by the general custom of the business community, and this defense itself if unchallenged amounts to a grave accusation against the honesty of present business methods. To answer an invitation for public or private work by sending in what purports to be genuine bids, but what in reality are collusive figures purposely made higher than the bid which is known will be submitted by one of the supposed competitors, is an act of plain dishonesty.

To support these misrepresentations by false affirmations in writing that the bids are submitted in good faith and without fraud, collusion or connection with any other bidder is a positive and deliberate fraud, the successful bidder in the competition is guilty of obtaining money by false pretenses and the others have made themselves parties to a conspiracy clearly unlawful at the common law. Where, as in the case of the "Boston agreement," a number of the most important manufacturers and dealers in structural steel in this country, including the American Bridge company, one of the constituent members of the United States Steel corporation, have combined together for the purpose of raising prices by means of collusive bids and false representations, their conduct is not only repugnant to common honesty, but is plainly obnoxious to the federal statute known as the Sherman or antitrust law.

Contempt For Honesty.

But among the many kinds of evil, social, industrial and political, which is our duty as a nation sternly to combat, there is none at the same time more base and more dangerous than the greed which treats the plain and simple rules of honesty with cynical contempt if they interfere with making a profit, and as a nation we cannot be held guiltless if we condone such action. The man who preaches hatred of wealth honestly acquired, who inculcates envy and jealousy and slanderous ill will toward these of his fellows who by thrift, energy and industry have become men of means is a menace to the community. But his counterpart in evil is to be found in that particular kind of multimillionaire who is almost the least enviable and is certainly one of the least admirable of all our citizens, a man of whom it has been well said that his face has grown hard and cruel while his body has grown soft, whose son is a fool and his daughter a foreign princess, whose nominal pleasures are at best those of a tasteless and extravagant luxury and whose real delight, whose real life work, is the accumulation and use of power in its most sordid and least elevating form. In the chaos of an absolutely unrestricted commercial individualism under modern conditions this is a type that becomes prominent as inevitably as the marauder baron became prominent in the physical chaos of the dark ages. We are striving for legislation to minimize the abuses which give this type its flourishing prominence, partly for the sake of what can be accomplished by the legislation itself and partly because the legislation marks our participation in a great and stern moral movement to bring our ideals and our conduct into measurable accord.

THEODORE ROOSEVELT.

The White House, April 27, 1908.

A Scotch Excuse.

A celebrated Scottish lawyer had to address the Caledonian equivalent of our supreme court. His "pleading" occupied an entire day. After seven hours of almost continuous oratory he went home and at supper was asked to conduct family worship. As he was exhausted his devotions were brief.

"I am ashamed of ye," said the old mother. "To think ye could talk for seeven hoors up at the court and dismiss your Maker in seeven minutes."

"Aye; verra true," was the reply. "But ye maun mind that the Lord isna sae full in the uptak as thae judge bodies."

The New Mayor

Based on G. H. Broadhurst's Successful Play

The Man of The Hour

By ALBERT PAYSON TERHUNE.

Copyright, 1907, by George H. Broadhurst.

"I only want to help you, Alwyn. I can't bear to see you miserable. A woman's wit and a mother's love are often a combination that can solve problems beyond even the wisest men's powers of logic. Let me help you."

"I was trying to make up my mind," vaguely replied Bennett, sorely distressed by her pleading, "whether a man ought to follow his conscience, even if it leads to heartbreak for those he loves, or whether he ought to let conscience go by the board for once and protect the happiness of his loved ones."

"Alwyn! How can you hesitate a second over such a question. One must do right, no matter what the consequence."

"I don't know about that," he said moodily.

"You know it perfectly well. It is what your father would have advised and— But, Alwyn, you surely are not making yourself unhappy over a mere supposititious case?"

"Well," he continued, "let us take a 'mere supposititious case' if you like. Suppose, for instance, that a man holding a position of trust had had a father whose memory he honored and revered as I do my own father's"—

"Yes?" prompted Mrs. Bennett as he paused.

"Suppose some one tempts him to betray his position of trust, even as I have lately been tempted, and threatens in case of his refusal to make public certain facts which would prove his dead father to have been a scoundrel. Now, what should the man do? Should he let his father's sacred memory be trampled in the mud, let his duty go by default and save"—

"It would be an awful responsibility to decide such a question," said Mrs. Bennett, with a little shudder, "but there could be only one reply."

"And that is?"

"He must do his duty, be the results what they may."

"You really think so?"

"There can be no doubt. Right is right and"—

"It shall be as you say," groaned Alwyn.

"What?" queried Mrs. Bennett, startled at the despair in his voice. "Do you mean it is an actual case? Some friend of yours, perhaps?"

Bennett nodded.

"Oh, the poor, poor fellow!" she sympathized. "What a terrible position for him! It was he, perhaps, that I heard talking to you in here just now. No wonder he seemed excited! The sins of the fathers shall be visited upon the children even unto the"—

"It is something less hard on the children than on the wives," mused Bennett, half to himself.

"The wives? Your friend has a mother living? That makes it doubly hard. Oh, my son, every day I thank God in all humility that my husband lived so blameless a life and left so honored a name! How grateful you and I both ought to be for"—

"It is easy enough to decide for some one you have never seen," retorted Bennett almost rudely, "but suppose the dishonest man in my story had been father and"—

"I refuse to suppose anything of the sort!" interrupted his mother indignantly, rising to her feet. "I wonder that you can speak so! How can you suggest so horrible a thing?"

"Just a thoughtless, tactless speech of mine. That's all," lied Alwyn. "It's very late. You'll have a headache, I'm afraid. Won't you go to bed?"

"Yes. It is late, and I'm keeping you up. Good night, dear. I wish your friend"—

She checked herself suddenly, with a little gasp. Bennett, glancing up to her, saw that her eyes were riveted on a bit of pasteboard lying on the corner of his desk directly beneath the reading lamp.

It was Horrigan's card.

Slowly the mother's gaze shifted from the card to her son. From her face the color had been crushed by some swift emotion that left it very old, pale and sunken.

"Mr. Horrigan!" she murmured. "It was he who was your visitor tonight? Surely he isn't the sort of a man to care about his father's reputation for honesty. He"—

"You're tired, mother," interrupted Bennett in haste. "Won't you"—

"Wait!" she panted. "His visit here—Alwyn!" her voice rising to a wail of panic stricken appeal. "Did—did that man dare to hint anything against your father? Tell me the truth! I have a right to know. Did he?"

Alwyn bowed his head in silence.

"Tell me what he said!"

"He said," muttered Bennett, almost incoherently, "he said my father made his fortune—by—graft!"

"And you thrashed him and threw him out of the house?" she cried, her old eyes ablaze.

"No."

"Alwyn!"

"He—he proved what he said!"

"It is a lie! A wicked, abominable lie!"

"It is the truth, mother. Would I have told you such a thing—would Horrigan have left this room alive—if it were not true?"

A silence—dreadful in its intensity—fell over the room. Alwyn dared not look at his mother. At last she spoke:

"I must know more. I refuse to believe one word. You spoke of proofs. What are they?"

The Paterson Evening News Says:

"The Prudential reports a great increase in business. It deserves it. It sells insurance at a profit and the insurer gets his protection at a fixed price. The Prudential pays its dividends in the shape of reduced premiums. The man who insures on this common-sense plan keeps the dividends in his pocket. He knows just how much a thousand dollars insurance costs him. There is no guesswork and no disappointments. The Prudential way is the common-sense business way to insure."

Small Blaze Calls Out Department.

A small blaze discovered by a neighbor in the office of Robert Murray at 715 West Front street, caused an alarm of fire to be sent in from box 83, at Grant avenue and West Front street, at 11:45 o'clock, last night. The fire was quickly extinguished and no damage resulted. An investigation showed that someone had broken a pane of glass in the window and it is thought that a lighted match was dropped inside.

Thomas Rutledge, of Franklin avenue, who has been confined to his home by illness, is improving slowly.

Nearly Buried Alive.

Donato Izzidore, one of the Italians employed on the Southside sanitary sewer, was caught in a slight cavein this morning and partially buried. Fellow-workmen got busy right away and soon rescued the man. He was removed to Muhlenberg Hospital, but an examination showed that he was not injured. He was discharged a little later and returned to work.

MR. AND MRS. J. H. CASE BEREAVED OF DAUGHTER.

Edith Harding Case, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Herbert Case, of Duer street, died last night at a private hospital in South Orange. The little girl underwent an operation, last Tuesday, for a trouble long-standing and while it was considered successful, pneumonia developed, causing death.

The little girl was in her ninth year and was of a very lovable disposition. She had many friends in the neighborhood of her home and the parents have the sympathy of all in their bereavement. They were at her bedside when the end came. The funeral will be held at the parents' home and will be private.

ELIZABETH MAN WEDS BOROUGH YOUNG WOMAN.

Miss Jessie Totten, of the borough, and Ferry Day Smith, of Elizabeth, were married Saturday night by Rev. J. O. McKelvey at his home on Grandview avenue. The ceremony was witnessed only by a few relatives and intimate friends and was followed by a reception at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Mantz, of Somerset street. Thirty guests were in attendance.

Following a wedding trip of a week or ten days, Mr. and Mrs. Smith will make their home at Elizabeth where the groom is engaged in business. Both were the recipients of numerous presents befitting the occasion.

—Miss May M. Burke, of the borough, has returned from Brooklyn, where she attended a farewell dinner given by Mr. and Mrs. F. K. McKee, previous to their departure for Europe to spend the summer.

BOY'S EYE GRAZED BY EXPLODING CARTRIDGE

Because he pounded a blank cartridge shell with a hammer, while at play in front of his home yesterday, William Drake, the twelve-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Chauncey Barber, of Somerset street, may lose the sight in his right eye. The accident was of an unusual nature, in thatinstead of having flying powder grains or wads inflict the wound, the copper shell struck the boy just beneath the eyebrow, escaping the right eye-ball by a fraction of an inch and lodging in the flesh above the eye.

No one knows where young Drake found the cartridge, but the accident followed his attempt to break it open with a hammer. He laid it on the sidewalk and at the first blow the cartridge exploded. It was standing on end on the stone, so the copper shell flew into the boy's right eye. Dr. A. H. Dundon was summoned and it was found necessary to probe for the shell. An examination showed that the eye-ball had been missed by a veritable hairs-breadth.

The boy is resting comfortably at his home today and the physician believes there is little danger from blood poisoning.

DUNELLEN YOUNG WOMAN INJURED IN RUNAWAY

In a runaway accident on West Front street near Grant avenue at 4:45 yesterday afternoon, Miss Lillian Sturman, of Dunellen, was quite badly hurt, and her father, Charles Sturman, was severely shaken up. A runabout they occupied was hurled against the water trough in front of the Stevens coal yard and both were pitched headlong, landing twenty feet away. Miss Sturman has possible internal hurts and had to be attended by Dr. A. K. Brennan before she could be removed to her home.

Mr. and Miss Sturman were returning from a shopping trip in the city and when at Plainfield avenue and Front street the horse became frightened by the breaking of a trace. With enough of the harness holding fast to keep the vehicle with it, the animal started off at a mad gallop. Mr. Sturman made ineffectual attempts to check its speed but without success and when Grant avenue was approached the runaway became pocketed by trolley cars coming from opposite directions. It sought to swing around one of them and struck the trough.

The wagon was left a wreck after the collison and the horse pulled itself clear to continue the flight. It was caught by several of George O. Steven's employees at the Grant avenue corner.

Curley—Halligan.

Miss Mary Halligan, of North Plainfield, and Thomas Curley, of Elizabethport, were married Sunday afternoon at the home of the bride's cousin, Mrs. William Messler, of Sponer avenue. Following a week at Atlantic City, Mr. and Mrs. Curley will make their home at Elizabeth, the groom being employed as engineer at the Shooter Island shipyards.

ANTI-BRYAN MEN RULE

he wanted Essex county to stand by him and show her colors. In replying, Nugent simply shrugged his shoulders.

"You can talk as you like," said Mr. Martine, "but I want to tell you that Bryan's nomination is inevitable and I believe that he will be elected President."

"You are a good Democrat," replied Mr. Nugent, "and we like you over in Essex. When Bryan is elected you can have your choice of being Ambassador to England, Consul to Dahomy or Secretary of Agriculture, but you cannot go to Denver."

This declaration was more than the "Farmer Orator" could stand and in parting company with Nugent, he added: "Well, you can go to the dickens." Those who heard the conversation says that Mr. Martine was deeply hurt by the turndown. That Nugent knew what he he was talking about was shown this afternoon in the election of delegates to go to Denver.

James E. Martine was today rewarded for his faithfulness to the Democratic party by being awarded the booby prize in the choice of delegates to attend the National Democratic Convention at Denver. He made a strong fight to be selected a delegate-at-large, but the best he could get was that of alternate. There was a determined effort and a deliberate plan to kill all Bryan sentiment and those opposed to the Nebraskan were successful when the Congressional and State conventions were held today.

The Union county delegation held a caucus this morning prior to the Congressional convention, when successful efforts were made to unseat S. J. Cox, of Cranford, as chairman of the delegation. He is a Bryan man and the "antis," composed of the Elizabeth delegates, bitterly opposed him.

A clever ruse was adopted to accomplish the purpose. Mr. Cox was persuaded to call the delegates together on the pretext that they wanted to act on a certain matter, and as soon as the meeting was called, Robert McAdams, of Elizabeth, moved that Edward Nugent be made chairman. This precipitated a bitter fight which threatened to disrupt the entire delegation. J. V. F. Dilts and Patrick Reville led in the opposition to the movement, claiming that Cox could not legally be unseated, while the latter at first refused to entertain any motion to that effect. The determination to enforce the unit rule only added to the general excitement. Finally realizing that he was beaten, Mr. Cox consented to entertain a motion, which was carried. He then retired.

Immediately afterward, Fred Zior, the secretary of the Union county delegation acting as temporary chairman, named Edward Nugent as chairman. He was elected. At the same time all of the Plainfield delegates, excepting Dilts bolted the caucus, and as they went out they declared that their action was not due to any feeling against Nugent, but they objected on the grounds of the right of the delegation to make the change.

The caucus then endorsed W. E. Tuttle, of Westfield, as one of the district delegates from the Fifth District, and Willard Cutler, of Morris, as the second delegate. William M. Coler, of Summit and Thomas A. Hoagland, of Warren, were endorsed as district alternates.

In the appointment of committees, G. H. Moore, of Elizabeth, was placed on the committee on resolutions, W. K. Whitely, of Westfield, on credentials; Robert McAdams, of Elizabeth, on organization; Alfred Stein, of Elizabeth, on vice-president; W. J. McCloud, of Elizabeth, on vacancies.

It was then decided that the chairman should cast the seventy-one votes for the county delegation. This brought forth a protest from J. V. F. Dilts, who declared that the action was not only undemocratic, but he would not stand for such a gag rule and he then walked out of th caucus, after which the motion prevailed that the chairman cast the ballot for the delegation. An adjournment followed.

Chairman Hudspeth had a long conference at noon with Senator Smith and the old boss finally conceded that it would be expedient to allow Bob Davis, of Hudson, to be elected as a delegate at large. Hudspeth, himself, declined to allow his own name to be used in connection with the delegateship-at-lrage, but insisted that Davis should take his place.

G.O.P. PRIMARIES TAME

No Contests Here and Few in the County Which Favors Ackerman for Delegate.

UNION COUNTY FOR TAFT.

Buckle, Hall, Smith, Newcorn, Runyon, Morse and Buxton Are the Local Delegates.

At the Republican primary elections for delegates to the Congressional and State conventions held in Union county last night forty-three delegates were chosen, all of whom will support Ernest R. Ackerman for national delegate from the 5th Congress district. Senator Ackerman is for Taft and Fort. For delegates-at-large to Chicago Senator Kean is favored as against Governor Fort. The others are Senator Briggs, David Baird and Franklin Murphy.

Morristown Republicans last night elected one set of delegates to attend both the State and 5th Congress district conventions, as follows: George 9. Squire, George T. Allen, Charles McCollum and H. A. Vangilder. Morris county will have twenty-three delegates in the convention favoring David Baird, Senator Kean, Senator Briggs and Governor Fort as delegates to the national convention.

The delegates elected to the Republican State convention last night at Rahway are Mayor Dr. G. B. Holmes, David Armstrong, Harry Simmons, Sr., Dr. John M. Randolph and Charles B. Carman, all Taft men.

Former Mayor James F. Buckle, Councilman Robert E. Hall, Charles Burdette Morse, County Chairman Frank H. Smith, Assessor H. C. Runyon, District Court Judge William Newcorn and Councilman Herbert Buxton will compose the Plainfield delegation at the State and Congressional conventions. There was little interest, as a rule, taken in the primaries here last night and no semblance of any contests for delegates.

Sixty-four votes were cast for former Mayor James F. Buckle at the polling place in the first ward, Watchung avenue and Second street. Proportionately, this ward had a better turn-out of voters than the wards where two delegates were to be chosen. The primary officers were: William Addis, Sr., chairman; Armstrong Mulford, secretary; Councilman Rolph I. Tolles, judge, and Freeholder S. P. T. Wilbur and F. W. Dunn tellers.

Little interest was shown in the second ward, where but twenty-two votes were cast, although the registry list gives the ward two delegates. There was no opposition to the regular ballot and Robert E. Hall and Charles B. Morse were elected. The results of the balloting: Robert E. Hall, 20; Charles B. Morse, 19; William N. Runyon, 1; D. F. Ginna, 1; H. D. Hibbard, 1; Arthur Lovell, 1.

Howard C. Tracy was chairman of the committee and Frank L. Holt secretary. The tellers were George Ballentyne and Arthur Lovell.

Mayor Fisk acted as chairman at the third ward primaries held at the Casino. George W. V. Moy was secretary and Major Maze Edwards and Theodore LaRue acted as tellers. There were about thirty votes cast, the candidacy of County Chairman Frank H. Smith being unopposed.

In the fourth ward, H. C. Runyon called the meeting to order and Julius Williams was chosen as chairman, Abraham Angleman acting as secretary. W. L. Hetfield, Jr., and Fred Schomp acted as tellers. H. C. Runyon, Herbert Buxton and William Newcorn were named as delegates. Eighty-seven votes were polled.

At Scotch Plains, William Randolph Buckley acted as chairman with James Johnston as secretary. George H. Johnston was chosen as delegate with power to name his own alternate.

J. E. Flammer acted as chairman of the primaries at Watchung. J. P. Cooper was named as delegate to the State and Richard Moldenke to the Congressional convention.

Former Mayor N. B. Smalley and Alexander Milne were elected delegates to the State convention and Allen B. Laing and Robert Clark, Jr. were chosen to represent boroughites at the Congressional convention at the primaries held in the Somerset street school last night. Seventy-five ballots were cast, and there was no opposition. The board organized as follows: Councilman L. B. Woolston, chairman; W. L. Smalley, Jr., secretary and Alfred R. Tranchard, judge. The tellers were Councilman Morris VanArdsdale and former Councilman Charles Lee.

State Senator Joseph S. Frelinghuysen and Lewis Thompson were elected delegates to the State convention at Somerville last night. The same two will act as delegates to the Congressional convention.

Manager Counihan has received word from Miss Alberta Gallatin, who organized the stock company that is to appear at the New Plainfield theatre, that rehearsals are now underway in New York and that the bill for the opening week on May 18, will be "The Cowboy and the Lady," Nat Goodwin's greatest success. It will be followed in turn by "Held by the Enemy," "Dorothy Vernon of Haddon Hall," "Charlie's Aunt," "The Wife," and other well known comedies and dramas.

QUARTET CHOIR DELIGHTS AUDIENCE AT TRINITY

The musicale by the quartet choir of Trinity Reformed church, assisted by Miss Justine Roberts, dramatic reader, given in the Sunday-school room of the church, last night, attracted a larger audience than on the first occasion several weeks ago, and the program, a delightful one, was greatly enjoyed by everyone. The affair was under the auspices of the Ladies' Christian Work Society of the church, and much credit is due the members for the success attained. The attractive decorations were the work of Mrs. George W. Cole and Mrs. L. B. Van Camp, and they were much admired.

The program consisted of ten numbers, but they were so well received that an encore was given each one. The quartet, solo and duet numbers were heartily applauded, while Miss Roberts was given quite an ovation adding to her popularity among Plainfielders as a reciter of unusual ability.

The first number was "The Miller's Wooing," by the quartet, after which Fred S. Cutter, basso, sang as a solo "Song of a Heart," by Tunison. As an encore he gave "The Turnkey's Song." By request Miss Roberts gave as her first selection, "The Shop Girl," followed with child impersonations and one entitled "Talk," with piano accompaniment, for encores.

As a solo number Miss S. Etta Raybert, soprano, sang "Carmena," by Wilson, in which she had an excellent opportunity to display her attractive voice. She was given a very hearty encore, responding with one of her best selections. Part first of the program was concluded with a tenor solo by Edmund D. Young, "Wherever Thou Art," by Holst, with an encore.

Miss Roberts opened part second with a selection of the Southern dialect, entitled "Cindy," to which she was obliged to respond to an encore. Miss Winifred Carroll's solo number was "The Sands O'Dee," by Clay, and being generously encored she responded with another selection. A number which seemed especially to please the audience was a duet by Miss Raybert and Mr. Cutter, entitled "The Angel Spirit." The two voices blended in perfect harmony, possessing strength and sweetness which made the rendition so effective.

The next selection by Miss Roberts, "The Sewing Lady," was one of her best and for an encore she gave "Who's Dat Knocking." Another recitation that found favor was the one "Who's Afraid." The musicale closed with two selections by the quartet, "Kate," by Hawley, and "All Through the Night," by Damrosch.

The quartet is composed of Miss S. Eetta Raybert, soprano; Miss Winifred Carroll, mezzo-contralto; Fred S. Cutter, bass, and Edmund D. Young, tenor. Miss Lillian A. Force was the accompanist of the evening and her work added much to the success of the affair.

Want Grade of Street Changed.

Henry Leifke, E. M. Laing and other owners of property on Chatham street, near Elm place, are making efforts to have the borough officials change the grade of the street at Chatham street and Elm place, so that in heavy rains it will not be flooded as at present. The matter has been taken up with the Borough Council and Mayor Townsend and the latter in speaking of the asked-for improvement, yesterday, said that he believed that it could be accomplished in a way that would meet the approval of the property-owners. Considerable money has been expended in that section of the borough for improvements and the property-owners believe that their request is a fair one.

DESERTED WIFE WANTS TO SELL HER AUTOMOBILE

No money has yet been furnished for the release of Matthias J. Backer, the boroughite held under $100 bonds on charges of desertion preferred by his wife, who lives on Pearl street, and he is still a prisoner in the borough lock-up. His wife and four children are without means of support and Mrs. Backer said today that she was anxious to sell an automobile, bought in the palmy days before man-and-wife-and-affinity troubles began. The machine is a Jackson car, "in good condition," and there will be no quibble as to price, because the sale means bread and butter for the woman and her four children.

It was at first reported that Mrs. Backer wanted to sell the machine to secure the release of her husband. This was denied by the wife who says she will continue to press the charge. Miss Annie Becker, the alleged "affinity" in the case, has been in conference with Mrs. Backer, and the two women agree that the husband is a worthless one. Mayor Townsend and Mrs. Backer had a long conference this morning, the Mayor seeking an adjustment of the family quarrel. The woman remained firm, stating that if she could only dispose of the automobile she would be independent at least temporarily.

Backer spends most of his time brooding over his troubles in his cell. There was no foundation to the rumor that he attempted to commit suicide, but the wayward husband had to have the services of a physician in his cell yesterday afternoon.

CITY FIREMEN RESCUE FEAR-STRICKEN FELINE

Chased by a dog to the top of a barn at East Seventh and Washington streets three days ago, a terror-stricken cat was rescued from its lofty perch by members of the city fire department today. At the request of W. A. Coddington, of the S. P. C. A., Chief Doane sent the hook-and-ladder truck to the scene as the feline was in such a position that it could not be gotten to the ground except by reaching it with a ladder. A twenty-two feet extension ladder was placed alongside the building and the meowing animal was grabbed by one of the men and brought down.

The cat was first noticed on the barn Sunday night and kept the neighborhood awake by its frightened cries. Attempts to dislodge it proved in vain and Monday and Tuesday night's resulted in more or loss of sleep. It looked as though the same thing was going to happen until the animal died from exhaustion or starved to death when Judge Coddington thought of the fire truck as a last resort.

King's Daughters' Musicale.

A musicale of special interest will be given at the Casino Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock, under the auspices of the Benevolent Band of The King's Daughters. The program has been arranged by Joseph McIntyre, pianist, whose talent in this respect is well-known. The various numbers, all selections from famous composers, will be given by Mr. and Mrs. Joseph McIntyre, piano; Clifford Cairns, baritone; Miss Anna Lucretia Case, soprano; Harry Dorr, violin, and there will be readings by Frederick B. Hanson, who will give several of James Whitcomb Riley's best poems. Tickets for the affair can be had at Estil's or the pharmacies of Armstrong, Miller and Randolph.

Baby Boy Lost.

James Schlief, the two-year-old son of Charles Schlief, of Second street, took a long walk yesterday afternoon, "all by his lonesome" and was found near Herman's mill on Somerset street at about 4 o'clock in the afternoon. The little fellow was evidently lost, but could speak only a few words, and those in German. He was taken to Chief Marshal Weiss' house, on Somerset street and stayed there with the chief until 8 o'clock in the evening, when his father came for him.

New Borough Fire Team.

A team of grey horses has been purchased by the borough for use on the fire apparatus. The animals are well-matched, standing slightly more than sixteen hands high. Driver William Gaub says they have lots of speed, and they are in regular service at borough headquarters today for the first. Fire Chief Woolston says that they are to be christened "Newt" and "Sam." "Nip" the surviving horse of the former team, is to be sold.

Mrs. John Clapp, who has been spending the winter in Gloucester, Mass., has returned to her home on Mercer avenue.

DR. RODMAN'S PORTRAIT PRESENTED TO MASONS

Under the auspices of the Ladies' Auxiliary of Trinity Commandery, No. 17, Knights Templar, a charming musicale was given in the Masonic Hall Association, yesterday afternoon, under the direction of Joseph McIntyre, for the wives, mothers and sisters of Masons. The audience numbered about 200 and the affair was considered one of the best ever given by the auxiliary.

A feature was the presentation of a life-size portrait of the late Rev. Erskine M. Rodman to the Masonic Hall Association. The presentation speech was made by Mrs. M. H. Ewart and the handsome portrait was hung in place. It is the work of F. C. Langhorne and in size is 26x31, appropriately framed. The association will arrange for suitable recognition of the act.

The program of the afternoon was given by Miss Marjorie Riley, soprano; Clifford J. Cairns, baritone, and Robert Thrane, 'cellist, all of New York, and Joseph McIntyre, pianist. The artists were all well received and they were generous with encores. In the selection of the various numbers Mr. McIntyre displayed his usual good taste, and his part in the musicale was as delightful as ever. His solo numbers and his work as accompanist were of a high character.

The other artists were fully up to expectation and their part in the musicale added not a little to its success. The program:

Piano solo, "Valse de Concert," Mozkowski; 'cello solo, "Rhapsodie Hungrois," Popper; baritone solo, "A Summer Night," (with 'cello obligato), Thomas; soprano solo, "Nymphs and Fawns," Bemberg; piano solos, "Dance Espagnole," "Petite Serenade," Strelezki; 'cello solo, "Memories," "Gavotte," Davidoff; baritone solo, "Across the Desert," Kellie; soprano solo, "Caller Herrin," "Auld Robin Gray," Old Scotch.

"JIM" WILL BE DELEGATE THOUGH NOT FROM JERSEY

James E. Martine today declared that he would not be an alternate to the delegates-at-large to the Denver convention. "I told them at Trenton yesterday that I wanted to be a delegate-at-large. They turned me down. I don't want and won't be an alternate although the convention elected me as such," said Martine.

"I will be at that convention. There are other States beside New Jersey and I will hold a proxy from one of them. My voice will be heard in behalf of the next president of these United States, William Jennings Bryan, the greatest statesman America has ever produced. I have no fault to find with 'Jim' Smith; the convention thought his way. But I'll be there and will have as much to say as 'Jim' Smith or any other Democrat of New Jersey."

In New York Theatricals.

Victor H. McCutcheon, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert H. McCutcheon, of Plainfield avenue, is a member of the cast that is to present "The Little Minister," on Tuesday evening of next week for the benefit of the Chrystie Street House, New York. This house is a temporary home for boys and young men out of work, and not only supplies food and shelter, but clothing and aids in getting employment.

C. D. Meigs Will Speak.

The annual institute of the Plainfield Primary and Junior Sunday-school Teachers' Association kill be held at the First Baptist church Tuesday afternoon, May 26, at 3 o'clock, when C. D. Meigs, of Indianopolis, will be the speaker. His topic will be "Fishing for Minnows, or the Cradle Roll." The same evening he will make the principal address at the same place before the Plainfield Sunday-school Teachers' Union.

Elks Get High Class Artists.

As a special feature of their minstrel show to be given in the New Plainfield theatre tomorrow night, the local Elks have secured Coakley and McBride, considered one of the greatest song and dance teams in the country. They will be recalled by Plainfielders as the artists who headed "The Red Mill" company which appeared here last fall, appearing in the parts created by Montgomery and Stone.

Unlicensed Peddlers Fined.

William S. Titsworth and Charles Kaplan, travelling rug agents, were arrested by Acting Chief Keller, of the borough force, on Chatham street for peddling without a license. At their hearing before Borough Recorder Dolliver last night, they were fined $1 apiece and warned to get licenses.

"JIM" SMITH'S TRIUMPH

After Announcing Retirement Old Boss Comes to Political Life at Party Convention.

SENATOR HOLDS FULL SWAY.

Defeats "Bob" Davis—"Gag Law" a Feature— Dilts' Appeal Unheard—Real "Democratic" Meeting.

Former United States Senator James Smith, Jr., poses no longer as leader emeritus of the Democrats of the state of New Jersey. Whatever might have been his intentions when he announced his retirement from active participation in politics two years ago, it was abundantly evident in the Democratic state convention held in the State street theatre, at Trenton, yesterday afternoon that he is no longer retired. In fact, Mr. Smith literally occupied a front seat and actually assumed the reins of leadership. He not only had himself elected one of the delegates-at-large to the national convention to be held in Denver, but picked his three colleagues for Big Four honors and incidentally rejected Robert Davis, of Hudson County, in that connection. In signalizing his resumption of leadership, Mr. Smith did two things that he has never before been known to do since he became a power in state democratic politics. The first is contained in the fact that he occupied a seat in the first row from the stage in the theatre and the second is that he arose personally during the proceedings of the convention and made a motion.

Mr. Smith demonstrated his absolute control of a majority of the 1335 delegates with a big margin. He himself received 972 votes for delegate-at-large, while the most that his Hudson County rival could rally in his behalf was 445. The overwhelming victory of the Essex gentleman, however, does not mean that the 445 were easily defeated. As a matter of fact, the convention, once it had got under way after the speech of former Mayor George A. Viehman, of New Brunswick, who acted as chairman, became exceedingly turbulent. Men who have attended New Jersey Democratic conventions for twenty-five years declare that it was the scrappiest affair of its sort that they ever witnessed. It was constantly noisy and combatative, and at one point it looked as though physical encounters would be a part of its activities.

The determination of Smith to turn down Davis was not worked out according to the original slate. Having not only a majority of the convention with him, but as well wielding irrepressible influence in the state committee, it was through the latter body that the original slate for delegates-at-large was first announced. That slate contained the name of former Senator Robert Hudspeth, chairman of the Democratic state committee, as the choice for Hudson county. As soon as Hudspeth arrived in Trenton yesterday he announced that under no circumstances would he accept the Big Four honor. A conference ensued between Hudspeth and Smith, and the former, it seems, prevailed upon the latter to agree to the naming of Davis as one of the delegates-at-large. Such was the understanding when the hour arrived for the calling of the convention. Meantime Davis arrived with the bulk of the Hudson county delegates. As soon as he was told of the concession made by Smith he said that he could not be a party to it unless James E. Martine, of Plainfield, would consent to release him from a promise made that Hudson county would support the former orator as one of the delegates-at-large. While some of Davis' friends were trying to find Martine, Davis and Smith met each other in the lobby of the theatre and had a brief chat. Surrounded by a number of Essex and Hudson men, Smith said that after all it might be that harmony could be worked out of the convention and that under the circumstances he was willing to agree to Davis going as a delegate if he would pledge himself not to oppose the unit rule and also not urge that the delegation be instructed, thus shutting off considerable stir in the convention favorable to Bryan.

While Smith was defining his attitude towards Davis, Martine arrived on the scene. On the advice of several members of the Progressive Democratic League Martine told Davis that he would release him from his pledge, provided Smith would allow the passage of a resolution favorable to Bryan, even though it did not directly instruct. Smith regarded that proposition as preposterous and would not consider it. Just at that moment one of Smith's lieutenants said: "Oh, this sort of talk has gone far enough.

"Well, I guess we will have to fight it out, Bob," declared Smith, "and let the convention decide."

LOCAL AMUSEMENTS

Joe Hortiz, equipped with one of the best plays and congenial roles that has marked his career, will make his premiere appearance in a new play before the patrons of the New Plainfield theatre next Saturday afternoon and night. Mr. Horitz appears in the title role as "Fritz." The play is by Crane Wilbur, entitled "Fritz the Wandering Musician," and the character is decidedly congenial to him. It depicts a young Swiss only lately landed in America, with an imperfect knowledge of the tongue, dauntless courage, innate manliness, and the true conception between right and wrong. Mr. Horitz is a master at his line of work. The play permits the introduction of realistic scenes as the plot is laid in and around that good old State of Kentucky. In every detail "Fritz the Wandering Musician," is said to surpass any productions of the past in which Mr. Horitz has starred. The company is composed of several local favorites who have been seen here before with other well known productions that have visited this city. Some of them will also be remembered as members of the cast of "Our Friend Fritz," the last play in which we saw Mr. Hortiz in the above theatre. No expense has been spared in the mounting of the play, as it is under the management of Wm. W. Miller, who presented Mr. Horitz to the patrons of the above theatre before.

The Rogers Brothers play a night's engagement at the New Plainfield theatre on May 8, in their new production, "The Rogers Brothers in Panama." After nearly a year of preparation, the Rogers Brothers' first production under their own management has been completed. They have engaged the most competent artists and designers that money could secure to take charge of every detail that is essential for success. "The Rogers Brothers in Panama" will be the biggest and most elaborate production they have yet been provided with, and they have spared no expense to make this the crowning effort of their career. The authors, Sylvester Maguire and Aaron Hoffman, are young men full of good humor and new ideas and have fitted the Rogers Brothers perfectly. The lyrics are by Edward Madden, a most capable writer and the music by Max Hoffman, well known for many big successes, his most recent being Anna Held's Parisian Model, which ran all season at the Broadway theatre, New York. The entire production is to be staged under the personal direction of that master of stage craft, Ben Tea.

ONLY ONE WAY TO RETAIN HEALTH

Young Man with New Theory Says All Depends on Stomach.

L. T. Cooper's theory regarding the human stomach is rapidly becoming a topic of universal discussion. Cooper claims that the human stomach has become chronically deranged by modern conditions, and that sickness generally is the result.

In a recent interview, while introducing his medicine in a leading city, Mr. Cooper said: "There is just one way, in my opinion, to maintain general health, and that is by building up the digestive organs. The vast majority of Americans today have weak, flabby, distended stomachs. This has been caused by many generations of over-feeding and lack of exercise, until today the entire civilized race is affected. This is the true cause of most of the ill health of today. Little can be done to relieve it until the stomach is once more brought back to normal conditions.

"I am successful because my preparation puts the stomach in sound condition, and as I maintain this is the only way to secure general and permanent good health."

Among many prominent people who have recently become converted to Cooper's theory is Mr. E. M. Howey, of 47½ De Russey Street, Binghamton, N. Y., who says: "I had stomach trouble for about six years. After eating, I would become bloated and have a distressed feeling for several hours. This would be accompanied by heartburn, and I reached the point where I could not enjoy my meals at all.

"I tried different remedies in an effort to find relief, but without success. After taking three bottles of Cooper's New Discovery I am entirely cured. My stomach does not bother me in the least, and I can eat anything I like. I can cheerfully recommend Mr. Cooper's medicine to anyone afflicted with stomach complaints."

Mr. Cooper's medicines are making a remarkable record. We sell them. —T. S. Armstrong.

We may be able to help you out. At any rate if you'll inform us of your needs, we'll try. The winter months just past have raised the expenses of the average householder to their highest point and many of us have been unable to meet all of our obligations as promptly as we would like to and consequently find ourselves in debt.

SUPPOSE we were to advance you sufficient funds to meet your obligations. Do you not think you would be more satisfied to have only one payment to look after on pay day?

There is no place where money will be advanced you more willingly or where you will receive more courteous treatment than from us. It's worth investigating.

The possession of household goods, horses and wagons is sufficient evidence of your ability to pay. Call, write or 'phone.

SOME STATE NEWS BRIEFS

Mrs. Charlotte Leonard, who had read the New Testament through four times since the death of her husband, Rev. Isaac Leonard, is dead at Iona.

Camden County's detective force was increased yesterday by the appointment by Judges Garrison and Joline of Marcus N. Carroll. The new detective was at once sworn into office by County Clerk Patterson.

Five hours after she was reported missing yesterday afternoon and the police had scoured the neighborhood, Mary Turner, two years old, of 757 Belle place, Camden, was found asleep under a chair in the home of a neighbor.

David R. Anderson, a Toms River undertaker, is a most puzzled man. While digging up his garden yesterday he unearthed two large-sized hams that had been carefully buried there. No one as yet knows where the hams came from.

Walter Townsend, a real estate man of Atlantic City, has entered suit for $20,000 against the West Jersey and Seashore Railroad for damages for injuries sustained in the rear-end smash on the Camden elevated terminal several months ago.

Bitten on the hand three times by his pet dog, Charles O'Neil, of 557 Van Hook street, Camden, called on policeman Miles to shoot the animal yesterday. As the dog fell over dead, O'Neil exclaimed: "That dog was the best friend I had in the world." Then he wept like a child.

The body of an unidentified man was found in the dock at the Gloucester ferry yesterday, and awaits identification at an undertaking establishment there. The man was of medium height, about forty years old, and wore dark clothing. His pockets contained a gold watch, a knife and three cents.

Everything is in readiness for the grand opening of the Teaneck Volunteer Firemen's fair next Wednesday night at the town hall. The fair will be held every night until next Saturday. Friday evening has been set aside as firemen's night. Over 1,000 Bergen County firemen are expected to attend.

As he was crossing the tracks of the West Jersey and Seashore Railroad, near Gloucester City, yesterday afternoon, after a drink of water, Samuel Taylor, fifty years old, colored, of Woodbury, stepped on the deadly third rail and was instantly electrocuted. He was employed by the Gloucester and Woodbury Turnpike Company.

Miss Frances Souder, daughter of Assistant Water Superintendent B. Frank Souder, of Atlantic City, has been seized with sudden and serious illness in Berlin during a European tour, and her parents will leave tomorrow for her beside. The young girl was a student at Wellesley and was finishing her education with a tour of the Continent when taken ill.

Mrs. Susie J. Reed, of Philadelphia, owner of a cottage at 400 Pacific avenue, Atlantic City, served notice on City Council last night that damages would be demanded if she failed to rent her cottage for the summer because of the tearing up of the street, which is being paved in front of her house. When another section of the fashionable drive was paved last year, cottage owners, including Mayor Stoy, lost $35,000 in rentals usually secured from summer tenants.

During argument in Camden Court of Chancery, yesterday, in the suit of George Shock against Francis Garrison on a rule to show cause why an injunction should not be allowed to restrain the defendant from fishing on the bay shore near Goshen, Cape May County, the defendant claimed that the land under the water belongs to the people from the grant of King Charles to the Duke of York. The complainant alleged that he had secured a grant from the Riparian Commission for the land under water and that the defendant is a trespasser.

ON A MOTORCYCLE HE FIGHTS WITH A MAD DOG.

Mt. Holly, April 29.—During a battle yesterday with a mad dog, while riding to Smithville, George A. Lippincott, of this place, general superintendent of the Smith Machine Works, was dragged from his motorcycle and severely bitten. Mr. Lippincott, who is leader of the choir of St. Andrew's church, had the wound cauterized at once.

The dog, according to the police, belongs to William Clevenger, and although it went mad on Sunday it has not yet been killed. It has bitten a large number of dogs, some of whom have been shot, while the wounds of the more valuable ones have been dressed by a veterinary surgeon and the animals tied.

SPORTS HERE AND THERE

GOLF.

Leighton Calkins, secretary of the Metropolitan Golf Association, has taken occasion to call attention to the fact that no club has as yet offered its course for the metropolitan open championship tournament, for which September 24, 25 and 26 have been set aside as the dates. The expenses of such a tournament, as has previously been pointed out, approximate $800. An entrance fee of $5 will be charged, which, with sixty entries, would raise $300. The association can contribute $250, which leaves only $250 to be paid by the club holding the event. In speaking of the matter yesterday Mr. Calkins said:

While comparatively little in the way of financial support is expected from the club which holds the event, I have never thought that the question of expense entered into the matter to any extent. The real trouble has been that clubs seems not to care to have professional tournaments; that is, they really do not care to offer their links for such events, or to make provision for the proper entertainment of the contestants. In my judgment, this is most unfortunate. There is far more done for the professional player on the other side, and it unquestionably helps the game.

I do not want to be misunderstood. I have never believed in throwing clubhouses wide open to the salaried players, but I do believe in more frequent competitions for our professionals. This can easily be arranged without falling into the errors which accompany clubhouse and tap-room privileges. The constitutions of our various associations expdicitly state that the object is, among other things, to stimulate an interest in golf. To do this properly you have to keep up the interest of the professionals. We don't dot it, and it is one of the unhealthy signs in this country. How are we ever to develop Vardons, Braids, Taylors, Massys, unless we pit our best professionals against each other more often?

The competitive game will be started in full swing at the Fox Hills Golf Club next Saturday, May 2, when the course will be formally opened. The first regular scheduled competition will consist of an eighteen hole medal play qualifying round, members to qualify in four eights. An added attraction on Saturday, May 16, will be a match between Fox Hills and a team representing the American Golf Association of Advertising Interests. It is expected that there will be more than seventy-five teams on a side.

Other team matches are to be arranged from time to time, and the contests for Classes A and B will again prove a feature. The last scheduled event is carded for November 28. No fewer than eight allied golf organizations have made applications for the use of the course during the season. Prominent among these are the Cotton Exchange Golf Club, the Metropolitan Golf Assciation of Advertising Intrests, the Transportation Club, the Drug Trade Golf Association and the Freight Traffic Association.

The Suburban Club, of Elizabeth, has also set May 2 aside as the date for the formal opening of its golf links. Members have been requested by the committee to invite their friends, who will be the guests of the club for the day. In the afternoon there will be an eighteen-hole medal play handicap, open to members and guests. Two prizes have been offered. The club championship will start on June 6 with an eighteen-hole medal play qualifying round.

An innovation in the way of conditions is that winners will have the privilege of purchasing any prize they please to the value of the stakes. This, in the opinion of the committee, will not only relieve the monotony of cup awards, but will also transfer the worry of selection from the committee to the individual.

BASEBALL.

Although it was decided at a meeting in Somerville Saturday night not to have a ball team, Bogert Conklin is firm in the belief that that town will have a team and he is taking active steps to bring this to pass. The matter will be determined this week.

The Boston Nationals wear red caps this year, and it is impossible to tell whether Beaumont has one on or is bareheaded.

Johnny Kling is said to be throwing wonderfully well this spring. As Johnny always did throw pretty well his wonderfully well must be fine indeed.

It would be hard to convince Brooklynites and New Yorkers that McCloskey of St. Louis did not make a tremendous managerial blunder when he let Burch go.

Jim McGuire, a model of behavior on the ball field—at least he was when he was just a player—was ordered off the field in Washington for a kick over one of Connolly's decisions.

If Harry Pattee's present clip is a fair sample of what he can go regularly the Brooklyns have found a second baseman who measures right up even with Johnny Evers and Miller Huggins.

Seymour and Shannon are not hitting for the New York Nationals as they should and will. Donlin and Tenney have been doing the best hitting, but the whole team is due to pick up with the stick.

Charley Hickman makes a good point. He wonders why men who do not get into the game over once or twice a week, if that often, are expected to make hits in pinches when they forget what pitching looks like and what bats are for.

Larry Lajoie thinks first base is the place for Sam Crawford. He says a big man like Sam would be all the better for the additional work he would get at first base and hit better. "I know I always hit better when I have plenty of opportunity to handle the ball," declares Larry.

Neither of the New York teams has been shut out. All have been whitewashed in the American League except New York and Detroit. In the National the New Yorks, Chicagos and Bostons have escaped the kalsomine. The St. Louis Nationals have been goose egged four times and the Chicago Americans three times.

Complaint has been made of the condition of the dressing quarters provided for visiting teams on the Chicago National grounds. According to Herrmann of Cincinnati, the place is a disgrace to the Chicago club, and decided improvements in bathing facilities and sanitary conditions will have to be made before the quarters are fit for use.

According to his press agent, George Evans, the minstrel and song writer, will offer a gold cup to the champion batter of the world. The contest for the trophy is limited to the American and National leagues and will be awarded to the player of either organization who has the highest official batting average and who has participated in eight games or more.

Hal Chase has made seventeen hits in forty-seven times at bat this season. His batting average to date is .395. There aren't many runners who could have made a home run out of that hit to left field as Chase did at American League Park last week. There are several runners who can beat Chase getting to first base, but none who can get over ground as he does once he turns first base. The further he goes the faster he is moving.

Orval Overall, the biggest Cub of them all, has not lost a game since August 10 last year. In that time he has won thirteen straight victories, which is within two of his fifteen straight of last season. Here is Overall's record August 11, 1907, beat Philadelphia, 1 to 0; August 16, beat Philadelphit, 1 to 0; August 23, beat Boston, 9 to 3; August 28, beat Brooklyn, 6 to 4; August 31, beat Cincinnati, 2 to 1; September 3, beat St. Louis, 5 to 0; September 12, beat Cincinnati, 3 to 1; September 18, beat Cincinnati, 2 to 1; October 15, beat Detroit, 6 to 1; April 14, 1908, beat Cincinnati, 6 to 5; April 19, beat St. Louis, 4 to 3; April 23, beat Cincinnati, 2 to 1.

RARITAN WOOLEN MILLS ENJOINED BY STOCKHOLDER

Vice-Chancellor Howell at Newark signed an order yesterday temporarily restraining a meeting of stockholders of the Raritan Woolen Mills, called for today at 14-16 White street, Manhattan, to vote on a proposed increase of the company's capital stock from $150,000 to $525,000. The order directs the corporation to show cause May 5 why the proposed action should not be permanently enjoined.

Application for the order was made by Frederick P. Faulks, as counsel for William Einstein, of New York, who is the owner of $285,000 of the company's stock. The concern was incorporated March 23, 1869, under a special act of the Legislature, with $100,000 capital stock, which was increased to $150,000, and in January, 1906, a further increase of working capital was provided by each stockholder loaning $250 for each share of stock he owned. The $375,000 so realized was carried as a special loan account, bearing seven per cent. interest.

At a director's meeting, held April 9, the proposed increase of the company's capital stock to $525,000 was decided upon, subject to its affirmance at a stockholders meeting, the object being to retire the special loan of $375,000 with the proceeds of the additional stock issue.

The proposition as it was to be submitted to the stockholders today provided for an issue of $150,000 of seven per cent. cumulative preferred stock and $375,000 of common stock, the entire amount of preferred stock to be issued to the present stockholders in exchange for their holdings.

The bill goes on to aver that the company has "for many years regularly earned, declared and paid dividends on all its issue of capital stock at a rate largely in excess of the dividends which could be paid on the proposed issue of preferred stock."

CONTINUE TO REJECT THEIR NEW PASTOR.

Bishop Wilson presided over a secret conference Saturday at the State House between the trustees of First Methodist Church and Dr. William A. Frye, who was named pastor of the church by New Jersey conference, butwho was not recognized by the congregation and attorneys representing both sides.

The conference was for the purpose of compromising the situation that has developed since the First church refused to recognize the conference appointee and supported Rev. Dr. Charles O. Jones, the Southern not recognize as a pastor, because of his connections with the church South.

The bishop wanted to pay Dr. Jones his salary up to December, when his contract expires, and oust him from the church. The trustees refused to part with Dr. Jones. A law suit is now likely to settle whether the church has the right to hold Dr. Jones or not.

AGED NEWSPAPER MAN DEAD.

Phillipsburg, April 28.—Samuel Paul Higgins, a prominent resident of this place and a former newspaper man, died here yesterday. He was eighty-one years old. He was born at Easton, Pa., in 1827, and when still a young man founded the Easton Morning Times, the only morning paper ever published in that city. Later he founded the Mauch Chunk (Pa.) Gazette, and was of the firm of Higgins, Davis & Eichman, who founded the Easton Daily Express, now owned by Howard Mutchler. Mr. Higgins was also at one time on the staff of the New York Herald.

After retiring from newspaper work he became the general ticket agent here for the Pennsylvania Railroad, which position he held for a period of thirty years. At the time of his death he was among the pensioned employes of the company. His death was due to paralysis.

SCALDED BY STEAM.

Oscar F. Neidt, a former Councilman of Trenton, is in a serious condition at his home as the result of scalds he received last night when a steam pipe burst while he was standing directly over it. He instinctively closed his eyes, and that it all that saved him from being blinded.

BABY VICTIM OF GUN DIES.

Elizabeth Louise, 7 months old, died in Trenton yesterday, as the result of a gunshot wound she received two weeks ago at the hands of her 7-year-old brother Anthony, who was amusing her by playing "soldier" with a gun he didn't know was loaded.

FRUIT NOT DAMAGED.

South Jersey farmers report that the fruit crop which it was thought had been seriously damaged by recent frosts, is practically unharmed, and that the crop will be larger than usual this season.

STILL HUSKING CORN.

A number of Gloucester county farmers have just finished husking last year's corn. This would not keep in the cribs and the wise grower deemed it better to "shock" it.

LID ON IN ELIZABETH; WOULD YOU BELIEVE IT

City Attorney James C. Connolly's recent pronouncement before the Elizabeth Excise Board against the laxity of the police in enforcing the Bishops law, the rumpus which followed and the nearness of the May Grand Jury, which, according to generally accepted rumor, is going to be asked to give the matter attention, resulted in the lid being put down rather tight there Sunday. At that, with some little difficulty, a normal spring thirst could be quenched.

Patrolmen were instructed to keep a lookout for violations of the screen law. A number were found and reported to headquarters. Proceedings will be taken against the accused saloon-keepers. The trials for excise violations are to be resumed next week, over fifty cases still remaining. City Attorney Connolly has declared that he will prosecute all.

An interesting report has it that Mayor Charles J. Fisk, of this city, who, as foreman of the Grand Jury, caused a sensation last June with the presentment charging that Elizabeth was ruled by the breweries, is slated for a place on Governor Fort's intended committee to investigate excise conditions all over the State. If Mr. Fisk gets the place Union County will certainly figure prominently in the inquiry. In the meantime the city officials are on their mettle, and that's why the lid was partly down Sunday.

FAVORS MORE STATE AID IN MOSQUITO WARFARE.

Trenton, April 29.—At the meeting of the New Jersey State Land Reclamation and Drainage Association, in the State house Friday, a resolution was adopted urging the Legislature to make an appropriation of at least $50,000 at the next session to carry on the campaign. Professor James B. Smith, State entomologist, was warmly praised for the suppression of mosquitoes about Newark and vicinity he has already brought about.

Sterling J. Joyner, an engineer, formerly engaged on the Panama canal, gave an interesting statement of the profits derived from canal construction in many parts of the country arising from the reclamation of land by drainage.

The New Jersey association is a strong body of engineers and business men, representing all counties of the State, and its purpose is to take advantage of the drainage bill now before Congress to develop the State's resources.

STRANGER'S ACT MAY COST THIS BOY HIS LIFE.

Phillipsburg, April 29.—John Brower, eight years old, son of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Brower, of this place, was perhaps fatally injured as the result of the act of an unidentified man yesterday afternoon. The boy was swinging on a vine which was wrapped around a tree on Furnace Hill, when the stranger came along and gave the boy a push. The youngster lost his hold and fell off when the impromptu swing was at its highest point. The fall caused a compound fracture of both arms, a fracture of the right leg and other severe bruises about the body.

The boy was taken to the Easton (Pa.) Hospital, where his condition was said to be precarious.

AMBOY BRIDGE TAKEN FROM ITS FOUNDATION.

The old New York and Long Branch Railroad bridge over the Raritan river, which the contractor, John H. Gregory, had tried for two days to remove from its foundations, was successfully moved by scows Saturday afternoon. Four scows were used to accomplish the work, and it slid easily from its resting place as the tide rose.

Tugs took the scows in tow, and the bridge was taken to the "ship graveyard" of J. H. Gregory, at Perth Amboy, where it will be broken up. A large crowd witnessed the feat of moving the structure.

Live Stock Perished in Fire.

Flemington, April 28.—The barn and outbuildings belonging to Green Abbott, between Rocktown and Harbourtown, were destroyed by fire Sunday evening. Two horses perished in the flames. The other live stock was rescued. Several wagons, farming machinery and a large quantity of hay and grain were burned. Charles Danbury's barn and outbuildings, situated near Rocktown, were burned to the ground about 3 o'clock yesterday morning. Five cows perished. The horses were saved, but some of them were quite badly burned. It is not known how either of the fires originated.

Delegate to Denver.

W. Parker Runyon will be the choice of the Middlesex County Democracy for district delegate to the Democratic National Convention at Denver in spite of the fact that a majority of delegates chosen from Perth Amboy Thursday might favor the selection of County Chairman Joseph E. Stricker. Perth Amboy has twelve delegates and of these Mr. Runyon is certain of only one vote—his own. There are two doubtful while nine are for Mr. Stricker.

STATE CAN TAX LANDS OF R.R. UNDER TIDEWATER

Deciding yesterday the case of the New Jersey Central Railroad Company against Jersey City in favor of the city, the Supreme Court of the United States at Washington held the jurisdiction of the State of New Jersey was co-extensive with the State's boundary in New York Bay.

The controversy arose over the question of the right of the State to tax the company's lands lying under tidewater between the middle of New York Bay and its lower water line on the Jersey side. The case involved a study of the grants made by the English soverigns in the early history of the settlements at the mouth of the Hudson river and of the agreement of 1834 between the States of New York and New Jersey, which declared the middle of the Hudson to be the dividing line between the States.

The Supreme Court of New Jersey decided that the Jersey authorities had taxation jurisdiction over all the territory on the Jersey side of the line, and today's decision affirms that finding. The opinion was handed down by Justice Holmes.

MISS LILLIAN MACLEA IS A SUICIDE BY GAS.

Miss Lillian MacLea, twenty, a pretty and amiable girl, killed herself with gas Sunday night, in her father's home, No. 47 Erwin Park Road, Montclair. Miss MacLea's poor health had rendered her very despondent; she had been in a decline for several months and could not leave the house nor receive visitors.

It would seem that the unhappy young woman ended her life most deliberately. She was unusually bright at dinner on Sunday and, until she retired, at 11 o'clock. Her mother went to waken Miss MacLea yesterday morning, and found her bedroom door locked; finally the door was forced open.

Miss MacLea, in her night robe, lay on her bed, dead, gas was escaping from a jet near the bed which had been turned on full; all the windows were closed; the end of a rug clogged the door-lintel.

Dr. Martin J. Synott, the family physician, was called; he found that Miss MacLea had been dead several hours. County Physician Elliott was called from Newark and, learning the facts as related here, said no further investigation was needed and gave a burial permit.

Miss MacLea was daughter of Robert E. MacLea, dry goods merchant, head of the R. B. MacLea Company, No. 79 Worth street, Manhattan. The family has lived in a fine residence at Montclair for about eight months and is prominent socially.

AGED ARTIST HONORED.

Friends Help Worthington Whittredge Celebrate His 88th Birthday.

A dinner was given on Saturday night by the members of the Highland Club, of Summit, to Worthington Whittredge, the artist, in celebration of his eighty-eighth birthday. Among the speakers were Hamilton W. Mabie, John Burroughs, F. Hopkinson Smith, John W. Alexander, Homer Davenport, and Frederick Dielman, President of the National Academy, who, on behalf of the Academy, presented a congratulatory address to the aged artist, their first President and leader of the movement which resulted in the establishment of the Academy.

With one exception, the sole survivor of the leaders of the once famous Hudson River school, Mr. Whittredge is still painting, and is hale and hearty, showing few signs of his 88 years.

YOUNG WIDOW SHOT.

Tried to Stop Quarrel Between Two of Her Admirers.

A birthday celebration was held last night in the boarding house of Mrs. Oscola Voscello, a young widow, in Jersey City. Frank Mousisson, 25 years old, one of the boarders, who is fond of Mrs. Voscello, objected to the attentions another boarder was paying her, and the two quarreled.

Mrs. Voscello went between them, and Mousisson shot her in the head with a revolver. He ran from the house, and men who went in pursuit caught him in the street and beat him until he was unconscious. Both Mrs. Voscello and Mousisson were sent to the hospital. Mrs. Voscello may die.

Woman Imprisoned by Mistake.

Mrs. Mary Smith, of No. 21 Van Woert place, Jersey City, the mother of eleven children, was discharged from the Hudson County jail yesterday after three months' imprisonment on a charge declared to be groundless. She was accused of keeping a disorderly house. Her husband testified that he signed the complaint under a misunderstanding and that he knew his wife to be of good moral character. Mrs. Smith's arrest was the result of a family difference.

Senator Colby Held for Speeding.

Senator Everett Colby was arrested at Highland Park Sunday for violating the speed limit in his automobile. He was taken before William A. Housell, justice of the peace, who suspended sentence.

Without a word, Bennett handed her the report left by Horrigan. For a time silence brooded over the study, broken only by the occasional turning of a page of the report. Then, after what seemed to Alwyn an eternity of waiting, the document slid to the floor. Bennett glanced at his mother. She was standing rigid, her face cold and hard as granite.

"I do not advise, I command. Doright!"

"Horrigan has ferreted this out," he said, not daring to draw nearer or proffer comfort to the woman whom the boss' disclosure had turned to stone. "He has secured the proofs and says he will publish them broadcast unless I withdraw my opposition in the Borough franchise matter. If I let that bill pass, Friday he will burn the report, and"—

"There is only one thing to do," interposed the mother, speaking with slow decision, her voice as cold and colorless as her face. "Right must prevail, no matter what"—

"Mother!" cried Alwyn, trembling. "You advise me to— You advise me"—

"I do not advise, I command. Do right!"

CHAPTER XIII.

THE momentous Friday had arrived; the day whereon the famous — or infamous — Borough Street railway bill in its amended form was to come up for the aldermen's consideration.

Every paper in the city devoted columns to the situation. Everywhere it was known that the "boy mayor" was fighting with all his might the bill he had already vetoed. Equally well was it understood that Horrigan was making the battle of his whole career in behalf of the measure. If he could but induce his "solid thirteen" aldermen to stand firm and could maintain his hold on Roberts for the fourteenth, all would be plain sailing and the bill would pass by a two-thirds vote in spite of the mayor's veto.

More than the mere bill and his price for it were included in Horrigan's reasons for his present activity. He recognized that his prestige as boss was at stake—that in case of failure his hold on the organization would be considerably weakened, perhaps almost so much shaken as to permit Phelan to fulfill his once absurd threat to tear him down from his eminence. For the whole organization was viewing with breathless interest the duel between Horrigan and the youthful mayor the boss had "made." In such circles a beaten man commands scant respect.

* * * * * * *

The board of aldermen were in session in the city hall. Off the antechamber of the great room where they met was a small, snugly furnished apartment, first of a series of similar rooms that stretched away, with connecting doors, to the far end of the main corridor. This place, with the room adjoining, had once been the comptroller's office. Of late, however, that official had changed his quarters and the room nearest the antechamber had been appropriated by Horrigan himself as a sort of unofficial snuggery, where he could sit at ease and transact business at close quarters whenever the organization's secret interests demanded his presence at the city hall.

Here, his whereabouts known only to his intimate and personal lieutenants, the boss was wont to sit at ease, like some fat, rubicund spider in the center of a web of intrigue, and issue his orders or plans of campaign. Some of these were carried by word of mouth through the anteroom into the aldermanic chamber. Others he transmitted by means of a telephone that stood ready on the center table, before which his great easy chair was always placed.

Around this table as the board of aldermen were about to convene on the fateful Friday of the Borough bill's final consideration sat three men—Wainwright, Gibbs and Horrigan. The former, in spite of his habitual steady coolness, was plainly uneasy. Gibbs made no effort to deny his anxiety. His eyes were bloodshot, his manner abstracted and his nerves evidently strung to breaking point. Horrigan alone of the trio had abated not one jot of the colossal calm and brutal power that were part and parcel of the man's mighty character.

"When will our bill come up, do you suppose?" asked Gibbs, breaking a brief silence.

"In half an hour or so probably," answered Horrigan, glancing at his watch. "I thought it was better for us to get here ahead of time."

"Half an hour," fumed Gibbs, "and neither Ellis nor Roberts here yet! Suppose they don't get here on time?"

"They will," grunted Horrigan placidly.

"Do you think it is possible either of them has come yet?" went on Gibbs, with a glance at the antechamber door.

"No."

"How do you know? Perhaps"—

"Williams would have told me. He knows where I'm to be found."

"You're sure Ellis and Roberts will show up?"

"Yes."

"How soon?"

"In good time."

"But suppose they don't?" insisted Gibbs nervously. "What then?"

"Why, if they don't, then they won't. What do you suppose?" snapped Horrigan. "What's the matter with you, anyhow? Are you looking for a museum job as the 'human question mark?'"

"Gibbs is naturally nervous," explained Wainwright. "He's not so old at this game as you and I, Horrigan, and we must make allowances."

"Nervous?" grunted the boss. "I should say he is! Just look at that cigar I gave him. He's been chewing it as if it was a sausage. That's no way to treat a fifty cent cigar, man! Here, try another, and see if you can't smoke it instead of eating a free lunch off it. Nothing like a good smoke to steady your nerves. If"—

The antechamber door opened, and Williams hurried in.

"I got Ellis!" he reported. "He's here, and"—with significant emphasis—"he'll vote right!"

"Good!" assented Horrigan. "I thought he'd come to time. Now, for Roberts and the thing's done."

"The gallery in there is jammed," reported Williams, jerking his head toward the aldermanic chamber. "I never saw such a mob in the place before."

"That's what comes of all this newspaper publicity," growled Horrigan. "If it wasn't for the papers the people 'd never make any trouble for us. But they read the news and then they get silly ideas about their 'rights,' and a lot of them come here to see they don't get swindled. Lord! If the papers would only suspend publication for one month, I'd guarantee to put the whole state in my vest pocket. They're always butting in to spoil the organization's honest profits. How are the crowd in the galleries behaving?"

"They're quiet," answered Williams uneasily. "Too quiet. That's what bothers me. They seem to be waiting for the Borough bill to"—

"If they raise any row, rush a motion through to clear the galleries," ordered Horrigan.

"Nothing short of the police could clear away that big crowd."

"Then we'll have the police in to help."

"But," argued Williams, "that would mean a riot, and a lot of people would get hurt. All the newspapers tomorrow would"—

"Never mind that. Go ahead and do as you're told. At the first sign of disapproval from the galleries have the motion passed and turn the police loose. Understand?"

"All right," acquiesced Williams dubiously and withdrew.

Wainwright opened his mouth to protest, but Horrigan was already busy at the telephone.

"Hello!" he called. "I want 900 F—900 F. Yes—yes. Is that the captain?" he went on a moment later. "Then send him to the phone. Tell him Mr. Horrigan— Hello, captain!" after another pause. "Yes, it's Horrigan. At city hall. In the aldermanic chamber there's a mob, and we're likely to need the police to quiet 'em. Yes. No, not 'diet' them, you fool! 'Quiet' them! Yes. Send us a squad at double quick, anl let the sergeant report to Williams. Let the boys bring their night sticks, and tell 'em they're to take no back talk and not to be afraid to slug if it comes to that, and I guess it will. Pick out the right sort to send. Yes. Of course I'll back up anything they do. Sure. Rush 'em. Goodby."

"But"— began Wainwright as Horrigan hung up the receiver. The boss cut him short. "I'll let that gallery crowd see it ain't safe to interfere with my work."

"But," protested Wainwright, "surely it will not be necessary to"—

"To break heads? It probably will. Why not?"

"I'd rather use diplomatic tactics."

"Diplomacy's a game I never took the trouble to learn."

"But those people you're about to antagonize control votes"—

"Yes. The people may control the votes, but we count them. See the difference?"

"But doesn't the law permit the public to attend these meetings?"

"Only so long as they behave themselves. If a few of 'em get clubbed they won't be so ready next time to butt in where they aren't wanted. They"—

The tinkle of the telephone bell cut short the boss' public spirited remarks. Horrigan unslung the receiver.

"Hello!" he hailed. "Who's— Oh, Roberts, eh?"

"Is it Roberts?" cried Gibbs excitedly.

"No," snarled Horrigan in ponderous sarcasm. "It's the czar of Russia telephoning to borrow a nickel. I called him 'Roberts' just to flatter him. Go on, Roberts! What's that? Yes, this is Mr. Horrigan. Want to see me, do you? What for? No, there isn't," he went on angrily after a moment's listening. "You and I settled all that. Come and do your share of the— Yes, I tell you it's up to you to make good."

Another pause, during which Gibbs and Wainwright glanced at each other in suspense. Then the boss continued, in a louder voice, over the wire:

"Well, come to my room in the city hall, then, if you've got to see me. But there's no need for it. It's all settled, and there's nothing more to be said. I'll be here. Don't keep me waiting. I— What's that? No! I won't come to you! You'll come to me, and you'll come on the double quick! Jump now! If you don't— No, that's all. Hurry up!"

"Wouldn't it be wiser," suggested Gibbs, "to humor the man by going to him, as he suggests? Then"—

"No, it wouldn't!" retorted Horrigan as he kept the telephone. "If I'd gone on the principle of 'humoring' folks, I'd still be working at eighteen per selling ferry tickets. Take my tip, friend! Never go to a man. Make him come to you. That's business. And it gives you a 90 per cent better chance with him. Now, then," pulling a paper from his pocket, "I told you about the report I had Morris & Cherrington dig out showing up Bennett's old man. Here it is. Like to look it over while we're waiting?"

"Little enough good it seems to have done!" returned Wainwright as the three heads bent over the document. "He's still fighting us, tooth and nail."

"Yes," agreed Horrigan grimly, "but it's a satisfaction to know it isn't only us he's fighting. He's cutting his own throat too."

Mrs. Martha Snedeker, of 234 East Third street, Plainfield, N. J., says: "Some six weeks ago I began using Doan's Kidney Pills for an attack of kidney trouble that had been annoying me for a long time, procuring the remedy at Randolph's drug store. My main symptoms were severe backaches and pains in teh top and back of my head, a stiffness in the limbs—especially my arms, and a sediment in the secretions that looked like brick-dust. I had a languid feeling of weakness and depression but physicians did not help me. Doan's Kidney Pills did seem to reach the cause of my trouble; however, and that very quickly and now all those aches and pains have disapepared and the kidney secretions are perfectly normal. This is all due to the healing powers of Doan's Kidney Pills and their direct action on the kidneys."

NEWARK DEFEATS P. H. S.

Local Schoolboys Get First Defeat on Newark Diamond by Score of 6-3.

LONG HITS BY BOTH TEAMS.

A Three-bagger and Six Two Base Hits Features of the Game —Van Zandt Effective.

Heavy hitting in the eighth inning won for the Newark High School nine in a well played game with the Plainfield High School team at Newark yesterday afternoon. This is the first defeat of the season for the local boys, who led in the scoring up to their opponents' eighth session with the stick. The final score was 6-3, and the Newarkers clinched an up-hill game by scoring four runs.

Long hits marked the game throughout. "Slim" Snyder lined out a three-bagger in the seventh and Lidgate and Doane made two-base hits in the same session. Day, Murphey, Snyder and Van Zandt got singles in the course of the game. Van Zandt was on the slab for the local nine and up to the eighth allowed but four hits. He fanned five Newarkers and walked but two. The Plainfielders touched up Maxwell, the Newark pitcher, for seven hits. He struck out five and gave one base on balls.

The Plainfielders started the run getting in the first session, when Murphey and Dey straightened out Maxwell's bends for safe hits, scoring Giddes. A two-bagger by Maxwell and a single by Abeles in the third gave Newark the first two runs and put the home team in the lead. In the seventh, the local nine had a batting bee, Snyder's triple and two-baggers by Doane and Lidgate resulting in two runs.

But the game was lost in the eighth. With a lead of 3-2, the local nine made two errors at the outset of this inning, and two-baggers by Speary and Dempsey brought in four runs, giving victory to the home team. The official score:

CRIPPLED WATCHUNGS WIN FROM THE PUTNAMS

With only two men on the team rolling, the Watchungs defeated the Putnams in a tourney game at Johnny Campbell's alleys last night. Captain Gilmore, Will Kiely and Tom Muir were unable to attend and the only shooters were George Vanderbilt and Howard George, the averages less ten of the other men being substituted. Despite this drawback the Watchungs ended with a load of thirty pins.

The Putnams afterward took on the Belvideres and got square by walloping them to the tune of 780 to 642. "Rudie" Toense returned from Philadelphia to get into the contest but was so badly contaminated by slowtown that he failed to reach the hundred mark, the first time in the tourney anyone has gone below. In the two games no one made a double century.

Smith and Davis and their conferees then separated, and Davis walked down the aisle of the theatre to a seat with the Hudson delegation, and was given an ovation by the Hudson men and whatever Bryan men were in delegations elsewhere in the theatre.

A few minutes later Smith's name was announced for one of the committee appointments made by the Essex delegation and he quickly jumped up from a seat half-way back from the stage and walked to a place in the "A" row.

When nominations for delegates-at-large were called for there was some speculation on the part of those who knew of the wire-pulling going on a few minutes previous as to who Smith would choose for the fourth representative in the "Big Four." It was not until Camden was reached on the roll call, and William J. Thompson, chairman of the delegation, announced the names of Howard C. Carrow, of Camden, as a substitute for Hudspeth on the slate, that it became generally known who would go to Denver in the place that Davis had designs on. This announcement made the delegates-at-large slate stand, James Smith, Jr., of Essex, Senator John Hinchliffe, of Passaic, Frank Katzebach, of Mercer, and Mr. Carrow.

On the roll call of counties for nominations Hudson named Robert Davis, of Hudson; James E. Martine, of Union; Johnson Cornish, of Warren, and Thomas Birch, of Burlington. Cornish declined, as did Hudspeth who was nominated by one of the rural counties. Hudson and the Bryan men then united on Davis, Martine, Katzenbach and Burch. This latter combination was overwhelmed by an adverse vote, Davis getting 443 delegates and Martine 359.

It was during the roll call that the riotious scenes and acrimonious discussions occurred. The excitement was due to two causes. The first was the enforcement of theunit rule in many counties, notably in Union, in which delegation there were eleven Bryan men who made up in noise and persistence what they lacked in numbers.

The other exciting condition was due to the determination of Hudson county delegate to deny the charge that they betrayed the candidacy of Frank Katzenbach as a gubernatorial candidate, Congressman James Hamill, chairman of the delegation, precipitated the row when he took the floor to nominate. He pictured Hudson county as the only oasis in the democratic desert in New Jersey for many years and declared that it was a base calumny to accuse the Democrats of Hudson of treachery to the state ticket last fall. He reverted to Essex county and by insinuation pointed out the democratic leadership of that county as the one where there could lay the charge that regular candidates had been knifed at the polls at the instigation of democratic leaders.

This remark brought forth a chorus of groans and protests from the Essex delegation, and in a jiffy the convention was in an uproar. Hamill's voice could not be heard above the din. The turmoil continued for several minutes, despite chairman Viehman's efforts to suppress it.

Finally, a degree of quiet was restored and Hamill continued to excorate Essex and defend Hudson. By this time the whole convention seemed to be thoroughly aroused to a fighting mood and from that time forward it was one continuous spectacle of wrangling and high words.

There were half a dozen Bryan men in the Camden delegation who wanted to vote for Davis and Martine, but Duke Thompson would not record their votes. Several Hudson county men, besides nearly all the Bryan men in the theatre, were shouting at the top of their voices. It was half an hour later, though, on a recall for changes and corrections in the vote, and after there was no doubt of a Smith victory, before Thompson announced the vote of the Camden Bryanites. There were also several similar incidents in other counties. As chairman of the Union county delegation, Edward Nugent refused to announce the vote of eleven Bryan men—ten from Plainfield and one from Cranford After striving in vain for full fifteen minutes to obtain recognition from chairman Viehmann, J. V. F. Dilts, chairman of the Plainfield Democratic city committee, rushed to the stage livid with rage.

Dilts shook his fist in chairman Viehmann's face and kept shouting "Mr. chairman, we demand to be heard and to have our votes recorded as we desire." Viehmann tried to be facetious and extended his hand said: "Indeed, I am glad to meet you; take a seat right back there." A half dozen men on the platform took the hint and tried to shove Dilts to the rear. But Dilts is a six footer and he stood his ground, yelling protests all the time at the top of his voice. Even Abe Naar, the diminutive sergeant at arms, tried to use physical force and push Dilts off the stage. But he was no match for the enraged delegate who was determined to be heard. For a moment it looked as though Dilts would throw Naar down into the orchestra pit. Viehmann finally turned his back on Dilts and the convention was again in an uproar. Despairing of getting recognition on the stage, Dilts jumped to the orchestra pit and then out into the aisle alongside of the Hudson delegation. Allen Benny, Joseph Tumulty and several other Hudson men demanded that Dilts be heard and gag rule ended. All the while Dilts was waving his hands and shouting out protests, but they were not intelligible ten feet away on account of the din. Viehmann continued to ignore Dilts and let the delegates tire themselves out. Dilts finally exhausted himself, gave up and went to the rear.

Hardly had this incident passed when Assemblyman Tumulty, angered at some reflection on Hudson county said to have been made by C. H. Gallagher, started to invade the seats occupied by the Mercer delegates. It looked then as if a free fight would be started among the delegates, with Gallagher and Tumulty in the lead. Both men tried to get at each other, but were restrained.

By this time the secretaries were ready to announce the final vote on delegates-at-large. The announcement of Smith's election was greeted with loud applause from the Essex delegates. Later in the convention Davis moved that the election of the four successful candidates be made unanimous. It was done.

On the request of Congressman Hamill Mr. Katzenbach was asked to state personally whether he thought Hudson county betrayed him last fall. Katzenbach went to the stage and said he was glad of the opportunity to make a statement. He did not say, however, what his conclusions on the subject were. He made a plea for harmony in democratic ranks.

The last thing brought before the convention was a resolution from Hudson county instructing the delegates for Bryan. Senator Smith got up personally and moved that it be laid on the table. On the call for ayes and nays, the chairman declared that the ayes were in a majority, but the Bryan men claimed their shout was the loudest and represented the most votes.

The convention then adjourned.

BASEBALL.

Who said that "Christy" Mathewson was "all in?" His work against Boston on Monday shows that the star twirler is very much on his job. He allowed his opponents, including his old team-mates, but one scratch hit.

Reports indicate that Walter Nelson is showing up well with the Bridgeport team, where he is one of the catchers.

Clinton Avenue had a gay time with the High School boys Saturday, and showed what other teams may expect this season. Randolph was simply invincible.

Bert Trotther, who is playing with the Trojans, of Elizabeth, is putting up a fast game these days.

Chesbro, of the Highlanders, is beginning to show his true form. On Monday he shut out Boston by a score of 1 to 0. In fact all of the Highlanders are playing fast ball.

Neuer has been sold to the Newark Eastern League, where he is expected to be a big help to the pitching department.

East Millstone has organized a strong team this season and will, as usual, furnish high-class ball for that town. Several good games have been scheduled.

Organizing A Bicycle Club.

Jack Horner, of Somerset street, is at the head of a movement to form a bicycle club in this city. Thus far over forty riders of wheels have signified their intention of identifying themselves with such an organization. It is the purpose of the club to hire rooms in the Marsh building on Park avenue, and during the season will conduct meets and races and a feature will be Sunday "runs" to different points of interest. The first run will be on Decoration Day. The objective point has not been decided yet, but will be announced soon.

CHRISTIAN FIELD.

The meeting at the Congregational church, tonight, will be the service preparatory to the communion to be held Sunday morning.

At Bethel chapel tomorrow night the Boys' Club will give a play, entitled "Spotless Town." Two performances will be given and there will be a sale of work by the boys.

Rev. Dr. E. P. Johnson, acting pastor of Trinity Reformed church, came from New Brunswick, last night to attend the musicale given at the church by the quartet choir, and he expressed his pleasure over the affair and his opportunity to personally meet the members of the church and congregation.

—Special at Neuman Brothers tomorrow: Choice asparagus, egg plant, lettuce, string beans, tomatoes and cucumbers. Prices low at present.

M'GEE-HOWELL NUPTIALS

Ceremony in the First M. E. Church Witnessed by Society Throng.

GROOM'S UNCLE OFFICIATES.

Brilliant Reception Follows at Home of the Bride's Parents—To Reside in the Borough.

Miss Sarah Mae Howell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Josephus Halsey Howell, of Myrtle avenue, and Harry L. McGee, son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry A. McGee, of Orchard place, North Plainfield, were married at the First M. E. church at 7:30 o'clock last night, in the presence of a large and fashionable throng of society people. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Dr. Herbert Welch, president of Ohio Wesleyan University, and an uncle of the groom.

The bride's attendants were Miss Katherine Wolcott Dwight, of New York,, as maid of honor; Mrs. George Harold Bates, of Cranford, and Mrs. John Havemeyer, of Ardsley-on-the-Hudson, as matrons of honor, and Miss Marion McCutcheon, Miss Verna McCutcheon, Miss Edith English and Miss Helen Ray Hooley, all of this city, as bridesmaids.

The best man was Donald A. McGee, brother of the groom, and the ushers were Raymond A. McGee, brother of the groom; John H. Thompson, Jr., of New York; Frank Howard, Hartford, Conn.; Emil H. Frank, Jr., of Brooklyn; Herbert S. Rogers and W. Vaughn McGee, of this city.

The color scheme as carried out in the costumes was unusual. It was shaded pink, with the exception of the gowns worn by the bride and maid of honor, who were in white. The gowns of the matrons of honor and bridesmaids were of the varied shades of pink and were exceedingly pretty. The bride's gown was of princess lace, trimmed with duchesse lace and rose point, with a court train of white satin. Her veil was of princess lace ornamented with old point lace and orange blossoms, and she carried lilies-of-the-valley and orchids.

The maid of honor's gown was of white striped chiffon cloth while the matrons of honor and bridesmaids wore gowns of pink striped chiffon, of different shades, and they all carried boquets of pink sweet peas.

Assisting in the ceremony was the vested choir of the church, under the direction of J. Edmund Skiff, organist and choirmaster. A 'cello accompaniment was a feature. The choir preceded the bridal party as it entered the church, singing the "Bridal Chorus" from the Lohengrin wedding march. The ushers followed the choir, then came the maid of honor, matrons of honor, bridesmaids and the bride, accompanied by her father who gave her in marriage. At the altar they were met by the groom and his best man.

During the ceremony the choir sang "O, Perfect Love." In leaving the church, the bride and groom led the way, followed by the other members of the party and the guests. A reception was held at the home of the bride's parents on Myrtle avenue. This was largely attended and was a brilliant affair. The display of costly gifts of every description was greatly admired. Mr. and Mrs. McGee were the recipients of hearty congratulations previous to their departure on a wedding trip at 10:30. Upon their return they will reside on Orchard place. During the hours of the reception a delightful program of music was rendered by a stringed orchestra. The bride, who possesses exceptional musical talent, made nearly all of the selections of music rendered at the church and the house.

The groom is a graduate of Yale '96, Sheffield, and is a member of the Yale Club of New York and the Park Club. The bride is also a member of the Park Club, and both she and Mr. McGee are prominent in social affairs and athletic events at the club. Mr. McGee is secretary of the Concrete Steel Company of New York.

EX-BANK BURGLAR TO TELL OF HIS CAREER

George Miles White, alias George Bliss, the notorious bank burglar, who has served long prison terms for robbing New York banks, will speak of his experiences and his conversion at the Salvation Army Hall tonight. White has had a most checkered career, and his adventures as bank burglar in New York city have been collected and published by him in a book, called "From Boniface to Bank Burglar."

The man's career as a bank burglar began through the miscarriage of justice. He was a successful business man when about thirty years of age, but was arrested on a charge of having looted the Walpole Savings Bank, New York, a charge of which he was innocent. He was a prisoner in a cell with criminals at Keene, N. Y., while his hearing was under way, and finally convicted for a term of imprisonment. Crushed by the disgrace of wrongful imprisonment, he escaped from the jail, a hardened criminal through the chain of circumstances.

Falling in with a band of burglars, White went from bad to worse. On a charge of felony, he was convicted finally to serve a long term in Sing Sing prison. He was converted in a New York city prison cell, through S. H. Hadley, of the old Water Street Mission. His story of his life was written while he was paying the penalty for a daring bank robbery in a prison cell in Clinton Prison, Dannemora, N. Y. The story of his life, as written in his book, published last year, reads like a highly spiced tale of adventure, but it is no fiction. White is now a wholehearted Christian man, reformed to the cause of God and an enthusiastic Christian worker. He will tell of his career in tonight's meeting, where all are invited.

BOB DAVIS WILL VOTE FOR BRYAN

Jersey City, April 30.—"I shall go to the Democratic national convention in Denver July 7," declared City Collector Robert Davis yesterday after his return from Tuesday's State convention, at which ex-Senator Smith prevented Davis from being elected one of the four delegates-at-large. "I shall go as one of the two district delegates from the Tenth Congressional District, and, like the other three district delegates from Hudson, I expect to vote for Bryan for the Presidential nomination."

"But won't the unit rule prevent the Bryan men from voting for their favorite?"

"The unit rule was never regularly adopted yesterday," replied Davis. "I'm for Bryan, and I don't think anybody can prevent me from voting for Bryan in the convention. My idea is that there will be at least eight Bryan votes in the New Jersey delegation of twenty-four."

"What do you think of ex-Senator Smith's attitude yesterday?"

"I feel quite well today, thank you," was Davis's reply. "Up to 1 o'clock yesterday afternoon Smith didn't have the votes to beat me. What happened between 1 o'clock and the time the vote was taken I can't say. I don't know the nature of the arguments used.

"I refused to accept Smith's terms, and because I declined to bow down to him the ex-Senator was against me. If I had agreed to desert Bryan I could have had one of the positions for delegates-at-large. But I'm no traitor. I'm for Bryan."

Miss Mildred A. Rathbun.

Miss Mildred A. Rathbun, aged eight years old, died this morning at the home of her uncle, Amos Andrews, of upper North avenue, following a two weeks' illness which began with measles and developed into pneumonia. She was the daughter of the late Frank Rathbun, of Norwich, Conn., and she died in the room in which she was born. She attended the First M. E. church and was a member of the Sunday-school. She is survived by a mother and sister, Mrs. Werner B. Heidloff, of North Plainfield. The funeral services will be held from the home of Mr. Andrews Saturday morning at 10:30 o'clock, Rev. A. C. McCrea, of the First M. E. church, officiating. The burial will be at Norwich, Conn.

First Y. W. C. A. Outing.

The first excursion of the Y. W. C. A. outing club will take place Saturday afternon, when a party of the young women members of the association will walk to the Scotch Plains Notch after spring flowers. Miss Amy R. Tapping and Miss Margaret E. Mosher, the association secretaries, will accompany the party.

Mrs. Harry Schaffus, of Fairview avenue, who underwent an operation at Muhlenberg Hospital, two weeks ago, has returned home much improved.

OVERHEATED STOVE CAUSES STUBBORN FIRE

An overheated stove set fire to the house occupied by James Traynor, 319 Manson place and an alarm from box 47 called the department out at 10 o'clock last night. The kitchen stove burned a hole in the floor and the blaze ate its way into the partitions and spread to the second story. When the firemen arrived on the scene, the stairs were ablaze and fire had broken out n the rear of the buiding. A line of hose was streached and the progress of the flames promptly checked.

The house is owned by Patrick Donhegan, of Shippers' Point, Stamford, Conn., and the loss will amount to $500, fully covered by insurance. Damage to the amount of several hundred dollars was done to the furniture, which is also insured.

HOPE ENDEAVORERS ELECT REPRESENTATIVES.

At the monthly meeting of the Christian Endeavor Society of Houe chapel last night, Miss Mary Mortimer was chosen the representative to the Plainfield Christian Endeavor Union, and Miss Bertha Jones and Frank Rimmer were appointed representatives of the chapel in the mission work, which the Endeavor Union contemplates taking up within a short time.

It was decided to devote one meeting a month to a mission study of China. This will take the place of the missionary topics. The missionary committee will assume charge and obtain leaders and plan topics for the next eight months.

The entertainment committee which has charge of the details for the play, "Just for Fun," to be given soon, was authorized to complete all arrangements. Rehearsals are now being held and those who are to take part are making excellent progress with their lines.

LADIES' AID SOCIETY HOLDS A DIME SOCIAL.

A highly successful dime social was held last night at the home of Mrs. Gertrude Rittenhouse on New street, under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid Society of Hope chapel. A large number of those interested in the work of the society turned out for the affair and a snug little sum was realized, which will be used for re-binding the church hymnals.

During the evening, there were vocal solos by Miss Gretta Trembly and Clarence Rittenhouse. Mrs. L. R. Howard acted as accompanist. The program of the evening's entertainment was of a very informal nature, and included games and music. Before the social broke up, light refreshments were served. CARNEGIE SPECIAL STONED.

Windows Broken in Train at South Plainfield.

Andrew Carnegie's special train was stoned by tramps hanging around the Lehigh Valley Railroad yards at South Plainfield, Tuesday night, and windows in Mr. Carnegie's car were broken. Stones hurled at another train broke a window and injured a woman and little girl, it is alleged. Yesterday orders were issued to get all the trespassers at the yards, and Detective eJnkins arrested ten boys who had just come in on a freight. Their ages ranged from 16 to 20.

They were taken to New Brunswick. Justice Sedam sent them all to jail for fifteen days each for trespass. It was not charged that these boys had anything to do with the attack on Mr. Carnegie's train. The boys said they were all from Newark and came out to the country to look for work. They gave their anmes as Reuben Koplon, William Shaffer, Frank Smith, William Maitland, William Brown, Joseph Stoke, William Klennett, William Claffer, John Smith and Thomas Ryan.

FOUND MISSING RINGS; GETS REWARD OF $300

Finding two valuable diamond rings at Pedeflous' hotel, Sunday afternoon, John F. Casey, Jr., of West Third street, saw the loss advertised in the want column of the Daily Press Monday and received $300 reward for their return to an East Orange woman yesterday afternoon. The name of the loser of the diamonds is withheld, but the want ad was signed "L. S." and it is reported that the name is "Smith."

The woman was at Pedeflous' Hotel early Sunday afternoon and took the rings off while dining and went away without picking them up. Casey found them there a short time afterward. One was a 3½ carat diamond ring and the other was set with a cluster of diamonds. It is said that the two are valued at $1,800. Aside from the advertisement inserted in the "Lost" column of The Daily Press, the loss was advertised through a Newark agency, in the New York papers. Seeing the ad in the Press, Casey wrote to the Newark address, stating that he had found the sparklers, and the woman came to this city with her husband yesterday and identified her property.

SENATOR ACKERMAN TO SHOW VIEWS OF TRAVEL.

"Around the World by Proxy" will be the title of State Senator Ernest R. Ackerman's lecture at the Y. M. C. A. auditorium Friday night, when he will lecture under the auspices of the Plainfield Christian Endeavor Union. Many of the pictures to be shown on the sterioptiton screen were taken by the Senator himself, who has been around the world several times. Among the views to be shown are colored views of Egypt, China, Japan, India, Norway and Sweden and the lecturer will speak particularly of the religious beliefs of the various peoples of the East.

Many interesting incidents have occurred during the Senator's travels, and among them was a meeting with the powerful fleet of Admiral Rojestvensky on its fateful voyage to the Japan Sea. The steamer on which Mr. Ackerman was a passenger ran great risk of capture while passing Kamranh Bay, as the Russians had taken two British ships on the previous day.

Over one hundred beautifully colored views will be shown, illustrating the conditions of living and the beauties of nature in the various places visited by the audience, by proxy.

DR. MORGAN DIX DIES SUDDENLY IN NEW YORK.

The Rev. Dr. Morgan Dix, rector of Trinity church, New York, since the days of the Civil War, died suddenly at 9 o'clock last night at his home, 27 West Twenty-fifth street, that city, of heart failure, superinduced by asthma, from which he had been a sufferer for years. Dr. Dix had been ailing for several weeks, and was so ill when he delivered his Easter sermon that he barely was able to finish. Mrs. Dix, Dr. Dix's son, John A. Dix, and his daughters Margaret and Mrs. William H. Wheelock were at his bedside when he died.

Dr. Dix had been sick in bed since Sunday. His condition became so serious on Tuesday that Dr. Alexander A. Smith was called in. Dr. Smith was in constant attendance until Dr. Dix died. The funeral arrangements will be announced today. The interment will doubtless be in the Dix vault in Trinity churchyard, where Dr. Dix's father was buried.

DR. ZEGLIO'S AUTOMOBILE FELLS BOY AT CROSSING

Running across Somerset street at Pearl street early last evening, Abraham Bender, the nine-year-old son of Isaac Bender, of Somerset street, was knocked down by Dr. P. J. Zeglio's automobile, sustaining a compound fracture of the left leg, bruises and contusions. The boy is now at Muhlenberg Hospital, where it was said this afternoon that he is resting comfortably. The leg has been set and an examination shows that he was not internally injured as was first feared.

The accident happened at about 8 o'clock. Young Bender was crossing the street to meet his cousin, Ben Estrin. Dr. Zeglio, driving his car along Craig place, tooted his horn and slowed up as he crossed Somerset street. Two young men, Howard and Michael Powers, who were about to cross in front of the machine, stopped, but Bender who was directly behind them, darted out in an attempt to cross in front of the automobile. Michael Powers seized his arm as he psased and saved him being run down, but Bender struck the vehicle at the step. He was thrown heavily, and the machine, to which he clung in falling, was instantly brought to a stop by the doctor.

The two Powers picked up the boy, who fell directly at their feet, and, with the doctor, carried him to the office of Dr. F. J. Hughes. A hasty examination showed that his left leg was broken below the knee, and he was removed to Muhlenberg Hospital in the ambulance, accompanied by Dr. Zeglio.

Bystanders assert that the automobile was moving slowly, and Dr. Zeglio said today that the accident was the first he had ever had since he owned the car.

SIX-YEAR-OLD ANSWERS CHARGE IN CITY COURT

The youngest defendant who has ever appeared in the city court stood up on a bench and peered wonderingly at Judge Runyon, this morning, when her name was called to answer a charge of "stone throwing and malicious mischief." She was Mosina Weaver, the six-year-old foster daughter of Mrs. Martha Rogers, colored, of Madison avenue, who from all accounts is an unusually mischievous pickaninny. Mrs. Rogers admits this herself.

The judge had not been apprised of the tender age of Miss Mosina and after she had stood for a moment waiting for something to be said, he asked,

"Well, where's the defendant?"

Mrs. Rogers shoved the young lady forward but she couldn't be seen because of the desk and was put on the bench. The magistrate gave a whistle and mused aloud: "H'm, this is getting them rather early in the game."

Mrs. Louis Bender was Mosina's accuser and she related a long list of bad things the six-year-old had done. Mrs. Rogers piped in that Mrs. Bender had a boy that was worse than Mosina and that he was the one induced her to misbehave. Just about that time Judge Runyon exclaimed:

"Take Mosina home, Mrs. Rogers, and use a little strap oil and you, Mrs. Bender, have a session in the woodshed with this boy of yours. That's all I can do in this case."

The "Chapeys" Plead Guilty.

Mrs. Catherine Gertrude Chapey, Gertrude M. Chapey, her daughter, and John P. Wallenhagen, who represented himself as Miss Chapey's husband, were arraigned before Judge Atwater in the Court of Quarter Sessions at Elizabeth, on Tuesday, and pleaded guilty to passing worthless checks and the larceny of clothing and other articles valued at $300. The "Chapey family," as they are known here, were arrested in Summit ast February after a varied career, during which they obtained money and articles in many towns and cities in the State. The three will be arraigned for sentence on Wednesday, May 6.

In the City Court.

Mrs. Lula Dickinson, a resident of the Netherwood section, appeared in the city court, this morning, as complainant against Thomas Hand, who she alleged had ill-treated horses used by him in hauling sand from a pit. She also declared that he had used insulting language when she informed him she would make complaint. After hearing the evidence Judge Runyon accepted Mr. Hand's statement that he had not used undue violence in getting the horses out of the pit. The defendant admitted that he might have spoken hastily to Mrs. Dickinson and apologized at the magistrate's request.

CAPT. DALY BADLY HURT

Struck by Scaffolding Under Central Ave. Bridge, Fireman is Swept from His Seat.

JOS. CLARK'S NARROW ESCAPE.

Chief Doane Blames Bridge Workers for Accident in Running to Small Noon Blaze.

Struck in the head by an iron bar projecting down from the scaffolding under the Central avenue railroad bridge, Captain James Daly was swept from the hose wagon in responding to a still alarm of fire at noon today and badly hurt. The injured man was removed to headquarters and Dr. Lufborrow was summoned. An examination showed the captain's face to be severely bruised by the blow and there may be internal injuries resulting from the fall. Driver Joseph Clark of No. 2 hose wagon, on which Daly was riding, had his shirt torn open down the back and his back painfully scratched by the bar as he ducked to avoid being hit in the head.

In speaking of the accident, Chief T. O. Doane said that the captain's injury was directly due to carelessness of the bridge contractors. "The bar," he said, in speaking to a Daily Press reporter, "projected down from the contractors' scaffold under the bridge, and by actual measurement was only 8 feet 1¾ inches above the ground. The alarm came in during the noon hour for the bridge workers and nobody was there to warn the firemen about the projection. Of course I knew that the scaffold was built there under the bridge, but I warned the contractor not to have it built too low and to take it down when the men were not working there. I consider the accident an outrageous piece of negligence and carelessness on the part of the bridge workers."

Realizing possible danger from the scaffold, Driver Clark slowed down his team in going under the bridge. As soon as he saw the bar, he shouted to the men on the apparatus and ducked, escaping a blow in the head, but getting his back painfully cut. Captain Daly was sitting with his back to the driver, drawing on his boots, and turned his head on hearing Clark's warning shout. The projecting bar caught him squarely in the side of the face, hurling him from the truck. The doctor's examination revealed no broken bones, but Daly complains of acute pains in his back and side and may be internally injured.

The fire was in the barn of Frederick H. Andrews, at 818 Central avenue. Fire started from spontaneous combustion in a heap of compost, and was rapidly spreading when the coachman turned the garden hose on it. The fireman had little to do and the loss was trifling.

SOME STATE NEWS BRIEFS

Former Governor Stokes will be the Memorial Day orator at Woodbury.

Ewan still clings to the old stagecoach line, its only means of travel, although many efforts have been made in the last few years to connect the town by trolley.

To enter a protest against the sale of Jefferson street wharf, as proposed by the Street Committee of the Camden Council, the Board of Trade will hold a special meeting tonight.

The automobile of J. F. Golder came into collision with Thomas Connelly, who was riding a bicycle, at Milville yesterday. The bicycle was demolished and Connelly was badly injured.

Wanted in Camden on a charge of the larceny of $300 a year ago from Elmer E. Logan, of 618 Federal street, Emil Girard has been arrested in New York. He will be taken to Camden by County Detective Smith.

Charged with cruelly neglecting his three small children, Arthur Williams, of Tenth street and Pennsylvania avenue, was held in $300 bail in the Camden Police Court yesterday for a further hearing tomorrow.

Arrested on suspicion by City Detective Moffett, in Camden yesterday afternoon, William Smith was identified as the colored man who recently swindled Druggist Welser, of Fifth and Market streets, out of about $10.

Edward Lee, who is accused of being a wire thief and who was captured by Marshal Biggs, after a desperate struggle Saturday last, is again at large, having "skipped" his bail of $400, given by Daniel Dougherty. When Lee failed to appear at the time set for a hearing the detectives at once set out in search for him, tracing him to Camden, where he attempted to get a berth in a seagoing tug, but failed.

Fire destroyed the home of W. I. Newell, at Smith's Landing, yesterday. It being chilly, Mr. Newell had a fire started in his furnace, and it is thought sparks started a blaze in the attic. Harry Jenness and his wife were awakened with their room filled with smoke; and they hastily awoke the rest of the sleeping family, who had a narrow escape. Nothing was saved and the loss is $10,000, partly covered by insurance.

With 150 representative citizens enrolled as members and many pledges of support from voters, the Burlington Local Option League was organized at Grand Army Hall last evening. It is a branch of the county league, which is organizing the entire county for practical campaign work. The officers elected were: Norman Hoffman, president; Forest MacCorckel, vice-president; Carleton E. Sholl, secretary; Clinton Ladow, treasurer.

A suit that attracts much attention at Vineland is that for $10,000 damages instituted by Attorney H. C. Bartlett for Altiorige Guilianna against James Pasquale, Joseph Louise and Michael Pasquale. Guilianna is a contractor and builder and a rival of Pasquale, the most prominent contractor of the town, now engaged on the new opera house. Guilianna claims Pasquale and his two workmen waylaid him on the street and beat and otherwise maltreated him.

The sixty-first annual meeting of the Camden County Medical Society was held yesterday afternoon at Camden, when these officers were elected: President, Paul M. Mecray; vice-president, William B. Jennings; secretary, Daniel Strock; treasurer, A. Haines Lippincott; historian, Alfred Cramer, Jr.; reporter, Henry H. Sherk; censor, William H. Izard, 1913; trustee, H. Genet Taylor, 1911; legislative committee, Henry H. Davis, chairman;; William I. Kelchner, John K. Bennett.

As a result of a Sunday night boxing bout and beer party near Delanco Constable Hahner has made ten arrests and expects to make more. It is charged that as members of the party had begun to show the effects of the beer John McLaughlin opened the spigot of the keg and let the beer run. Charles Volkman, manager of the picnic, it is alleged, attacked McLaughlin with a mallet, causing severe injury. Somebody fired several shots from a pistol and it is said Volkman was hit in the hip, but as the constable is unable to find him this rumor may be untrue.

SPORTS HERE AND THERE

GOLF.

C. W. Hunt, Jr., won the Columbia University golf championship by defeating A. L. Broe in the final round on the links of the Dunwoodie Country Club Monday afternoon. The qualifying round was played on Saturday morning, and out of a field of nine Hunt, Broe, R. L. Morrow and H. P. Fish were left in for the finals. In the first match play round Hunt beat Morrow 2 up and 1 to play, and Broe beat Fish by the same score.

Alec Smith, the professional of the Nassau Country Club, and H. H. Barker, the Garden City Golf Club "pro," met in an informal match over the former's home links Monday. The morning round found Smith standing 4 up, and he increased this advantage sufficiently in the afternoon to win by 6 up and 5 to play. Barker, who came to this country last fall, held the Irish open championship on one occasion.

The competitive season at the Nassau links will begin on May 2. As previously announced, the main attraction this season will be the two-day open tournament, June 19 and 20. Monthly handicaps and four-ball foursomes will play a prominent part in the list of club events, which has only been made out up to August. Herbert L. Pratt has offered a cup for the three lowest gross scores made in competition prior to November 1.

The handicap committee of the Western Golf Association has rated players from 101 clubs. This is the largest number of clubs ever handicapped by any association, and the task will be better appreciated when it is remembered that these clubs are distributed over twenty States. All handicaps are figured on the par basis.

There are six scratch men, H. Chandler Egan, Warren K. Wood, D. E. Sawyer, W. C. Fownes, Jr., and E. M. Byers. On last year's list Wood appeared at 1. Those who have been rated at 1 this season are Kenneth P. Edwards, Robert E. Hunter, W. J. Howland, Jr., Norman Macbeath and G. A. Ormiston.

The Royal and Ancient Golf Club of St. Andrews will have a meeting on May 3, but it is understood that nothing new about the rules will be announced until after the September meeting. This would indicate that the committee is either extremely sluggish or else making an earnest effort to improve the present code by long study.

The Allegheny Country Club has selected June 11, 12 and 13 as the dates for its annual open tournament. This conflicts with the Wykagyl Country Club's dates, and for that reason few metropolitan players may go on. Eben M. Byers, the national amateur champion in 1906, is practising regularly at Allegheny. He recently began using long clubs, and since then his driving has improved wonderfully.

At the annual meeting of the Western Golf Association held Monday in Chicago, the following clubs were elected to membership: Douglas Country Club, Douglas, Ariz.; Ginnissippi Golf Club, Janesville, Wis., and University Golf Club, Urbana, Ill.

BASEBALL.

Manager Ernest Dorflinger of the Clinton Avenues is arranging a good schedule of games for this season. Thus far he has settled on two contests with High Bride, one here and the other at High Bridge. Games have also been arranged with Rahway and on May 16, the Elizabeth A. C., will play on Crescent Oval. He expects in a few days to decide on a series of contests with Flemington.

Clinton Avenue will play the Junior team at Crescent Oval on Saturday afternoon and the contest should be a good one. Manager Walters promises to present a strong lineup against the inter-city champions.

Clifford Randolph is pitching better ball this year than ever before. He has more speed than last year and his control seems to be perfect.

As soon as Manager Bogert Conklin, of Somerville, organizes a team, Manager Dorflinger will get busy and schedule a series of games.

Burchell, formerly of Baltimore, but now of the Boston Americans, was given a little chance on Tuesday against the Highlanders, being called upon to relieve Glaze after the seventh inning. Boston lost the contest by a narrow margin.

Tune Hewitt, with Scotch Plains last season, is playing first base for the Junior team. He will also be given a chance to pitch during the season. VanArsdale will be the regular twirler.

Many improvements have been made at Crescent Oval, adding to the comfort of the patrons of the game.

Physical Director Listman, of the Y. M. C. A., is organizing a strong aggregation to play in the State As-

JERSEY AUTO LAW IN EFFECT JUNE 1

Unusual preparations are being made in New Jersey to carry into effect the provisions of the new automobile law which becomes operative June 1 next. State Commissioner Smith now has 10 paid inspectors, and 20 unpaid inspectors on his staff, to instruct local authorities and investigate complaints.

What interests the autoist most in the new law is in the increased rate of assessment it reveals. Cars of less than 10-horsepower must henceforth pay $3 annually, $5 for machines of from 10 to 20-horsepower inclusive and $10 for cars of 30-horsepower and above, while drivers' licenses have also been increased from $1 and $2, to $2 and $4, according to the horsepower of the car handled, the dividing line being at 30-horsepower mark.

Makers' annual registration certificates will be at the rate of $5 each, and will be limited to five cars, for which $25 must be paid. These licenses are to be transferable. To accommodate the cab companies, blanket licenses permitting them to drive their vehicles fifteen miles within the borders of the state will be issued at a cost of $100 per annum.

Henceforth identification marks will be furnished by the state and all registrations will expire on December 31. Each number tag will also have stamped upon it the manufacturers' serial number, to prevent counterfeiting and running a car without renewing its license. Motorcycles will also be compelled to carry identification marks. Among the other changes in the new law, as compared with the old, is a provision making it a misdemeanor to throw glass or other cutting substances on the roadway, also one empowering the road commission to expend not more than $1,000 annually for the erection of warning signs. The money collected is to be expended for road improvements.

BOY OF 7 SAVES BOY OF 9.

Catches Hand and Holds Head Above Water Till Help Comes.

New Brunswick, April 30.—Jesse Tunison, 7 years old, saved Vivian Grady, 9, from drowning at Weston's Mills, near here, Tuesday. Both boys live in this city. They went to the Mills to fish, and Grady tumbled in. The water was over his head and he was carried down stream.

There was a narrow plank part way across the stream, and out on this Jesse ran and caught Vivian by the hand as he was being swept toward the dam. He couldn't pull him up, but he held his head above water, while both called for help. Michael Burns happened along at the right time, and got both boys away from danger.

NEW GAME LAWS IN STATE OF NEW JERSEY

It is now possible, out of the muddle and struggle over the New Jersey game laws, to say just what and when gunners may shoot and what and when they must not shoot. The efforts made by the new fish and game commission to reform the game laws and bring system out of chaos by a number of bills it introduced in the Legislature were partly successful. Several of these fell by the wayside in one house or the other, and several were vetoed by the Governor, but on the whole a distinct advance was made that will result in at least postponing the extermination of game in New Jersey. The most important advance scored was in shortening the water fowl season in South Jersey by three and one-half months and by five and one-half months in North Jersey. Two water fowl game districts and two seasons were created. In North Jersey the open season for this kind of game will hereafter be from October 15 to January 1.

There are now also two districts and two seasons for upland shooting. The geographical divisions are the same as in the water fowl districts. The open season in the northern district is from October 15 to December 1 and in the southern districts from November 15 to December 31. In game preserves shooting may begin October 1 and continue until December 31. The kinds of game included within this law are woodcock, ruffed grouse, quail, English pheasant, prairie chicken, wild turkey, rabbit and squirrel.

Other measures enacted were these: Allowing persons to bring game into New Jersey when it is legally acquired in another State, but not permitting it to be sold here. The non-resident license law was extended to include persons shooting wild water fowl, so that now nobody can shoot in this State without a license. A law was enacted prohibiting unnaturalized residents from shooting without a license. This is to prevent this class of persons from ranging the fields and woods for the slaughter of insectivorous and song birds. The game commissioners say the destruction of these harmless and useful birds by this class of gunners has been one of the most serious evils they have had to contend with. Now none of these unnaturalized foreigners can shoot without a license. Another bill cut out the July woodcock shooting season.

Open season for spearing suckers and eels now is from February 20 to June 30, extending the open season for two months over the present law. It applies only to salt water. A joint resolution was adopted for a tri-state commission, to be appointed by Pennsylvania, New York and New Jersey, to confer in regard to the fishing interests of the Delaware river, with special reference to the shad industry. It will inquire in to the sources of pollution of the river, its effect upon the fish supply and the practical remedy.

William J. Thomson, who operates the largest shad fishery on the river, says that unless something is done to remedy this evil there will not be a shad in the Delaware in three years. Some progress was made in protecting sturgeon in the Delaware from extermination. It is now required that no seine with a mesh less than thirteen inches shall be used in the capture of these fish. One good sized sturgeon is now worth from $60 to $100. They were formerly so plentiful in the Delaware in certain periods that it was easy to capture all that were wanted, and they were held in such slight esteem as to be eaten by only the poorest persons. They sold in the Trenton markets for 3 cents a pound, while they now readily sell for 30 cents a pound. When one is now seen in the river there is great excitement among the fishermen, and it is pursued with great eagerness, its capture meaning $100. Increasing scarcity of this fish is mainly attributed to the unscrupulous greed of the fishermen in capturing and selling the baby sturgeon. The thirteen inch mesh now required will permit these to escape, and it is the purpose of the fish and game wardens to keep a vigilant watch and vigorously to enforce this provision of the law.

JUDGE GRAY DECLINES A $200,000 SALARY

That no citizen of the United States should receive a compensation grater than that paid to the President, was the opinion expressed by Judge George Gray, of Delaware, in declining a munificent salary offered him if he would become the head of one of the big insurance companies.

The story of Judge Gray's refusal was told at Princeton a few nights ago by Judge David T. Marvel, of Wilmington, Del., in an address to the newly formed George Gray Club, of Princeton University. After speaking of Judge Gray's lifelong policy of refusing to seek public office, Judge Marvel said:

"Neither have the allurements of great wealth tempted him to depart from those fundamental principles which he believes should guide the life of every citizen of a republic.

ASK FOR THE FISHER HOLDBACK

The old style holdback for blinds affords a roosting place for birds and causes ugly stains to disfigure the sides of the house under the blinds. Notice this carefully and then you will want

The FISHER HOLDBACK to prevent it. No bird can roost on this.

This was shown when one of the greatest insurance companies, desiring to restore itself in the confidence of the public, offered to make him its president at a salary possibly the largest ever offered in this country. In declining the offer, he is reported to have said that he did not believe it consistent with our democratic institutions that any man should receive a salary larger than that paid to the President of the United States."

Although no mention of the exact sum offered to Judge Gray was made by Judge Marvel, it was learned from another source that the salary which he declined for the sake of principle, was $200,000 a year.

KISSES REWARD FOR JUDGE.

Waitresses Shower Atlantic City Court and Officers with Embraces.

Atlantic City, April 30.—When Miss Dora Stack, a waitress, was acquitted of ac harge of petit larceny preferred by Miss Julia Colbin, another waitress, yesterday afternoon, over two score waitresses, friends of the accused, kissed Police Judge Jagmetty and hugged all the lawyers and court officers in the room.

The judge was covered iwth hugs and kisses, while former Recorder Charles C. Babcock, who defended the girl, was folded in close embraces by half a score of pretty maids. Chief of Police Woodruff, who was in an outer room, fled before another flying wedge of girls reached him, and blushing court reporters climbed on bench and tables to escape the onslaught coming their way.

Miss Colbin had to be protected by a policeman on her way home to escape being mobbed by Miss Stack's friends. The latter purchased a box of cigars for Mr. Babcock, who fled, thinking they meant to embrace him again.

N.G. OF N.J. TROPHY MATCH SET FOR JULY

Inspector-General of Rifle Practise Bird W. Spencer has recommended a regimental team match to be held at Sea Girt, July 3 and 4, to be known as the New Jersey National Guard Trophy Match, and the plan has been approved by Adjutant-General R. Heber Breintnall. The details of the shoot provide that preliminary practise shall be held July 3, which will be optional with the various organizations. The test shoot will be held July 4 at 10 o'clock A. M., and the match will consist of teams of six men from each of the five infantry regiments, from each of the troops, from each of the batteries and from the Signal Corps and the Naval Reserve.

The distances and order of firing will be the same as those in the national match for 1907, as follows: 200 yards rapid fire, 10 shots; 200 yards slow fire, 10 shots and 2 sighting shots; 600 yards slow fire, 10 shots and 2 sighting shots; 800 yards slow fire, 10 shots and 2 sighting shots; one skirmish run, 20 shots; 1,000 yards slow fire, 10 shots and 2 sighting shots. The ammunition will be issued on the range by the State, seventy-eight rounds per man for six men and four alternates from each organization, for preliminary practise, and seventy-eight rounds per man for six men from each organization for the match.

Scores which would qualify members of the National Guard as marksmen, sharpshooters or experts, made in the preliminary practise or the match, will be allowed. The entrance fee will be $12 per team. One transportation from home station to Sea Girt and return will be issued by the State of New Jersey for ten men and one captain, eleven in all, from each organization.

There will be six prizes, the first to be the New Jersey National Guard Trophy and $30 and the others as follows:

Second prize, $25; third prize, $20; fourth prize, $15; fifth prize, $10, and sixth prize, $5.

The match will be conducted under the auspices of the New Jersey State Rifle Association and Inspector-General Spencer will be the executive officer. It is intended that this match will be the means of developing candidates to be selected to compete for places on the State team in the national match of 1908.

FLAMES CAUSE LOSS OF 135,000 GALLONS OF OIL.

Bayonne, April 30.—Fire in teh plant of the Tidewater Oil Company, on Constable Hook, destroyed 135,000 gallons of oil Monday night, and nine men were burned, four seriously.

The men who were worst injured were Edward and Frank Garble, brothers; Harry Ruding and James Crawley, all employes of the company. The fire started shortly before 8 o'clock, and for two hours Constable Hook, the Kill von Kull, part of the bay, and the north shore of Richmond Borough and the lower end of Bayonne were brilliantly illuminated. There was one explosion, which blew off the top of a still, and the pillar of fire rolled high into the air.

The workmen at the plant fought the fire, declining aid from outside. Tugs of the Tidewater and Standard Oil fought the fire from the Kills.

Governor Fort probably will be president general of the society, and the New Jersey delegates will support him for that office.

MRS. JOHN GERKEN TO SELL BLUE RIBBON HORSES

Mrs. John Gerken, who has been one of the most prominent exhibitors in the National horse shows for the past five years, has announced that she will dispose of her entire stable by auction at Durland's academy, New York, next Monday night. Notice of the sale follows her recent declaration that she proposed to retire from the tanbark ring and the last exhibition of the animals under her ownership will be at the Brooklyn show that began Tuesday night, continuing until Saturday.

The prize winning animals Mrs. Gerken will sell have captured over 1,000 ribbons and have appeared in all parts of the country. Probably the best known in the lot are "Newsboy" and "Shopgirl," the team that took several blues in Plainfield and defeated many competitors at Philadelphia and Atlantic City as well as in Madison Square Garden. "Newsboy" won a leg on the $500 Wanamaker cup at Philadelphia last season and has two legs on the Windsor challenge cup at Atlantic City.

Other valuable animals named in the list are "Imp. Doncaster Model," "Imp. Torchlight," "Imp. Cocksparrow," "Surprise," "My Lady Dainty," "La Contributor," "Peter Pan," "Gerkendale Prince," "Taffy" and "Cronje," all of which have been seen at the local riding and driving club's shows.

AMUSEMENTS.

The Washburn Trained Animal Shows, the newest and best of the big amusement enterprises, will pay its annual visit to Plainfield on Tuesday, May 5, and will exhibit on the Darrow avenue grounds afternoon and evening, rain or shine. Housed under mammoth waterproof tents which defy the elements, no storm is too severe to spoil the entertainment, and with a new and perfect system of ventilation, no day is too hot to prevent its being cool and comfortable under the canvas. There are hundreds of animals of all sorts and sizes with this show, and the performance is a constant source of wonder and delight. Ladies and children, in particular, find the entertainment delightfully interesting, and every care is taken for their comfort and convenience. There are none of the disagreeable features sometimes so noticeable with other big shows, and there is no lady or child who may not attend in perfect safety and comfort. Washburn prides himself particularly on his parade, which will pass through the main streets on the morning of the day of the exhibition, and no one should fail to see this interesting and novel pageant. In this parade are shown the smallest horses in the world, the smallest herd of baby elephants in captivity, the finest draft horses, the greatest array of dogs and monkeys, many cages of rare animals, and many new and novel features.

WOULD REOPEN OLD SUIT.

Echo of Failure of Clinton Lumber Company in 1895.

Motion was made before Vice Chancellor Emery Tuesday in Newark, to reopen a decree signed by him three years ago. The decree holds William S. Ketcham, William S. Ketcham, Jr., and George W. Ketcham liable for 60 per cent of their stock of the Clinton Hill Lumber and Manufacturing Company, which became insolvent in 1893. Under the decree they were to pay to the receiver, Thomas N. McCarter, 60 per cent. of their subscriptions.

In making the motion yesterday the Ketchams alleged through their counsel that they had met their subscriptions in full by the cash payment of $8,200 at the time the call was made, and by turning over to the receiver property valued at $17,000. The total amount of their subscriptions is $20,500.

WIDOW MUST NOT MARRY.

If Mrs. Mary Rowland Does She Forfeits Large Income.

According to the will of the late Shepard Rowland, admitted to probate in the Surrogate's Court Tuesday, his widow, Mary Casper Rowland, will forfeit the income of $100,000 if she marries again. The money in such an event reverts to the residuary estate.

Rowland, a wealthy New York business man, died in his Montclair home on January 27. Besides the provision for his widow, he leaves his son, Harry Shepard Rowland, $10,000; a sister, Mrs. Louisa Olcott, the income from $10,000, and Mrs. Mary Sexton, another sister, the sum of $2,000. Besides the sum for the son, he is established in his father's business.

"Merry Widow" Ball Game.

Mrs. F. A. Pattison and Postmaster Truman T. Pierson, of Metuchen, have arranged a game of baseball between the Metuchen team and a team from the "Merry Widow" company of New York, to be played here on Tuesday, May 5, at 1 p. m. It is expected that most of the chorus girls will accompany the team here. Donald Brian, who is Prince Dancilo in the opera, will pitch. Mayor Alfred Ellis will open the game, the proceeds of which are to go to the Borough Improvement League.

Prayer Meeting Topic For the Week Beginning May 3, 1908.

By REV. J. J. H. DOYLE.

Topic.—Songs of the heart—V. The silver lining of dark clouds.—Ps. xlii. 43. (Consecration meeting.)

The Forty-second Psalm was written by David. It was written at one of the times when his soul was deeply depressed over his absence from Jerusalem and the house of God. The date is probably the year of his flight from Jerusalem, at the time of Absalom's rebellion, when he spent several months across the Jordan, principally at Mahanain. Between the Forty-second and Forty-third Psalms there is an intimate relationship, the latter being in a sense an added stanza to the former. In them we indeed see dark clouds in the life of David and also the silver lining to the clouds. They are "chiefly an outpouring of sorrow and complaint, but still they are instructive, inasmuch as they teach the lesson that in the deepest gulf of sorrow [the dark clouds] the soul may still turn to God and rest itself in hope on Him" [the silver lining].

The dark clouds in the life of David at this time were many. His favorite son had rebelled against him. His most trusted friends had proved false to him. As a fugitive he had fled from his home; but, worst of all, his soul was cast down because of his absence from the house of God. God seemed to him to be associated only with the tabernacle, and absent from it he felt that he was absent from God. "My soul is cast down within me" seems to have been the burden of his sorrow, and frequently he cries, "Why art thou cast down, O my soul, and why art thou disquieted within me?" Dark clouds, indeed, and yet not unfamiliar to the modern Christian. Temporal adversities and spiritual depression are not unusual. The wicked prosper, the righteous fail, and our souls are disquieted within us because we cannot solve the mystery. We are bereaved and afflicted. We ask God why and get no answer, and we are spiritually depressed. Sin obtains the mastery of us, and, alienated from God, we feel as if God had altogether forsaken us, and we, too, cry out, "My soul is cast down within me!"

David's clouds had a silver lining—hope in God. "Hope thou in God!" was his own answer to the cry of his soul. "Why art thou cast down, O my soul, and why art thou disquieted within me? Hope thou in God, for I shall yet praise Him who is the light of my countenance and my God." Hope in God is the silver lining to every dark cloud in human life. Deep mysteries surround us. Insolvable problems present themselves continually to us. The pathway of life at times is hard and rough. But to the man who hopes in God there is always a silver lining to the cloud. He may seem to have forsaken us, but it is never so. He watches the sparrow when it falls. Can He therefore forget His own? Never. Through the darkness He only leads us to a fuller vision of Himself.

Ye fearful saints, fresh courage take.
The clouds ye so much dread
Are big with mercy and shall break
In blessings on your head.

Australia's C. E. President.

The Rev. Joseph Robertson, M. A., the Australasian Christian Endeavor union president elect, was one of the earliest students of Camden college, Newtown, Sydney, and won his degree at the university in the immediate neighborhood. He has successfully during a long ministry held the pastorates of the Congregational churches in Hawthorn, Auckland, Petersham and Adelaide. Some time since he removed from Stow church, Adelaide, to Clayton, a suburb of that city, where his ministry is much appreciated. He is connected by marriage with the Rev. S. C. Kent, the Australasian president of ten years ago. During a visit to America he was the guest of Dr. and Mrs. Clark, and it is anticipated that his term of office will be crowned with rich and enduring blessing.

The recent Australasian convention was a great success. All the states were well represented, and the fellowship held together, both spiritually and intellectually, can never be forgotten by those thus privileged to meet in the bonds of Christian union. One delegate said at the great united welcome meeting, "We cannot get much nearer heaven than this!" The next convention will be held in Queensland in 1909.

Rev. James Mursell of South Australia was elected as vice president to the World's C. E. union and also appointed Australasian representative of the British Committee. The Australasian Christian Endeavor membership now is 77,344.

CHAPTER XIV.

THE first committee room that lay to the right of Horrigan's office—in the same relation to it as the antechamber to the left—was usually given over to dry official business, and its musty walls must almost have experienced a distinct shock about this time as Dallas Wainwright entered from the corridor behind. She was accompanied by Perry and by Phelan, who, passing through the corridor toward the aldermanic chamber, had collided with the brother and sister at the committee room door.

"Here's a good sight for sore eyes, Miss Wainwright," the alderman was saying with his best air. "But is it fair to ask what brings such a bunch of sunshine into an old p'litical shell like this? I'd as soon think of seeing Horrigan at mass as to find you here."

"I want to attend the aldermen's meeting," exclaimed Dallas. "I have a special reason. So I made Perry bring me. But at the door they told us the gallery was so crowded that we couldn't"—

"Never you mind the gallery, miss," interrupted Phelan. "It isn't meant for the likes of you anyway. You just sit here a few minutes, an' I'll catch an attendant somewhere an' make him hustle up a couple of good chairs for you on the main floor, where you can pipe everything just like you were in your own op'ra box coppin' off a swad of high C's."

"Thank you so much, alderman," replied Dallas. "I hope we're not putting you to too much trouble."

"No trouble at all. An' even if it was I'd come a-runnin' to meet it. I'm the original trouble eater. Besides, the best in the house is none too good for the lady who was so int'rested in my outings. So long! I'll be right back."

"What a queer chap he is!" mused Perry, as Phelan hastened away on his mission. "If I could take a six weeks' course in slang and hot air from that man I'd be able to sew buttons on the whole English language."

"I don't think you need very much tuition," observed Dallas. "But it was kind of Mr. Phelan to look after us. I like him be"—

"Because he's standing by Bennett so pluckily in this fight?"

"Mr. Bennett is nothing to me."

"No?" asked Perry in innocent amaze. "Then I wasted a lot of good cigarette money cabling to you about his campaign when you were across the big wash last summer. For a man who was 'nothing' to you you sure took large swads of intelligent interest. Look here, little girl," he went on, less flippantly, "what's the matter? Has anything"—

"No!" she broke in, with a miserable effort at courage. "Nothing's the matter. I'm perfectly happy. Why shouldn't I be? An engaged girl is always"—

"An engaged girl!" he shouted in high glee. "You don't mean to say you and Alwyn"—

"Of course not. I am engaged to Mr. Gibbs."

"Good Lord!" gasped the lad in honest dismay. "If that's meant for a joke, it's the punkest ever! Did"—

"It isn't a joke, Perry, and it's very rude of you to talk so. I am engaged to Mr. Gibbs, and"—

"But—how—when did the atrocity come off, and"—

"I became engaged to him the night of the administration ball. I didn't want to tell you yet, because I knew you don't like him. I'm—I'm"—

"You're happy?"

"Certainly I am!" she retorted defiantly. "So happy that I"—

"That you are having a fight to keep from crying this blessed minute!" he finished. "Say, Dallas, it breaks me all up to have you so miserable. I think a whole lot of you. More'n of any one else but Cynthia. And I want to help you out of this measly mixup. Won't you?"—

"There is nothing any one can do," she murmured sadly. "I have chosen my course and I"—

"Cheese it!" whispered Perry in hurried admonition. "Here comes Bennett, and Phelan's with him."

The young mayor came in, talking to the alderman as he came.

"This room's disengaged," he was saying. "I'll write it here and give it to—oh, I beg your pardon," he broke off, recognizing Dallas and Perry. "I didn't know"—

"I've got two good seats for you," announced Phelan. "Right where you can see an' hear the whole shootin' match. An' I guess before the meetin's over it's liable to get as interestin' as a double "Uncle Tom" show in a tent. I'll show you the way as soon as you're ready. There's no rush. Things ain't begun to sizzle up yet."

Bennett had crossed to where Dallas stood irresolute and, under cover of Phelan's talk with Perry, said to her, with a certain unconscious stiffness:

"I fear I was too taken aback by your announcement the other evening to remember to congratulate you, but please believe me when I say I wish you every happiness in the new life you have chosen."

"Thank you very much," faltered Dallas.

There was an awkward pause; then she said:

"You came in here to write something. I'm afraid we are detaining you. You must be busy with your fight against the Borough bill. You are quite determined to continue it to the end?"

"To the bitter end!" he answered miserably. "Even though that end can hold nothing but bitterness for me."

The set anguish in his face moved Dallas more than she dared confess even to herself.

"I am sorry," she said softly.

"It is the course I have chosen," he answered, with a shrug, "and if it leads to eternal darkness instead of the sunlight I expected I must follow it none the less."

"That is sheer obstinacy," she cried, battling against her own heart's passionate plea. "You have laid out a plan to ruin Mr. Gibbs, to deprive Perry and me of my own fortune, to enrich yourself by selling Borough stock short and then vetoing the bill so that the stock would collapse. You have done all this, and yet you talk of following your abominable course to the end!"

"Dallas," he said very quietly, "you don't understand."

"Dallas," he said very quietly, "you don't understand, and you refused to trust me to explain, so I can say no more. But one day you may learn the cruel mistake you are making."

"Mistake?"

"I don't mean that you are mistaken in choosing Gibbs instead of me, but that you are wrong in your judgment of what I am doing. I hope you will understand some day. It will be too late to change anything then, but at least I shall be set right in your eyes. And that means more to me than you can ever know. Goodby."

He left the room abruptly, and Dallas stared after him, her brain awhirl with conflicting thoughts.

"There's a man in ten million, miss," volunteered Phelan, breaking in on her reverie, "an' from the looks of that bran' new dinky, three-k spark on your finger I guess you're wise to the fact."

"I am engaged to Mr. Gibbs," replied Dallas coldly.

"What the"— gasped Phelan, checking himself just in time. "I'm sure sorry for you, miss," he went on, with a sincerity that precluded any offense, "for frien' Gibbs is going to have something so heavy fall on his bank roll by the time we're through with this Borough bill that he'll be able to use his wad for a book mark without crinklin' any of the leaves. Why, he'll"— "Come, Perry," interrupted Dallas. "Shall we go to the meeting now?"

Confused, she turned to the door leading into Horrigan's room instead of that opening on the corridor and found herself face to face with her uncle, the boss and Gibbs.

"I beg your pardon," she began, surprised. "I didn't know"—

"Dallas!" exclaimed Gibbs and Wainwright in the same breath. Horrigan scowled at the interruption as all three men rose to their feet.

"What brings you to a place like this?" asked Wainwright in displeasure.

"Perry and I," indicating her brother, who had followed her into the room, "are going to attend the meeting of the board of aldermen."

"But," protested her uncle disapprovingly, "it is hardly the sort of"—

"My fortune and Perry's and that of the man I am to marry are all bound up in the Borough bill," she answered fearlessly. "I have a right to be present when that bill's fate is decided."

"Good nerve!" applauded Horrigan. "You're a thoroughbred. If there were more women like you"—

"Mr. Horrigan," reported Williams, hurrying in from an antechamber, "the police have come, and"—

"All right," answered the boss. "Give the sergeant his orders."

"I—I hardly like the responsibility," muttered Williams, "and"—

"But you'll take it. I'm backing you. By the way, get seats for Miss Wainwright and her brother. Get them close to the anteroom door, so if there's a row she can come back here. If there are no vacant seats there, clear a couple of people out and make place for"—

"But we have seats," protested Dallas as Williams sped on his errand. "Alderman Phelan"—

"Alderman Phelan will have trouble finding a seat in this city when I'm done with him," snarled Horrigan. "Better take the seats I offer, Miss Wainwright. They're safer."

"But," protested Wainwright, "if there's to be any danger she mustn't be there. I can't have"—

"I will be on hand to help her if there is," Gibbs answered him.

"H'm!" grunted Horrigan in somewhat uncomplimentary doubt.

"I will, too!" spoke up Perry.

Horrigan nodded approval.

"You'll be all right then," said he. "And now"—

"You spoke of the police being in the aldermanic chamber," said Dallas. "What for?"

"To check any trouble the gallery may make," answered Horrigan. "This man Bennett's stirred the people up with a lot of his anarchistic reform ideas till they're crazy. Some one's liable to get a broken skull, and then Bennett will have himself to thank. Maybe when the police have hammered a little sense into folks' heads with their nightsticks, the victims will begin to understand just what sort of a man Alwyn Bennett is. Remember now, Gibbs, and you, too, young Wainwright, if there's any fight or a row bring Miss Wainwright back here at once."

"All right," agreed Perry, a little rueful at the prospect of missing a free fight. "Let's go in there now. I've never been to an aldermen's meeting before, but I ran up against a car strike riot once, so I guess I'm on to most of the subtle rules of elegance that govern such shows. Come on, people, if you're coming."

"Your niece is a thoroughbred," repeated Horrigan, with rare approbation, as the anteroom door closed behind Dallas and her two escorts. "So she's to marry Gibbs, is she? I'm sorry for them both."

"Why?" asked Wainwright sharply.

"Because it won't take her a year to find out that he's a yellow cur. And when she does she'll either kick him out or lead him around on a chain. Now, the fellow a girl of that sort ought to have married is Bennett. He's an obstinate fool, but he's a man. I thought you said once he was stuck on her."

"He was. He still is."

"And she took Gibbs instead?" cried Horrigan, a world of incredulity in his rough voice. "Women are a queer lot! Why'd she shake Bennett, if it is a fair question?"

"I let her see Gibbs was a heroic martyr," said Wainwright, with quiet significance, "and that Bennett was"—

"Oh, I see!" chuckled Horrigan. "Still, there might be something made out of Bennett's love for her even yet."

"What do you mean?

"I'm not quite sure. I'll have to think it over."

"Roberts has come!" exclaimed Williams, entering from the corridor. "He's asking for you. Shall I bring him in here?"

"Yes," replied Horrigan. "By the way," he added to Wainwright as Williams departed, "I'll have to ask you to clear out for a few minutes. I've got to see Roberts alone. Now for the tussle that'll decide the whole fight!"

And Wheras, The opening of said street would require a large expenditure of public funds, and it is to the interest of the city that such street should be vacated:

The inhabitants of the city of Plainfield, by their Common Council, do enact as follows:

Section 1. That the unnamed street referred to in two certain deeds from Job Male to Lemuel E. "Fritz the Wandering Musician" a new play of beautiful sentiment and admirably blended purposes, with Joe Hortiz, formerly seen here in "Our Friend Fritz" as the star will be seen at the New Plainfield Theatre next Saturday afternoon and evening. The play is by that brilliant writer of up-to-date drama, Crane Wilbur. As Mr. Hortiz was such a favorite among the local play goers in his previous success, there is little doubt but what his new vehicle will be well received.

Mr. Hortiz will render during the performance several new songs of his own composition which have never been heard before upon any stage.

The famous Rogers Brothers come to the New Plainfield theatre on May 8, presenting their latest side splitting farce, "The Rogers Brothers in Panama." This season there is a strong plot, a new departure in musical comedy. The Rogers Brothers will continue their broken English dialect and the contrast between their style of expression and the many types found in the much talked of country of Panama will be sure to create a great deal of humor.

The play is in three acts, depicting life in Panama, and are elaborate and graphic stage pictures of the localities which they represent.

The costuming permits of much color and effect, the beauty of which will be greatly enhanced by the soft blending of wonderful and picturesque color effects.

The company is one of the strongest that has yet surrounded the Brothers, and the large chorus has been carefully selected.

Valentine Goldsmith, of Fairview avenue, has returned home after a sojourn of a week at Atlantic City.

BOROUGH HIGH TRIMS ROSELLE IN EASY GAME

The North Plainfield High School baseball team had an easy win at Roselle yesterday afternoon, defeating the high school team there by a score of 16-8. The boroughites touched Bradford, the Roselle pitcher, for seven hits, one of them a two-bagger by Fred McClintock, but made most of their runs through the careless fielding of the home team, against which eleven errors were scored. Bradford gave nine bases on balls, striking out but two North Plainfielders. Unsteadiness marked the playing of the Roselle nine throughout the entire game.

The borough school nine started out strong at the bat, and at the end of the third, the score was 11-3 in their favor. Smith was generally effective in the box, fanning four and giving two passes. The Roselle batters hit safely four times. The score and lineups:

SOPHS. TAKE OPENING GAME IN P.H.S. LEAGUE

The sophomore class nine of the Plainfield High School won an uphill game from the junior class team at Crescent Oval yesterday afternoon, when heavy hitting in the last two innings gave them seven runs and the victory by a score of 9-7. The game was the first of the school interclass series, and the upper-classmen lost through weakening the team by changes in the various positions in the eighth inning.

Dodwell was on the slab for the sophomore nine and pitched good ball, developing lots of speed, and some astonishingly sharp bends which fooled the weakened junior team. VanZandt, captain of the 1910 team, wore the big mitt. For the juniors, "Jawn" Riffert, the "Wee Willie Keeler" of the school team, was in charge of the curve department. He pitched according to the South Bound Brook school of pitching and was effective as long as he was given good support. After several changes had been made by Captain Bingamin in the eighth, the sophomores began to make runs off Riffert's delivery, more because the outfielders sought to get the ball on first bound than because the pitcher weakened. Clyde Doane was behind the plate.

The sophomores made the first score in the second, but their opponents took a big lead in their next session with the stick, scoring five runs. Again in the sixth, two more 1909 players crossed the plate. The sophs won by batting in five in the eighth and three in the ninth. The score and linenps:

Sophomores	0 1 0 0 0 0 0 5 2—	9	10	5
Juniors	...0 0 5 0 0 2 0 0 0—	7	8	5

PARK GOLF CLUB TO BEGIN SEASON MAY 9

Activity at the Park Golf Club has been resumed, and the Greens committee has a force of men at work on the course putting it in condition for the opening. The recent dry weather has somewhat delayed operations so that the formal opening will not take place until May 9, instead of May 2, as originally planned. The tennis courts are being put in condition and will be ready for play on the opening day. George Anderson, who has been steward of the club for several years, will again be in charge of the clubhouse.

The Golf committee has arranged a schedule of events for the season which promises to be equally, if not more, interesting than that of last year. It is probable that the weekly competitions for the President's and Golf cups will start Saturday, May 16.

President Charles W. McCutchen has made his appointments of committees for the year as follows:

Greens committee— Reuben Knox, chairman; Miss Lydie Loizeapx, Leon R. Thurlow. House committee—Miss Lydie Loizeaux, chairman; Miss May Shreve, Alexander Gilbert. Golf committee—Charles B. Morse, chairman; J. Brognard Betts, W. V. Byard. Membership committee—Charles B. Morse, chairman;; Miss Grace Ten Eyck, Rev. C. L. Goodrich. Tennis committee—Dr. H. K. Carroll, chairman; Samuel Townsend and R. V. Carpenter.

Y. M. C. A. vs. Laurels Saturday.

The Y. M. C. A. baseball team will open the season Saturday afternoon with a game at Bound Brook. Their opponents will be the Laurels, which are a strong aggregation this year. Manager Listman has not decided yet who will be the points for the local nine. The first home game of the association nine will be at Crescent Oval Saturday afternon, May 9, when the Y. M. C. A. boys will play the Brooklyn association nine.

TOWN GOVERNMENT IS WEAK.

Somerville Citizens Decide Present Controlling Body Has Not Enough Vested Authority.

Somerville, April 30.—The annual town meeting was held in Somerset Hall Tuesday evening and was largely attended. Daniel H. Beekman was chosen chairman and J. A. Mets, Jr., secretary. After a lengthy discussion a resolution was adopted instructing the president of the new Board of Commissioners to appoint a committee of ten citizens to consider a new form of government for the town and report at a public meeting to be called.

It was shown by a member of the present Board of Commissioners, Charles C. Kenyon, that so little power was vested in the board as now constituted that it could do practically nothing in the way of public improvement, and Somerville was pronounced behind towns of equal size in the character of its government.

The old Board of Commissioners was renominated by acclamation. They are as follows: Charles C. Kenyon, Charles Schwed, Walter Durling, Joseph A. Barrass, Lewis A. Bellis and Eugene Etryker. The election will take place Monday next.

JAPANESE CRUISER SUNK BY EXPLOSION.

Tokio, April 30—The cruiser Matsushina of the Japanese training squadron was sunk by an explosion today off the Pescadores Islands. Thirty of the crew were saved, but it is feared that 200, including Capt. Yashiro, were lost.

The disaster was caused by the premature explosion of a projectile, which set off a magazine.

After the explosion the cruisers Itsukushima and Has hidate stood by and rendered assistance, saving the thirty men who have been accounted for. Forty officers are included among those who are missing. The explosion occurred about daylight.

PASSAIC DRUG STORE BLOWN UP.

Passaic, April 30.—The drug store of Joseph Altieri, at 98 Residence street, was blown up last night. The place was completely wrecked, but no one was seriously hurt. Altieri was slightly cut by flying glass.

What caused the explosion is unknown. The police are inclined to think it was alcohol. Detective-Sergeant Kelly is investigating.

COMING M. E. CONFERENCE

American Methodists to Meet in Baltimore on Wednesday, May 6.

BISHOP TO BE ELECTED.

Dr. George Edward Reed Favorite Candidate—Dr. Carroll to Continue In His Present Position.

The twenty-fifth delegated session of the General Conference of the Methodist Episcopal church begins on Wednesday, May 6, at 10:30 a. m. in the Lyric Hall, Baltimore.

The conference will be called to order by the senior bishop, Henry W. Warren, of Denver. One hundred and thirty-one annual conferences will be represented by about eight hundred delegates. Within two days of the opening session the seating of the conference will be arranged according to the provision of the general conference of 1904 by Dr. Joseph B. Hingely, the secretary, with the local committee on entertainment and a bishop presiding.

Bishop D. L. Goodsell will read the Episcopal address, which will record the progress and prospects of the church; the results of Episcopal supervision and the success or otherwise of the presiding conference legislation affecting the various departments of the church life and work. The Bishop will also represent his colleagues in suggestions concerning the benevolent organizations of the denomination and for cautious movements relating to the publishing institutions. To meet the demands of a growing church the Bishop will recommend the given number for additional bishops necessary.

What seemed a more grave problem than now apepars has been for many years a subject of deliberation among the leaders of Methodism, which is, the proper adjustment of the publishing interests for the sole purpose of economy, profit and utility. At the last General Conference a commission was appointed to consider the entire subject of the unification of the publishing houses in the interests named.

This commission recommended, as with final authority, certain changes which were deemed impractcable to the book committee, which committee after seeking the best legal advice obtainable decided the commission had misapprehended the authority given by the General Conference, which, therefore, leaves the whole question open for further investigation and direction by the next General Conference.

The great success of Eaton & Mains, agents for the New York Methodist Book Concern, and Jennings & Graham, agents for the Cincinnati house, is manifest in the report recently announced in "The Christian Advocate." The combined sales of the New York and Cincinnati houses for the last twelve years have been $12,558,379.60. The combined profits of the two houses for the last twelve years were $3,489,210.32, and the dividends to annual conferences paid out by them were $1,145,750. The subsidies paid by them during the same period were $474,400.99.

The net pofits of the two houses for the quadrennium just closed were as follows: The New York house, $735,999.30; the Cincinnati house, $621,076.51, making a total for the two houses for four years of $1,357,075.81. The dividends and subsides paid out by them in the last four years amount to $667,301.60.

This is declared an achievement unequalled by any other publishing house in the world. It is thought that in view of these figures the General Conference will not desire to change the management or make any material alteration in commercial methods, although the manufacturing relations may be modified by possibly removing the printing plants of New York and Cincinnati houses to parts outside the city limits.

Since the last General Conference four effective bishops and two superanuated bishops have died. The present requirements indicate that at least eight additional bishops should be elected. It is generally conceded that among those named for episcopal honors Dr. R. J. Cooke, book editor of the Methodist Episcopal church, who was nearly elected in 1904, and Dr. William F. Anderson, corresponding secretary of the Board of Education, will be elected on the first ballot. Others who are favorably mentioned for the office are Dr. David G. Downey, of New York; Dr. F. D. Bovard, of San Francisco; Dr. Homer C. Shintz, of New York and late of the Philippines; Dr. W. A. Qualyle, of Chicago; Dr. George P. Eckman, of New York; Dr. Daniel Dorchester; Dr. W. C. Smith of Pittsburg; Dr. George E. Reed, president of Dickinson College; Dr. W. H. Crawford, president of Alleghany College; Dr. E. H. Hughes, president of De Pauw University; Dr. H. C. Jennings, book agent, Cincinnati; Dr. W. S. Lewis, president of Morningside College; Dr. C. B. Spencer, of Kansas City; Dr. W. S. Matthew, of San Francisco; Dr. Robert McIntyre, of Los Angeles, and others. Dr. Reed is the favor candidate. It is not likely that the conference will elect bishops for races and languages.

Dr. James M. Buckley will be re-elected editor of "The Christian Advocate" by an almost unanimous vote as will also Dr. William V. Kelley, of "The Methodist Review." There will be little change in theeditors of the various church periodicals. Dr. J. T. McFarland will be re-elected corresponding secretary of the Sunday School Union an deditor of the Sunday School literature, and Dr. A. B. Leonard and Dr. H. K. Carroll and Dr. Robert Forbes and Dr. Ward Platt will be re-elected to the Board of Foreign Missions and Home Missions and Church Extension respectively.

It is possible that owing to the unsatisfactory results of the so-called consolidation of benevolences, including the Sunday School Union and Tract Society, the Board of Education, the Freedmen's Aid and Southern Education Society, these will return to their former relations, and each will maintain its autonomy, requiring as hertofore its respective official representative.

It is said that the much disputed question of amusements expressed in paragraph 248 of the discipline of the church will be fully discussed, with a possible modification changing it from a statutory to an advisory character.

The general conference will be asked to consider the advisability of restoring the pastoral time limit, which is not likely to prevail, also the electing instead of appointing of presiding elders and the districting of bishops for a term of years, which will not receive popular indorsement.

There will be special legislation affecting city evangelization and social service and a change in the ratio of an annual conference representation in the general conference, and some steps will be taken toward the more effective federation of churches. The Methodist Brotherhood for Men, recently formed by the union of the Wesley Brotherhood and the Brotherhood of St. Paul, will receive recognition and be adopted.

On Wednesday night, May 6, a reception will be tendered the general conference in Lyric Hall. Addresses of welcome will be given by Governor Crothers for the state, Mayor Mahool for the city, the Rev. J. St. Clair Neal for the clergy and Henry M. Wilson for the laity. Special lectures will be delivered as follows: Friday night, May 8, by Bishop Galloway, of the Methodist Episcopal Church South; May 12, Dr. W. A. Quayle; May 15, Dr. Robert McIntyre; May 19, William Jennings Bryan. On May 22 the oratorio of "The Messiah" will be given. On May 16 the general conference will be the guest of the American University in an excursion to Washington and the university grounds, where they will be addressed by President Roosevelt and Vice-President Fairbanks. There will also be a commemoration of the anniversary of the adoption of the constitution of the church in Baltimore in 1808. Vice-President Fairbanks will preside.

Elizabethans Wed in Brunswick.

New Brunswick, April 30.—The Rev. J. F. Shaw, pastor of the First M. E. church, today acknowledged that he had been called out of bed late Saturday night to marry a couple whom he had never seen before. He says that they rang his doorbell, and that when he poked his head out of the window they told him that they wanted to be married. He hurriedly dressed and tied the knot. The couple said they were Martin B. Monroe, a stenographer, and Miss Ruth M. Sullivan, both of Elizabeth.
